

Faculty To Vote Today On Cut System Revision

Entire General Faculty Will Consider Bill Passed By State College Student Assembly

Col. Harrelson has called a meeting of the entire State College faculty this afternoon in order to consider and vote on the revised bill which was passed by the Student Legislature at its last meeting of the fall term.

In compliance with the request of Col. Harrelson, the bill will be presented by a group of students who, as members of the legislature, are sponsoring the bill.

The bill drawn up and presented by the student group last year requested that one cut be allowed each student for each credit hour he might be taking.

Under the new system, each student would be allowed ten cuts per term for each term he is in school after the year he is listed as a sophomore in the Registrar's office.

Students interviewed yesterday were unanimous in their hopes for the passage of the bill, which they do not regard as a too radical change.

Textile School Show Scheduled For April

Eleven Girls' Colleges To Be Represented At The Annual Spring Style Show

Dr. Thomas Nelson, Dean of the Textile School at North Carolina State College, announced today that the home economics department of ten North Carolina colleges for women had accepted the Textile School's invitation to participate in the 14th Annual Style Show on Thursday, April 24th.

Approximately 160 young ladies, as a part of their assigned work in home economics, will design and make costumes from fabrics designed and woven at State College by Textile students.

New Campus Laundry To Be Ready In Fall

Modern Dry-Cleaning Equipment To Be Installed; Will Be Ready For Use By Next School Year

State College's new laundry, which is being built at a cost of approximately $30,000, will be finished and ready for use by the beginning of the next school year.

The two-story building will be 140 feet long and 50 feet wide. The top floor will house the laundry and the bottom floor will serve as a storage house for the college architectural equipment.

New and modern dry-cleaning equipment will be installed to replace that which is now in use. Other equipment owned by the laundry is relatively new and in good condition.

Mid-Winter Dances Begin Next Friday

Set Will Consist of Two Formal Night Dances and One Informal Tea Dance

The Mid-Winter dance set, seasonal presentation of the Interfraternity Council, will begin Friday, February 14, with a formal dance from 9 until 12 o'clock.

At Kavelin and his popular band, which received a high rating in a recent Metronome poll, have been engaged to furnish the rhythm for the occasion.

Kavelin has recently finished engagements in many well-known night spots and has gained considerable recognition for his unusual style of music which he calls "Cascading Chords."

Non-fraternity men who desire bids should procure them from the Dean of Students' office. Bids for out-of-town guests may be obtained from the presidents of each of the fraternities on the campus.

Juniors and Seniors File Applications For Naval Reserve

Over One Hundred Engineering Men Desire Naval Reserve Commissions After Graduation

Over 100 juniors and seniors in engineering at State College have requested forms to apply for naval reserve commissions through which they will receive jobs paying $183 monthly after graduation.

The Navy plans to use accepted engineering graduates in such capacities as material inspectors on shore jobs, with seniors to be given reserve commissions as ensigns.

Young engineers from every department of State College's School of Engineering are desired by the Navy for work during the present emergency.

Originally, 35 application forms were available for State's engineering students. The rush of prospective applicants necessitated the printing of 100 more.

FLUNK SLIPS Frank Slips will be given out at the Dean of Students office February 7, 10, and 11 in the afternoon only from 2 to 5.

Dr. Wieman Speaks To State Students

Famous Author Analyzes The Various States of Democracy Throughout the World

A discussion on problems of the modern democracy was presented last night by Dr. Henry M. Wieman, author, philosopher and member of the University of Chicago faculty, in an address in the YMCA auditorium at State College.

Dr. Wieman analyzed the various states of democracy throughout the world today, giving particular emphasis to the situation which brought power to Hitler.

Democracy was defined by Dr. Wieman as a release of an individual or group from bondage to any established order of life, into which all must fit. Panic, fear, lack of creative ability and desire for destructiveness gave rise to dictatorships and other forms of government, he explained.

Dr. Wieman said he was a blending of creative ability and "desires of which we have a sound democracy. An interaction between the individual and group, whereby each has the other's interest at heart, is the only outlet for real and true democracy," Dr. Wieman said.

Psychological Service Center Aids In Student Guidance Work

The Psychological Service Center was created at State College during the school year of 1938-39 out of increased interest manifested by the students and faculty in personal, educational and vocational guidance problems.

In addition to this work the Center administers certain tests of aptitude, personality, interests, and basic academic skills to students referred to it by college groups.

Special student problems and individual work falls under the personal classification mentioned above. Suggestions are made to students for improving their study habits after a careful analysis into their present habits has been made.

Under the first classification the Service Center administers the American Council Examination to all freshmen students, reports of which are turned over to the Basic Division for their guidance work.

Honor Society Picks Outstanding Scholars To Take Examination

Formal Initiation To Be Held Tuesday for Five Seniors and Eight Juniors

Five seniors and eight juniors, selected because of their high scholarship and character, have been chosen by Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity, for membership.

A formal initiation will be held next Tuesday night in Daniels Hall for the new men. Immediately following the initiation ceremonies, a formal initiation banquet will be held at the Sir Walter Hotel in honor of the new members.

Membership in Tau Beta Pi is composed exclusively of students in all branches of engineering. Although scholarship is the primary requisite for election to membership, the student's personal qualifications and his general interest, both in the engineering field and outside of it, are considered.

The new members are: Elia Sternberg, Dana Brooks Mattox, John Holden, Charles Whitson, John Hood, J. H. Bower, Ed Bryant, J. L. Bean, T. W. Lambie, W. H. Blum, E. G. Gibbs, J. R. Brannan, and Howard L. Miller.

Guests to Inspect College Facilities During Tour of American Universities

Approximately 110 South Americans who are members of the Inter-American Institute of the University of North Carolina will visit the State College campus on February 20 for a tour of inspection of the buildings and grounds.

After arriving at the campus, the visitors will be welcomed by Colonel John W. Harrelson on behalf of the college and by Mayor Graham Andrews on behalf of the city of Raleigh.

The South Americans will be guests of honor at a luncheon sponsored by the Rotary Club, and after this luncheon they will make a tour of the City of Raleigh in special buses.

Tickets Go On Sale For Officer's Dance

Officers Expect to Sell All Available Tickets Within Record Time

Tickets for the mammoth Military Ball will be on sale starting Monday afternoon in the Agromeck office in the Publications Building.

The tickets to be sold will be block tickets for both the afternoon and evening dances, and will cost $3.85. Only 300 tickets will be sold to non-members of the club, and first price will be given status to the members of the club.

Plans Nearing Completion Since the arrangements for getting Tommy Dorsey and his famous band down for the dance, the Board of Governors of the newly-formed Officer's Club has rapidly completed plans for the decoration of the Gym and for other important features of "Army Week-End."

The rumors that Ziggy Elman and Buddy Rich, two of the most famous features of the band, may be called into the army by the draft before the dance have been dispelled.

Friday and Saturday of last week Mr. Sydney Edelstein, former Director of Research for the Association, gave a very interesting lecture on the Mercerying of Yarns and Piece Goods.

President of Greater University Speaks for Higher Education at Appropriations Hearing

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, speaking before a joint meeting of the House and Senate Appropriations Committee Wednesday afternoon in spite of his recent illness, pleaded the cause of the Greater University for nearly two hours in an effort to persuade the assembled legislators to grant its much needed appropriations requests which amount to $583,185 above the recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission.

Time after time Dr. Graham stressed the point that North Carolina is in a period of great transition and that safe guidance through this trying period must come from the State's great educational institutions.

Spending more than half of his time discussing and explaining the great needs of State College, Dr. Graham said, "State College is not on a parity with the other two units of the Greater University. There has been a lag there. When this consolidation took place, the trustees in effect gave a pledge that State College would become one of the greatest agricultural and engineering institutions in the nation. This was not the legislature's pledge, but in a sense it was, as it was the legislature which did the consolidating."

He expressly stressed the point that State College's needs are greater and more urgent than those of the other units of the University. He pointed out that five of the engineering departments at State College are not accredited, saying that this fact works a hardship on the graduates of the college.

Offering the Committee an alternative if they did not see fit to grant the entire requests of the Greater University, Dr. Graham presented a "dire needs" list for each unit.

State College's share of this list was $491,000, the largest of the three. Under this heading were a boiler, tank, safety equipment, and an elevator for the Textile building, $13,500; renovation of Winston Hall, $75,000; a geology and ceramics building, $175,000; and the first unit of an assembly hall and armory, $180,000. Chapel Hill's requests totaled $440,636 and the University of North Carolina, $255,400.

Prominent Speakers Address Textile Men

Chemists and Colorists Hear Interesting Lectures By Eminent Authorities

The student section of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists of the Textile School have had as their guests several prominent in the field of textile chemistry and dyeing.

During the past week the former president of the American Association of Chemists and Colorists, Mr. F. J. Wood spoke to the group. He lectured to the group on Permanent Water Soluble Resins and Textile Finishes.

Director of Research for the Association, gave a very interesting lecture on the Mercerying of Yarns and Piece Goods. To the students in the chemical curricula his talk was especially interesting due to the many new processes outlined by the speaker.

Previous speakers before the group have been Mr. Henry Latham of the class of 1936. He gave a talk on the compounds that are used on textile finishing.

Plans for the year include having ten speakers in the field of chemistry and dyeing to speak to the student section. Men that have already accepted the invitation issued by Prof. G. T. Crumpler are: Ben Verity, Demonstrator for Carolina Color and Chemical Co., Inc.; Mr. T. C. Davis, Demonstrator for Stein, Hall and Co., Inc.; Mr. Charles Ordway, former professor at Auburn and now with Aniline Products, Inc.; and Dr. F. Danforth, former professor at the Philadelphia Textile School and now associated with Fred H. Levy Co., Inc.

OPEN FORUM

To the Students:
The organization of dormitory assistants was created by the administration with a two-fold purpose. First, to be of service to the students by attempting to improve the general study conditions in the dormitories. Second, to be of assistance to the College in its effort to maintain the dormitories in the best possible condition for their occupants.

One must readily see that any student that attempts to fulfill those objectives must have a pleasing personality, possess leadership ability, express great self control, and be willing to accept responsibility. Perhaps some of the past, or present, assistants have not displayed these qualities to the satisfaction of the students rooming on their floor. If such has been the case, I invite you to express your confidential opinion. Dormitory assistants are placed on your floor to be of service to you, and any suggestions or complaints will, I assure you, receive prompt and careful consideration.

Dormitory assistants are not selected because they need financial assistance. The College appreciates the fact that a great number of students need work, but its importance is negligible as a prerequisite for a student to apply for a position as assistant.

Applications should include the following information: Class Course, College address, home address, and reasons for desiring a position as assistant. References are not necessary. Only students who will be full-fledged juniors or seniors at the beginning of the 1941-42 fall term need apply.

To be considered, your letter must be in my office by the close of the winter term, March 19, 1941. Personal interviews should be arranged immediately following the opening of the spring term.

R. L. MAYTON,
Chief Dormitory Assistant.

To the Students:
The Student Council is starting something new at State College. Recently two members of the council went to Washington in order to secure some nationally known speakers for the school. Instead of trying to obtain some noted scientist or an engineer, the council is trying to get some governmental leader such as Vice-President Henry A. Wallace or Mayor La Guardia. The student body can at least do its part by attending these addresses when the speakers are obtained, for it isn't every day that one has the opportunity of hearing such men as the ones named above.

Appropriations, appropriations, is probably all you have heard the last two weeks. Well, the council is also working hard trying to help make State College a bigger and better place. Every boy's parents have been sent letters asking their aid in helping the college get more appropriations. It seems as if these contacts are really doing some good; some very favorable responses have been received. In approaching representatives about appropriations be sure you have the facts and figures to present to him, and by all means don't mention our brother institution too much.

How would you like for someone to almost drown you on a cold windy day? A. J. Holt, a freshman, recently was walking by South Dormitory and had several large paper bags of water dropped on him from the third floor. This seems rather childish for an upperclassman to do and is unbecoming to a gentleman at State College.

The overcast situation in the cafeteria is becoming serious. Several boys have lost their coats, while many others do not dare hang their coats on the racks for fear of not finding them after their meal is finished. It is possible for one to make a mistake by getting his coat mixed up, but it is more than a mistake if one should happen to come into the cafeteria without a coat and leave wearing one.

The council welcomes any suggestions. It is your council—so use it.
LEE ROY BARNES.

To the Students:
I think that it would be a good idea to have a hobby club at State College, don't you?

It would give persons with similar likes an opportunity to become acquainted. For instance, if you knew that the boy in front of you in math class was as interested as you are in photography, model airplane construction, or whatever your particular hobby might be, you would have a greater interest in him, and he in you, thereby increasing your friendship and personality.

Naturally there would be various groups of hobbies. Here are some examples of interesting ones:

- Stamp collecting.
 - Miniature collecting (one senior last year had a mania for collecting statuettes of horses, mules, and jackasses).
 - Art collecting (some boys have quite a collection of Petty drawings).
 - Bottle collecting (I didn't say what kind).
 - Autograph collecting.
 - The initial meeting of this, at present unorganized club, will be in the lounge room in the north part of the "Y" Saturday night at 7 o'clock. Why don't you take advantage of this opportunity to meet boys who have the same interests as you?
 - After we are organized, just maybe we could meet with the similar club at Meredith, Saint Mary's, etc.
- GLENN BEASLEY.

BEHIND THE MIKES

By Jack Thurner and Albert Johnson

The Cascading Chords of Al Kavelin will play for the annual Midwinters. This band without a doubt will be the best band that has been on the campus this year. In the recent Metronome Contest his band has ranked with many of the name bands.

The band was formed about two years ago and its first important engagement was at the Hotel Biltmore in New York. From there it started on the hotel circuit playing in such hotels as the Peabody in Memphis, Hotel Chase, Van Cleve, and the Essex House. The Essex House engagement was for six months and the longest that the band has had in any spot.

With the help of air time and its Vocalion Records, the band's style has been copied by many orchestras. The sax section gives the style effect by each of the four saxes individually playing a note of the chord. The few times that we have seen the band in the very good and large crowds always enjoyed the band. Since this band is used to playing to hotel crowds, they play a larger variety of music than the average band. The lineup of the band is four saxes, four rhythm, five brass, and a boy and girl vocalist.

The Bandwagon
The double-feature craze has spread to radio with Tobe Reed welcoming the Andrews Sisters and Bob Strong's Orchestra to the Bandwagon over WPTF Sunday night at 7:30. Bob Strong is featured on Uncle Walter's Doghouse and has one of the most versatile bands in the country. The Andrews Sisters are well known for their radio, screen, and recording work.

Concert
Lauritz Melchior and Kirsten Flagstad will sing the leading roles in Richard Wagner's tragic opera, "Cristan and Isolde" from the Metropolitan Saturday afternoon over WPTF.

The Turntable
Woody Herman and the Chips get together and produce some good music on "Chips Boogie-Woogie" and "Chips Blues." The first is the better side with Woody's clarinet and Tommy Linehan's piano playing good lead backed up by Frankie Carlson's drums and Walk Yoder's bass.

The Crosby's, Bob and Bing, combine on "New San Antonio Rose" and "It Makes No Difference Now." The first is practically all vocal except for some Eddie Miller tenor sax while the latter is on a Dixieland beat with Jess Stacy's piano playing a good background for Bing's vocal.

Will Hudson's new band featuring a good rhythm section capably handled "Start Jumpin'" and "Three at a Table for Two." These are very good sides by this popular arranger. Dick Humber's "Whose Theme Song" is a good novelty tune. On part one he plays the themes of T. Dorsey, Kay Kyser, Guy Lombardo, and Eddie Duchin, and on part two Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, and his own.

Clyde McCoy, with Dick Lee and the Bennett Sisters do a good job on "Bugles in the Sky" and "Love Can Do the Darndest Things." In the Sepia Series the "Four Blues," who sound like the Merry Macs, give some good harmony on "Easy Does It" and "Jitterbug Sadie." Skeets Tulbert blows some real blues on "Bugle Blues" and those "Draftin' Blues." Andy Kirk in a mellow mood backs up Henry Wells' vocal on "Or Have I."

GLEANINGS

Out into the cold, grey dawn gazed three pairs of haggard eyes. Into the mists of the morning stalked three bent and crippled figures. The first faint rays of the sun struggled for survival over the hazy wastes of Pullen Hall. Some fool bird had nerve enough to let out a feeble cry into the 32-degree dawn. THE TECHNICIAN was written.

This may sound like a throwback to the days when the paper was written altogether on Thursday night and the work usually took all night. With the present setup, however, the system is much more efficient, and it is often possible to have the paper on the press fairly early Thursday night. However, what with the budget unsatisfied, everyone looking for jobs, and the studying that must be done, we again find that it is often an all-night job to prepare copy for the paper.

The meeting of the Appropriations Committee Wednesday afternoon was really a killer, for its main feature was a two-hour talk by Dr. Graham on the needs of the Greater University in general and State College in particular. In his talk, the GU President pointed out all the major improvements that are needed at State and stressed the importance of the college to the state. To put it briefly, Dr. Graham went to bat for us in a big way, and every State College student should appreciate it.

We wonder: why the whole student body at St. Mary's is reported campused; why her costs more in South Carolina; whether or not it would really take eight million galley-slaves to row the Queen Mary; why the Italian people keep fighting when 85 per cent of the population doesn't approve of the war; whether or not the Land-Lease Bill is going to pass Congress; whether or not Connie Haynes (Tommy Dorsey's vocalist) looks as good in person as she does in her pictures; why these South American senoritas don't take courses here instead of at Chapel Hill; and why we don't call our school "Carolina Tech."

Out of the proverbial "dusty manuscript" we have found the history of the practice of calling newspapermen "members of the Fourth Estate." It seems that in medieval times there were three "estates" or divisions of people; the noblemen, the clergy, and the working people. Some upstarts, however, got the bright idea of writing for publication. This threw a cog into the social machinery of the time, for these writers could certainly not be called clergy; very few of them were noblemen (in those times the "landed gentry" couldn't take time off from their drinking and jousting to learn to read), and a few of them were above the average of intelligence of the common people. The "powers that were" finally gave up trying to fit them into any of the existing classes, and established them in what was called the "Fourth Estate," which they are known as today.

Thought for today: "Three things a wise man does not do: he does not plow the sky; he does not sow seeds on the water; he does not argue with a woman."

In recent times we have been warned by the Dies Committee and similar organizations against propaganda of all kinds. For pure propaganda, you should see some of the junk that is sent to THE TECHNICIAN from various agencies. The German Library of Information sends a weekly bulletin praising Hitler and his fellow cutthroats; the American Youth Congress constantly tries to talk us into helping repeal conscription; the Student Defenders of Democracy don't seem sure just what they want to change, but, according to them, it's gotta be something; the Young Socialists want to elect Norman Thomas as President and change everything.

Maybe you noticed in a recent issue of Life the picture of UCLA students burning radios in a torchlight demonstration against the ASCAP-network feud. We'd suggest that these "rah, rah boys" go to an engineering school so they wouldn't have time to worry about over-working Stephen Foster.

Kavelin & Co. are due down next week-end to furnish rhythms for the IFC's winter highlight. The set will probably be a big success, for the Council's dances never flop.

THE TECHNICIAN will soon start running cartoons related to goings-on about the campus, so watch for them.

ANGUS RAY.

Negro Bands?

Jimmy Lunceford's playing for the dances at Carolina last week-end brings to our minds a question about which we have often wondered. Why is it that we can not have Negro bands play for the dances at State College?

From what we have been able to find out, although we have not thoroughly investigated the situation, there seems to be an unwritten law against it here at State College instead of a definite ruling.

Apparently it is pure racial discrimination, for we are unable to see any other reason for this unwritten law. Racial discrimination has long been a great fault of the South, and we believe that State College, as a progressive institution, should no longer adhere to this unwritten law.

Some of the greatest musical artists of our time are Negroes, and we fail to see why the students of State College should be deprived of the privilege of hearing these men and women because of an outmoded custom. It seems to us that we are behaving in direct conflict with the broad-mindedness for which the Greater University of North Carolina is noted.

Duke Ellington, Louis Armstrong, Fats Waller, Cab Calloway, and many others rank among the foremost artists of their day. Would you be ashamed to have Duke Ellington, composer of "Solitude" and arranger of one of the most famous arrangements of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," to name a few of his achievements, playing for a dance in Frank Thompson Gymnasium? How many white men can play a trumpet with anything approaching the ability of Louis Armstrong? These and many others would be a credit to our dances.

From a pure financial standpoint we must consider the fact that Negro bands are usually less expensive than white organizations of anything like equal quality.

It is rumored that the objection to the Negro bands has come from the alumni for the most part. If this is the case, we do not understand just exactly what some of our alumni have to object about, and further, we do not see how the bands that play for our dances could possibly affect our alumni in any way, shape, form or fashion. Carolina seems to be getting along quite nicely in spite of the Negro bands that they have, and we do not see why State College can not profit by their example.

It looks like we have been missing an opportunity that has knocked on our door for many a day. Why not open the door and receive the benefits we have been refusing for lo these many years?

Real Support

Once again Doctor Frank Porter Graham and Comptroller W. D. Carmichael of the Greater University have proven their sincere friendship for State College.

At the Appropriations Committee hearing on Wednesday both Dr. Graham and Mr. Carmichael repeated again and again to the assembled senators and representatives that State College was in greater need of its requests than any other unit of the Greater University. They continually stressed the point that State College is not on a parity in equipment and buildings with the other units.

Not only did they stress this point, but they have asked for more in permanent improvements for State College than for either of the other units. Although they were forced to cut all improvement requests down, they left State College's request at the top both in urgency and in amount.

To come out with such a statement requires plenty of courage in North Carolina, whether you know it or not, and every State College student and alumnus should feel deeply indebted to these two gentlemen who have done everything in their power to help our institution.

If we do not get the appropriation for which we have asked, it will be no fault of Dr. Graham and Mr. Carmichael, for no State College man could ask them to do more than they have done toward getting us the legislation we seek.

Last week we happened to be in Durham for the basketball games with the Duke teams and we were handed a clipping that had appeared in one of the Durham papers during the week. The clipping concerned "Bones" McKinney, popular freshman center and former Durham High School star.

It seems that rumors were out to the effect that Bones wasn't satisfied at State and that he wanted to go to another school in the Big Five. To clarify matters with everyone, especially his many friends in Durham, Bones wrote a letter to Hugo Germino, Durham Sun sports editor, in which he stated his case very clearly, and we want to pass on a paragraph of it to you.

Ag Club Features Extension Manager of duPont Company

L. F. Livingston Gives Illustrated Lecture of Agricultural Chemical Research

"Almost everything man does is touched by chemistry," said L. F. Livingston, manager of the Agricultural extension division of the duPont Company, in an illustrated address to the Ag Club Wednesday night.
Dr. Livingston pointed out the influence and association of chemical research in the most commonplace affairs of our daily life. The field of chemical research is in its infancy, Livingston asserted, and that "our natural frontiers are things of the past, but our advance into the chemical frontiers is just commencing." He attributed the previous scientific research as being more important in raising the standard of living in the United States than any other material thing. As examples Livingston cited numerous instances of invention and discovery—as the radio, phonograph, automobile, synthetic fabrics, and safety glass—which have revolutionized our mode of life.

"No group of people has ever lost money in spending it on research over a considerable period of time," Mr. Livingston stated, disclosing that while duPont spends from three to four per cent of its income for research, agriculture spends only about one third of one per cent of its income for such purposes. "There is no reason for having a surplus of agricultural products if we apply chemical research to the problem," Mr. Livingston affirmed.

Many instances were cited by Mr. Livingston in the course of his lecture in which chemical research has come to the aid of industry and our life today. At one time the United States was dependent upon a Japanese owned source of an important base in the manufacture of the unsung, yet enormously important fly spray, and as the "canny" Japanese became aware of the situation they raised the price to an almost prohibitive level. Researchers set to work, and soon afterward brought forward a new synthetic substance chemically identical with the imported product, yet costing less than a fifth as much.

Appropriations Issue Faces Committee Soon

Vital Decision Now Up To State Legislators; Student Group Plans Concerted Action

By ANGUS RAY

The semi-final scene in the appropriations drama that has been holding the attention of Greater University students and officials for the last two months will be enacted starting next week as the joint Budget-Appropriations committee of the General Assembly begins voting on the State's budget plans for the coming biennium.

Following a brilliant two-hour address by Dr. Frank P. Graham last Wednesday, the joint committee will meet to recommend the sum they believe each of the units of the University should receive during the next two years. In his talk Wednesday, Dr. Graham pointed out to the committee the fact that the Greater University (and State College in particular) is the most important of state agencies in relation to the high standards of the state. The committee will make recommendations to the Legislature, which will have the final word in deciding the monetary fate of the institutions.

State College's request for $1,621,026 for permanent improvements to the campus was not authorized by the Advisory Budget Committee when they made out their recommendation to the Appropriations Committee recently, and the request for $134,252 for operating expenses during the coming two years was cut to $36,427. In his plea to the joint committee, Dr. Graham pointed out that the salaries of the faculty at State College were much less than the average for the other land-grant colleges in the country, and that in order to keep the high standards of the faculty, salaries must be brought up to par.

The need for permanent improvements was exemplified by a discussion of the handicap under which the students of Chemical Engineering have to work because of the condition of Winston Hall. The needs of State College have also been pointed out to the people of North Carolina recently by the brilliant editorial by Author-Editor Jonathan Daniels of the News and Observer, a man who realizes the importance of the college to the State.

Legislative Committee Acts

The Student Committee on Legislative Action, appointed by Senior Class President Bill Friday, met last night to plan action in this crisis. The committee, consisting of 25 campus leaders, plans to contact the members of the House and Senate of the General Assembly while the budget is under consideration.

In addressing the student committee last night, Col. Harrelson explained the dire need of the college for the appropriations that it has requested, and urged the members to present our case to the legislators in the sense that it means a great deal, not only to the faculty and students of State, but also to the welfare of the people of North Carolina.

The members of the committee will be in possession of briefs stating the absolute needs of the college and comparing the salaries of faculty members here to those of men holding similar positions with other leading land-grant colleges in the country. Col. Harrelson stated to the committee that we of State College are not asking the Legislature for any money for extravagant purposes, but only enough to make the college a first-rate institution.

Defense Plans Important

With the whole nation concentrating on plans for defense, the case for State College which is being presented to the Legislature has become even more vital to the State. One of the foremost issues that is being pointed out to the people is the fact that State College is now holding a great many courses in connection with the Defense Program, but has had to lose a $108,000 grant from the Federal Government because adequate facilities were not available to teach the courses needed.

The fact that the Federal Government chose State College for so many of its defense courses in the South is seen as a tribute to the fine job being done by the administrators of the college, and the fact that so many of these courses have had to be refused testifies to the need of the institution for better facilities.

At Long Last—SL-1

The State College Student Assembly has gone a long way toward proving its worth to the students this week with the long-awaited passage of the cut bill an actual reality. For many months a cut bill of some form or other has been bouncing around somewhere in the region between the Student Assembly and the Faculty.

At last an appropriate measure has been drafted, passed by the Student Assembly, submitted to the Faculty Council, approved by the Faculty, and taken its place as an actual college rule. This, the first major piece of legislation which has come from the Student Assembly, is indeed worthy of that honor. It closely approximates what we believe to be an ideal system, for it is not too strict, yet not too lenient.

To the Faculty we wish to express our appreciation for the broadminded and fair manner in which you have considered our bill. We believe that you will find the new rule quite satisfactory and that the students will not take advantage of the liberty you have given them.

To the students we would like to give a word of warning as well as words of congratulations. You have your new ruling because of the tireless efforts not only of the Student Assembly but of many men who have long since left State College. You have it; now what are you going to do with it? If you use it wisely it will prove invaluable in showing the members of the Faculty that we are capable enough to regulate our class attendance. If you do not use it wisely, you will not justify the trust they have placed in you.

Terrors Meet Wildcats Tonight At Eight

Conference Brethern Try To Annex Win Over Each Other to Boost Standings

By BILL FRIDAY
The Red Terrors will tangle with the Wildcats of Davidson tonight at 8:15 in Frank Thompson for their third conference game within five days.

With a .500 average in conference standings last week the Terrors lost to Citadel, Virginia Poly and Tech to Carolina of Virginia Military Institute to knock in the head all hopes for a berth in the Southern Conference Tournament. The possibility still exists, but it would call for victories in all of the remaining conference games.

The Techs trimmed the Presbyterians during their first southern invasion of the conference early in the season. Since that initial meeting both clubs have played the other members of the Big Five and the Big Blue of Duke by one point but lost to Messers, Howard, Glameck, and Severin in a very busy time. Gigantic George Glameck was held to a minimum by the Davidson defense.

The fast improving Wildcats set the pace in their game with the White Phantoms of Carolina this week. They played the Tar Heels on even terms for the first half, taking the lead on several occasions. Hogg and Frederick teamed up to give Messers, Howard, Glameck, and Severin a very busy time. Gigantic George Glameck was held to a minimum by the Davidson defense.

Action should be fast and furious with the Wildcats trying to break into the Big Five win column and the Red Terrors fighting to get back in the race after their invasion of Virginia that resembled Lee's stand at Richmond.

The State Freshmen will ring up the curtain on the evening show by meeting the Wingate Junior College quintet. Ringmaster Bones McKinney and his cohorts are slated to take the Baptists by a sizeable margin.

New Campus Laundry To Be Ready In Fall

Modern Dry-Cleaning Equipment To Be Installed; Will Be Ready for Use By Next School Year

State College's new laundry, which is being built at a cost of approximately $30,000, will be finished and ready for use by the beginning of the next school year, W. F. Morris, manager of the college Service Department, announced today.

The two-story building will be 140 feet long and 50 feet wide. The top floor will house the laundry and the bottom floor will serve as a storage house for the college architectural equipment.

New and modern dry-cleaning equipment will be installed to replace that which is now in use. Other equipment owned by the laundry is relatively new and in good condition.

Change Effective At Once As Faculty Gives Approval

New Ruling Will Allow Students Ten Cuts Per Term For Each Term of College Residence Beginning With Junior Year; No Change in Point Deduction

By HENRY ROWE

Passing without a single dissenting vote, the Student Assembly's new cut bill became a college rule late yesterday afternoon when the entire State College faculty gave their official sanction to the measure.

Colonel John W. Harrelson, dean of administration, said that the ruling would go into effect immediately.

Under the new plan, any man who is rated as a junior or above in the Registrar's Office will be allowed ten unexcused class absences per term for each term of his subsequent college residence. Sophomores and freshmen will remain under the old system of not more than ten cuts in any one term and not more than twenty cuts per year.

No change has been made in the system of deducting one quality point for each three class absences, and this will continue to be the rule in the future. Students sponsoring the bill felt that the present system of point deduction was reasonable enough and that there was no need for a change.

E. P. Davidson, president of the State College Student Assembly, presented the bill to the faculty meeting, giving a brief history of the measure and outlining the students' reasons and arguments behind it. After Davidson's presentation, student representatives withdrew while the faculty went into executive session for discussion and a vote upon the proposal. After a short discussion period, the bill was passed unanimously.

The bill in its entirety as it was passed by the group follows:

WHEREAS, we, as students, realize the difficulty that would be encountered in changing the present system of recording class absences and deducting credit points for excessive class absences which are unexcused; and

WHEREAS, we sincerely believe that the present cut system of this institution should be more liberal, placing more of the responsibility on the students;

THEREFORE, we propose the following changes in our present system of penalizing students for excessive class cuts:

Article 1. That the present system of recording class cuts be retained, and that a student shall suffer the loss of one credit point for each three unexcused class absences.

Article 2. That the present probation limit be extended from its present limits to 10 unexcused cuts per term and 30 per year for each term and year a man is in school after he is registered as a junior.

Since the establishment of the Student Assembly last year, the cut bill, or a cut bill in one form or another, has been almost continuously before the body. Last year a bill was introduced which provided that juniors and seniors be allowed one cut for each credit hour for which they were enrolled. After passing the bill, the Assembly decided to reconsider the measure and it was tabled. The bill which is now in effect was brought up and passed at a meeting held late in November.

After the bill was passed, it was taken to the Faculty Council by the group of student leaders sponsoring the measure. After an hour's discussion the students withdrew, but the Council decided to refer the question to the General Faculty instead of voting on it themselves.

Assembly Commends Jonathan Daniels Blue Key Concludes Successful Program

Resolution Expresses Thanks for News and Observer Editorial on Appropriations

The State College Student Assembly at its monthly session last night passed a joint resolution commending Editor Jonathan Daniels of the News and Observer for his editorial efforts in presenting the appropriations issue now facing the General Assembly.

The resolution read: "That the State College Student Assembly in joint session do hereby express by a rising vote of thanks their sincere appreciation to Jonathan Daniels, editor of The News and Observer, for the fine work he has done in presenting the case for our institution in the appropriations issue that has been before the Committee on Appropriations of the General Assembly. His far-sightedness and vision of this matter have been of great service to our college."

WINTHROP
Organization meeting of the Winthrop College Here We Come Club will be held in 206 South, Tuesday evening at 9:30. Problems of mutual interest will be discussed.

National Drive To Receive Half of Contributions For President's Program Against Infantile Paralysis

The jingle of 788 dinars was heard throughout the State College campus in a drive sponsored by Blue Key, honorary leadership and scholarship fraternity, from the 25th through the 30th of last month as almost a third of the student body contributed to President Roosevelt's campaign against infantile paralysis.

Cups for contributions were placed at various points on the campus, and Blue Key members canvassed dormitories and fraternity houses for donations.

The national drive will receive half of the campus contributions, and the remainder will be used locally for the relief of sufferers and for the prevention of infantile paralysis.

The amount netted this year fell short of the contributions received last year, which amounted to about $117.

ORATOR "Spud" Davidson is one to whom a large share of the credit for getting the new cut bill passed should go. As President of the Assembly he presented the bill to the Faculty yesterday.

Two New Courses In Defense Training Proposed for State

Government Agencies and Defense Industries Express Need for Architectural Draftsmen and Fabricators

An offer from State College to teach two additional classes as part of the program of engineering training for national defense has been sent to the U. S. Office of Education in Washington, Director Edward W. Ruggles of the College Extension Division announced yesterday.

The proposed classes are architectural drafting and fabric inspection and testing. Defense industries and government agencies are demanding trained men in both fields, Director Ruggles said.

Already the college is teaching nine special defense courses and two others have been approved. The new classes, if approved, will last 12 weeks. Twenty-four students will be taken in architectural drafting and 22 in fabric inspection and testing, with Prof. Ross Shumaker of the Department of Agriculture and Dean Thomas Nelson of the Textile School to be in charge of instruction.

Men who are graduates of standard high schools are eligible to apply for the courses, for which all expenses will be paid by the Federal government, with the exception of the students' textbooks and subsistence. Preference will be given in architectural drafting to men with at least an elementary knowledge of engineering drawing, and in the fabric class preference will be given to men with textile school training or practical experience in textile mills.

Director Ruggles said he was confident the courses would be added to State College's defense training program. A total of 254 students now are enrolled in the nine classes underway.

No ASCAP Worries

The band arrangement of "The Old North State," North Carolina's official State song, is copyrighted by State College and is not involved in the current radio music controversy, Maj. Kutschinski, college music director, declared today.

Emphasizing that the college owns a copyright on the band arrangement, the Major stated: "The authorities of State College wish to make it known that the State College copyrighted band arrangement of 'The Old North State' may be performed by anyone, over radio or otherwise, without any fear of consequences leading to any sort of litigation for copyright infringement."

"It is desired not only that every North Carolina man, woman and child be able to sing this song, but that it be recognized as North Carolina's State anthem by as many citizens as possible in other states."

Dean Harrelson Heard At Meeting of AIEE

Colonel Describes Fight for Increased Appropriations For State College

The meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Tuesday night featured a talk by Colonel J. W. Harrelson.

Colonel Harrelson spoke on current legislative appropriations concerning State College and gave the electrical engineering students a first-hand account of the struggle which State is making to obtain increased appropriations.

"The economic development of the state must get its impetus from this institution," he said, in stressing the point that it is to the economic advantage of the state to provide technical training for its young men. Colonel Harrelson attributed the fact that the per capita income of North Carolina is $233.00 less than the national average to the lack of technically-trained men.

Publications Board Plans Big Banquet

Staffs To Be Entertained At Sir Walter Hotel; Keys To Be Presented To Outstanding Men

Plans are getting under way for the annual Publications Banquet and Dance, to be held this year on the night of February 27 in the Sir Walter Hotel.

Sponsored by the Publications Board, this is a time when members of all the publications staffs and their dates get together and is the only social function of the year given exclusively for the publications staffs. Each year it attracts about 125 students.

The speaker for the occasion has not been selected as yet, although several are under consideration. Last year Carl Goerch, editor of The State and one of the state's outstanding journalists, addressed the group, telling them of the future value of their journalistic work.

As is the usual custom, the various staffs will sit at individual tables at the banquet and will be recognized in that manner. Editors of each of the publications will probably be called on for short talks. Always an outstanding feature of this affair is the presentation of keys to outstanding staff members for meritorious service in their work. The keys are awarded only to juniors and seniors who have served at least three terms on a publication and who have been recommended by the editor or business manager of that publication.

FLUNK SLIPS
Flunk Slips will be given out at the Dean of Students office (February 7, 10, and 11) in the afternoon only from 2 to 5.
