SPEAKER AT ANNIVERSARY

Shown above is former Governor O. Max Gardner, addressing the throng gathered in Puller Hall Tuesday for the celebration of State's semi-centennial anniversary. Gardner is the alumnus who wrote the section of the Act of 1921 bringing about the consolidation of the three present units of the Greater University. Seated behind the speaker, holding a book, is Colonel J. W. Harrelson, dean of administration, who presided over the exercises.

Eminent Speakers Hail Fiftieth Year

Gardner Describes Growth of College at Anniversary Celebration

"State College literally sprang from the grass roots of democracy. Its founding broke the log jam that held back the benefits of education from the sons and daughters of the masses of the people." Thus stated former Governor O. Max Gardner, principal speaker at the exercises commemorating State's Fiftieth Anniversary in describing the birth of North Carolina State College.

Awarded Degree

The honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering was conferred Tuesday upon Dr. Wallace Carl Riddick, above, at the exercises commemorating State College's fiftieth anniversary.

The State College Forensic squad is hard at work on the tentative national debate question for the year. "Resolved, that the United States should maintain a policy of isolation toward all nations engaged in international or civil conflict."

War in Europe Not Unusual Says Speaker

Lockmiller Claims Present European Situation Should Cause No Alarm in America

By BILL SARANDHIA
"War is customary to Europe, and is nothing to get excited about," claimed Dr. David A. Lockmiller, acting chairman of the History Department, last night in an address in the College YMCA.

Opening the first in a series of weekly addresses on public affairs sponsored by the International Relations Club, Dr. Lockmiller spoke on the current European situation.

"For the past 800 years, England has been in war over a period totaling 450 years," Lockmiller went on to explain. "Stating that the present situation should cause no alarm, the speaker pointed out that England, France and Poland were not entering into this war with clean hands."

Saving Democracy
"If France and England had given one-tenth of the time to preserving democracy in Europe as they will have to give to crush Hitler to preserve democracy now, Germany would be operating under a democratic government," Lockmiller said.

After the address an open forum was held for the audience, and several heated arguments ensued. A packed audience was present for the address.

Stating that in every war there must be a villain, the speaker said that Hitler was playing the part filled by the Kaiser in the World War.

Not contending that Germany was void of responsibility for the present situation, Lockmiller pointed out that the base of the current trouble could be traced to the Treaty of Versailles. "It forced Germany to take all the blame, and put her in a very humiliating position," he added.

"Germany was not defeated on the field of battle in the last war, but she was starved out by the British blockade. In fact, this blockade was continued six months after the war was over."

Hands Off For U. S.
Dr. Riddick became associated with State College in 1922 and since then has been president of the college and dean of the school of engineering. He is now professor of hydraulics and dean emeritus of the engineering school.

Colonel J. W. Harrelson, dean of administration, cited Dr. Riddick as the "father of the engineering profession in North Carolina." The degree was conferred by Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the Greater University.

Keynote of the Anniversary Celebration was struck by President Thurman D. Kitchin of Wake Forest College, who said: "We are grateful to the wise men of vision who laid the foundation for this college."

In bringing greetings to State College from the North Carolina College Conference, Dr. W. C. Pressly, president of the conference and president of Peace Junior College, stated: "We take pride in the progress of State College and rejoice over the opportunities that face State in the future."

RETURN ON STATE'S BIRTHDAY

Forty years ago these five men climbed the steps on which they are standing, on October 3, 1899, to the first class held at State College. These five men stuck together during the four years at State, and were graduated in 1903 with the institution's first senior class, which had 19 members.

Wolfpack Has Tough Battle In Clemson Game Tomorrow

Famed Sports Writer Says Contest Is Close Match; Tigers Have Led in Past Games

By WILTON GARRISON (Sports Writer of The Charlotte Observer)
Any way you look at it, this State-Clemson game Saturday is bound to be ball game.

You can't toss a halfback like Banks McFadden of the Tigers and a tackle like Ty Coon of the Wolfpack against each other and not get something exciting.

To say nothing of these seven Charlotte boys who will be on the State squad, many of whom will be in the game, trying to do their stuff for the home folks.

Add to that Shad Bryant, Clemson's "seat" back, and Little Artie Rooney of the Wolves—speed merchants who can go places with the ball.

Yes sir, it's going to be a ball game! State showed its defensive strength against Tennessee and, except for that shaky start until the Wolves pulled themselves together and got going, the mighty Volunteers might have found themselves handed a scoreless tie.

Clemson showed its running power against Tulane and McFadden was the whole show. He's a hard one to stop.

Natural
"This game is a 'natural' in many ways and one that Charlotte fans will be glad to see.

Not since 1934 have State and Clemson met on the gridiron and, being the technical schools of the sister Carolinas, both are looking forward to the revival of this rivalry with keen interest. Only twice in history have the games been decided by more than three touchdowns, and each time Clemson was the victor. The last time they met, Clemson eked out a 12-6 triumph.

Plans Completed For Student Fair

College Newsmen To Convene Here For Fall Meeting

Delegates From North Carolina Colleges Plan Convention November 2-4
Preparations for the annual fall meeting of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association to be held here in Raleigh on November 2, 3, and 4, with State, Pease, and St. Mary's as co-hosts, are progressing rapidly, according to Steve Sailer, executive secretary of the organization.

The opening day of the convention, Thursday, November 2, will be devoted to the registration of delegates in the Sir Walter Hotel, convention headquarters.

The association holds two meetings every year, generally on the first week-ends of November and May. The fall meeting is for editors and business managers, and the spring meeting is for editors and business managers, and editors and business managers-elect.

Officers of the association are: President, Sherwood Staton of Wake Forest; first vice president, Emory Carpenter; second vice president, Laura Self of Peace; secretary, F. Fulghum of C. C.; and treasurer, James Pharr of State. Steve Sailer has succeeded Dean Lovel as executive secretary of the association.

Gaddy Addresses Kappa Phi Kappa

Personality Important To Success, Says Raleigh High School Superintendent

"Personality is one of the most important factors in gaining success," stated Claude F. Gaddy, superintendent of the Raleigh city schools, in an address Monday night at the regular meeting of Kappa Phi Kappa, honorary professional education fraternity.

"Regardless of the fact that most people think that there is always a place for capable men, and any man who is a good teacher can get a job."

Keeping physically fit while we are in college is very necessary to be able to be of greater service to those who are serving when we get out into life, stated the speaker. We will not be able to change habits overnight when diplomas are received, and our habits while in college will be carried on with us into life, he warned.

The problems in education today are greater than ever," he stated, "and every student should be sure that he wants to teach before going into the profession."

An address extended by Superintendent Gaddy to all of the students to visit the Raleigh schools for observation.

Brown Addresses YMCA Freshmen

"The Mark of an Educated Man," a talk that has proven very popular in recent years, was presented to members of the Freshman Friendship Council at its meeting Wednesday night by Dean B. F. Brown of the Basic Division.

Eleven Departments of Ag School to Have Exhibits in Connection With Annual State Fair

Practical results of modern agricultural education will be displayed at the North Carolina State Fair in Raleigh next week in a large group of attractive exhibits produced by students in the School of Agriculture at State College.

The "fair within a fair," as the students' agricultural fair is called, will be housed in the east wing of the main exhibit hall. Attractive entrances will lead to the displays, which will be arranged on each side of the hall.

Each of the 11 departments in the School of Agriculture will have an exhibit. Several of the displays will deal with solutions to current farm problems.

An information booth will be maintained by Alpha Zeta, an honorary agricultural fraternity, with a student in attendance at all times. The annual Ag Fair was established in 1921 as the outgrowth of yearly corn shows started in 1913 by Prof. C. L. Newman, then head of the field crops department at State College. For a few years the Ag Fair was held on the campus, but in 1928 it became a major part of the State Fair.

Seven Are Chosen By Tau Beta Pi

Five Seniors and Two Juniors Selected by Engineering Fraternity

Five seniors and two juniors have been picked for membership by Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity, it was announced today by Ben Pace, president of the organization.

The selection is tentative, however, until the members pass an examination for membership. The exam, which is about six hours in length, covers a broad field of subjects, and the initiates may use any references from any source they wish.

Selection was based on character, integrity, breadth of interest, and unblemish service. Also, the seniors must have a cumulative average of 85 or better, and the juniors an average of 90 or better.

The purpose of Tau Beta Pi is to recognize men that have or will receive an honor upon their Alma Mater, and each year the fraternity presents awards to the outstanding freshman and sophomore of the organization.

English Faculty Publishes Works

Publication of six works by members of the Department of English during 1938 was announced today.

"John Heywood and Richard Stonley," by Prof. Kenneth W. Cameron, appeared in January in Shakespeare Association Bulletin. Dr. A. I. Ladd's "A Note on the Child Hero and Thanatopsis" was published in American Literature for March, and the same periodical carried "Channing and Transcendentalism" by Dr. Ladd in May.

Three works by Dr. Lodwick Hartley, acting chairman of the Department of English, were published during the year. The first, "Of Time and Mrs. Woolf," appeared in the first quarter's issue of the Science Review. The same periodical is carrying "The Narrative and Katherine Anne Porter" in the final quarter's issue. "The Stricken Deer" and His Contemporary Reputation, also by Dr. Hartley, appeared in the October issue of Studies in Philology.

Something New

Beginning with next week's issue, "The Technician" will carry a calendar of "College Events of the Week," which will include the time and place of important events and meetings to be held on the campus each week.

In this short column we wish to include all addresses and major meetings which will be of interest to all or a portion of the student body. If your calendar plans such an event, be sure to advise the office of "The Technician" as soon as possible.

One of the big topics of discussion in these parts is the all-important question of what happened to the Demon Deacons against Carolina last Saturday.

The Heels won't meet their first real opposition until a week from tomorrow, when they meet N.Y.U., which seems to have a fairly good team, if their 7-6 win over Colgate means anything.

Here's the final dope on the freshman cake race that was mentioned in the Technician a few weeks ago. The event will be run off 20 days before the Duke game, scheduled for November 25.

McFadden Stars
Hero of the Tigers is all-round athlete Banks McFadden. It was McFadden who rifled a 20-yard pass last Saturday which brought Clemson's score against Tulane.

Three Men Lost
State will be handicapped by the probable loss of three monogram men, Ends Monte Crawford and Charley Smart, and Back Pat Febley.

One of the Volunteers' particularly bright spots was their beautiful blocking. Speaking of them, Paul Lozier remarked that while Tennessee's line was one of the best he had seen, he thought Carnegie Tech's backfield of last year was better.

Here are some other choices: Duke over Colgate; Cornell to beat Syracuse, Carnegie Tech to beat Temple, Fordham over Alabama, L.S.U. over Holy Cross, Miami over Wake Forest, Notre Dame over Georgia Tech, Minnesota over Nebraska, Michigan over Michigan State, and St. Mary's over California.

State's Wolfpack left for Charlotte this morning where they will play Clemson College's Tigers in what will probably be one of the best games to be played in the State this year.

Doag Newton had his boys run through a light work-out yesterday afternoon on Riddick Field against the freshman team, which used Clemson's uniforms.

The South Carolina team opened its season last Saturday by bowing to Tulane's mighty Green Wave to the score of 7-6, in a close game. Sports writers heap praise on Clemson, and called Tulane's victory "narrow and unconvincing."

Doag Newton had his boys run through a light work-out yesterday afternoon on Riddick Field against the freshman team, which used Clemson's uniforms and take the field to run through their last practice before encountering Clemson on the same field tomorrow.

The biggest surprise of the day was furnished by Carolina's decisive and overwhelming trouncing of Wake Forest, 34-6. The question bothering the experts is whether the Deacons' power was greatly over-estimated or the Tar Heels' grossly under-estimated.

To add insult to injury, the Heels not only swamped Wake Forest, but put their All-Southern guard, Louis Trunzo, out on commission for one week, possibly two.

The Deacs travel to Miami, Florida, today to meet the University of Miami in a night game. Carolina should have no trouble beating V.P.I. tomorrow.

The scrapping Davidson College team threw a scare into Duke University last week by trailing by but one point, 7-6, at half-time last Saturday. In the end it was Duke's superior reserves that carried the day for the Devils.

Fifteen thousand loyal State rooters' hearts stood still last Friday in Riddick Stadium when, in the opening seconds of play, Captain Sam Bartholomew of the Tennessee Vols carried the ball 80 yards through the entire Wolfpack.

The balance of the game was a stand-off between the driving punts by both teams. Tennessee's hard defense, Savini, Burt, Carter, Retter, Phillips and Sullivan made stout defensive plays.

State threatened seriously only twice, but throughout the fray the able field generalship of Art Rooney kept the visitors on their toes. Bobby Sabolyk found holes through which to go for gains, three successive times.

From all angles, State came out well, for the much-vaunted Tennessee team had been stopped short of the expected deluge that had been predicted.
