

New Plan Adds Power To CG Honor System

A complete revision of the system of representation on the Council of Campus Government is one of the proposals to be debated at next week's CG session. A series of recommended changes in the constitution and by-laws of the Campus Government and the Honor System has been prepared by the former officers of the Summer Council.

H. G. "Hank" Smith, president of the Summer Council and recently resigned vice president of the regular Council, stated that, "it's going to take some fighting to get these things adopted."

The changes to the constitution must be approved by a two-thirds vote of the student body, while the by-laws can be altered by a vote of the Council alone. The last efforts to amend the constitution in 1950 failed when only a small portion of the student body went to the polls.

Electoral System

Changes in the electoral system will be amendments to the constitution. The proposals suggest that students be elected to the Council as representatives of "living quarters groups" on the basis of one representative for each two hundred students. Each dormitory would choose its representation by dormitory election at the time of the general campus election.

Fraternity representation would be allotted on the same population basis, however the fraternity seats on the Council will be rotated among the fraternity chapters.

It is proposed that no chapter be permitted to have a member elected to the Council more often than one-half the period of time prescribed for rotation of the office of IFC president. This is now five years. The proposal states that fraternity representatives must live in a fraternity house.

Off-campus students living at places other than at a fraternity house will be considered as composing a dormitory group, and will be entitled to representation as such.

Additional members of the Council would come from the school honor committees. Each honor committee would have one student representative and one faculty representative on the Council.

More Faculty

The proposals would increase faculty representation on the Council as well as student representation. At the present time four faculty representatives are selected from the faculty at large. The proposal would increase this to six, one from each school, with one additional representative from the Basic Division.

Another suggested change in the constitution removes from the Council president the duty of presiding over C. G. trials, and makes every member of the student body available for jury duty. Presently only council members and honor committeemen are called on for jury duty.

Honor System

The Summer Council's recommendations include altering the Honor System to make failure to report a violation of the Honor Code a trial offense. However, all violations would be reportable only to the Council while the present constitution states that cases of dishonesty observed by a teacher "may be handled by him if he so desires."

In previous debates in the Council on the Honor System this has been pointed out as a serious defect in the code.

Discussion on these proposals will begin on Tuesday and if adopted will be voted upon by the student.

City Calls On NC State To Cut Water Consumption

Net Worth Of College To Be Doubled With Completion Of $15 Million Program

State College students look forward to the completion of the record-breaking construction program now underway over all the campus. The multimillion dollar project will not only benefit students, but will broaden the scope of varied services offered by the college to the people of North Carolina.

Chancellor J. W. Harrelson termed the $15,000,000 expansion project as "an investment in the economic development of North Carolina."

Appropriations made by the General Assembly, the Chancellor said, will pay dividends far in excess of the original investments through technological education, research, and extension teaching and an ultimate elevation of the State's standard of living.

The campus building program, he explained, will almost double the institution's physical facilities and will permit a corresponding expansion in State College's services to the people of the State and region.

Ag Fair Opens Oct. 16

Students from ten departments of the School of Agriculture and the School of Education will combine their talents to present the Students' Agricultural Fair as a principal feature of the N. C. State Fair, October 16-20.

Announcement of plans for the student exposition has been made by David Hodgins of Guilford College, chairman of the fair committee and a senior in Animal Industry.

Hodgins' chief assistants are David Moore of Wallace, vice-chairman; Ted James of Statesville, secretary-treasurer; and Johnny Beck of Lexington, publicity chairman.

"Farm Improvement" will be the theme of the student show. Two contrasting farms will be constructed on the set by students from each of the 10 departments. One farm is run-down, and the other is modern in every respect. Forming a background for the exhibit will be displays showing the contribution of each of the 10 departments to North Carolina agriculture.

One Big Exhibit

In the past, each department has had an individual booth, with keen competition for the prizes offered the winners. This year, because of

*College Warned to Cut 1/4 Million Gallons Daily Use . . . or Else

The city of Raleigh is desperate for water! And State College is using a quarter million gallons per day—an amount which must be reduced by order of the City Council.

According to a city ordinance passed Monday, State College, as well as the remainder of Raleigh, will have to cut their consumption by a third, if the city is to survive the present crisis. This means conservation by every individual on campus.

W. F. Morris, the director of services for the College, reminds the College that it cannot function without water. However, he adds that if the students and the College in general are cooperative in conserving the remaining water supply, there will be no immediate danger.

Morris said the College facilities use between 7 and 8 million gallons per month. This would mean an average daily consumption of around 250,000 gallons.

He pointed out that the College is cooperating with the city by trying to cut their consumption by the desired third.

The School's action began Tuesday after a city ordinance was passed to cut water consumption to two-thirds of the regular amount. The law was re-enforced by the promise of a penalty of 500% of cost for all water used over two-thirds the amount used last October. This includes the College, fraternity houses, and all residences in Raleigh.

Monetary Awards Presented Students-Professors

Three Men on Ag Faculty Named Reynolds Profs.

Three Faculty members in the School of Agriculture have been named "William Neal Reynolds Distinguished Professors of Agriculture."

In making the announcement today, Dean James H. Hilton of the School of Agriculture said the promotion of the three professors has been made in accordance with a benefaction given to State College by the late Winston-Salem tobacco manufacturer and philanthropist.

The development has been approved by President Gordon Gray of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, Chancellor J. W. Harrelson and the executive committee of the board of trustees.

Professors receiving the honors are Dr. George H. Wise, head of the Animal Nutrition Section in the Department of Animal Industry; Dr. James H. Jensen, head of plant pathology in the Division of Biological Sciences; and Dr. Stanley G. Stephens, head of basic genetics in the Division of Biological Sciences.

Under the terms of the Reynolds endowment, ten "distinguished professorships" were created in State College's School of Agriculture. Other recipients will be announced later.

The endowment was established by William Neal Reynolds in 1950 through the contribution of 10,000 shares of class B stock in the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, valued roughly at $340,000 on the current market. Earnings of this stock will be used to carry out the aims of Mr. Reynolds' benefaction.

College officials hailed the Reynolds' gift as "probably the greatest single program to come to State College's School of Agriculture since its founding" and said the endowment would draw world-renowned scholars to the faculty of North Carolina State College.

So. R. R. Scholarships Take 4 Thru College

The award of one fellowship and five scholarships by the Norfolk Southern Railway Company was announced recently by Dr. J. H. Lampe, Dean of Engineering and chairman of the Awards Committee, and by Major J. T. Kingsley, President of the Norfolk Southern Railway.

The fellowship, an award of $1,000, was granted to James O. Beeker of Salisbury, for one year of full-time graduate study in the field of Diesel Engineering at State College. It is hoped that such study will lead to technical advancements in Diesel design and operations. Beeker received his Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering this past June from State College.

Each of the fellowships is valued at $500, and is applied toward a year's living and study costs at

College Union Directorate Holds First Policy Conference

A central College Union, planned for since 1948, will soon be a reality. Although no building dates are yet available, College Union sponsored activities are well underway.

At a meeting held Monday night, the newly organized College Union Directorate acted upon the following items:

It was decided that any faculty member wishing to take advantage of College Union privileges, would be assessed five dollars for membership. The term "faculty membership" was broadened to include staff members, graduate students, and those attending College Extension classes.

Athletic Books Seized From 75 Violators

Hold on to your student ticket books if you want to keep them! The N. C. State Athletic Department states 75 student books were picked up when being used by persons other than State students. It was stated also that students had sold their seats and turned over stubs and ticket books to adult buyers. When these persons were unable to present proper college identification at the gate, the books were confiscated.

In order to remedy the situation somewhat, the Athletic Department now requires that students who play in the band, usher, or otherwise are permitted to enter athletic events without tickets, to turn in their books so that they will not be able to sell their tickets.

The ticket book clearly states, "It is a violation of the Federal and State tax laws to let anyone else use this book, and further it is a violation of student honor code to sell or lend this book."

"If anyone other than the owner uses this book, he will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

"This ticket book . . . is not transferable and will be taken up if presented by other than its owner."

It was baseball first and lessons second in the Textile School's new lounge during the World's Series.

The center of attraction was the recently installed television set which carried the games. Every exciting play was witnessed by faculty and students whose schedule permitted, and there was a capacity crowd on hand for every game.

College Moves To Halt State Stream Pollution

State College's School of Engineering has taken a step toward the control of stream pollution in the State.

Dr. J. H. Lampe, dean of engineering at the college, has announced the appointment of Dr. Nelson L. Nemerow, a specialist in industrial wastes, as assistant professor of civil engineering.

The new staff member will teach and do research work in the general field of sanitary engineering and will also work on the State's stream pollution problem.

Dr. Nemerow, who worked with the Sanitary Engineering Division of the State Board of Health this past summer, formerly was a research associate in the Department of Sanitation of Rutgers University.

He obtained his master's degree from Rutgers in 1948 and his Ph.D. degree from the same institution last June. He holds a B.S. degree from Syracuse University and was an engineer with the U. S. Merchant Marine during World II.

Dean Lampe also made the announcement of three other appointments in the college's Department of Civil Engineering.

The other appointees are David H. Baxter and Lawrence F. Spaine, both of Raleigh and both 1951 graduates of State College, who will be instructors in civil engineering; and Nicholas C. Costes of Dartmouth College's School of Engineering, who will hold a teaching fellowship in civil engineering.

Students Strive to Exhume Wataugan

A group of interested students will circulate a petition some time this week the purpose of which is to revive the now defunct Wataugan.

If the response is favorable the petition will be presented to the Faculty Council as evidence that the Wataugan should resume publication.

Old copies of the Wataugan will be distributed to all freshmen and will contain matter explaining the purpose of the petition.

Petitions will be circulated, posted on prominent bulletin boards and can be signed in the following students rooms: Wesley Doggett 224 Bector, Frank Mason 208 Fourth, John Wooten 205 Fourth.

The Wataugan had become an institution on the campus and was rated highly both in the state and nation as a college humor magazine. However the non-academic Fees Committee failed to appropriate money for publication this year.

REYNOLD'S PROFESSORS—

The new program, said to be a far-flung movement toward lifting rural living standards in North Carolina, will be known as "The William Neal Reynolds Professors in Agriculture" and is expected to bolster training and research work in the various fields of agriculture.

Faculty members holding positions under the program will be designated as "Reynolds Professors."

The college's prestige among other institutions of higher learning, Dean Hilton said, will be boosted by the addition of eminent professors whose employment on the faculty will be made possible by the Reynolds fund and by retaining other teachers whose services are sought by industries and other organizations offering greater financial attractions than permitted by the State salary scale.

Duke University, which started playing football in 1888, rolled up its victory by biggest margin in 1891, defeating Furman University 96-0.

RAIL SCHOLARSHIPS—

State College in Raleigh, or at the Women's College in Greensboro. They are open to any student graduating from a high school in the region served by the Norfolk Southern Railway, and to sons and daughters of Railway employees.

Winners of these awards for the school year 1951-52 are Helen E. Whitty of New Bern, Louis S. Hales of Stantonsburg, Ann Bennett of Charlotte, Walter M. Sawyer of Belcross, and Hubert Pittman of Wendell.

Miss Witty, whose father is a telegrapher clerk for the Railway, is a freshman student of Home Economics at the Women's college.

Miss Bennett is also a student of Home Economics at Women's College. This will be the third consecutive year Miss Bennett has been awarded the scholarship.

Hales, son of an agent-telegrapher of the Railway, is a senior studying Civil Engineering at State College. Sawyer, also a recipient of the scholarship for his third consecutive year. He is studying Agriculture at State College.

Pittman is entering his second year of study of Mechanical Engineering at State College, and also his second year as a recipient of the Railway's scholarship. He is the son of a depot agent of the Railway.

UNION DIRECTORS—

After considering the Alumni Association's proposal to move next to the new College Union, and to use its facilities, the Directorate went on the books as being in favor of the idea, providing the Alumni Association did not interfere with or hinder any future building expansion plans of the College Union.

Current Budget

The Budget for the school year 1951-52 was discussed, and after weighing in the individual needs, funds reaching a total of approximately $9,574 were allocated to the various departments.

Heading the administration of the College Union, Gerald O. T. Erdahl will act as director in a coordinating and advisory capacity. The Directorate, composed of ten students and seven faculty and alumni includes the following students: Jack McCormick, chairman; Joseph Weaver, Paul Foght, Bill Hermann, Philip J. Baugh, Jr., Monroe Brettler, G. B. Pruden, John A. Dinan, Douglas L. Powell, and John E. Graham.

These students have all been elected to sit in on the organization because of their interest in and knowledge of campus affairs.

Also serving on the Directorate are the following faculty and alumni members: Dean E. L. Cloyd, Dean John W. Shirley, Dean J. H. Hilton, Prof. Fred Willard, J. G. Vann, J. J. Stewart, George B. Cherry and Gerald O. Erdahl, ex-officio.

Its Purpose

It is the function and purpose of the Directorate to approve the Budget, approve operating policies, tie the budget to a well-rounded social-cultural-recreational College Union program, approve the College Union Chairman, and to amend the Constitution when necessary.

The "workhorse" of the administration, the Board of Chairmen, is the final division of the College Union governing body. Its members meet fortnightly and render full reports on their various committees. Any function which requires joint planning by two or more committees initiates during these meetings. The Board's specific purpose is to critically analyze past College Union programs with the objective toward improving future activities and functions. Chairmen act as links between the Directorate and committees, and ideas are pooled toward building new programs that fill a definite need—while changing or eliminating those that do not serve a real purpose.

The men chosen to fill these jobs, according to College Union departments, are: Jack McCormick, President; John E. Graham, Theatre; Glen Eason, Games; Fred Bergman, Films; Joseph Weaver, Forum; James Washburn, Gallery; Douglas Powell, Publicity; Bill Hermann, Dance; Cal Reis, Music; Richard Pitts, Social; and A. C. Turnage, Outing Committee.

Duke University's 1950 football team scored a season of seven wins and three losses for the school's best season since the war.

YMCA Holds Dance

The YMCA will sponsor a dance tonight in the Gym from 7:30 to 10:30. Admittance restricted to associate members and their dates. Four hundred girls have been invited to attend. Tickets for 500 men are available at the "Y" desk.

BUILDING PROGRAM—

The scope of services offered for advancement of the State's agriculture also have been set in motion by the Agricultural Extension Service and the Agricultural Experiment Station, whose work alone touches the lives of over 324,000 Tar Heel farmers each year.

Technical services in adult education go to thousands of other persons and groups in the State each year through the college's busy Extension Division, which holds correspondence courses, evening classes, and conferences of various kinds for a wide variety of purposes.

Affects Everyone

It is estimated that the work of State College, in one way or another, affects the lives of virtually every man, woman, and child in North Carolina. The whole State, in effect, is its campus inasmuch as college employees are stationed in all of the 100 counties.

In a progress report, J. McCree Smith, college engineer, stated that the building program is now far advanced and that the remaining work will be completed as fast as the construction crews can operate under current building restrictions. His report showed these facts:

Among the buildings which have already been erected or which are now in the process of construction and the bid cost of each are:

An Agronomy Building, $1,003,054.36; Botany-Zoology Building, $1,050,387.45; Civil and Electrical Buildings, alterations and additions, $767,590.95; Forestry-Horticulture Building, $769,497.50; Poultry Science Building, $380,110.97; Mechanical Engineering Building, $380,110.97; Mechanical Engineering Building, $591,220.05; Vehicular Underpass, $135,490.70; Greenhouses, $123,599; Student Union Building, $944,475.00; Library Building, $1,160,978.00; William Neal Reynolds Coliseum (completed December, 1949), $1,698,078.00; Riddick Engineering Laboratories Building (completed June, 1950), $1,224,778.00; and miscellaneous projects, including steam tunnel, streets, walks, water, sewer, and storm sewer, $634,000.00.

WATER SHORTAGE—

Leaks have been checked throughout the campus; and the laundry, cafeteria, and College dairy farm have been warned to take precautions in saving water. Signs have been posted in the dormitories asking the students to cooperate with the College in their efforts.

The College's three air conditioning units—one in the basement of Withers Hall, one in Polk Hall and the other in the Textile Building is not affected as the water used by them is used over and over again.

When asked just how much curtailment the College could stand without having to close its doors, Morris said he didn't feel things would get that bad. He added that if worse came to worst the laundry and other less essential facilities would be discontinued temporarily. This might include a cut on bathing facilities. He said that plans had been made to the effect that if necessary "bath hours" would be observed. Water facilities would be available only during certain hours.

Raleigh's water consumption must be cut from around 6,000,000 gallons a day to 4,000,000. It can be done only if every citizen cooperates. And that includes each and every State College Student.

AG FAIR—Continued from Page 1 limited housing space, all of the participating departments will work on the same exhibit, with certain portions of it assigned to the various departments. The exhibit will be located in the west end of the Main Exhibit Hall at the State Fair.

Assisting the Agricultural Fair officers in planning and directing the work will be the following departmental chairmen from the School of Agriculture:

Agricultural chemistry—D. K. Owens, Greenville; agricultural economics—Joe Marks, Aberdeen; agricultural engineering—John Dale, La Grange; agronomy—George Hawkins, Rockingham; animal industry—Joe Hamrick, Shelby; horticulture—John A. Nielsen, Edneyville; poultry—Ralph Peeler, Raleigh, rural sociology—Bill Barnett, Berryville, Va.; and wildlife—Edward Ray Smith, Avon, N. J.

The chairman from the Department of Agricultural Education of the School of Education is M. G. McKenzie of Lumberton.

Robert W. Scott of Haw River and Raleigh is president of the Agricultural Club, the sponsoring organization.

Open Tennis Tourney

J. F. Miller, director of intramurals has announced plans for an open tennis tournament. All students, with the exception of Monogram winners are eligible to play. Any faculty member is eligible to play.

Entry sheets are posted at the tennis courts and in the basement of the gymnasium. Entries should sign up by Oct. 19. Play will begin Monday Oct. 22nd. All matches will be the best 2 out of 2 sets. The winner will be presented a trophy cup in the coliseum on Honors and Awards Day and his picture run in the Intramural Handbook.

All entries report to the tennis courts some time between 2:00 and 6:00 on Monday Oct. 22nd in order to schedule the first round matches. In case of rain report to Coach Kenfield at Frank Thompson Gymnasium.

Musicians Wanted!

There are quite a few new students with previous band experience who have not come out for the State College Band. There still are vacancies to be filled in both the R.O.T.C. Band, and the "Redcoat" Band. If you have the talent and experience, and wish to continue to develop along these lines while contributing your talent and a limited amount of your time, contact the Director of Music, C. D. Kutschinski (Room 9, Holladay Hall) or any of the Band officers without further delay. The R.O.T.C. Band drills on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at noon, while the "Redcoat" Band devotes an additional two hours Thursday nights to prepare between-halves programs for the games.

Outing Club

It'll be off to Crabtree Park for the Outing Club this Sunday! The group will meet at the steps to the YMCA at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon for transportation to the park. A stroll in the woods and a wiener roast will then be in the offing. Those planning to go must sign up on the small bulletin board at the YMCA, and must bring along 40 cents for the meal.

Last Day for Pics

Friday, October 19 is the last day to have photographs made for the Agromeck. Pictures can be made between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Proofs are being shown in the Alumni Building during the same hours.

Brightest Future

To disregard past performance is a strange request for perhaps the most revealing aspect of an individual is his reputation. But, that is what we ask you to do in the case of the campus government.

We feel that its past has not been indicative of its true capabilities, which capabilities we hope will be demonstrated during the ensuing year. The burden will be a difficult one.

The progress will have to be many-fold, for inactivity has made the machinery of self-government at State College almost unusable. Immediately handicapped by the loss of the vice-president, and continually handicapped by a semi-conscious student body, it will be a fight against the heaviest odds.

However, the campus government this year has already progressed further than any of its forebears by gaining control of the activities fees. Student activities, a serious misnomer previously, will have to justify their existence and clarify their purposes before student representatives.

Activities will depend upon the campus government for their budgets, and thus purposely, the student government already assumes a major position of greatest importance on the campus scene. It is hoped that this is but a step toward an eventual complete student control of all funds for student activities and organizations—the truest definition of self-government at State College so far.

Thus, if the first meeting proves to be a precedent, we feel that this will be at long last a year marked with progress in the student government, in spite of the students.

Organize to Give

Few will deny that it is better to give than to receive, but often it seems that the students receive too many requests to give.

The Community Chest campaign is now underway in the city and on the campus, which makes this an appropriate time to suggest that the campus charity drives be similarly consolidated. The many giving campaigns now conducted on the campus constitute an expenditure of too many student man-hours that could be spent more profitably.

It is time that State College follow the lead of its brother and sister institutions in the Greater University, and organize a consolidated giving drive. Call it a "Campus Chest" or what you will; the title is not important, but the project is vital.

Haste Makes Dead Students

Insurance companies are picturing the human body of today as a bastion, virtually impervious to attack by germs. We are assured, thanks to medical progress, of a much longer life than our forebears.

We deeply regret that no semblance of progress can be reported by the Raleigh Police Department to this aim. In fact, there is a strong feeling that this group may be an unnatural counterbalance to assure a turnover of population.

Last spring a concerted attempt was made by this newspaper to return Hillsboro Street from the role of a super express highway to that of a normal city street. Much nodding of heads occurred at the time, and an all-out drive was instituted by the police department to ticket all overtime parkers. Unfortunately, this has not proved to be the solution for speeding, although a good source of revenue.

With the addition of a new commercial market in the vicinity, and with the utilization of several new campus buildings, traffic will not decrease. We are accustomed to walking and driving in congested areas, but with enormous trucks thundering by and souped-up jalopies buzzing along at fifty, Hillsboro Street gains an aspect of the Indianapolis speedway. This we are not accustomed to walking and driving on.

Last Sunday a serious accident involving bad head injuries to a pedestrian occurred at one boundary of the campus. This past week, a student's car was badly smashed a few blocks away. These are hardly normal occurrences, yet they are frequent occurrences.

We propose, nay INSIST, that Hillsboro Street be placed under a fifteen mile an hour school speed zone for the entire length of the college, and that it be rigidly enforced by Raleigh police. Failure to do this can only be construed as complete disinterest and negligence on the part of city authorities.

Next Year?

For years the supporters of the Brooklyn Dodgers have said, "Wait until next year!" That is now good advice for the many students who were interested in starting a parade for this year's Homecoming celebration.

The decoration of dormitories and fraternity houses has never proved the most satisfactory arrangement for displaying Homecoming enthusiasm. Both the dormitories and the fraternity houses are too widely separated to allow the public to view the labor and inspiration that the students put into their displays.

The best answer yet presented to solve the problem was to organize a parade through the city and request that the dormitory and fraternity organizations be represented in the parade by their floats. Thus, instead of requiring the public to hunt out the Homecoming decorations, the decorations would be brought directly to the public.

Unfortunately the Faculty Council did not see fit to excuse the student body for two hours on Saturday morning so that they could participate in such a celebration.

If the students are really interested in a Homecoming parade they can try again next year. If enough enthusiasm has been developed to carry over for a year, the Faculty Council may realize that the student body is vitally interested in the project, and that the students are capable of organizing a parade that will be a real credit to the college.

We have been tried and found lacking. Perhaps not in the same sense as our tempters thought, but lacking all the same. Saturday night four State men, representing themselves as Clemson rooters, challenged the residents of Bagwell, Becton, and Berry to come out and fight for the honor of State College. They were met by a fusillade of bottles and language, but found nobody interested in physical contact. Finally, one sturdy individual from Bagwell came forth to do battle with the four investigators into "school spirit." At this point the hoax was revealed and the experimenters began to harangue the throng that followed on the heels of the first Bagwellite.

The price lists for meals in the S and W Cafeteria posted about the dormitories are not advertisements for that concern. Apparently they have been posted by students who, being disgruntled with the food and service offered in our own cafeteria, would rather see the students patronize the S and W. The manager of that establishment denies quite emphatically that he is responsible for the sheets. He states, however, that he was recently visited by three students who inquired as to the prices at the S and W.

We don't know too much about the food situation in Chapel Hill, but we do know that the whiskey was flowing in the streets there last Friday.

Seems that the Chapel Hill cops found a number of University students to be in illegal possession to tax paid whiskey in front of a Chapel Hill restaurant. The crowd was too large to haul down to the local cooler, so the boys in blue informed the blue boys from the Hill that they had their choice of dumping the liquor or arrest.

Needless to say, spirits were low. Right down in the gutter, you might say.

Spirits are still high at Princeton University where sixty freshmen have bright, shiny heads to prove their allegiance to the class of '55. 400 of the young Princetonians staged a riot in their traditional struggles with the sophomores and the veteran sophs outsmarted the youngsters.

The celebration was brought to an end when the sophs treated one frosh, already shorn of his crowning glory, to a tar and feather job with chocolate syrup and confetti.

Such spirit, such refinement one does find at the staid old Ivy League schools.

At a recent meeting, the Student Council voted against appropriating funds toward the school humor magazine, THE WATAUGAN. Several students have expressed the following opinions in response to the question, "Do you want the WATAUGAN back?"

Barry Murphy—So., Mech. Engr.

Yes! It is the only form of campus amusement that breaks the steady monotony of studies. After the innocent jokes and jabs at the institution; it leaves the student in a very good mood.

Paul Smigell—So., Ind. Engr.

I am enthusiastically in favor of having the Wataugan back in publication. In the past, I, and just about everyone I know, have greatly enjoyed this magazine. It was the only humorous publication on campus, and the material in it was usually fresh. Since practically every other school has a publication of this sort, I see no reason why

State College shouldn't continue the Wataugan. I will anxiously await the Wataugan's revival.

Joe Derro—Jr., Forestry.

I think we should have the Wataugan back. It is my understanding that the fee for the Wataugan was dropped due to pressure from an outside group. We the students, for whom the magazine was published, do not agree with the opinions of outsiders, and wish to see the magazine back.

Grayden Moulthrop—So., Forestry
Every other college has some form of literary humor, so why shouldn't N. C. State? At least have some form of publication worth reading!

Bill Allen—So., Elec. Engr.

Yes! Because it's read more widely than any other publication on the campus. Also, all of the other schools have humor magazines and I think it's a bad situation when a school as large as State can't have one too.

Let's give the State College Band a hand. The organization is small, due to the poor turn out of the many musicians on campus who seem to have little time for anything that will develop their talents, but immense measures of time for play making all over the fair city of Raleigh. Yet, although the band is way under its normal size, the present members have shown the courage to get out on the field at half-time and make a good showing on behalf of the students of State College. Yes, it takes courage for a small group of people to provide entertainment for such a mass accumulated at a football game. If you think it doesn't, just try it sometime. You will realize what I mean when your legs begin to shake and your breathing ties a noose around your neck. Some people might say you were "stage-struck."

You bandsmen, who have recently dropped from the band, should be ashamed of yourself. Not only have you let the band down, but you have also let the whole student body down. We want to see a band that we can be proud of, so get back out there and show us that you still have the courage to make the State College band the best in the south.

The Glee Club will have its first chance to shine when they take part in the United Nations Program which will be held in Pullen Hall on October 23. The group is working hard for this program, a full concert program and other appearances later in the term. Come on all you singers get in and join in on the fun. It matters not whether you are basso, baritone, or tenor. You are needed. Rehearsals are held every Monday, Wednesday and Tuesday night from 7 to 8 p.m.

The Raleigh Chamber Music Guild, now in its seventh season, has begun its annual membership drive, Dean John W. Shirley of North Carolina State College, guild president, has recently announced.

Principal purpose of the guild is to bring chamber music to Raleigh. Addition of chamber music program to the city's cultural life, stated Dean Shirley, fills a gap not covered by other musical organizations.

The first concert will be presented by the Alden Trio of Chapel Hill on Saturday, November 3, at 8 p.m. This group is composed of Dorothy Alden, violin; Edgar Alden, viola; and Ernst Peschel, violoncello. An added feature will be a number by Thomas Nichols, pianist.

The famous Quartetto Italiano, playing this season for the first time in the United States, will offer a concert on Saturday, December 8, at 8 p.m. This ensemble has played in England, France, Germany, and many other European countries.

There are a lot of good reasons for the Wolfpack's seeming lack of offense in the Clemson game. For one thing the State coaching staff concentrated on stopping the great Billy Hair, and they did this very effectively. But to do this they had to employ an eight man line with some pulling out on pass defense and others rushing the Clemson backs. The results were that the Tiger scoring punch was stopped cold. The one lone touchdown came on a desperation heave and a circus catch that could even be called lucky.

State's strategy would have been perfect except for one thing. Spreading out the line so much made easy pickings for the big Clemson fullback Shirley. The giant back carried the ball no less than 33 times, and he gained around three yards with every carry. These time consuming line plunges netted twenty first downs for the Tigers, and consequently State had the ball for only a small portion of the game, and when they did get their hands on it they were backed up so far that they had to play cautiously. The few marches the Pack did make ended with pass interceptions, and that could happen to anybody.

Despite the poor showing of the offensive team there was one bright spot in the backfield and that was blocking back Vitus Kaiser. Kaiser has been hustling for three years, and it seems like he never stops running. I think we will be seeing a lot more of Vitus on offense. I for one hope so because he throws blocks like he means it, and if there is anything lacking in his ability, he more than makes up for it in hustle.

It is rumored that Carolina is going to schedule all of their games in Nome next year. They love that cold weather. It's lucky their game with Texas wasn't played in Chapel Hill this year for it was hotter there than it was in Austin. The Longhorns would really had a picnic in the blistering heat of Tar Heelia that day.

Huzzah! Huzzah! The scoreboard will be working properly for the next home game. Amiable Mat Lojko has informed me that the extremely hard to get part that has been causing the difficulty has been ordered and should arrive soon.

There is no rest for the weary, and this goes double for the Wolfpack. Tomorrow's game with Duke will be as hard if not harder than any to date. Duke will be out for blood after their 26-0 pounding in Tennessee, and don't let that loss fool you. The Blue Devils have a good club as always, and they are looking for a clean sweep of the Big Four this year.

On the other hand this has been a lean year for the Pack and they are getting extremely hungry. Duke is the last of the Big Four foes, and they have no desire to be low man on the totem pole. State's powerful defense will make it a close one, and I think you can look for something new in the way of offense.

Billy Cox, 1950 captain of the Duke University football team, missed gaining an even 2,000 yards in total offense by just five yards. He gained a total of 3,710 yards by passing and running in his three-year career at Duke.

State Looking For Big-4 Win

By BOB PHELPS

Tomorrow the Wolfpack moves over to Durham to meet Duke's Blue Devils.

Since 1924, when State pulled the Devils tail to the tune of 14-0 the Wolfpack has been able to turn the trick only six other times. One game, played in 1948, ended in a 0-0 tie. During the "lean war years" at State, the Devils ran wild and hung some very embarrassing defeats on the Statemen, but since 1946, the year of the Wolfpack's last victory, the scores have been respectable, with Duke's winning margin never over seven points. In 1949 the Blue Devils barely squeezed out a 14-13 win when a State extra point try went wide. Last year's game ended in a 7-0 Duke triumph, but the Wolfpack gave the Blue Devils a hard battle for the victory.

New Offense

From the low Duke scores since Beattie Feathers took over the reins at State it is obvious that he has been able through the years to build a defense against Duke's single wing. This year the Devils will be sporting a new type of offensive machine. The split-T, installed by Bill Murray, had proven

N. C. State's Cross Country team racked up its first win of the season over Davidson College with a convincing 17 to 46 score. The State squad finished five men in the first six places. Conference Champion Clyde Garrison, Shockley, and Smith of State, finished in a tie for first place with a time of 22 minutes 16.1 seconds.

Tom Stockton of Davidson finished in fourth place, with State's Sawyer and Leonard fifth and sixth, in that order. Two other Staters finishing were Winslow and Clements in seventh and eighth places.

Eddie Beall, a very promising runner was in fourth place and only about ten yards behind the leading trio, when he was forced to drop out with a serious side stitch. Beall was ahead of Davidson's Tom Stockton, and was only 400 yards from the finish when he was forced to drop out.

Pack Tangles With Blue Devils

The Wolfpack defensive team played a good game against the Clemson Tigers last week, while the offense, as usual, was not able to get rolling. The offensive team has not been able to score since the Catawba game. The only State score in the past three games came as the result of Alex Webster's 85 yard punt return against Wake Forest.

Saturday could be the day that the offensive team finally starts to function. If the defensive team is hitting Duke runners as hard as it hit the Clemson backs the Blue which was said to be the result of a bad case of fumble-itis.

Duke Leaders

Duke's outstanding players so far this season have been the Smith boys, Red and Charlie, and Jerry Barger, freshman T-engineer. Blaine Earon, who was a thorn in all opponents sides last year at defensive end, is used on offense this year and has looked well. Duke's pass defenders proved alert in the Tennessee loss, intercepting two out of six Vol attempts, and could give State's passing offensive a hard game.

No Offense?

Devils may develop another case of fumble-itis.

A Beattie Feathers coached team has never been beaten by all of the other three Big Four teams in one season. Could be that this is not the year for that to happen either.

Tigers Edge Pack 6-0

By MAYNARD SHIELDS

State College's scrappy Wolfpack played one of their better defensive games of the season last Saturday night at Riddick Stadium, losing to the Clemson Tigers by the score of 6-0.

Clemson's only touchdown came in the first six minutes of the third quarter when Billy Hair faded back and tossed a 23 yard pass to Glenn Smith in the end zone. Smith made a great leaping catch of the ball despite the efforts of State's Al Webster, who stayed with him all the way. Charley Radcliff's try for the extra point went wide of the goal.

The stubborn State line held Clemson's highly touted Billy Hair to a total net gain of 26 yards in 16 tries on the ground, but he completed 8 out of 14 passes for 89 yards.

The main thorn in the pack's side proved to be a hard-driving 211-pound fullback named Jim Shirley who carried the ball 83 times for 133 yards. Time and time again Shirley broke through into the State secondary, but alert play by State linebackers stopped him.

Clemson manufactured two other scoring threats in the game. Early in the first quarter, they marched 60 yards, but Shirley fumbled on the State 16 and Ray Barkouskie recovered for the pack. A few moments later Clemson reached the State 28 where Hair fumbled and Junior Pierce recovered. In the second period, a Clemson drive was stopped at the 23 when Bob Paroli knocked down Hair's fourth down pass.

Interceptions Hurt

Two pass interceptions by Clemson defenders managed to keep the Wolfpack from passing the 24-yard line. Ted Potts and Don Langston sparked the first drive. Potts passed to Langston who ran down the sidelines to the Clemson 24. Potts then dropped back again to pass, but Clemson's Pete Cook intercepted at the 13.

In the fourth period, pass interference was called against Clemson and State reached the Clemson 33, but Pete Cook intercepted Al Webster's pass to stop this threat.

State's Elmer Costa played his usual brilliant game on defense, and Vince Bagonis, Junior Pierce, and J. C. Britt also looked good on defense, breaking in several times to throw Clemson ball carriers for losses.

Potts, O'Rourke, and Al Webster ran well for State, but the stubborn Clemson line would yield nothing. Webster did some brilliant kicking, and several kicks went far over the heads of the Clemson safety men.

Could It Be The Driver?

VIEWS AND PRELIMINARIES

I was happy to see the stands dotted heavily with soldiers during the Clemson game and during the Junior Varsity game with Fort Bragg. But as is so often the case the actions of a few have placed all of the visiting service men in a bad light. While the Jay Vee game was in progress there was more action in the stands than there was on the field. The local policemen on duty were kept quite busy dragging brawlers out of the stadium. At the Clemson game there was one young gentleman from the Armed Forces gayly throwing coke bottles into the crowd. Fortunately he was taken away before he killed someone.

I don't know what could be done to prevent such actions as these, but it is a serious matter. Perhaps if care were taken to remove the jugs from the boys entering the stadium the difficulties would be eliminated somewhat, for it seems that spirits are a prerequisite for these foolish antics.

The less said about last week's predictions the better. The averages are down so low that I am ashamed to print them. But we are determined to bring them up to a respectable point so here goes nothing.

Baptist Students Meet

The Baptist Student Union began its series of discussions for the fall term on October 10. The topic was "Our Unknown Neighbor." Mr. Frank Parker, a statistician in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who spent several months in El Salvador on a Governmental agricultural mission led the discussion.

On Wednesday, October 17, Dr. Ralph McLean, who is Head of Department of Religion at Meredith College will lead the discussion on the topic "What is a Vocation."

Another discussion will be held Wednesday, October 24. Dr. Fred West, pastor of Hillyer Memorial Christian Church, will lead this discussion on the topic "How to be Christian in Your Vocation."

These discussions will be held at 6:00 p.m. in Room A of the College Cafeteria. Anyone interested in attending may obtain a 60 cent ticket for his supper from the BSU Council members or may contact the BSU office in the right balcony of Pullen Hall.

Frat Sees Good Year

Alpha Beta chapter of Gamma Sigma Epsilon, national honorary chemical fraternity is preparing for a program of broadened activity during the coming year. In the past the chapter has been handicapped by a very small membership, but this year the membership is the largest in many years. The officers of the chapter feel that with this growth in number, there should also be a growth in the activities of the organization.

Gamma Sigma Epsilon was founded in 1919 at Davidson College, Davidson, N. C. and is now represented by sixteen chapters in all parts of the United States. Alpha Beta is the second oldest chapter of the fraternity.

Officers for the year are: Marion E. Lattimore, Grand Alchemist; Ernest W. Dobson, Recorder; Joe Belche, visor; and Charles Ribelin, Keeper of the Cult. Dr. W. A.
