Saturday Cuts

There appeared in last week's TECHNICIAN an announcement from the Faculty Council stating simply that, because of excess absences from Saturday classes during the fall term unexcused absences on Saturday will carry double loss of quality points. This regulation will become effective with the opening of the spring term, Monday, March 29, 1943

Just what is the purpose of this new addition to the list of "do's" and "don'ts" already to be found in our time-honored cut system? Maybe the Faculty Council seeks to ease the week-end travel congestion by keeping students here in Raleigh. If so, it is a very patriotic and worthwhile gesture, but it seems to us that when Uncle Sam decides that civilian travel should be curtailed, he'll do it in his own way, without any help from college authorities.

That is only one supposition, but regardless of the outward reason for this new edict, the basic principle behind it and behind the whole cut system is to keep the students in school as much as possible and to MAKE them go to class! Make them go to class, indeed. Every student knows that if he misses too many classes he'll flunk the course, and if he can take cuts without harm to himself, he should be allowed to do so, and if he goes over the limit he's not here to learn but only to play around and shouldn't be in college in the first place. Besides, too often when attendance is required it becomes merely routine, and the student is not in class because he WANTS to be, but is there IN BODY ONLY.

Which brings us to the faculty angle of the cut system. Many members of the faculty have been heard to state that the cut system is, to say the least, antiquated, and productive of more red tape than anything else. Many of the nation's most outstanding colleges and universities have dispensed with the cut system because it cannot prove its worth. Furthermore, members of the faculty and leading educators all over the country continually bewail the fact that the modern youth does not thirst after knowledge as did his student predecessor of past ages. They say that the boy of ancient Greece, accompanied on his way to school by his paedagogas or servant-bodyguard, went to school because he really wanted to learn, and the impoverished scholar of the Middle Ages went through all sorts of hardships in the crude universities of that time because he had a burning desire to increase his store of fight to preserve these principles is going full knowledge.

GLEANINGS

Well, well, of all the queer things that have hap pened in various organizations on the campus this year, the proposal by the senior class president that only those seniors who have paid their dues be con-sidered members of the senior "organization" takes sidered members of the senior "organization" takes the top position as the most laughable suggestion yet. For instance, how would anyone arrive at a logical reason for requiring all seniors to attend the meetings on the threat of receiving class cuts if they weren't "financially" considered as members.

... And how would he explain the presence of so many non-seniors in the graduation procession as the diplomas were being handed out. . . And we wonder if Tom would have discounted all those "Turner" votes that came from non-paying seniors

(or are they seniors) when he was chosen as president of the class. . . . But the climax came when some members of the class wanted to vote to see if they could be invited by the juniors to attend the dance. . . . And another thing, even though it may be perfectly legitimate to allow only those who have paid their dues to attend the Junior-Senior dance, why don't they just call it the Junior-Those-Who-Had-Four-Bucks dance. . . . No, we didn't pay our dues, but if we had known that it was an admission to such a swell political "Reich" we may have

From Jerry Stockard's statehither and yon ment to the Engineers Council Tuesday, he is very definitely against the Raleigh type of jivin', be it 'gator or hep. . . . Seems the skirts can't keep up with the legs or something. Matty Hannon, now a promoter, is on the look for a "chocolate colored revue" as a floor show for the a "chocolate colored revue" as a noor snow for the Publications' Banquet. . . It's a little early to say, but we bet that Matthew J. comes up with some-thing really good though. We would like to be able to quote F. R. Holliday, Jr., flash of the M. E. school, on some of his latest quips, but the only ones we can remember aren't the kind to be quoted. . . . When he and Awful Awful Ausman get to batting them back and forth it isn't safe out for man nor beast. And speaking of Awful Awful brings to mind room-mate, Lanky Langley and his Aero convention in New York last week. . . . From the juicy wention in New York last week. This may have morsels that the I. Ae. S. boys have told us about the trip, it looks as if they will never be content with Raleigh again. It may be purely hearsay, but could it be that some one might try to frame Kelly of Civil and Wataugan fame for the top position in Alpha Sigma Sigma. . . . Don't get ideas, Kelly, you can watch us cast our ballot. The boys in Watauga can watch us cast our bailot. The boys in watauga who were aroused from their peaceful slumber 'tother dawning by the sounds of violent argument should speak to Percy Harris, Hoyle Adams and "Capable" Capel. . . . The spot they picked in front of the dorm to settle for once and all the war and all the problems of the peace wasn't secluded enough (Continued on page 2) (Continued on page 3)

That is all probably quite true, and perhaps we don't really want to learn all we can nowadays, but merely "get by" with as decent a record as is possible without too much effort. But is that the fault of "modern youth," and is the system of compulsory class attendance the best corrective measure? Education should not be based on the number of hours a student sits in class.

And then we say, quite justifiably, that technical training such as is given here at State College is the best possible type of education to equip boys for post-collegiate life, and yet we must force class attendance. And we talk about our democratic self-government under our Student Council, but the Student Council was never consulted in the move to double the loss of quality points for Saturday class absences, and was not even told in advance that such a ruling was forthcoming.

Boys preparing to undertake the biggest job of this century and ready and willing to go out and offer their lives in defense of their country should certainly be treated as men and not as children, and they should feel assured that democratic processes of government in the university, the state, and the nation will continue to operate even while the H. This year Woodie was freshman football coach and assistant wrestling coach, and he will probably serve as assistant track coach. From his coaching activities he has earned the nickname of "Coach," and it's just about to supercede the older nickname of "Woodie."

"Coach" Jones is vice-president of Golden Chain and a member of the Ind. Arts Soc., the Student Welfare Committee and the Public Lectures Committee. For the past two years he has served as a dormitory assistant and was manager of the Student Social Functions Concession. Last year he was a mem-ber of the Athletic Council. He is a member of Chi Sigma, local social fraternity, and is in class V-7 of the Naval Reserve.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Fellow Students,

In the preceding edition of the TECHNICIAN you asked that prices be posted at the food counters in the cafeteria. You asked that the cafeteria do their part in cutting your expenses. Your request is being fulfilled. As soon as it is feasible to have price card holders made, prices will be posted. The cafeteria is cooperating as always.

Now it is your turn to cooperate-to do your part. Metal is difficult to obtain and the price is high even if it is obtainable. Since the beginning of the term approximately 800 pieces of silver have been missing from the cafeteria, representing a high cost, even if silver could be bought. Two gross of shakers are missing, taking $129.60 from the cafeteria's budget. Mr. Thompson replaced these with 106 sets of new shakers. One day they were placed on the tables; the next day 28 were missing, costing the cafeteria $4.90 more.

Is this being patriotic? Is this helping to reduce your food prices? Do your part; the cafeteria will do theirs.

Coach LeRoy Jay and his Red Terrors will have their hands full tonight as they attempt to stop the high flying Colonials from George Washington tonight in Frank Thompson gym at 8:00. The oppo-sition for tonight has yet to taste defeat in the conference race, which they lead now with three wins against no losses.

which they lead now with tree wins against no tosses.

The Colonials have beaten Duke, Carolina, and Maryland in their early season games, but they have been idle for the past few days. Thus the only room for comparing the two squads is in the play against the Blue Devils of Duke. When the Capitol City squad met Duke, the Durham team was minus the services of Garland Loftis and Bob Gantt, two of the biggest reasons why the Terrors fell tast Saturday might. No credit should be taken away from the Colonials on this account, however, as their first team, composed of Ed Guutafson, Jim Rausch, Jeey Gallagher, John Konisewski, and Jim Myers, all of whom are first rate performers, is one of the smoothest working combinations in the conference.

Coach Jay will depend on the same team that has been ringing up the points for State in the past few games. This is made up of high scoring Bernie Mock at center, Dick Nickel and Doug Reid at forwards, and Lee Katkawech and Eddie Morris at guards. Capable agaistance for these five will come from such players as Joe Johns, Jack Geil, Buck Carvalho, and Jim Boger.

Less Than One Month Remains Before Conference Tournament; State Ranks Fifth In Present Standings

The Colonials of George Washington University will risk their undefeated record in the Southern Conference race tonight when they engage the fighting Terrors from State College. Having won their first three games the Colonials are just a step ahead of the Blue Devils of Duke, one of their early season victims, who have five league wins compared to only one loss.

This second team will also put its record on the stake as they play their arch rivals, the Phantoms of Carolina. The Devils will enter the game, however, as the overwhelm-ing favorite, but anything can, and usually does happen when any teams from these two schools meet
