State 4-H Club Week / North Carolina State

HONOR CLUB TAPS 17

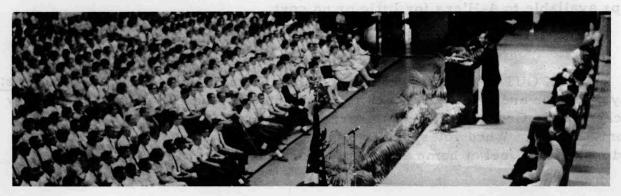

Approximately 1400 4-H'ers and their friends saw 17 of their number tapped into the 4-H State Honor Club in candlelight ceremonies Monday night.

New members tapped were Brenda Fairless, Bertie County; Allen Glasgow, Halifax; George Holtzman, Warren; Connie Maxton Pittman, Wilson; Betty Jean Crews, Vance; George Vick, Nash; Ronald Boyd Outen, Union; Elizabeth Cooke, Iredell; Mary Beth Hurdle, Perquimans; Charles Douglas Evans, Dare; D. A. Cockman, Moore; Mary Alice Thomas, Duplin; Sandra Kay Barnes, Guilford; Tom Kearns and David Sink, Davidson; Donald White, Chatham; and Kenneth Stroud, Lenoir.

Qualifications for membership are that the member be 16 years old, must attend Club Week, and be active in 4-H and Civic activities and display leadership qualities.

Dr. Eloise Cofer, assistant director of the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service in charge of home economics programs; and Dr. Carlton Blalock, assistant extension director in charge of 4-H Club work, received honorary membership into the organization. W. M. Garmon, district 4-H agent, received an associate membership.

New Honor Club officers are Bobby Cockerham, Charlotte, president; Mrs. Jane Hill, Chapel Hill, vice president; Effie Lee Aman, Winton, Secretary-treasurer; and Jim Rhinehardt, Catawba, historian. -- Joan Stroud

"LEARN, LIVE, SERVE, THROUGH 4-H"

V. HAT YOU ARE SAYING --- ABOUT CLUB V. EEK AND 4-H

"'Hello, I'm Sandy Bausman from Craven County. Where are you from?' This question will be asked and answered many times this week. Another question is, 'Oh, why can't I remember her name?' These and new friends and long lines and patriotism and learning are part of this outstanding event in 4-H Club work."

"I am a citizen in the making," said Mary Helen Williams, another Craven Countian. "I would like to thank 4-H for what it is, what it is doing for the young people today and what it will do tomorrow."

Harry Brooks, Stanly County, said, "Above all else, 4-H helps you to become a better American, therefore a more valuable citizen in our great world-wide community of nations. This is why I am proud to say I am an American, a 4-H American."

V. HY AM I IN 4-H

After questioning a number of western North Carolina Club members, I found that many share the same point of view. V. hen asked "why they were in 4-H" some would answer "Because I like 4-H Club work" or "Because I get a chance to participate in projects" or "Because I get a chance to travel."

Paul Latta of Orange County said he was in the 4-H so he could participate in demonstrations. "Knowing that you have successfully completed a project or demonstration and possibly won a prize or trip, is the greatest feeling in the world."

Becky McNeil of Ashe County said her reason was "A love for club work, and a feeling of complete satisfaction when a project is finished and done well."

Al McMillian of the Northwestern district said 4-H club work gave him a chance to travel. "Through a little effort and a little luck there are numerous trips available to 4-H'ers for little or no cost.

LOOK OUT FOR--Judy Brown and John Allen, delegates from Tennessee; Faye Traylor and V illie Craddock from Virginia; Fianne Wimberly and Rodney Vickers from Georgia; Oscar Salazar, IFYE from Peru; and James Forbes, from Scotland. When you spot these folks, give them a big Tarheel Welcome and make them feel at home among friends.

INTO EVERY LIFE SOME RAIN MUST FALL--Lynn Minchner, Barbara Ross, Sharon Parker, Harry Lee Spruill and Carroll Phelps peek out from under their umbrellas Monday afternoon.
