Student Council Approves New Constitution In Special Meet

Dr. Hamilton Extended A Temporary Leave

Dr. C. Horace Hamilton, head of the State College Department of Rural Sociology, will go to Chicago on July 1 to conduct a study of the social and economic aspects of the hospitals in the United States for an independent group of three foundations.

Col. J. W. Harrelson, chancellor of State College, announced today that a 15-month leave of absence for Dr. Hamilton has been approved by the administration and the Consolidated University's Board of Trustees Executive Committee.

The State College chancellor said that the selection of Dr. Hamilton for such a widespread study is an honor to the College and to Dr. Hamilton, who has gained prominence as a member of the North Carolina Commission on Hospital and Medical Care.

Dr. Selz C. Mayo, a member of the faculty of the Department of Rural Sociology at State College, will become acting head of the department upon Dr. Hamilton's departure.

The foundations sponsoring the study are the Kellogg Foundation, the Commonwealth Fund, and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Principal objectives of the study are to obtain a census of America's hospital facilities, to determine the need for additional facilities and services, and to recommend methods by which the plan may be adopted.

Publication Board Selects New Officers

At a meeting of the publications board last Tuesday, officers were selected for the coming year. These officers will take their position at the beginning of the Fall term.

Bobby Wooten was appointed as editor of THE TECHNICIAN for the coming year. Bobby was sports editor of the paper during the last year and is thus in a position to competently fill the position of editor.

Bill Daniels was appointed as Business Manager for the coming year. This will make the second year in succession that Bill has served in this capacity. His experience should prove invaluable.

It was also decided at the publications meeting that an election will be held for the position of editor of The Agromeck. Graham Byrum and Harrison Wroten will be the two candidates for this position.

Ed Mahoney will again be Business Manager of The Agromeck. This will make the second year that he has served in this capacity.

The editor of The Agromeck will be elected at a very important meeting of the senior class that will be held on Wednesday, May 16, in the auditorium of the YMCA. All members of the senior class are requested to be present together with the members of the junior class. The time is 12:00 noon.

French Colonel Kisses State College Captain

When a French colonel kissed him affectionately on both cheeks, Capt. Martin W. Parcel, a 1941 honor graduate of State College, experienced his most embarrassing moment.

The military embrace occurred during a ceremony in Africa when Capt. Parcel was made an honorary member of the French Foreign Legion for his work in supplying a French unit with gasoline for warfare on a desert. The commanding officer of the French unit also awarded him a medal bearing a coat of arms.

Capt. Parcel, who spent 33 months of service in the quarter-masters corps of General Patch's Seventh Army, wears campaign ribbons adorned with four battle stars denoting his participation in the Tunisia, Rome-Arno, Southern France, and German campaigns. He also possesses the bronze star awarded for his meritorious service in combat.

The young officer, who made an enviable record at State College, visited friends in Raleigh Tuesday. He will report for overseas duty again on May 1 after spending a 45-day leave with his family and friends.

During his student days at State College, Capt. Parcel was a member of Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honor society, Tau Beta Pi, the Publications Board, the Engineers' Council, Blue Key, and the American Ceramic Society. He was editor of The Southern Engineer, magazine of the School of Engineering, and was a cadet captain in the ROTC

Engineering Education Enters A New Era

Engineering education will be broadened in the post-war era to meet the ever-growing need for better-educated professional engineers, declared Edward Larson of Washington, D. C., executive secretary of the National Society of Professional Engineers, in an address here.

Larson, speaking at a dinner meeting of representatives of the North Carolina Society of Engineers at the Sir Walter, said that the complex duties of a professional engineer required as much ability, intelligence, and skill as is required by any profession and that engineers, whose functions it is to draw blueprints and to fashion plans for almost every instrument, structure, and machine used by mankind from birth to death, will assume even more significant roles.

The speaker, who has just completed a tour of every section of the United States inspecting engineering facilities and speaking on problems of the profession, declared that the licensing of engineers was essential for public protection and "an incidental boon to the profession." He listed three types of engineering personnel: 1. engineering students; 2. engineers-in-training; and 3. professional engineers.

N. C. State College's School of Engineering Larson stated, "stands on its own feet and does a darn good job of standing there."

Citing World War II as an "engineers' war" but paying tribute to the men who operated the machines of war, Larson said that it took Hitler six years to prepare for war production while United States engineers laid the groundwork for an even more extensive program of production in one and one-half years.

Sharply scoring the Morgenthau plan for the de-industrialization of Germany by reducing the Reich to an agrarian state, Larson declared that German technicians can render a "fine service" in rehabilitation work under the supervision of trained engineers and warned that the counsel of professional engineers is needed in the State Department in order to throttle Morgenthau's program, which he termed "a damn fool idea."

He said that the government needed more public administrators with engineering training and less "blatant politicians," who, he charged, were afraid to deal with "sound-thinking engineers."

Flash!

At the Wednesday afternoon meeting, the rising Sophomore Class elected as their officers for the 1945-46 academic year: W. K. Thornton, president; G. D. Hardesty, Jr., vice president; and A. E. Pickett, secretary-treasurer.

A new constitution establishing a more up-to-date and promising campus government was approved by the Student Council on Wednesday upon recommendation of a special joint student and faculty committee that has been working on the problem of a better campus government, under the leadership of Bill Heyward, chairman.

The new constitution has the enthusiastic approval of the new student government officers. It has the approval of the Faculty Advisory Committee, and the hearty support of practically all students who have had opportunity to study it carefully.

The next steps in approval of the measure include presentation to the student body, Faculty Council, General Faculty, and Board of Trustees. Arrangements have been made whereby an organization of students will canvass the College for each student's opinion. Those favoring the revised constitution will be requested to sign a mimeographed statement. If signatures of two thirds of the student body can be obtained, it will be considered passed.

The length of the constitution makes it inadvisable to publish it, but each student soliciting signatures will be qualified to explain it.

The students and faculty members who were appointed to this special committee have contributed much time and labor in studying the problem and drawing up the new plan. The committee is composed of the following professors: Hicks, Wood, Ludington, Lancaster, T. C. Brown, Paulson, and Dean Dade. The students are: Bill Heyward, Pop Bowen, Chester Fidler, Bayard Whitehurst, Camp Fuller, Lauren Booth, Gerald Brummitt, Jimmy Deas, Sleepy Perry, Dick Kennison, E. R. Conway, A. M. Pfaff, and Bill Gatlin.

Agromeck Held Up By Wartime Restrictions

All students who have not been here to register for the three terms of this school year are not fully paid up on their Agromeck account unless they have paid the balance of the yearbook cost to the Registrars Office. Part of the total cost is added to each student's tuition on registration day of the Fall, Winter and Spring terms. Kindly check with the Registrars Office at your earliest convenience if you have not been in school for these past three terms. No Agromeck will be given to a student unless his account is paid in full.

Due to wartime restrictions, our printer will not be able to supply us with the completed books before June 10th. We had contracted with him to supply us with books about the 7th of May. Government priorities forced him to put off the completion of our book until the above date, June 10th.

A BETTER CAMPUS GOVERNMENT
IN SEPTEMBER

Students have a part in the governance of the North Carolina State College Campus because "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," and because it is a fundamental function of higher education to prepare men and women for citizenship in a democratic society, and finally, because the job of campus government cannot be done the American way or to best advantage, without the voluntary cooperation and conscientious assistance of the student body.

That there have been serious inadequacies
in our Student Government in the past no one will deny. Three of the major weaknesses have been (1) lack of positive faculty interest and support in the very large task that youthful students face in trying to order and elevate the student life of the State College Campus, (2) lack of definite allocation of basic responsibilities and tasks (everybody's business is nobody's business), and (3) too much emphasis upon the mere law enforcement aspect of government, with little or no positive promotion of the general welfare of the campus through constructive programs instituted by the Student Council.

In order to establish the proposed new Campus Government and Honor System it will be necessary to adopt a new constitution.
This constitution has been drawn up and a chart showing clearly the organization of the new government has been prepared. It behooves every student and faculty member to study this new plan with great care, and then to support it with his vote if he believes that the new plan is a significant improvement over the old.

Of course, no one would claim that the new plan is perfect, but it is sound in principle, logically and carefully organized, and workable. It encourages faculty support of an active nature, because it demands faculty participation. It sets up definite machinery for getting specific things done and, last but not least, it is organized to promote the general welfare through positive programs of a constructive nature. In short, it offers a way and means of getting campus government
out of its wobbly and uncertain up-and-down

GLEANINGS

Fourscore and seven years ago our forefathers
brought forth on this continent the TECHNICIAN.
Ye shall know it by its works. Say, ever heard of the TECHNICIAN? Wish we hadn't sometimes; it's too darn much work, and all we ever get for our efforts is plain, fancy, and gaudy "criticism." But then it's the principle of the thing.

Yes, it really is the principle of the thing. If you don't think so you just try to pinch B. J. It can't be done. And she says it's nylon! We wouldn't know really. All we know is that it wasn't a stocking. Bet
it was a shrdlu.

ROGER THE LODGER is "loose" again. Said
Lodger was seen Saturday night last with his hands full of pulchritude, his head full of ideas and his stomach full of "gas." Said pulchritude (AWOL from St. Mary's) brushed off his ideas and his hands, but is still suffering from the gas attack (we hear that the LODGER is also suffering from the gas). Where did he get all those coupons?

We hear that there really is an excuse for Snyder's actions at the Jr.-Sr., however we really don't see how she could have been that bad. Perhaps she just didn't like to dance, Fred.

WANTED: One man (?) between the ages of nine and ninety, single or double, tall or short, thin or fat, white or black, handsome or ugly, slow or fast, virile or sterile. Object: Date for Finals; call 4117.

We hear that Nelson spent most of her time in a dark room last week. Incidentally, she says that she will shrdlu.

It is rumored that The Monk recently acquired some twenty-four hour brainbuster, drank same, and proceeded out of his chambers in the guise of a quadruped. Have you tried Sterno, Bob?

We certainly do wish that Sneaky would make up his mind as to whose woman he is going to try to start dating. The suspense is killing us.

Say, isn't it a good thing that VE Day didn't come this coming week-end. It certainly would be a "dry" dance. . . . And who is this character on the campus that is six feet nine inches tall, weighs thirty-five pounds, and spends his time boring holes in table legs with his head? He has four sons, Primus, Secundus, Tertius, and Quartus, who are all normal boys except that they are all joined together at the forehead. His only daughter peddles hashheese and,
while under its influence, drove into the reading room
of the public library and killed three mannish looking women who were reading God's Little Acres.
His father is a taper-snuffer by profession and lives in the tender of a B&O freight train. Hubba Gubba, Goodrich Rubba!

Signed, OH YEAH!

Chat by Pat

There is quite an undercurrent of amor going around—especially with two of the co-eds. But the feeling is not restricted to our campus. It goes much further than that. "The Dream"—that's what they call him. They won't tell who he is, but only comment—"He doesn't even need a voice like Sinatra
. . . he's got looks." It seems he's a fraternity man and calm down Sigma Chi. He isn't a member of your illustrious sad pack. He's a brownette and that is all the information I can get out of these females.
Does anyone know who the object of all this affectionate admiration is?

Europe is at peace, and the lights are on again.
It also looks good to have the lights of Raleigh on again. Of course, the brownout had its advantages in more ways than one. The cigarette shortage has been rather severe for the past couple of weeks, and exams are on the way. There never seems to be an end to our war with the books. Just two more weeks of college this term and then two weeks of play for some of us. Personally, I don't want to do a dad blamed thing but go to bed until next September. Of course, I do want to go to the beach, swim, play cards until dawn, and write plenty of letters,—and I said I'd get plenty of sleep. Who am I trying to kid.

See ya 'round . . . PAT.

existence and into a gradual but steady climb
upward toward better things.

If the student body will adopt the new constitution before the end of this school year
the new officers of student government can put the plan into operation next fall term.

Let's go State College students and faculty!

In reading the many stories of most name bands, it is usually a story of many, many years of hard struggle, but such has not been the case with Tony Pastor. Shortly before the retirement of Artie Shaw, Tony had decided to organize his own band. He had given Artie notice and was hastily making plans
when Shaw retired and left his band at the Pennsylvania Hotel.
Artie's agents and managers placed Tony as the leader of the Shaw band until the end of the Pennsylvania engagement. This gave him a good start and a thorough understanding of just what he wanted. Exactly ten months after he organized the band—during which ten months he played important spots such as the State Ballroom in Boston, the Casa Manana in Hollywood, and the Surf Club in Virginia Beach—he was selected to follow Charlie Barnet into the Lincoln Hotel in New York City. This was a great step for Tony, because it was in this spot that such bands as Artie Shaw, Jan Savitt and Charlie Barnet rose to fame. However, with the exception of Shaw, none
of these attained the popularity that Pastor did in a much shorter period of time. With NBC broadcasts five and six times weekly, and his fine Bluebird recordings, a musical-minded nation soon accepted Tony Pastor and his great band as one of the top ranking musical organizations.

Personality—Tony Pastor is a descendant of the great painter, Leonardo da Vinci. . . . Began his musical career at the age of five by playing cymbals in the home-town band. . . . Wants to own a farm

some day and actually farm himself. . . . Was a carpenter, florist, weaver, and tobacco grower before he became a musician. . . . His favorite sport is golf. . . . Likes football and prize fights. . . . Is a great lover of flowers, which inspired his beautiful theme song,
"Blossoms."

Watch out for that record I mentioned a few weeks ago—Louis
Prima's "Bell-bottomed Trousers." Wow! Those lyrics are certainly surprising, and when sung by such a lovely person as Lily Ann Carroll, are really something to listen to. The record is the type that you wouldn't notice, but all of a sudden, a few lines here and there will make you pop up in your seat and play them over. Rough! His latest one on the Majestic label is "Please No Squeeza Da Banana," with the vocal chorus done by Prima and the boys in the band. Let me say now that Prima, although many claim that he overdoes the Louis Armstrong style of vocalizing, has an inimitable style all his own, bubbling over with his own individual personality. If any of you have ever seen the band (adorned in their flashy red jackets), I am sure you will agree with me. Louis can play that trumpet at any time or place. Many times I have seen him go right down through the audience with his trumpet in his hands,
a great musician and an even better showman. This "Banana" side certainly proves that. Louis goes through the lyrics with a genuine Italian accent that will make your heart sing. If ever you are in a low mood, just listen to a few bars of
"Please No Squeeza Da Banana."

This member of a Senior Class of that year is fashion-perfect for the occasion. Top-hats were sine-qua-non, and voluminous neckcloths muffled the spotless linen. Co-education was becoming fashionable, too.

That year, 1860, civil war was looming on the country's horizon. College campuses blazed with patriotism. Railway Express was ready, at the first summons, to put its services at the nation's command. Today, America is fighting a world-wide war.
So, to help all concerned, please do three simple things with your 1945 home packages and baggage: Pack them securely—address clearly and adequately—avoid abbreviating state names.

A NEW CAMPUS GOVERNMENT

As a member of the committee proposing the new plan, Bill Gatlin, President-elect of the Student Council, explains its essential features. . . .

The new constitution differs from the old one only in that the basis of campus government has been broadened and the fundamental functions of campus government and welfare have been specifically allocated to legally established standing committees of the council. All provisions of the old constitution not in conflict with these principles are retained.

A growing conviction that there must be something inherently wrong with student government organization, when such a small proportion of the student body know their basic rights and responsibilities or feel an adequate sense of wholesome pride in their college, was responsible for the appointment of a joint student and faculty committee to study the situation and propose a plan that would clearly define functions, stimulate student and faculty participation in campus affairs, and promote a more satisfactory program of campus activities.

The new campus government and honor system provides for the effective coordination of all student campus affairs under the direction of a Council composed of twenty-four (24) students and four (4) faculty members, nominated by the students and elected in a general campus election. Through its standing committees, with written charters that definitely define functions and responsibilities, and through the departmental and school honor committees, the council will be able to effectively promote progressive and integrated achievements in matters of student honor, education, social life, athletics, and public relations.

The fundamental departure from the old set-up and past tradition is the granting of the right of active participation in campus government to the faculty. However, student control has been fully protected by limiting the faculty representation on the Council to four members, as against twenty-four (24) student members. The only effective way to achieve active faculty participation in campus government, and surely we need and should highly value the advice and assistance of our professors, is to give the faculty the legal right to participate in campus government on an equal footing with students.

The advantages to be gained from active faculty participation on the Council are: (1) official recommendations of the Council will carry greater weight; (2) the democratization of student-faculty interests and relations; (3) greater continuity of succeeding student administrations on account of the faculty carry-over from year to year, and (4) the stimulation of faculty aid and support in the effective promotion of approved student body projects of all kinds.

The above gains are most significant and cannot be had through faculty advisory participation, as the entire history of campus government at State College has shown. It is natural when people participate in anything in a purely advisory capacity, and gratis and often even without a word of appreciation for their efforts, that they stand to lose interest and feel inclined to devote their best energies to other things. To have active and vital faculty support we must first establish democratic faculty participation.

Some faculty members may hesitate at first to participate actively in campus student affairs, even as some students may at first feel a little ill at ease in the presence of their professors outside the classrooms. The majority of the professors at State College, however, are anxious to help students grow up, get an education and have all the legitimate fun in the world while doing it. On the other hand, when are students going to start getting over their timidity and their fear of matching wits and ideas with mature, well-informed people? Right now, at this time, for one's technical education is not going to do him the most good unless he knows how to deal with mature people in a formal, dignified way, and in the spirit of true democracy.

In addition to the Constitution, By-laws, and charters outlining the responsibilities of the five standing committees (campus welfare, promotion of campus government, investigation, trials, and faculty advisory) that have already been drawn up, plans are being made to prepare an outstandingly attractive official booklet on the State campus government and Honor System for distribution to all students and faculty members. Ways and means will be established whereby every new student matriculating at the college will be required to acquaint himself promptly and thoroughly with the organization and spirit of campus government.

Through the efforts of the Promotion Committee on Campus Government a regular reporter will devote full time to giving publicity to the activities of the Campus Government, and the school newspaper has reserved a column for "The Doings of the Campus Government."

The Faculty Advisory Committee on the Campus Government, which is composed of the four faculty representatives on the Council and the President of the Council, is an integral part of Campus Government under the new Constitution, and will function as a real coordination agency between the Chancellor's office, the college Administration, and general faculty, on the one hand, and the campus government on the other. With this arrangement there will surely be fewer misunderstandings between the College Administration and the Student Body, and the wishes of the student body with respect to holidays, social and recreational programs, and general campus welfare, will surely be placed more effectively before the Faculty Council, and no doubt receive more favorable consideration.

The new Campus Government will not work any miracles, but it is democratic in principle, logically organized, and workable. Youth, and those who remain youthful in spirit, are always the proponents of progress. Many of the student leaders and faculty members who have helped to prepare the new plan and who have studied it carefully since its inception are convinced that it is sufficiently complete in detail to deserve adoption this term in order that it may be put into operation next September.

It has been suggested on good authority that this set-up if approved and diligently guided through its formative stage will give State College a campus government equal to, if not better than, the campus government at any college or university in the United States. This would be another significant first for State College.

Grand Alliance Must Surrender Sovereignty

"The two extreme alternatives in world organization are a grand alliance composed of the United States, Great Britain, and Russia and a real federation of nations in which the members agree to surrender some of their sovereignty," declared William L. Poteat of Chapel Hill, assistant secretary of the YMCA at the University of North Carolina, in an address at State College last Saturday.

Poteat, speaking to delegates attending the annual YW-YMCA Spring Retreat at the State College YMCA, said that "the main problem we are faced with is trying to achieve the minimum possible in world organization." His subject was "The College Student and the San Francisco Conference."

The "grand alliance," Poteat stated, represents a serious danger because of its tyrannical tendencies, and the federation is the most desirable solution to world order and the perpetuation of lasting international peace.

During his address, Poteat outlined the provisions of the Dumbarton Oaks Plan and the Bretton Woods agreement—the two major plans before the San Francisco Conference.

Others who appeared on yesterday's program were Mabel Newlin of China Grove, a student at WCUNC; Sgt. Jack Torosky of Raleigh, who related his experiences during 24 months of Army service in Egypt; the Rev. Richard T. Howerton, student secretary of the Baptist State Convention; and a delegation from Greensboro.

Secretary Edward S. King of the State College YMCA planned the conference and has been host to approximately 50 student delegates from eight colleges and universities in North Carolina and Virginia. Schools represented were VPI, Guilford College, Greensboro College, WCUNC, ETC, Duke, Carolina, and State.

Excerpts from Charter of Council Committee on Promotion

II. The Membership of the Promotion Committee shall consist of nine (9) students and two (2) faculty members.

III. A. The Chairman shall be appointed by the President of the Council and shall be directly responsible to him.

2. The Secretary shall be a faculty member of the Committee, and shall keep a complete record of the deliberations and activities of the body. A copy of the official minutes shall be filed in the Office of the President of the Council.

IV. Meetings of the Promotion Committee shall be held each week throughout the school year at an established time and place.

V. The Functions and Responsibilities of the Promotion Committee.

1. This should not be less than making every student who matriculates at the North Carolina State College cognizant in the shortest possible time after his arrival on the campus of the structure, objectives, and spirit of the Campus Government and Honor System.

B. Education and Publicity in the Interest of the Development of Personal Honor and Civic Responsibility in the Student Body and Faculty.

C. Progressive Reform in the Structure and Operation of Campus Government.

1. This should not be less than continuous and vigilant observation and evaluation of the North Carolina State College Campus Government and Honor System against the background of past experience. (Continued on Page 5)

CAMPUS CITIZENSHIP

Upon matriculation at the North Carolina State College a student becomes a citizen under the Campus Government of the college. As a citizen of the State College Community the student is fully responsible, in both the legal and moral sense, for the ordering of his personal life in the interest of the common good as established in the organized government of the college and its best traditions. In addition, he is equally obligated to discourage, and if necessary, expose and prosecute to the limit of the law, any violation of the standards of behavior befitting the scholar and gentlemen at the North Carolina State College.

As a practical matter, it is necessary to have established machinery of government and to delegate special responsibilities to certain duly elected or appointed officers. But, this in nowise relieves the individual citizen of his basic responsibility in governance, rather it affords him established and effective channels through which to function as a free and responsible citizen.

The strength of any government is ultimately in the personal loyalty and honorableness of the free and responsible citizens living under it. So, the Campus Government and Honor System of the North Carolina State College is a means to an end, namely, the development of noble ideals of personal integrity, diligence to duty, loyalty to truth and justice in the life of every student and to the very limit of his native capacity.

If the Campus Government and Honor System of the North Carolina State College receives the courageous support of the good citizens of the college community, it will give effective direction to the weak, stern challenge to the sometime wayward, and through due process of law remove from the campus the few who persistently disregard high standards of honor, integrity, and scholarly effort.

And for those youthful leaders of tomorrow, who today practice diligently the role of active campus citizenship, there will be invaluable experience in democratic living, a new sense of social responsibility, and satisfying progress toward personal integrity and self-reliance.

Greeted by Girls After Crash Landing

SOMEWHERE IN THE PHILIPPINES (Delayed)—Lieutenant John W. James of Vallejo, Cal., First Marine Air Wing fighter pilot, couldn't believe his eyes when he was brought ashore after making a water landing in his disabled Corsair.

There, standing on the dock, were four of the most beautiful girls he had ever seen. He wondered if he had bumped his head against the instrument panel when he landed, but the sight refused to fade. As he came ashore, the girls walked by and gave him winsome smiles.

Then he learned that the girls were members of "Hellzapoppin' Review," a USO camp show, which was staged for men stationed here, according to Sergeant Walter F. Mackie, a Marine Corps combat correspondent.

Carolina Whips State By Scoring 15 Runs

By RUDOLPH PATE

Carolina's Tar Heels trounced State's Red Terrors, 15-1, in a Ration League game on Doak Field yesterday. Red Forrest of Winston-Salem, Carolina's moundman, pitched and hit his way to his second conquest of the Red Terrors by holding State to five hits and collecting three hits and two runs himself. He issued no walks and fanned eight men.

Carolina got off to a fast start by scoring three runs in the first frame on two walks, an error, and two wild pitches. The Tar Heels added five more markers in the third to send Lefty Bill Riggan to the showers and to sew up the game. Forrest, with a home run and two singles for five trips to the plate, and Elger, with three for six, led the Tar Heel batters.

Bob Wood, State's second baseman, was the big gun in the Red Terror attack, getting a double and a triple in four attempts. He also made State's lone tally, in the fourth inning when Charlie Richkus drove him home with a single. Yesterday's defeat was State's fifth setback as compared with five victories in league play. It was Carolina's fourth win five starts.

State will play Duke's Blue Devils in the Terrors' last home game on Doak Field Wednesday afternoon.

Nine New Members Initiated To AICHE

Tuesday night was initiation night for the A.I.Ch.E. After a period of "gaiety," the initiates were taken to room 113 and formally initiated. Dr. Randolph explained the noble aims of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, and how N. C. State College, on February 14, 1930, was the first Southern school to be granted a student chapter of A.I.Ch.E. Graduates of N. C. State Chemical Engineering Department now work in all the major chemical industries of North Carolina, and they are to be found serving in all other states, as well as all over the world. Over 250 N. C. State Chem. Engineers now hold commissions in the armed forces.

The nine new initiates are as follows: David S. Gilbert, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Wilbur C. Turrentine, Greensboro, N. C.; Charles M. Horne, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.; Stephen S. Leary; James O. Holt, Raleigh, N. C.; Robert L. Bird, Raleigh, N. C.; Miss Lois Madden, Bridgeport, Conn.; and Miss Doris Harrell, Raleigh, N. C.

This is the first time in the history of the local chapter that women have been initiated into membership.

W. C. English Named 'Best-Drilled Cadet'

Cadet Captain Webster C. English, Jr., of Winston-Salem, a sophomore in aeronautical engineering, yesterday was awarded a medal as the best-drilled cadet in the State College ROTC battalion.

The coveted award given annually by the University Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution was presented during military exercises on Doak Field at noon, and the presentation was made by W. D. Carmichael, Jr., controller of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and vice president of the chapter. Carmichael represented Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the SAR chapter.

In a brief speech to the battalion, Carmichael said the medal was awarded to English for "his leadership, soldierly-bearing, and military excellence." He praised all the cadets for their knowledge of military science and tactics.

The University official declared that the medal represented the objectives and functions of State College—the training of young men for useful pursuits in both war and peace.

English has made an outstanding record since he came to State College. He ranks high scholastically and is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honor society. He also was a member of the College's ROTC rifle team which recently won the Southern championship.

The Colorado banner, presented to the North Carolina SAR chapters by the national society for obtaining the largest proportionate increase in membership, was carried along beside the American and State flags by the color guard in the military parade which followed the presentation of the award.

Dillon's Dallyings

Congratulations are in order for Howard Turner and Paul Gibson, both members of State's 1944 football team. These two have received an invitation to play for the College All-Stars in the game against the Green Bay Packers next August in Chicago.

Professional baseball has returned to Raleigh after an absence of thirteen years. There have been some very good games played at Devereux Meadow thus far this season. Herb Brett's Danville Leafs are burning up the league by defeating each and every opponent they come up against. The Leafs play Raleigh here on Sunday. If you have the afternoon off, we recommend this game at the Meadow on Sunday.

State concludes its 1945 baseball schedule tomorrow afternoon against Duke at Durham. The season has been more successful than any in many years. Coach Feathers should be commended for his fine job. Starting Monday, Feathers will begin coaching the football team.

Incidentally, the '45 schedule is being announced in this issue. Five home games will be played. The best home tilt will be that with Clemson on October 6. On that afternoon, Duke and Navy clash in Durham. With the State-Clemson "night affair," October 6 should be a football holiday for people in this section.

The major leagues are now in full swing; each team is hoping to win the pennant. Predictions are a dime a dozen; so here is ours—the Cards and the Yanks. The St. Louis Cardinals appear to be a sure winner, but New York will have a fight all the way in the American League race. Detroit, St. Louis, and Chicago will certainly see to that. The State track team was scheduled to meet William and Mary here tomorrow, but the athletic officials at the Virginia school decided not to have a track team this year because of a lack of material. That leaves but one meet on the State schedule. South Carolina's outfit comes to Raleigh tomorrow for this meet.

Despite the fact they don't have a track team, William and Mary has a crackerjack tennis outfit. The Indian netters defeated both Duke and Carolina last week.

The Pre-Flight coach has apparently given up all hope of winning any ball game this season. In a State-Pre-Flight tilt, he proceeded to make fun of his players. His team was playing mighty poor ball, but his attitude certainly seemed mighty poor. He did give the spectators a good laugh, though.

Wiring a baby-sized airborne radio receiver, a key item in the AAF's stellar instrument landing system used in combat operations, requires making 600 soldered connections. Special ground-down pliers and fine-tipped soldering irons are used to complete the task.

HELPING OTHERS

TO HELP THEMSELVES

• One of the factors that has prevented the farm income in the Carolinas from rising to its proper level in comparison with income of other groups, has been that farmers have always purchased their feed, seed, fertilizers and other farm supplies at retail prices, and then sold their farm produce at wholesale prices.

• More than 40,000 farmers in the two Carolinas have found a solution to this problem through membership in the Farmers Cooperative Exchange—a farmer-owned and farmer-controlled manufacturing, purchasing, and marketing organization geared to the needs of modern farm operations.

• Through the "FCX" these farmers are now purchasing highest quality feed, seed and fertilizer at considerable savings, and are finding a better outlet in marketing much of their farm produce.

Sgt. Torosky Relates Colorful Experiences

Sgt. Jack Torosky of Raleigh, a 1932 graduate of State College, has the distinction of becoming a member of the U. S. Army before he became an American citizen, and later of taking his oath as a citizen on foreign soil in the first ceremony of its kind conducted by the Justice Department.

Sgt. Torosky, spending a 21-day leave here after a two-year tour of duty with the Army in Egypt, said yesterday that his citizenship oath was administered in Cairo, Egypt, after he volunteered for service in the Army in March of 1943. He was inducted into the Army in Cairo, where he worked as an engineer for the Standard Oil Company and did agricultural work prior to February, 1943.

Before he entered the Army, Torosky—known to State College alumni as Hagop Toros Hagopian, his name before he became a citizen—rescued 12 survivors of the SS Stellfarrer, an American export ship, struck by an aerial torpedo in the Red Sea on September 6, 1941. The survivors, all American seamen, drifted ashore on a Red Sea desert, near Torosky's home in Egypt. Two scouts, almost exhausted from shock, fatigue, and hunger, staggered over the rough terrain until they reached Torosky's cottage, a few miles away.

As the seamen approached, Torosky said he thought they were German parachutists, but he decided to remain at his cottage to determine their identity before departing for the office of the Governor of the Red Sea Province with a report. When they told their harrowing experiences, Torosky provided food, clothing, and water for them and went in a truck to transport the remainder of the crew to his home.

After a few days of rest at Torosky's home, the American seamen were carried back to the United States on a ship that had been sent for them.

Egyptian farming methods are "crude and primitive" in comparison with American ways, Torosky said. The farmers of Egypt, he stated, depend upon the Nile River for irrigation to produce their principal crops of cotton, rice, and dates.

Torosky, a native of Turkey, related that the standard of living in Egypt is very low, and class distinctions are apparent. He explained, however, that living conditions will improve as the industrialization of the country advances.

The main bottleneck in the development of industry in Egypt is a lack of electric power, Torosky stated, but King Faruk's regime has undertaken a huge power project designed to harness the waters of the Nile at the Aswan Dam in upper Egypt and thus provide electricity to the homes and factories of the nation.

Torosky described the colorful ceremonies and pageantry associated with the Mohammedan religious rites at the mosques. He said that he had seen King Faruk participate in the services. He also noted the weird and grotesque customs, including the harem, the desert raid, and the teachings of the Koran.

The Raleigh sergeant also has had an opportunity to study the beliefs and the customs of King Ibn Saud's subjects in Saudi Arabia, where the Moslems carry out the precepts of their forebears.

Sgt. Torosky will report at Washington for re-assignment following his leave.

Veterans' Club Begins 7th War Loan Drive

The Seventh War Loan Drive on the State College Campus will be sponsored by approximately 80 students, who are veterans of World War II, it was announced Tuesday by L. L. Ivey, chairman of the Campus War Loan Drive.

Each member of the College faculty and staff will be canvassed by some veteran, Ivey said, and leaders of the campaign hope to exceed the total of $29,000 worth of War Bonds purchased on the campus during the Sixth War Loan Drive. The drive will begin Friday, May 4, and will end the last of June.

Year-Round Fresh Vegetables

Housewives will no longer have to consider the changing seasons in preparing meals when plane-load movements of fruits and vegetables really get under way in the post-war world. Already experimental flights by various airlines prove that in the future it will be possible to deliver freshly picked garden and orchard produce on overnight flights from distances as great as 2,000 miles or more. Among the type of perishables likely to be first to move in quantity via air are berries of all kinds, seafood, lettuce, tomatoes, asparagus, fresh figs, cherries, and apricots.

The Chambers Building at Davidson College, shown above, was the scene Friday evening of impressive initiation ceremonies of the Omicron Delta Kappa Leadership Society. Prominent Southern personalities, shown above, who were initiated are (top row, left to right): Dr. Charles F. Myers, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro; Chancellor J. W. Harrelson, North Carolina State College, who made the principal address; and Dr. E. H. Garinger, principal of Central High School, Charlotte; (lower right, left to right) Dr. Gardner L. Green, president of Berry School, Mt. Berry, Ga.; McAlister Carson, insurance executive of Charlotte; Cloyd S. Goodrum, druggist of Davidson; and J. Spencer Love, textile manufacturer of Greensboro. Honorary membership in ODK is awarded in recognition of leadership in citizenship and service to society. Mr. Carson and Mr. Goodrum are alumni of the college.

THE NEW STATE COLLEGE CAMPUS GOVERNMENT AND HONOR SYSTEM

I. Fundamental Departures from Present Student Government Organization

A. Full faculty participation, with restrictions on faculty representation to the end that student government may continue in practice no less than theory, genuine student government.

B. Better organization of the Council of Campus Government for administrative purposes, through the establishment of five standing committees with written charters defining functions and responsibilities.

C. Departmental honor committees in the professional schools, which will officially and democratically enlist a large number of students in every college curriculum in the formal governmental organization, by virtue of the fact that the Chairmen of the School Executive Honor Committees have membership on the Council.

II. Potential Advantages of the New Campus Government

A. It establishes joint student and faculty responsibility for good campus government, which will surely promote better student-faculty relationships through mutual understanding and cooperative activity.

B. It establishes a definite and logical allocation of governmental duties and responsibilities through the establishment of five Standing Committees of the Council with written Charters.

C. It establishes a workable organic relationship between the Campus Government, on the one hand, and Administration and General Faculty, on the other hand, through the establishment of a Faculty Advisory Committee which is a legal and integral part of the Campus Government.

D. It relates every student in every curriculum of the college very closely to the Campus Government through the departmental and School Honor Committees.

E. It makes possible a degree of fundamental continuity in the efforts and activities of the Student Council from year to year through the faculty membership of the Council.

F. It is organized to put the major governmental emphasis and effort upon positive and constructive programs of campus betterment, rather than upon petty moral issues and mere law enforcement, as in the past. However, the law enforcement machinery of the new Campus Government is far superior to the old.

Notice!

Dr. Frank P. Graham will speak to the members of Theta Tau and the YMCA at a supper meeting to be held at the College Cafeteria on Monday, May 14 at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Graham will be jointly sponsored by the YMCA and Theta Tau.

The Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences initiated five new members Tuesday night. The new members are D. C. Cole, J. W. Browne, J. C. Boyter, J. D. Mellon, and A. W. Mercer.

New officers were also elected Tuesday night. They are: C. E. Grigsby, chairman; J. W. Brown, vice chairman and reporter; C. W. Dixon, treasurer and alternate to the Engineers Council; H. C. Wroton, secretary; and J. S. Hepler, representative to the Engineers Council.

M. B. Mizelle Heads A.S.C.E. for 1945-46

The A.S.C.E. held their election of officers at their regular meeting Tuesday night, May 1, 1945. M. B. Mizelle of Bethel, N. C., was elected as the new president, and Ed Mahoney of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be vice president. Other officers elected were: Floyd Seay of Reidsville, N. C., secretary; M. L. Borum of Greensboro, N. C., treasurer; George Hardesty of New Bern, N. The Institute is sponsored by the State College Public Lectures Committee, the State College Summer School, and a number of Raleigh civic and religious organizations and citizens.

Col. Harrelson Plans Addition To Y.M.C.A.

An address by Col. J. W. Harrelson, chancellor of State College, the presentation of the secretary's annual report, and the appropriation of $250 for the YMCA's Centennial Fund featured a luncheon meeting of the Board of Directors of the State College YMCA in the College's Dining Hall Thursday.

Col. Harrelson expressed the desire of the College to adequately serve the social and religious needs of the students and suggested to the board that they consider the feasibility of constructing an addition to the northeast end of the YMCA Building three stories high. He suggested that the ground floor of the proposed addition be used as a game room, the second floor as a lounge room, and the third floor to be designed and used as a chapel, where students of all faiths and denominations may worship.

The State College chancellor also said that the College plans, as soon as conditions permit, to erect a Student Union Building near Alexander and Burlington halls on the Western side of the campus for the use of students residing in that area of the campus.

Secretary Edward S. King of the College YMCA enumerated the far-reaching functions of the YMCA in his annual report to the Board. Briefly, he said, the YMCA has dispensed information to students and campus visitors, maintained a telegraph office, delivered messages to students in all dormitories, operated guest and game rooms, furnished meeting places for all student and faculty organizations requesting that service, provided facilities for two State-wide student conferences, and furnished reading material for the reading room and the College Infirmary.

The State College YMCA also has brought lecturers to the campus, arranged a "Religion and Life Week," conducted weekly concerts of recorded music, sponsored a dance for the Army students, co-operated with Theta Tau in collecting clothing for the people of the war-torn countries of the world, and dispatched a news letter to the College's service men in all parts of the globe.

The $250-appropriation for the Centennial Fund will be used principally for the recreational and religious needs of student-trainees and young war veterans in the nation's colleges.

Prof. M. E. Gardner, chairman of the Board, appointed the following committee to study the facilities, needs, and the functions of the YMCA: Prof. T. C. Brown, Prof. A. D. Stuart, and Prof. L. L. Vaughan.

Dean B. F. Brown, Prof. Gardner, and David C. Worth, whose terms of office expire this term, were re-elected for terms of three years.

Chairman Gardner announced that the annual election of officers will be held at the next board meeting. Dean E. L. Cloyd pronounced the invocation.

Board members who were present for the meeting: Chairman Gardner, Dean Cloyd, Dean Brown, T. C. Brown, Dr. J. N. Clarkson, Dr. Ralph W. Cummings, Dr. Thomas Nelson, John A. Park, Prof. Fred B. Wheeler, David C. Worth, Earl G. Bowen, Edgar A. Orr, and Secretary King.
