TO THE WILDLIFE CAMP DELEGATION

This Wildlife Conference is held for you. It is being conducted by the North Carolina Extension Service and is made possible by the Federal Cart-ridge Corporation. You are here because of the interest these two agencies have in conserving wildlife and our natural resources.

A study of our resources from a community, state or national point of view shows that there is much unrestrained destruction of soils, trees and animal life. This destruction is due to misunderstanding and lack of appreciation. Each 4-H Club member attending this camp will have a definite responsibility of improving the conservation habits of the people in our communities. While here, learn all you can about the proper ways of conserving the things in nature and the economical and recreational advantages it offers.

You are obligated to the people of your communities to go back and put into practice some of the things you will learn while here. I suggest that you keep notes and make a report to your club, your County Council, and together with the County Agents, write a news article for the local paper giving the story of what happened at this meeting.

Fish Ponds and Game Laws -- This lesson will be around the selection of site and construction of fish ponds; how to get parent stock, how to feed fish and how to maintain ponds. Game laws as they affect hunters and trappers will be discussed. This will be helpful as it will show why laws are necessary to protect our game resources.

Discussion Leader:

Nature Study -- The discussion and study of this subject will center on the resources about us in nature and our everyday lives. The lesson will help us to know more of the life about us and how the stones, the soil, plants, and animals work and can be made to add to our comfort and pleasure. A field trip will be part of the lesson.

Discussion Leader: Jack F. Dermid

Wildlife Feeding -- The discussion of this subject will center around the preparation and maintenance of wildlife borders and feeding stations. This is very important if we are to assist our game animals to survive and thrive. We will also learn what different animals eat so as to be intelligent on making provisions for their choice of foods.

Discussion Leader: Mr. F. V. Duffy
Soil Conservationist.

Friday, August 26, 1949

Forestry and Its Relation to Rural Life.-- In the study of this subject we will learn how to prevent and control forest fires. We will learn how to plant seedlings and where to plant them. Management of a growing forest will also be discussed. We will learn, too, of the harmful effects of woods burning and making selection of trees to be cut for fire wood.

Discussion Leader: Mr. John L. Gray
Extension Forester
