DISCOVERY MADE OF SPIRAL FORM BY PHYSICS HEAD

Professor Heck of Physics Department Makes Important Scientific Discovery

SUBMITS INFORMATION TO LEADING OIL FIRMS

Discovery Brings Much Publicity to Head of Physics Department; First Pictures Ever Made of Group of Spiral Crystals in Paraffin; Presents Data to American Petroleum Institute in New York; to Continue Study into Mysterious Formations

Returning from a trip north where he presented valuable scientific information to research departments of leading petroleum organizations, Prof. C. M. Heck, head of the physics department at State College, has this week become one of the leading figure-heads in newspapers and magazines throughout the entire country, due to his discovery of spiral paraffin crystal forms in oil.

Paraffin crystal forms were thought to be, before Heck's discovery, irregular in shape with no definite arrangement of the crystals. Heck in his experiments, found a small number of these crystals to be spiral in form with definite arrangement and structure, and found the spiral to be symmetrical around its focal point.

Important Discovery
This is a very important discovery in that it will have direct bearing on future processing of oils and petroleum products. Oil companies spend thousands of dollars each year developing new processes for refining oil, and the information that Heck has given will simplify many problems in future developments. Every oil has a paraffin base that must be eliminated to the smallest degree to give a refined oil, and a knowledge of the composition of the paraffin crystal, in all its forms, is very important.

Evidence of the spiral form for the paraffin crystal of the size of a pinhead was discovered on a carborundum block now held in the Princeton Museum, but never have the spiral crystals been found in such abundance as Heck found them. In his first experiments, Heck found only one crystal in 10,000, but since then he has found a new way to isolate the crystals in greater quantities. By injecting paraffin into oil to get complete saturation, he was able to precipitate the spiral form out of solution, whereas, other scientist had tried to eject the crystals.

Great Deal of Time
Heck has spent every spare moment in the last year in experiments on oil, testing samples and taking microscopic pictures of his findings, and on his recent trip to New York to address the American Petroleum Institute, he was able to present to the world his important findings. Although he attributes his discovery to pure accidental luck, it is generally known that he has spent a great deal of time in his experiments.

Presenting his findings to the research division of the Standard Oil Company at Elizabeth, N. J., and the experiment station of the DuPont Company at Wilmington, Del., Heck aroused their interest and is now doing research work for both companies.

No Explanation
Heck has no explanation to offer concerning the orderly arrangement of the spiral formations. Analysis with polarized light so far has not shown any difference between crystals with visible spirals and those without them, but definite proof by microscopic pictures is available.

Resuming his studies today, Heck was found hidden in a physics laboratory bending over a powerful microscope observing the crystal spiral that has become nationally famous in the past week. He plans to resume his experiments in an endeavor to find the cause of such orderly arrangement of the forms and the reason for their occurrence.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED AT AG GROUP MEETING

At a meeting of the State College Ag Club Wednesday in Polk Hall the following students were elected to hold the various offices for the coming year: Frank Gibson, president; John L. Yelverton, vice president; E. H. Wikow, secretary and treasurer; and J. H. Payne, reporter.

Frank Gibson, incoming president, gave a short talk after the business session on the advantages of the development of a pure strain in breeding animals and pointed out the valuable effects of international livestock shows and expositions.

Makes Discovery

Shown above is Professor C. M. Heck, head of the physics department at State, who last week reported his discovery of an abundance of spiral crystals existing in paraffin and other oil products. It was thought previously that spirals were almost non-existent outside of the known types in the plant and animal world.

DEBATE SOCIETY MEETS WINTHROP

Forensic Squad Leaves for Tournament at Winthrop College; State to Defend

The final round of the State College Impromptu Speaking Contest, held Saturday, November 28, was won by S. B. Moss in the varsity forensic squad division; B. S. Tucker in the non-squad division; and H. Zekaria in the freshman division.

In the all-contest ranking, Moss and Tucker were tied for first place, with Tucker having a slightly advantage since he received two out of the three first places awarded by the judges. Of course, the one who was very much more mystified, and asked how could that be, when the picture was entirely blank.

Explains
Holding stated that as the mind is the center of classical art, the picture was perfectly clear, since in the picture the fact could be seen that the Red Sea had parted, and the picture was made right at the time of parting, the Israelites had not yet arrived.

Holding, a fraternity man in his college days, has kept his interest and association with the fraternities, in fact, he served as district supervisor for a fraternity for several years. The layman's view of college fraternities according to Holding is based on the fratricide of about twenty years ago. Part of the public has not recognized the forward strides the organizations collectively are making, nor the progress made in the past decade. The people at large do not realize that the fraternities are a great asset to a college campus. The speaker pointed out the facilities of the public's view.

The banquet with the accompanying speech lasted from 7:30 to 9:00, and was a culmination of the pledge exercises of Delta Sigma Pi. The meeting was under the direction of Mario Comoli, president of the group.

Pledges

The eight outstanding business students who were initiated into the fraternity during the past week, and who were the guests of honor at the banquet Sunday night are: T. T. Allison, R. C. Keys, W. R. Fountain, W. M. Small, K. T. Rand, J. F. Ryneka, W. B. Small, and R. L. Stallings. Allison and Ryneka are seniors; the others are all juniors.

"Nelson's College Caravan" Published By English Profs

Of great interest to State students, as well as others, should be the fact that a new omnibus—Nelson's College Caravan—has been edited by three professors of the Greater University of North Carolina, a representative from each of the three divisions respectively, L. A. P. Hudson, of Chapel Hill, L. E. Harkley, of Greensboro, and J. D. Clark of State College. This omnibus has an unusual feature to add to its attraction; namely, that it is published, for reasons of convenience, in four brightly-colored volumes, as well as being available in the one-volume form. Most of the material compiled therein is of English and American origin. The first volume is a collection of essays, models, and materials, designed for introductory work, including a more detailed treatment of the research paper, paragraphs, editorials, and letters. The second volume contains poetry and drama, the latter to consist of full-length plays, including such modern playwrights as Paul Green and Eugene O'Neill, and at the other extreme, such an ancient dramatist as the Greek tragedian, Sophocles. The poetry section contains over 11,000 lines of verse. In volume III, in addition to the short stories, modern as well as the old classics, ranging all the way from Edgely Allan Poe, Robert Louis Stevenson, and Guy de Maupassant to Pearl Buck, Julia Peterkin, and others, with emphasis on stories of the Southland, there is a complete and enchanting novelette, "The Voice of Bugle Ann"—one of the most charming dog stories ever printed. Volume IV is devoted to biography, including an unusual American biography entitled "Andrew Jackson, An Epic in Homespun." The author of this is Gerald Johnson, a native North Carolinian. Indeed, it has been the intention of the editors to include as many contributions of family or local standing Southern writers as is compatible with such a catholic range of talent as this book presents.

BARRISTER SPEAKS AT BANQUET HELD FOR NEW PLEDGES

Banquet, Under Direction of Mario Comoli, Held in Honor of New Members of Delta Sigma Pi

TALKS ON FRATERNITIES, CLASSICAL MUSIC, ARTS

Holding, Fraternity Man, Spoke Encouragingly of Present Status of Fraternities; As Authority on Music and Arts, Holding Treated Subjects in Interesting Manner; Keeps Audience Amused by Humorous Remarks on "Classical Art" As He Sees It

C. B. Holding, Raleigh city attorney, addressed Delta Sigma Pi, international commerce fraternity, at its banquet held in honor of the new pledges to the organization last Sunday night at 7:30 at the Carolina Hotel.

Holding thoroughly entertained his audience by speaking on the topic, "Classical Music, Classical Arts, and The Present American College Fraternity." The speaker held to a light vein of thought throughout his entire speech. He stated that he was an authority, in a way, on these subjects and proceeded to prove this claim. Real music, according to the speaker, is an appeal to the ear, and classical music appeals more to the mind. If this is true of music, it is also true of art. Joked the speaker in order to test this statement the speaker said that he hung an empty, that is blank, piece of paper in a picture frame over his desk. When an inquisitive person asked what did it represent, Holding informed him that it was a picture of the Israelites crossing the Red Sea. Of course, the questioner was very much more mystified, and asked how could that be, when the picture was entirely blank.

Program
Outstanding members of the program are: Wednesday, the annual address of State Master Ben F. Wilson, election of officers, banquet at the Carolina Hotel, and an open meeting at the Municipal Auditorium; Thursday, conferring the fifth and sixth degrees, picnic supper, and the Annual Memorial Service. Many members of the State College Grange will receive their fifth or sixth degrees during the sessions, and the College Grange is co-operating in the picnic Thursday night by taking baskets.

According to the Carolina Cooperator
"The North Carolina State Grange is a delegate body made up of Masters and their wives or husbands of each local Grange in the state." The State College Grange is composed of both students and members of the faculty, with an enrollment of between 50 and 75 members. Howard H. Boling is Head Master, and he and the State College Grange are making every effort to insure the success of the convention. Local business men are also doing their part, as well as the Farmers Cooperative Exchange which has headquarters in Raleigh.

This is the eighth annual session of the North Carolina State Grange and this is the first time the convention has been held in Raleigh. Convention headquarters is the Hotel Carolina, but several important sessions will be held in the Municipal Auditorium and elsewhere.

NEW ORDER TO SPONSOR DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The Eagle Scout Order, recently organized body on this campus, met Monday night at 7:00 o'clock in the college YMCA to discuss plans for future development and organization, having as its principal speaker for the evening Charlie Stott, senior, and a leader in the American Red Cross life-saving corps on the campus. Present plans for the group include training courses to be offered to the Raleigh Scouts, life saving courses to be offered to college students, and recreational diversions to be offered to the members of the club. In cooperation with the leaders of the Raleigh Scouts, the Eagle Scouts will train young Scouts in the many courses that lead to higher honors in the organization. This newly organized order takes the place of a similar organization that went out of existence on this campus several years ago, and it is likely that the present organization will adopt the policies and laws that were set up by the preceding order.

Delivers Address

C. B. Holding (above) spoke before Delta Sigma Pi, international commerce fraternity, at their banquet in honor of their eight pledges, held at the Carolina Hotel last Sunday night. Holding is attorney for the city of Raleigh, and is one of the youngest ever to occupy that post.

STATE GRANGERS MEET IN RALEIGH

State Organization Will Hold Its Annual Convention December 9, 10, and 11

State College Grangers are busily preparing for the annual convention of the North Carolina State Grange which will be held in Raleigh, December 9, 10, and 11. Co-operating in the problem of housing the large number of delegates are the College YMCA, members of the faculty, and the Extension Service, who will all help entertain the men and women representing their local Granges. A very interesting and helpful program has been arranged, with discussions covering every subject of interest to rural North Carolinians. The speakers include such prominent men as Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Gov. ernor-elect Clyde Hoey, and the Honorable Josiah W. Bailey. Also expected to attend the convention is National Master L. J. Tabor of Columbus, Ohio.

Judging Committee
Dr. Baldwin M. Woods of the department of mechanical engineering, University of California, is the head of the National Committee of Award, which will judge the papers. The body of the committee is composed of prominent educators of the United States.

In determining the awards the committee will make their decision on the following points: (a) the completeness and soundness of subject matter; (b) the success of the candidate in analyzing his subject matter and drawing conclusions from it; (c) the merit of "cheer" and any kind of ship but the originality of subject matter; and (e) the choice of subject. The committee will emphasize the above criteria in different degrees.

Awards
The winner of the first award in the contest will receive a complete Boeing Stearman Pilot flying course, covering 250 hours of flight instruction. This course in both information taught and the hours of instruction exceeds the requirements necessary for a transport pilot license.

Winners of the second, third, and fourth awards may choose one of a number of technical and non-technical courses and will, in addition, receive 25 hours of dual and solo flight instruction.

BOEING WILL GIVE AVIATION AWARDS AGAIN THIS YEAR

Aviation School Announces Essay Contest With $11,000 Tuition Prizes

PROMINENT EDUCATORS WILL JUDGE ARTICLES

First Prize Consists of Complete Airline Pilot Flying Course; the Second, Third, and Fourth Prize Winners Will Have Choice of a Number of Courses Offered; the Committee to Make Award on the Basis of Five Qualifications

The W. E. Boeing Scholarships, sponsored by W. E. Boeing, founder of the Boeing Aircraft Company, and offered for the past seven years, will be offered again during the 1936-37 school year to university, college, and junior college students in the United States and Canada, who are interested in aviation as a career, according to information received from the Boeing School of Aeronautics last week.

Four awards in the form of flying, technical, and semi-technical courses with a tuition value of $11,000 will be given at the Boeing School of Aeronautics, Oakland, California. The Boeing School is a division of United Air Lines Transport Corporation.

Basis of Award
The scholarships will be awarded on the basis of a thesis competition. To be eligible, students must meet the following requirements as issued by the judging committee: First, They must be male undergraduate students in good standing and in regular attendance in some university, college, or junior college in the United States or Canada, which offers at least two years of work leading to a bachelor's degree in arts or science. Second, They must be of the white race, between the ages of 18 and 25, of average height and normal weight, have normal eyesight, and be free of any physical handicaps. Third, They must submit a technical or non-technical treatise of not over 3,500 words on any aeronautical subject of their own choice. The papers must be mailed on or before March 15, 1937.

Dr. Clark M. Eichelberger, director of the League of Nations Association, Inc., will speak at a luncheon in the State College YMCA on next Thursday beginning at 1 o'clock on the purpose and program of the national organization.

Dr. Eichelberger has recently returned from Geneva, Switzerland, where he attended the sessions of the League Assembly, and this combined with the fact that he has been interested in this program for many years, will make the speech well worth while to those interested in the League of Nations," said E. S. King, general secretary of the State College YMCA, yesterday.

While on the State College campus, Dr. Eichelberger will endeavor to contact those who are especially interested in the League of Nations Association program and will start a movement to organize a local campus committee. Such committees are being organized in a great many of the colleges and universities in the country.

Just recently, the southeastern branch office of the association was set up at Chapel Hill. The work of the organization in this section will be directed from there.

All persons who are interested in attending the luncheon Thursday are asked to notify E. S. King at the YMCA not later than Tuesday evening, December 8. There will be a moderate charge for the luncheon.

Yuletide, According to Bing, Is Not Fully a Bed of Roses

By JOHNNIE BING
Christmas comes but once a year, thank goodness! Christmas, the time of year when one envisions snow, sleigh bells, seasonal cheer, good fellowship, but is more than likely to get soupy slush, bell in the head, bad "cheer" and any kind of ship but the aforementioned. Whether one had a calendar or not, you could always tell when this crucial time of year rolls around. To begin with, one gets the sweetest letters from the girl you have been trying to get off your list since late in October. She won't be downed. She forgives you for not having written her at all, or for having been less eloquent in those love letters you wrote during the summer, right after you came back from the beach. Then, there are the ones whom you had forgotten completely, already checked off the list, or crossed out of the "little black book" (or red, as the case might be). They write that they got to thinking about you "the other day" and remembering (with an appropriate wistfulness) of the days spent together, those nights beneath a gorgeous moon, etc., etc. If you happen to be one of those few extremely lucky fellows who never receive such fan mail, you still forfeit your waking hours, hoping that "the man behind the counter" will listen to reason, and bring the price down to $3.98. Everything of value that you own is in the hock-shop, and you cast about for other items to add to the list there. Oh well, somehow or other, you manage at the last minute to squeeze through, and so preserve the family name. All during the holidays you sleep and sleep and sleep, convalescing from the terrible strain.

REYNOLDS TELLS PERSONAL VIEWS ABOUT LOAN FUND

Reynolds' richest alumnus, doesn't see why he can't help his alma mater just as does any other alumnus in the morning. Reynolds was interviewed at Winston-Salem yesterday concerning his part in athletics here by Lloyd N. Brown, president of the student body, Charles Matthews, vice president of the student body and myself. He spoke at some length on his opinions of State College's affairs in the morning. Then later in the day, he together with his attorney, Stratton Coyner, decided to issue a printed statement from his office to clarify the situation and lay clear the stand he takes in it.

Reynolds' richest alumnus, doesn't see why he can't help his alma mater just as does any other alumnus in the morning. Reynolds was interviewed at Winston-Salem yesterday concerning his part in athletics here by Lloyd N. Brown, president of the student body, Charles Matthews, vice president of the student body and myself. He spoke at some length on his opinions of State College's affairs in the morning. Then later in the day, he together with his attorney, Stratton Coyner, decided to issue a printed statement from his office to clarify the situation and lay clear the stand he takes in it.

By HALL MORRISON Editor THE TECHNICIAN

Reynolds' statement of policies both past and present is as follows:
"My name has apparently been drawn into controversies unnecessarily at State College. I wish to take no part in any such controversies.
"Being an alumnus of State College I have, in the past, taken a certain amount of interest in its athletics, solely with a desire to be helpful.
"I very much regret if any action upon my part has contributed or caused any dissension evident at State College.

Reynolds' Statement Reynolds' statement of policies both past and present is as follows:

"Being an alumnus of State College I have, in the past, taken a certain amount of interest in its athletics, solely with a desire to be helpful.
"I very much regret if any action upon my part has contributed or caused any dissension evident at State College.

Contributed

"I have been making contributions to a student loan fund, which is available to aid any worthy student in securing an education. The fact that this fund has not been administered by the college authorities has, it seems, been a contributing cause to the present unfortunate misunderstanding. Therefore, I wish it to become known that I have not been the sole contributor of this fund and have taken no part in its administration.
"As the college officers have better facilities for selecting worthy students and as the chief function of the alumni office is to follow students' activities after they leave college, I feel that the college authorities are the proper officials for the administration of any student loan fund."
The loan fund to which Reynolds referred is the Delaware Students Loan Fund, Inc., a non-profit making corporation chartered under the laws of the state of Delaware. Reynolds is said to be by far the largest single contributor to the fund. He said that he had agreed to contribute a stated amount over a period of three years. His contributions began in 1934, and the end of this year brings to a close the three-year period.
State's richest alumnus stated that unfortunately he had been largely out of contact with State College in the last few years, and therefore was in many ways unfamiliar with any events taking place here.

Financing

He said that any financial transactions involved by his contributions were handled by Stratton Coyner, and that aside from the fact that he was contributing, he knew nothing of the administration of the funds.
Reynolds' statement of his views in regard to the Delaware Loan Fund lays clearly before tomorrow's meeting of the State College Athletic Council his views in the matter, and it should kill once and for all the idle rumors which have prevailed on the campus for some time as to his part in the athletic situation.

Rumors Rife

Previously it had been known that Reynolds was the largest contributor to the Delaware Loan Fund, but as to his part in setting it up, rumors would give to faculty and students alike a better insight into the present set-up.
After the printed statement had been drawn up, Reynolds spoke very pleasantly of his student days at State College, and told of several interesting incidents which happened while he was here. He seemed very interested in the college as a whole and asked several questions about various departments.

CLEANING THE CLOUDS

The printed statement issued by Dick Reynolds yesterday may go far towards helping State College clear up once and for all its muddled athletic situation. After such a statement, there can be no doubt in the minds of anyone as to where this State alumnus stands in regards to his alma mater.

His statement smacks of finality: "I wish to take no part in any such controversies." His statement clears the air of uncertainty which has long prevailed on the State College campus as to exactly what he was doing or how he was feeling in the matter.

Reynolds is absolutely right in thinking it unfortunate that the loan fund to which he contributed is not administered by college authorities. Whether such a loan fund is administered fairly or not, there is bound to be comment when it is distributed by an outside group, and when the majority of its operations are kept a secret.

In the college there are already set up efficient and proper facilities for handling loans to students to further their education. With loans in the hands of the college's duly constituted officers there would be far less chance for the variegated rumors which have passed from mouth to mouth, especially during this past football season. This college happens to be a state institution, and North Carolina holds N. C. State in trust for the public's good. As administrators of a public trust college officials would of necessity have to handle such a trust impartially and in an unbiased manner.

That loans have been a moot point is a fact which no one can deny. Therefore, in our opinion, a statement of his views by the man reputed to be the chief contributor to the Delaware Students Loan Fund should go far towards clarifying the general student loan situation on this campus. Anyhow, Reynolds' statement is certainly worthy of consideration by the members of State College's Athletic Council when they assemble here tomorrow morning for their fall meeting.

We think that in Dick Reynolds' statement there is a plea for peace, and for a harmonious solution to State College's many athletic problems. He merely contributed to a loan fund for aiding students from a sincere desire to be helpful. For any misconstrual, and we think there have been many, of his purpose and plan, he is most certainly not to be held responsible.

As to tomorrow's action by the Athletic Council, we believe that definite action will have to be taken. If issues are stalled off, then dissension will flare up again and again. Tomorrow's action must satisfy the students of State College to be effective and to calm the strife. Their opinions are certainly worthy of consideration, for they each pay towards the athletic program of the college the sum of fifteen dollars annually. When there is a student body of between 1,500 and 2,000 students, the total fees paid involve a considerable amount of money. Without these fees an athletic program would be impossible.

Reynolds has drawn aside the cloud that had hitherto veiled one phase of the athletic program. Will other clouds be drawn aside from other phases to clear up an admittedly tense situation? Tomorrow should tell the story.

Habitually calm Britishers are watching anxiously each succeeding development in their king's relations with pretty American Mrs. Simpson. In a democratic nation such as ours, a like situation could never occur. In a country which still looks with adoring eyes on the pomp and pageantry that surrounds the throne, the present situation does present a real problem.

THINGS TO COME

Since this is the last issue of THE TECHNICIAN this term, we are reminded of several things: First, that examinations are almost upon us; Second, that one term of this school year has almost gone; Third, that Christmas is in the offing.

Most students, including ourselves, do not look forward with much joy to the exam period. We are reminded very strongly of that paragraph on page 54 that we have not mastered; of that certain formula derivation, that we did not learn when the professor discussed it on class during the first part of the term; of that really important remark that the professor made in the midst of an otherwise boring lecture.

But there is more to examinations than that. There is that good feeling of having conquered, when we feel, after studying the term's work as a whole, that we know the answer to any question the professor can reasonably ask. There is that wholesome feeling that we can put down on paper things that at the beginning of the term we had not heard of before; also that we know much more than we can ever transmit to the professor.

One term of the school year having passed, we begin to wonder if really after all we have accomplished anything—very seldom is there anything concrete that we can show for our labors. Yet, within ourselves, if we have applied ourselves to the best of our ability, there is a certain feeling of pride that we have in our accomplishments. Of course, incidentally there are the grades which in themselves, show something.

As the end of the term approaches, we are also uncomfortably reminded that there is that term paper that must be in before the fateful days arrive. Why is it we seem always to be rushed at the end of the term, or is it that we put off too many things until the last?

Then there is Christmas. Christmas holds a very dear place in the hearts of all of us. Even those who do not believe in the story of Christ's birth, have a certain affection for the day just as a holiday. To those who have in their hearts the full significance of the occasion, there exists a double meaning of the day.

Of course this is a bit early, but we wish to extend to all a very merry Christmas—and also successful exams. R.F.C.

COMMENDATIONS TO ROOSEVELT

We consider that the move made by President Franklin D. Roosevelt toward a closer union of the Americas, is one of the most salient features on the international landscape. Though the visit may not produce anything of immediate significance, the very fact that the president of this country has shown his willingness to discuss common problems, not by proxy, but in person with our neighbors to the South, represents a step toward the goal.

In our opinion, if more were done about peace, rather than so much talk, the question would be solved much more readily. As long as we sit at home, and talk about how nice it would be to have friendly neighbors in this hemisphere, we accomplish very little good. When we can, as our President is doing, overcome the natural inertia that holds us in our restricted selves, and visit among our neighbors and converse with them about the "home problems," then we have at least made a step in the right direction.

It is proper that we, as the largest single nation in the Western Hemisphere, should extend our hand first in this international handclasp; that we should show our willingness to take the initiative; that we should reassure our neighbors of our good intentions in more than mere words.

As State College students, we should realize how important it is to establish friendly contacts with our neighboring nations. We, as the citizens of draft age, would be required to go into battle; to kill and maim those who, with a few friendly actions, we could have made our friends. Is it not better to make friends than enemies? Is it not better to live and let live, than to kill and be killed? R.F.C.

THE PROCTOR SYSTEM

The coming fall term examinations put State College's proctor system to another test. This system was installed under Marshall Gardner, President of the Student Body in 1934-35, and it took the place of the complete honor system which was the ruling law on the campus before that time. The proctor system puts the responsibility for conducting quizzes and examinations jointly on the teacher and on a group of class-elected student proctors.

Student Body President Lloyd N. Brown has asked all faculty members and students to join in next week's examinations towards the thorough enforcement of the present system, and the responsibility for carrying the rulings out falls equally on both groups.

It is to be sincerely hoped that this set of examinations will take place with no stigma of cheating attached to any person, and that both faculty and students will join to the fullest extent towards cooperation in the enforcement of the proctor system.

A WORTH WHILE PROJECT

We know of at least one fraternity on the campus which has already begun making plans for providing food and clothing for a poor family here Christmas. No doubt other chapters are planning to do the same thing, for many of them have made this an annual custom for some years.

It is projects such as these which should make the general public realize that a fraternity membership does not contain merely a bunch of playboys, but that fraternity members are in many cases eager and willing to serve others, for many such instances of generosity have taken place as shown by incidents in the past.

HERE and THERE

By DICK MACKENZIE

Now that exams are upon us I can hear only one word and that word is PLUNK and each letter seems to have a significant meaning, as follows:

- F—Forgotten facts.
- L—Lack of study.
- U—Unexpected questions.
- N—Nothing right.
- K—Kicked out.

What's this I hear about "Power House" Bridgers not going to Columbia Thanksgiving—losing your grip, son?

Everyone has been complaining about that mysterious growth that seems to have invaded the upper lip of "Heart Breaker" Mac" McLaughlin. I understand that it has met with less approval from over the Chapel Hill way.

I wonder why J. G. Bundy keeps on requesting for "I Love You Truly" over WDCN Durham. After all this is a novel way of impressing the "loved one."

I thoroughly agree with the idea advanced by Iowa State University for campus entertainment. They have installed a moderated night club on the campus and it is proving very popular—maybe one of this type would prove successful on the State College campus—anyway it would be fun to try.

I'm wondering if Dr. Sarga is trying to be chivalrous or looking for publicity. Could he be tired of married life?

Someone wants to know why Meredith girls are advised not to wear velvet dresses.

Social Flash: Hubert Warren still makes those weekly visits down the Goldsboro way.

And then I understand some little girl wanted to know if Claude Clark was "Heart Beat" Clark. Well he might be a "Heart Beat" to some girls but to others he's just another "Dead Beat."

Four terms of eleven weeks are given each year. These may be taken consecutively (graduation in three and one-quarter years) or three terms may be taken each year (graduation in four years). The entrance requirements are intelligence, character and at least two years of college work, including the subjects specified for Grade A medical schools. Catalogues and application forms may be obtained from the Dean.

LISTENING IN By THE DIALER

For the past eleven years, WILLIAM SCOTT and his band have been continuously identified with radio and the NBC networks. During this time, he has served up sweet dance confessions garlanded with romantic honey rather than hey-hey. The result is a sophisticated smoothness of style. A thorough grounding in the classical tradition is reflected in Scott's music. He has been well trained in harmony and technique, and like the masters whom he studied, he attempts to interpret the music of our day in terms of finished compositions that will live. Scott has long been identified by his theme song "My Moonlight Madonna," this being his own waltz-time transcription from a classic violin poem.

This signature, with its graceful sweep of the violin, typifies Scott's melodious accent on strings over a background motif. His undulating rhythms are probably a heritage from his romantic birthplace—Venice. His was one of the first American orchestras to introduce the continental styles of music, including tangos and rumbas. While Scott supervises all the arranging of his music, by having members of his menage arrange different numbers, he achieves variety. In this way, he stirs the enthusiasm of his musicians who are all young American artists, also schooled in the best traditions of music. This is only too evident in the sparkling quality of his dance offerings. Scott varies his style and tempo to the mood and tastes of his audience.

There will be an important meeting of the business staff of the Agromech in the office, Price Hall, at 6:30 Friday night. Please bring your petition books if you have one. George Ashby, Business Manager.

OCCASIONALLY a telephone wire must be run under a rug or carpet. The twisted wire formerly used made an unsightly ridge. So Western Electric—manufacturing, distributing and purchasing unit of the Bell System—produces a flat cord only one-eighth inch thick, seven-eighths of an inch wide. (Like this ) Within this tiny space are four conductors of insulated wire. Under the rug or carpet this cord is not seen, not even felt with bare feet. Even to the smallest detail, the Bell System is constantly on the lookout for the better way to make telephone service more satisfactory to the customer.

Returns Disappointing In The Technician All-State Poll

Student Interest Lacking In Prize-Awarding Contest

Apparently State Students Have Shirts and Neckties and Don't Want Free Ones

By CLARENCE GALE (Technician Sports Editor)
Thirty-one correct ballots, two ballots picking only a first team, one complete ballot sent in by one H. A. Anonymous of Washboard Alley, and 26 cash receipt slips to be used in the Students Supply Store contest were all that the ballot box contained when it was opened Wednesday night as the official closing time of THE TECHNICIAN NCS All-State Poll came due.

Two things were learned by your sports scribe as a result of the All-State poll. To wit: that State students take no interest whatsoever in anything that causes them a little trouble or that moves them out of their normal course of action, and that Mr. H. A. Anonymous of Washboard Alley had quite a sense of humor in selecting his team.

Some Team
Mr. Anonymous sent in a ballot choosing the following: Ends, Dean Harrelson and Dean Cloyd; tackles, Professor Watson and Professor Lee; guards, Professor Fenner and Professor "Red" Wynn; center, Professor "Sleepy" Jones; quarter, Major Venable; halves, Major Jones and Major Althaus; and full, Smoky Joe. The ballot carried two notations with it. The first of these explained the lack of second team by saying, "There can be none second," and the other said, "These have thrown many a student for a loss, so they could probably stop any other team."

But to get around to the actual balloting, the teams that came as a result of the poll were as follows:

First team: ends, Cars, NCS, and Bershak, UNC; tackles, Brunansky, DU, and Bartos, UNC; guards, Regdon, NCS, and Dick Johnson, Dav; center, Hill, DU; backs, Lafferty, Dav; Parker, DU, Daniel, WF, and Brynes, NCS. Second team: ends, Buck, UNC, and Talliferro, DU; tackles, Burg, NCS, and Power, DU; guards, Rogers, WF, and Lipscomb, DU; center, Mumford, WF; backs, Little, UNC, Burnette, UNC, Hackney, DU, and Hutchins, UNC.

Of the men picked on the All-State, four were unanimously chosen for first-string positions. These were Bershak, UNC, end; Brunansky, DU, tackle; Hill, DU, center; and Parker, DU, back. Mac Cara, NCS, end; Tony Lafferty, Dav, back; and Dick Johnson, Dav, guard, were named on all the ballots, but each received a few second-team votes.

The Winners
The winners! Three ballots turned in had perfect scores as to predicting the outcome of the poll. The three were Leslie C. Brooks, 2314 Hillsboro; Sam Hayworth, Box 3742, Room 202, 1911; and J. C. Pierce, Box 3047, Watauga. As we said we would do in the case of ties, we drew lots for the three and Brooks won the shirt, Hayworth the necktie, and Pierce was left out in the cold. Honestly, Pierce, we're sorry, but this situation was taken up in the rules laid down last week. Better luck next time, though.

The two winners may collect their prizes by stopping by Huneycutt's and presenting proper identification. A registration card or other bona fide identification will be accepted. And so for the present THE TECHNICIAN is definitely through with polls of any kind.

TWO-HOUR SESSION NETS WIN FOR STATE CAGERS

Court Team Licks Atlantic Christian College, 85-43, in Long Practice Period

State College's varsity basketball team defeated Atlantic Christian College, 85-43, yesterday afternoon, but it was only in a two-hour practice session held in the gym.

The session turned out to be an extremely long and tedious one for the few spectators on hand. Sermon used 21 players during the tilt and Rose, ACC coach, used 10. Play was frequently interrupted in order that the coaches might make corrections and carry on instruction.

Connie Mac Berry and Stuart Rabb each garnered 12 points to lead the scoring. Dawson, captain and center of the Christians, led his team with 11 points.

SPORTS GLIMPSES

By CLARENCE GALE

Feel kinda disgusted this week over the result shown in the All-State Poll. . . . On the basis of the returns, seems to me that even a few tons of dynamite wouldn't rouse this campus out of its lethargy. . . . Passing thought. . . . Wondering if Alex Wojciechowski, Fordham center, is making these All-America teams on his name alone. . . . A big hand to the defense put up by the Wolfpack in the Duke game. . . . The boys really played football in that one. . . . And Parker really settled the All-America question once and for all in my mind. . . . Just can't keep base-ball and Dizzy Dean out of the papers. . . . The big league managers are trading now and "Ole Dix" is the principle player being put on the block. . . . Here's hoping that Jim the first to join the club started by Henry McLemore, UP writer recently. . . . It's name—"Whoinell-Cares-Whether-Dizzy-Dean-Is-Traded-or-Sold-Until-Dizzy-Dean-Is-T r a d e d -o r -S o l d -A n d -L e t -s -R e a d -T h e -C l a s s i f i e d -A d s -F a c t -A s s o c i a t i o n ."

Who are drawing out the picking of an opponent for Washington in the Rose Bowl. . . . And I see where Clipper Smith's Duquesne boys will play in the Orange Bowl against an opponent as yet unnamed. . . . Then, of course, there's the Sugar Bowl. . . . The committee looking after the latter is waiting on the Rose Bowl to avoid conflicts. . . . Max Schmeling is said to be more or less on the well-known "spot". . . . The German wants to fight Jim Braddock next summer and doesn't want anyone else to mix with the champ in the meantime. . . . Jim is said to be seriously considering an offer from Herman Taylor, Philadelphia promoter, to fight Joe Louis in a no-decision affair in Atlantic City in February. . . . All of which doesn't please Schmeling a bit. . . . And they say that the funniest thing that happened during the entire football season was the 65-yard sprint of a rabbit across the Navy goal in the Army-Navy tilt. . . . It took a rabbit to show the Cadets how, but even then, the Army backs couldn't follow his lead. . . . The "Little World Series" which has been played between entries from the International League and the American Association for the past several years will not be played in the future because of conflicts with the World Series. . . . And that's all until after the holidays. . . . Merry Christmas.

But to get around to the actual balloting, the teams that came as a result of the poll were as follows:

First team: ends, Cars, NCS, and Bershak, UNC; tackles, Brunansky, DU, and Bartos, UNC; guards, Regdon, NCS, and Dick Johnson, Dav; center, Hill, DU; backs, Lafferty, Dav; Parker, DU, Daniel, WF, and Brynes, NCS. ## TECHS LOSE, 13-0 IN FINAL CONTEST

But It Was Only After a Great Defensive Fight by State That Duke Could Score

After putting up a spirited, determined fight for three periods, State's Wolfpack weakened somewhat in the fourth and a relentless Duke team was able to push over two touchdowns to garner the 13 points that were the margin of victory in the Thanksgiving Day contest between the two teams which was played in Duke Stadium.

Devils Score
The first Duke score came as the result of a short line plunge early in the fourth period and climaxed one of the many drives that the Blue Devils made during the tilt. Parker counted the touchdown and then added the point. The Duke leader scored again midway of the period when he raced 75 yards on a punt return to cross the goal line untouched. Catching a Gadd punt on the dead run, he drove his way through a maze of tacklers, cut sharply to the right and then veered back down the field to outrun the State safety man.

It was a determined team that took the field for State. Outscored in all but three games during the season, they were facing one of the nation's most powerful eleven. With the odds decidedly against them, they fought their opponents to a standstill for three quarters and then continued that fight although trailing in the fourth quarter. Time after time the Blue Devils would march to within scoring distance of the State goal. Time after time they attempted to blast their way through the State forward wall, and time after time they were stopped inches short.

Defensive Stand
The most thrilling stand made by the Wolfpack came at the end of the second period. Duke had advanced the ball via a 15-yard penalty and a series of rushes down to the Techs' 2 with first down and goal to go. The first smash at the State line put the pigskin on the 2-inch line. Another line plunge by Duke was stopped for no gain by the entire State team, and the State fans went wild as the whistle ended the half.

The game was the last on State's ten-game schedule and marked the seventh loss of the season. The Pack defeated Elon, Furman, and VPI, while losing to Davidson, Wake Forest, Manhattan, Boston College, Catholic U. Carolina and Duke. Featuring the play of the Techs for the year was the overwhelming victory over Furman and the great fight shown in the Duke game.

Appreciated

The work of the untiring Joe Rynecka, regular fullback of the State College Wolfpack during the past season, was appreciated by both the members of the State squad and the students on the campus. The squad members voted him the most valuable State player, and the students elected him to a position as a member of the backfield of the NCS All-State selected as the result of THE TECHNICIAN poll.

Monograms

Alex Begdon, president of the State Monogram Club, announced yesterday that the athletic body had passed a resolution at its meeting Wednesday night requesting State students possessing high or prep school monogram sweaters not to wear them on the campus.

Regdon added that there was not particular objection to the wearing of the sweaters wrong-side out so that the monogram would not show. The Monogram Club president further stated that the members felt that the College campus should only boast monograms won at the College out of respect to the athletes.

2D 7TH CROWNED AS DORM CHAMPS

Upperclass Winner Undeclared all Season, Licks 3d South, 2-0, for Title

As the Intramural football season closes, a 2d 7th is at the top of the Dormitory League, while the Pikas, Sigma Nu's, and the Delta Sig's have yet to decide the winner of the Fraternity League.

3rd South, after winning its playoff game with 2d 7th for the freshman dormitory championship by a first-down score of 2-0, lost its championship game Tuesday to 2d 7th, a team which went through the season undefeated. The lone score of the game came as the result of a blocked punt which was recovered behind the goal line for a safety for 2d 7th.

The Pikas won their first championship game Monday when they defeated the Sigma Nu's, 6-0, on Freshman Field. After marching down the gridiron twice to the one-foot line, only to be held there by the Sigma Nu's, the Pikas scored on a pass from States to Kale on a sleeping end play. Scales, Remmey and Kale led the Pika backfield, while Schreiber, Sholtz, Oliver, and Millholland were outstanding in the line. Mauney, Lake and Edmundson played well for the Sigma Nus.

A scheduled game between the Pikas and the Delta Sig's which was to have been played Tuesday was postponed because of inclement weather and will be played Monday. The Sigma Nu's will meet the Delta Sig's on this afternoon. Following the crowning of the Fraternity League champ will be the clash between the winners in each league to decide the all-campus championship. This game will be played Tuesday instead of Monday as it was originally scheduled.

Intramural Matmen Tied Up But Only In The Final Score

Grapplers from the Fraternity League tied with matmen from the Dormitory League in the Intramural wrestling finals held in the gym Tuesday night. The knotted score was 15-15.

On the actual basis of winning, bout for bout, the dorm representatives took the lead as they won five bouts and only lost three. However, the three fraternity grapplers took their matches by the fall route, while the five dormitory wins came by virtue of the time advantage route. Each fall netted the Fraternity League five points and each time advantage netted the Dormitory League three points, thus knotting the final count.

The closest match came in the 115 class between Kellam, 2d 1911, and Lominac, SPE. The former took the match on a time advantage of 44 seconds.

The results:
115—Kellam, 2d 1911, defeated Lominac, SPE; time advantage, 44 sec.
125—Willis, 1st Watauga, defeated Meadows, Sigma Nu; time advantage, 4 min. 18 sec.
135—Remmey, Pika, defeated Norman, 6th; fall.
145—McSwain, 1st 1911, defeated Hood, Pi Kappa Tau; time advantage, 2 min. 45 sec.
155—Smith, 1st 1911, defeated Furr, Delta Sig; time advantage, 3 min. 29 sec.
165—Watson, 2d 1911, defeated Peele, SPE; by time advantage, 1 min. 36 sec.
175—Bailey, Pika, defeated Richardson, 1st Watauga, by fall.
Unlimited—Helms, Pi Kappa Phi, defeated Lotzer, 2d 7th, by fall.

AS WE SEE IT
By
JOHNNIE BING

Last Friday, a week ago today, death's eerie mantle shrouded a villa in Monte Carlo, on the Mediterranean Sea. Sir Basil Zaharoff, international munitions merchant and super-salesman, died as secretly as he had lived. Not many facts are known about this sinister old gentleman who made a fortune by playing on the fallacies of human nature. Great Britain honored him with a Knight Commander of the Bath, one of the highest orders in the Kingdom, and, ironically, for years has had her secret service on his trail, seeking for facts.

You will note that I referred to him as a "gentleman." I mean that, in all sincerity. His entire life had been spent proving that he was. Of course, he didn't run around, shouting it from the rooftops, and beating his breast proclaiming "what a good boy I am." Quite to the contrary. He was a life of seclusion; one might even compare it to the life led by a leper. He never foisted himself off on his fellow-man; he realized that his was a, shall I say, shady profession, and had no desire to contaminate his associates. He lived aloof, and in so doing, admitted that his wealth was "blood money."

I admire him for that. To him, there was no sham or pretense. One will never be able to apply the term "hypocrite" to the late Sir Basil. How unlike the hypocritical magnates of our own country and of other nations! They like to be known as philanthropists, benefactors to humanity, a glorified variety of the "pious-in-a-church-corner." Look at all these "big" men who made fortunes out of the war. Do they lead lives like Sir Basil lived? Are they frank in their admissions of legalized "plundering"? Far from it! They are looked up to, honored by Senate investigations, perhaps given a slap on the wrist at sunrise, and, more. Publicly, the nations pray for peace, and in the seclusion of their chambers sell millions of dollars worth of death-dealing munitions and their accessories to those capable of buying them. These men are respectable citizens, "bulwarks of the nation." They shudder and turn aside at the mention of Basil Zaharoff, naming him as a "bogy-man" to frighten the "little children" of the country into overlooking the same traits and tactics of these so-called "big" men. These are the men who are making the world safe for "hypocrisy." Long may these patriotic gentlemen live! Bah, and phooey! They don't deserve the adoration of the scurviest mongrel dog!

RADIO COMMUNICATIONS MADE WITH 6 COUNTRIES

Two-way radio telegraph communication with six countries, including two European nations, was established Thanksgiving week with the recently completed transmitter of the N. C. State College Radio Club.

Among the stations contacted were VESMI, Canada, CMSJC, Cuba, HHIL, Haiti, YSIFM, San Salvador, YRSIV, Rumania, and OK3DK, Czechoslovakia. All reported the local station to be getting across well. The signal strength was surprisingly high considering the low power of the transmitter, which employs a type 89 tube as a crystal-controlled oscillator, and a type 802 as the final amplifier.

Members of the club are urged to be present at the regular meeting to be held in Winston Hall Friday night at 7 o'clock.

There will be a get-together of all students in Agriculture Economics and Rural Sociology Tuesday, December 8, at 7 o'clock in Room 114, Ricks Hall. All students in the department are urged to be present. Dr. G. W. Forster.

When I'm for a thing I'm all for it! I like Chesterfields . . . I like 'em a lot . . . we all go for 'em around here. Chesterfields are milder . . . and when it comes to taste—they're SWELL!
