Twenty-Five Years

"MAKING THE BEST BETTER"

4-H Club Week

JULY 24-29, 1950

NORTH CAROLINA STATE
COLLEGE, RALEIGH

IT'S AULD LANG SYNE TONIGHT

Tonight's general session in Riddick Stadium at 7:30 will ring down the curtain on the Silver Anniversary convention of 4-H Club Week.

Featured speaker tonight is another distinguished former 4-H Club member of Duplin County, The Rev. Boyce Brooks, now pastor of the First Baptist Church of Albemarle.

Following Mr. Brooks' address will come the annual candle lighting ceremony.

Taps at 10:30 will bring this year's well-attended meeting to its formal close.

BETTY JANE ALEXANDER
SENDS GREETINGS FROM SCOTLAND IN AN EXCHANGE

Betty Jane Alexander, Mecklenburg, a member of the International Farm Youth Exchange Project, now in Scotland, sends greeting via air mail to all 4-H Club leaders and members. She assures all that she is having the most wonderful time imaginable, even though she is sometimes confused by all that Scotch dialect. She confesses that she is gaining a little weight, what with breakfast at 6, tea at 10, lunch at 1:00, tea at 4, high tea at 6:30, and dinner at 10 in the evening. Since she is getting some wonderful colored slides of her trip, Betty Jane hopes to share her trip with all her 4-H friends upon her return.

HORACE LAYDEN

The State 4-H Club Council has passed a resolution expressing regret in the accidental death of Horace Layden, active 4-H Club member. Part of the resolution read: "As we gather year after year, we shall always think of Horace as completing our circle of friendship. Let us all stop for just a few moments and pay tribute to him."

PROFILE OF A PRESIDENT

By Evelyn Davis

The cute girl with the lovely brown hair and eyes, five feet, three inches of energy, and who presides over 4-H Club meetings is Hazel Garris, retiring State President, from Pitt County.

CLOVER LEAVES is published daily, Tuesday through Friday, of 4-H Club Week by the Extension Department of State College.

With this issue CLOVER LEAVES brings Volume XII to a close. Four issues to a volume are not many by most newspaper standards. But the staff of this paper has nevertheless put in a good many hours of hard work. It has been fun, and it hopes that its readers feel that the time and effort have been worth while.

The staff would especially like to thank Isabel McDonald, Anabel Carpenter, and Ira L. Baker, all of whom have served as advisers. Our thanks also go to the typists and stencilers, multilithers, and photographers without whose services and cooperation this paper could never have appeared.

She will be a sophisticated senior this fall at Farmville High School, where she has been an active member of her local club for seven years. Her favorite project is dairy foods demonstrations. Among her many honors, the most outstanding include being a delegate to the National Club Camp in Washington and the National Club Congress in Chicago. Hazel will attend ECTC to major in home economics. As for her term as State president she says, "It has all been just wonderful."

HERE ARE THE WINNERS

All year long 4-H Club members throughout the State have been working on various projects and exercises with the idea of competing for State-wide honors here in Raleigh. Results of various contests have been announced as follows:

Francis Pressley of Iredell has a $600 scholarship to State for having the best all-around 4-H record.

Mary Faye Jackson of Surry is the State Dress Revue winner, having modeled a stylish navy wool gabardine creation. Runners-up: Dale Aman, Sampson; Irene Edwards, Alleghany; Esther Lee Hickman, Beaufort; Marhie Rhyne, Gaston. Blue ribbons went to Shirley Councilman, Chatham; Marie Reavis, Yadkin; Joan Roberts, Granville; Elsie Lawson, Robeson; Annie Blue Cameron, Hoke.

A Surry County brother-sister team, Marion and Glendora Nichols, won first place in dairy demonstration. Second place went to Betty Boswell, and Nelda Cobb of Guilford. Others placing included Edwin Yarborough, Davidson; Huber Cartner, Forsyth.

Bobby Johnson, Cumberland, was boys' division winner in the floor sanding and finishing contest. Girls' winner was Janice Warren, Nash County.

Individual winner in the Dairy Foods Demonstration is Agnes Lee, Johnston. Team winner includes Shirley Waugh and Ruth Waugh, Surry.

POLITICAL BOX

Since there was not a clear-cut majority between the two high candidates for president, Bobby Parker of Edgecombe and Paul Wagoner of Guilford find themselves in a run-off election today.

Harold Olsen, New Hanover, who is the new Historian, is the only candidate who did get a majority and thus escape another test at the polls. Rose Crouse of Davidson and Frances Woolard of Beaufort battle for vice-president. Shirley Brown of Johnston and Betty Anne Jarvis of Iredell are contesting for secretary-treasurer.

SULLIVAN FISHER HEADS HONOR CLUB

Officers for the new year of the North Carolina 4-H Honor Club are announced as follows: president, Sullivan Fisher, Nash; vice-president, Mrs. Edmund Aycock, Laurel Hill; Secretary-treasurer, Emily Ballinger, Winston-Salem; historian, Frank Johnson, Cumberland.

SEEN AND HEARD
AROUND THE CAMPUS

Did you know that WFMY of Greensboro is televising this - the Silver Anniversary Convention, and is thereby making history for 4-H Club meetings? Dr. Landis Bennet and Ralph Mills are doing the photography. They also took the pictures in today's CLOVER LEAVES supplement. But back to the television, you can see the telecast, in all probability, next Tuesday. See 'ya on the screen.

How did you like the trained dogs this afternoon? Cute eh? If only we could act that smart, as the young fellow on the third row observed.

Evelyn Davis, CLOVER LEAVES' ace reporter from Cumberland, was really scooped today when she was presented an Oscar for the best reporting of the week. The Oscar? Why a 1950.

Overheard in the chow line yesterday: "How far is it to Korea?"

In case you wonder about the slight "hold up last night the clowns just wouldn't get their paint on...Oh yes. Some of the boys had difficulty getting their lipstick off this morning..we warned them to take it off last night...nothing like experience, eh boys? Inflation note: twenty-cent cokes.

ONE MINUTE SPORTS PAGE,
By Harry Page

Softball was played again yesterday afternoon in the fields surrounding the Coliseum. For those major league scouts present, if there were any, it can be truthfully said that not too many prospects were out. Otherwise, there were lots of everything else: lots of hits, runs, and ERRORS.

Basketball is some weeks off, but not as much as was some of the shooting that went on inside the Coliseum Thursday afternoon. Several hot-shot basketball players from throughout the State decided to try out the huge arena, but they were immediately stricken with Madison Square Gardenitis; they couldn't find the goals. Now they are quite anxious to come back this winter and see how Sammy Ranzino, State's All-American forward, does it.

GIBBS' CIRCUS MAKES
BIG HIT LAST NIGHT

"To the circus they will go," says the old song. Last night they did go-- 4-H Club attendants, county agents, friends and parents poured into the Coliseum for the annual Dress Revue with ninety-nine county winners vieing for State wide honors.

Jane Gibbs, clothing specialist for the State Extension Department, had charge of arrangements and was responsible for the circus idea. The arena was appropriately decorated with saw dust, bunting, concessions, barkers, midgets, clowns, and show girls.

The styles are geared very cleverly to the spirit of the theme, for example, at the parade, the girls naturally wore their school dresses. For those who attended the matinee, afternoon clothes were worn. Later came the more tailored outfits followed by the formal ones.

Eventually, the ringmaster turned to the center ring for the important announcement. The winner: Mary Faye Jackson, Surry County

FRANCES MACGREGOR WALL

Helping others to find security and happiness was her goal. A living example of the high ideals for which 4-H stands, she was an inspiration to young people and adults alike. Always alert to the needs of others, she was always ready to serve with an unselfish devotion a program providing greater opportunities for rural youth. 4-H Club work in North Carolina and in the Nation is better because of her enthusiasm, devotion and loyalty.

Because she lived and gave her best, and in a large measure, for the enrichment of the lives of others--she lives today in the lives of those she loved and served. The 4-H Club members will remember her for her inspiration, love, and devotion. Fellow Extension workers will remember her for her efficiency, devotion, and loyalty.
