STUDENTS SWING FORENSIC COACH FROM TREE LIMB

Professor P. P. Paget Lynched Yesterday in First Lynching Since Major Perry's

LYINGCH Was CAUSED BY PAGET'S DIRTY WORK

Party Led By Frank Brusqe and Animated By L. Butts, H. P. Cotton, and Bight Stokes; En- tire Faculty in sympathy With Students, Although Being Over Lynching; Buttie Receives Nobel Award for Leading Lynching Mob

The first lynching at State College, since the timely disposal of Michael A. (Cassana's Legion) Perry, was well secured yesterday when Prof. P. P. Paget was lynched on the campus.

The hanging was carried on in the quiet methodical way that is peculiar only to engineers who have spent many painful, thoughtful hours analysing the national problems. The noble deed (The Technician is impartial in the report of this story) was done in the small hours of the night in order not to attract too many holier sects, and in order to give The Technician the first scoop on the story.

The party was led by Frank Brusqe, public benefactor No. 1, and assisted by the valiant crew of L. Butts, H. P. Cotton, and Bight Stokes. Professor Paget, who is being held under suspicion as being sympathetic to the Paget ("hard p, accent over the t") movement, was lynched.

When questioned about the noble and generous act (The Technician again wishes to caution the reader that it is impartial) Brusqe, Public Bene- factor No. 1, modestly replied, "Me no talk." After considerable questioning, however, it was finally discovered that Paget had "an accent over the p," and had allegedly sold the title of International Champion, the rightful property of State College, to Wake Forest, for an investment in the P. M. P. S. society which stands for Professor Modesty, and Patience.

Although, according to the debaters, this was the main charge brought up against Paget by his enemies (the "p") there were several other severe accusations brought up against him. They said he would not let them eat pie while on debate trips or chew gum. This was not so bad according to the debaters, until Prof. P. P. Paget wrote a poem about the pie and the gum, and the readers will find a copy of it in the next issue.

The lynching was carried out in a field near the student union, and it was witnessed by several students who were present.

POLICE ARREST CROOKS TAKEN IN JAIL FOLLOWING RED LIGHT RAID

COUNCIL CHARGED WITH DRUNKENNESS

Brooks Puts All Council Members On Probation, Following Raid On Meeting

Finding a large quantity of heavy beer and whiskey at the campus Council meet- ing, Prof. E. Brooks, president of State College, dismissed the members and put the entire Council on probation. It was not discovered what was done with the beverages. Dr. Brooks is taking complete charge of them.

Hearing a large commotion in the Student Council office, Dr. Brooks went down the hall from his office to investigate the noise and discovered the entire Council in various stages of in- diction. Bill Barker, president, and W. F. "Pipe" Kanto were caught in each other's arms singing the chorus of "Sweet Adelines," while Marshall Gard- ner, treasurer and prominent Y. M. C. A. member, was passed out entirely under one of the desks. Bill Sullivan, secre- tary, was muttering drunkenly about the finances of the Council so PATHETICLYiasm on the floor, at an extremely low obb, and also about Mer- rill and Greenstreet girls.

"Get the $1.41 1/2 out of here," shouted Claude Currence, another mem- ber. Dr. Brooks was known to get the "g,"g, g, was recognized, who he was to shove off his mount. If you look closely you will see it.

DAME WOUNDS ANOTHER OVER PROF. FOUNTAIN

Row Started Over English Prof Ends With Woman Being Seriously Injured

Following an altercation over Prof. Zippy Mack Fountain, Miss Derby Breeches seriously wounded Miss Gisler- meyer, Penner last night in the vicinity of Capital-square.

Police discovered that the State Col- lege professor had had both young ladies out riding last night, and some slight remark was made by one that caused the other to become infuriated. The remark is said to have concerned Professor Fountain.

It was not determined why Miss Breeches was carrying a gun at the time, but it is thought that she had been waiting a chance to get Miss Pete- ner. It is a well known fact that Pro- fessor Fountain is, in one student des- cription, it n "big" with the ladies. He is quite often seen in company with as many as five and six at one time.

He is being held by police until Miss Peteina is sufficiently able to give a detailed account of the affair. She is expected to be able to leave the hospital within a week.
June while national. I was doing some research on Dr. E. C. Brooks, President of the college, and it seemed to me that the college was not able to pay its debts, the plan must be ended. Dr. Brooks would not discuss why the college could not pay its debts, but Dean E. L. Cloward was brought to the table to explain. He refused to give any details about the college's financial situation.

The dean also admitted that another reason for the financial embarrassment of the college was due to a lack of reasonable high salaries paid the faculty. The faculty members were simply not being paid enough to support their families.

The dean was also asked about the recent resignation of Professor E. W. Egbert, who had left the college due to a lack of funding. This had also caused some discontent among the students. However, the dean assured everyone that despite the financial difficulties, the college would continue to provide a quality education for its students.

BUSINESS SENIORS TO GET POSITIONS

"Egotistical" Henniger Announces That Seniors Will Get $250 Positions

Professor R. W. "Egotistical" Henniger, the power behind Dean Brown's throne in the business school, announced late last night that he had succeeded in making arrangements for placing all seniors in business this year with jobs that will pay $250 a month.

In an interview with a member of the TECHNICAL staff Henniger said, "It was my powerful influence with the financial capital of the country which enabled me to secure the jobs. I am happy to say that for the past three weeks I have been conducting my class in a dissertation, and have been pulling my hair out and lying awake at nights worrying over the responsibility of placing these seniors.

For the past several years graduates of the business school have been unable to secure the positions they desire due to the high cost of living in the city. I have been told by Henniger that the students are well aware of this and are thankful for his efforts. In fact, many of them have already worked at the institution during the summer months.

However, the situation is not without its challenges. Henniger's success in obtaining jobs for the students has not been without criticism. Some have questioned his motives and methods, particularly regarding the amount of money he has reportedly received from businesses for placing his students.

Nonetheless, Henniger remains committed to his cause and is determined to ensure that all students have the opportunity to succeed in their careers. As he said, "I am proud of the fact that I have been able to place all our graduates in successful positions. This has been a source of great satisfaction to me and I hope it will be to others as well."
Clyde in Intimate Scene

State Students Unable to be Found After Exploding Dynamite in Hands

Loud reverberations on the campus Wednesday which startled the entire student body were due to an experiment conducted by Prof. Joe Moore's laboratory psychology in practice in psychology. It was reported that Professor Moore had his students hold a piece of dynamite in their hands while he set the fuse off. After the dynamite had exploded the students who were holding the dynamite strangely disappeared, and no trace could be found of them. Prof. Moore ventured to say that he didn’t thought that the particular dynamite he was using had any magic in it. He thought that the thing that caused people to disappear was because the fuse was set off. No trace has been found of the students at a late hour last night. Raleigh police have been called out in an attempt to locate the students on account of the mystery, but so far no theory has been discussed.

HECK PERFECTS NEW INVENTION

Physic Prof Invents Machine for Controlling Atmospheric Conditions

Professor C. M. Heck, dean of the weather department of State College, announced Wednesday the completion of his new invention for weather control.

Professor Heck claims that he can stop rain, hail, snow and snow—furnishers he can stop winds, tornadoes and cyclones.

"The theory," Heck told newsmen interviewing him, "is simple. When you don’t have these bad weather conditions, you don’t have them. Therefore, the sure way not to have them is to stop them before they get there. Do you follow now?"

The gentlemen admitted that although it was rather difficult they would partly understand. To which Professor Heck answered, "I didn’t expect you to, because it took me many years to figure that out. It’s a wonder that you can understand it at all." The method by which the professor hopes to stop rain, snow and hail is by breeding myriads of jinns with a diet of dry crackers. The birds will be kept in cages scattered over the country. When they feel that the humidity is getting to such a condition that it is about to precipitate, they will burst their cages in eagerness to get some of the water. In fact, they will be such a hurry that they will fly up to the air to meet it. In this way they will drink the rain, therefore preventing it from coming to the earth. Now consider the hail, Heck has not definitely decided. He will use practically the same method, except that he may give the birds a little more variety by feeding them lemons and sugar in order that they might have ice cold lemonade when it hail. This will increase the birds desire for hail and therefore prevent any disastrous hail storms that might otherwise occur.

Heck has not revealed his plans for controlling wind yet. It is commonly believed that he must learn to do that himself, although he contends that the Imperial Japanese Government is trying to steal the secret and therefore he must guard it closely.

CO-EDS TO BE IMPORTED TO N. C. STATE COLLEGE

Fifteen hundred coeds will be imported to the State College campus according to a recent announcement by Professors J. C. Pershing, assistant dean of students.

Assistant Dean Pershing will assist in the choosing of the coeds. They will be selected from other institutions over the State, especially Meredith, St. Mary’s, Peace, E. C. T. C., W. C. U., N. C. 4426, and Pioneers Macdonald. It was a well-known fact that Rosco is a good judge of the female sex, having had an enormous amount of experience in such matters.

The girls all go crazy over this blind Pershing. Others who will aid in the selections are Dr. Riddle, Dr. Brooks, Dr. Harrison, "G backgroundColor="white" width="420" height="273" src="https://example.com/01.jpg" alt="" />Brown, Bill Brown, Phil Brown, "Bill" Barkelait, "Bill" Wheeler, and Dean P. Brown. All these men are known to be very capable in the selection of the coeds.

MAY BE EXCUSED

For giving this colored column, we shall again attempt to produce for the amusement of the student body a sheet that carries nothing but nonsense concerning prominent faculty members and students.

This issue gives the staff an opportunity to blow off steam and at the same time take one taste of, or at least, we hope no one does. The entire sheet is edited in a spirit of fun and contains absurd fabrications brought forth from the weary brains of staff members. Editing a college newspaper sometimes becomes a boreome task, especially at this time of the year. Unlike daily papers, some of the news contained may not be so current, and after a period collecting news that is often a week old loses the thrill that one experiences when first starting in the game or returning after a long period of absence. One reason we take the opportunity of fabricating facts in an attempt to what the jaded appetites of the students who are tired of reading the aforementioned not-so-fresh news.

Two terms of school have been completed and following this issue the staff will again settle down to the more serious task of collecting the various happenings on the campus, forewarning the students that Paget is going to have another Experimental Theatre presentation, and digging up dirt for publication in our Walter Winchell column.

We hope that you who read this sheet will get as much enjoyment out of it, as the staff put into it.

VERSATILE "HELL"

Mush has been said of the place of eternal torture where bad souls go after death—meaning hell. "Hell" is a versatile word. We use it in the day, but the idea that was intended for it is used by College boys use it. College girls use it. Laymen use it. Freshmen use it, openly from the pulpit and secret ly in their minds—but in different senses.

The list of things that "hell" describes is infinite in length. Some of the more common of these are "cold as hell," "hot as hell," "mean as hell," "as hell," "fancy as hell," and so on down the list and far into the night and the next day we could go, but due to space limitations, the entire list cannot be given.

If the reader does not already know how much of this sheet, these college has of absolutely no benefit to him.

The devil or old Satan as he is sometimes called is probably sitting back on his haunches in Hades and giving the species of homme squele bellow for describing the word. It's a convenient word, though, in description. When you can think nothing else to say when describing a person or a person, then the word usually fits in nicely.

If the devil has done nothing else worthwhile this place of residence has furnished a word that has been accepted by both great and small, black and white, or any other color as a means of cutting down vocabularies.

FREE LIKER

That the Student Council came through last night with a motion to hand out cords whiskly to those members of the student body who wish for it as a means of entertainment. The student body chose its representatives wisely at the elections last year. State College is rapidly becoming modernized, and we hope that at the elections on April 17 a habitual "out" may be elected student president and that the president of the Interfraternity Council will run a bar in his fraternity house for the convenience of his supporters, for it is doubtful whether any man can preserve his honored post unless he can keep his friends in a drunken condition all the time.

Marshall J. Gardner, candidate for the presidency of the student body, has announced his intentions of interviewing hard drinks served from the fountain in the Students Supply Store should be elected, and that for the convenience of students who don't like to have change jingling in their pockets, exorbitant prices will be charged. Other items in his platform are: (1) The complete abolition of the Honor System. (2) The burning of Pullen Hall by a pyromaniac. (3) Doing away completely with the faculty. (4) The State College Board of Trustees, and the Alumni Association, in order that the school may be run properly by the students. "The members of the State College administration are all 'nil-wits'," said Gardner when interviewed. "This Tecmiclanner reporter last night, "the only remedy for the degeneration of State College is to put a high-minded type of individual such as me into the presidency. I shall then appoint from my Council others like me to supervise the affairs of this college." As his first point in the campaign, Gardner stated that only those men who could drink a half gallon of corps standing up could be eligible for appointment.

The THEOCRISTIAN feels that the college cannot expect Gardner's leadership; so we are advocating that all students investigate his dip pugs before going to the polls.

We wish to take this opportunity to make an special apology to Dean R. L. Floyd for the numerous cracks that have been made at him in this issue, and we solemnly hope that no offense will be taken.

"Bringing football games by carrying posters on the field while the players were in a huddle." He admitted most of these charges himself after the election. Although the student body greatly approved the move of Professor Paget (hard "g" accent over the "g") the entire faculty is in sympathy with the debaters and to show their appreciation of the debate, we give the following statement which can in no effect as soon as Paget (hard "g") or heck, you know that by now) has removed from his ideas the number tree. After this noble, generous and unselfish deed was perpetrated, we urge you to give your support to the debaters.

The TECHNICIAN was the first, (here we must impress our absolute impartiality) to send congratulations to the debaters.

Dean R. L. Floyd said when interviewed, "I do not make speeches, especially on occasions like this, but I think, that in the light of the incriminating evidence against Mr. Paget, especially his use pursuance of language before a baby is absolutely scandalous for and can not be tolerated at State College. As a Southern gentleman, I can not allow a "dime thing like that to come down here in my college and behave like that. These boys have benefited State College and have saved me some trouble with the students. "The members of the State College administration are all "nil-wits," spluttered Gardner when questioned. "This Tecmiclanner reporter last night, "the only remedy for the degeneration of State College is to put a high-minded type of individual such as me into the presidency. GOLFERs TO PLAY IN ROLLER SKATES

Hardware Company Provides Link Artists With Roller Skates for Matches

Members of the State College Golf Team were each presented with a pair of roller skates Thursday by the Briggs Hardware Company of this city. It was understood that the local hardware firm took pity on the plight of the team. At the time of the donation, practically every member of the team was suffering from stables, bunions, callouses, and athlete's foot caused by their tours on the links.

Pat Pastore, captain of the team, expressed his appreciation of the gift of the skates. "Happy days are here again," he said. "Now instead of a worry tour of eighteen holes on foot, golfing will be a joy rather than a mental bane. I feel sure that the skates will bolster the team's morale as well as their seat of concentration. We are very grateful to the hardware firm for their contribution to the team."

It is expected that the skates will help materially improve the team's score, and the moral effect on their opponents will be something terrific. While the opposing teams are digging themselves out of the ruts, the State men will be blissfully rolling along to the eighteenth hole and a drink. Skates have solved the problem of the golf team, in the race for barned shins and holes in one. (Note: The other was unable to figure what the hole in one was. It probably meant the hole ripped in one if not more pairs of pants.)

ever. "At last," he said, "I can get away from them guys across the railroad."

The great for State's reputation was to keep in the college's policy of "a new deal for State football players." Recently the Faculty Council passed a ruling that football players in the college do not have to know how to read or write. Much new talent is expected to be brought to the colleges because of the ruling.

Miller personally very enthusiastic about his new system. In fact it is so good, according to him, that he plans to retire on the money he saves the department at the end of another year's work.

HITHER AND TOTHER

Well, yous guys, the old dirt disher's order has been at work again and what he has to tell you would fill a book (you bring the book). You know, if one would only use his sixth, eighth, and thirteenth sense he would be able to see and hear the things that yours truly does. Verush, being keyed up to a pitch such as I am now, I am able to percieve things which even the guilty persons and the innocent unaware of . . . read on and see for yourself.

Did any of you see Bill Barker driv- ing around with five of the six chorus girls from the midnight show of last night? Bill was a bit embar- rassed over what he told me later that he would rather face the shame of being seen with only five of the girls than to suffer the disdain of riding with seven in the front seat of a sport roadster.
