Foushee And Hall Run For Editorship

Bill Foushee

Bill Foushee, a candidate for Editor of the Agromeck, this week released his platform. "As a member of the Agromeck staff for the past three years, serving both on the editorial staff and the business staff, I feel I am equally aware of the problems and difficulties that will arise, and am sure that I have gained enough experience to cope with these problems. I feel that the editor of any publication will be better qualified if he is aware of the problems from both viewpoints.

In view of the fact that all the student activities and affairs are to be summed up in one publication, I feel that the following should be incorporated into the Agromeck. (1) Larger Senior pictures. (2) A section for each individual dormitory in the I.D.C. (3) Have a better cross section of the student activities outside of organized activities.

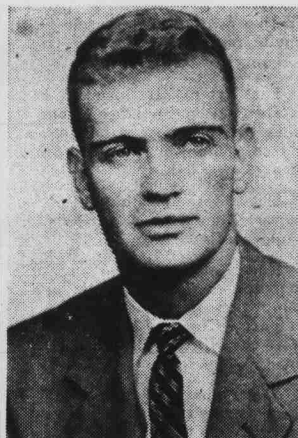

Although I have listed the most important points I believe need improving, I think the students realize that without student cooperation on the Agromeck, the publication is valueless.

Junior and Seniors

L. C. Chiles, Josten representative, will be on campus May 2 and 3 all day to sell graduation invitations and to make adjustments for juniors having trouble with their class rings. Mr. Chiles will be in the ground floor lobby of the College Union after 9:00 a.m. The invitations will cost 6½¢ each.

Parking Situation

In an effort to present the pressing parking situation to students in a readable manner and at the same time give as much space as possible to the elections, THE TECHNICIAN was forced to drop several of its regular features this week. The features will be picked up next week and the paper will be laid out in the usual manner. The staff regrets that it cannot print all of the copy but due to a limited budget the material which was considered a service to students was given priority. The parking problem presentation is by News Editor, Dick Dixon.

Jack Hall

"The success and shortcoming of a yearbook is the sole responsibility of the editor, and because of this you should carefully consider the candidates before selecting one," Jack Hall, Agromeck Editor aspirant, said in a statement to the Technician Tuesday.

"Furthermore, with experience on the annual I am able to appreciate the responsibility which will be on my shoulders if I am elected."

"Being a dorm man as well as a fraternity man I know both sides of campus life. Therefore I feel that I am qualified to be editor of next year's bigger and better annual."

Hall is secretary-treasurer of Kappa Tau Beta, I.F.C. representative from Sigma Nu, Thompkins Textile Council representative, and a member of Phi Psi textile fraternity.

Bostian Gives Facts On New SSS Policy

FROM COMMISSION TO SALARY

Chancellor Bostian released the new policies on the Student Supply Stores to The Technician in an exclusive interview Tuesday.

During the interview the State College Chancellor said that the contract with L. L. Ivey, manager of the stores, had not been renewed but, instead, Ivey had been hired on a straight salary of $12,000 per year.

In the past the manager received a salary of $9,600 per annum plus 20 per cent of the store's profits.

At the present time ten other persons on the college staff are paid more than $12,000 yearly.

While working under the previous contract the stores manager had not been included in any college retirement plan. However, under terms of the new setup a retirement plan similar to that provided for other staff members has been granted to Ivey.

A special committee has been working on the new arrangement since last December, Chancellor Bostian said.

Headed by C. A. Dillon, local business man and State College alumnus, the committee included Mose Kiser, J. J. Stewart, W. H. Pierce, and L. L. Ray.

It was the opinion of the committee that Ivey be commended for the efficient method of operation that had been employed in operating the stores and for the way costs have been held down. The group also expressed the unanimous opinion that Ivey should be retained as manager of the Student Supply Stores at State College.

Also working on the problem was a Trustee committee composed of two alumni members from State College, Woman's College, and Carolina, respectively, and the committee chairman, H. P. Taylor, an alumnus of Wake Forest College.

Members of this group were, in addition to Chairman Taylor, B. A. Maynard, Knox Massey, Mrs. Nancy Copeland, Mrs. May Tomlinson, G. N. Noble, and Vernon James.

In commenting on the recommendations of the Student Government, Dr. Bostian said he was approving the second and third suggestions but that he was deferring action on the first recommendation because the management claimed little profit on that part of the sales, and because at the present time

S. G. Intends To Boost School Spirit; Many Changes Will Take Place Here

April 4

Cheerleaders will be chosen through tryouts from now on if SG resolution 15-1 passes its second reading.

S. G. resolution 15-1 is a proposed addition to the by-laws and it is intended to be a boost to the system for promoting school spirit. The bill passed its first reading in the SG meeting April 4.

A report on "free" elections, a deadline on turning in cuts, and a recommendation that State join a national association of students was other business on the agenda.

The addition to the by-laws provides for an "Operation Spirit" Committee which will be an administrative committee. The chairman of the committee will be appointed by the president of SG.

An investigation of the possibility of "free" elections had been made reported Sen. John Lane. A

EDITORIAL COMMENT:

"Railroading"

Frequently organizations on the State College campus become sluggish because of poor leadership. Leaders fail to take initiative and refer petty details to the whole organization which should be referred to a committee or looked after entirely by the executive committee. At the other extreme is an organization controlled by the officers to such an extent that its members do not have the opportunity to voice an opinion or help decide democratically on important issues. What is commonly referred to as a "railroad" is one of the disgraces of many organizations.

A "railroad" as described here means simply a measure being pushed through without ample discussion. The members who are affected aren't given a chance to say no or the question is moved so quickly that no one knows just what is happening. Several reasons can be given as to why measures are moved on so quickly. One could easily be that of pressing time. Frequently this just covers up the fact that the measure could have been looked at more closely had a meeting been called but such a meeting wouldn't serve the purpose of those presiding or maybe the meeting was postponed so long that it soon became too late to do anything.

Last week a "railroad" very effectively ground to a halt in front of the College Union Building. Many seniors will be surprised to learn that the class of 1955 has left a number of Japanese cherry trees to the college and that these trees have already been planted in front of the CU. The class has not had a meeting this year. Wasn't selecting the class gift to the college important enough to warrant attention by the whole class? Planning graduation and leaving a gift to the college is about the only business that does need the attention of the class.

The cherry trees are a very nice gift and are probably worth the near $100 spent for them and probably had a class meeting been held no better suggestion would have been made. No chance was given for any open discussion, however. Had one of the class officers not boasted two months ago that the Japanese cherry trees would be "railroaded" through a class meeting the slash would not have been so deep. But, this "railroad" later ignored the meeting and whistled to its merry halt without this officer knowing how far the project had gone.

The blame most likely lies in the fact that the top official didn't realize how much a gift means to the class. The lesson though can be carried to other organizations. Too many times the outcome of issues are completely planned prior to meetings. More than one organization has lost the confidence of its members this way.

For A Better NCS

Yesterdays primary left only two men running for any one office. Some of the candidates were darn good men for the job but those left in the race are the choice of the student body. That is, the choice of the segment of the student body. Why didn't a bigger percentage vote? The hundreds who didn't vote show a definite lack of interest in State College. These men fail to realize how much the election results will affect them.

There are a number of changes that students have benefitted from this year and the men elected last spring played a big part in getting these projects done. Take for instance the Student Government Legislature.

It has been a progressive body this year and has accomplished more than some of those in the past. Yet, there are a few legislators who are open to criticism for poor attendance and representation.

The question is, "What kind of men are you going to elect this year?" Are you going to ignore the final election next week and rely on someone else to make a decision for you or will you be seen at the polls? If you don't follow up yesterday's primary and vote Wednesday then you have no right to gripe about how State College's student organizations are run. What is more you have no right to expect to receive any benefits whatsoever from the services of the men who are elected.

Misunderstood?

No matter how carefully you try to write or say something, chances are that someone will misunderstand you. Why? Maybe it's just being human. At any rate, several people got the wrong impression from last week's editorial "Budget Cuts—". Several people thought that it was a complete reversal from the stand taken on research in a previous editorial. There is, however, no conflict between the editorials.

In a earlier editorial, the TECHNICIAN was concerned with research becoming such a big thing at State College that it might crowd students out or lower the standard of instruction dangerously. Last week's editorial was concerned with the dropping of the experimental industrial program which would permit a program similar to the agriculture experiment station work. This program would not interfere with student work. It could possibly be carried on away from the campus but it would have its own staff.

The over-emphasis of research at any college is a danger but to fail to encourage industry to develop in a state that needs industry is failing to develop a rich potential.

"Ag School Day"

To Be Held April 30

A new and unique event, Ag School Day, sponsored by students in Agriculture at State promises to attract high school students from all parts of North Carolina. Ag School Day is designed to present a picture of the varied activities in agriculture in which students are involved, as well as to prove a highly interesting and entertaining program. The event will be held April 30, beginning at 9:00 a.m. at the State Fair grounds with the main attractions centered in the distinctive new Coliseum.

Similar events at other land grant colleges have proven a great success. The idea for the Ag School Day at State was originated and initially promoted by the students themselves. Eugene Carrol, chairman of Ag School Day will begin the program by introducing Dr. D. W. Colvard, dean of the School of Agriculture at State who will give the welcoming address. This will be followed by a livestock show, the finals of a tractor driving contest, a poultry calling demonstration, and a hog calling contest. The final touch will be put on the affair by a milkmaid contest. Applicants for this event are girl friends, entered by college students.

First, second, and third place winners in the livestock contest and first place winners in all other contests will be awarded valuable prizes.

There will be booths which will tell something of the purposes of the department and the opportunities that are available. There will be guided tours and refreshments.

Anyone interested in agriculture is invited. High School students are particularly urged to attend Ag School Day.

Any student in the college is eligible to take part. If you are interested in playing any of the above sports, or if you know a good player, see Mr. Miller at the gymnasium. A short but very important meeting will be held at the gym Wed. Apr. 27 at 7:00. Every student talk to other students and make this meeting a success. Students who took part last year, and students making good this year in these sports should form a nucleus, also other students who perhaps have not taken part so far in the intramurals.

Campus Traffic No. 1: Parking Problem

ALLOTMENT OF PARKING AREAS—One of the chief points of misunderstanding among State College students is allotment of parking areas to staff and student permit holders. The adjacent parking lots shown above are located behind Nelson Building and next to the Ag Engineering building. The paved and unfilled lot in the background is reserved for automobiles bearing staff permits, whereas, the crowded and dusty parking area in the foreground is set aside for vehicles carrying student permits. (Staff photo by Wall)

Progress Being Made In Handling Traffic Problems On Campus

Parking isn't at a standstill at State College.

Despite the fact that automobile parking continues to be the major traffic problem on the campus of North Carolina State College, progress is being made in finding space enough to hold all cars needed about the school.

The college's student-faculty traffic committee is the driving force behind all the activity going toward seeking the solution of how to put two vehicles in a single parking slot. More amazing than the task it has cut out for itself is the fact that the committee is making real progress.

As with every other major college and university in the United States, the automobile has finally caught up with State College.

It is primarily because of lack of planning by the college in years long past that today's State College staff and student automobile operators are finding it more and more difficult to enjoy the full use for which they feel their vehicles were intended. On the other hand, the automobile's allowance of annoyance long ago surpassed the limit of toleration which the halls of learning would like to see respected.

In few words, the main purpose of the college's traffic committee is to determine the point where the operation of automobiles around the campus ceases to be a service and commences to be a burden.

Few people realize it but the traffic situation, as student committeeman John Combs describes the problem at State College, is comparable with that of a town the size of Smithfield, North Carolina, which has a population of approximately 7,500 people.

According to Raleigh police chief Tom Davis, a town this size would ordinarily employ about 14 police officers who would spend 40 per cent of their time solely on traffic problems similar to those arising on the State College campus. Yet State College employs the services of one man, security officer James A. Burnette, to perform this activity in addition to his other duties.

The nature of State College's parking problem makes solution more difficult than parking itself. Some of the less apparent problems the campus traffic committee faces constantly are finding funds to finance construction and maintenance of parking areas; effecting equitable enforcement of existing traffic rules and regulations; obtaining suitable areas for parking facilities; and last but not least, finding an answer to the problem of handling the sudden influx of off-campus vehicles brought about by the numerous conferences, short courses, and visiting groups.

Financing is a problem simply because the North Carolina legislature does not provide funds for traffic control on the campuses of its public institutions. Thus, any funds expended to improve student parking areas must come from other appropriations or sources.

Equitable enforcement is rapidly being eliminated as a problem for the traffic committee, although there is still work to be done in this field. One point of enforcement which Bill Kincaid, chairman of the student appeals committee, is seeking to equalize is that of making appeals. Under present regulations staff permit holders may appeal first in writing to a faculty-staff sub committee and then make a second appeal to the full faculty committee. Student ticket-holders, however, may appeal only to the single student appeals group. Second appeals may be made again to this same group only if additional evidence is to be offered in support of the appeal.

Finding additional areas for vehicle parking is much more difficult for the traffic committee than it appears. What few persons know is that only the building and grounds committee has authority to set aside or designate any given area of the campus for parking or any other purpose. Therefore, before new parking lots can be established on the campus, the college committee on buildings and grounds must decide whether campus beauty or driver's convenience comes first.

Most baffling of all problems facing the college traffic group is how to handle the flood of automobiles brought to the campus from time to time by "visiting firemen." Because State College is a public institution, its facilities, services, and activities are always available to all citizens of the Tarheel state. With this thought prevailing visitors will always be welcomed to the campus and "everything possible will be done to make their stay a pleasant one," as Chancellor Bostian has frequently stated.

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of articles, concerning traffic conditions and problems at State College, which will appear in the Technician for the next several issues.)

basic policy will be established for all organizations instead of specific regulations. Lane pointed out that it was impossible to change this years elections but that the basic policy plan would probably be instituted next year.

A resolution presented by Sen. Jim Nolan that State join the United States National Students Association passed unanimously.

It was brought to the attention of the Legislature by Sen. Charles Martin that numerous complaints had been received from students to the effect that cuts are being turned in sometimes as much as six weeks after the date of the cut.

Martin's resolution would set a deadline of one week following the date of the absence; otherwise it cannot go on record.

Football and basketball schedules take most Saturday dates during the Fall and Winter months. These athletic schedules have been sent all organizations to help them in their planning. Should an organization fail to receive a space and date reservation application, one may be picked up at the College Union Office from Mrs. Neill Briggs, reservationist; Jerry Erdahl, coordinator of social cultural events or Carolyn Jessup, social director, any of which would be pleased, to help an organization arrange for an open date. Off-campus events, Coliseum dances as well as other social-cultural events not held in the College Union must be cleared before space may be applied for according to the Social Functions Committee.

auditors are making a study of profits.

Should they find a substantial profit, Chancellor Bostian said he would like to see the Student Government consider its first recommendation again.

The three suggestions submitted by Student Government were as follows:

- 1. That all education essentials merchandised by Student Supply Stores be put on a cost plus operation expense basis.
2. That 15 per cent of the profits be allotted to Student Government for betterment of student campus facilities.
3. That the remaining profits be divided 60 per cent for athletic scholarships and 40 per cent for grant-in-aid scholarships.

In closing the interview Dr. Bostian said, "I think we are very fortunate to have the services of Mr. Ivey during the next eight or ten years when we are going to build a new supply store and provide better service and facilities to the students. Mr. Ivey is recognized as probably the very best manager of student supply stores in the United States and it is a great relief to me to know we have a man of proven ability to manage the enterprise."

Keith Verble, a veteran with four years service in the Air Force, has announced his candidacy for a rising senior position on the Judicial Board. Verble is married and is a native of Kannapolis, N. C. This is his second year at State College. He is a former student of the University of Maryland Extension Division and Long Beach City College of California. Verble is secretary of the IAS, a member of the Veterans Association, Pi Tau Sigma and Tau Beta Pi.

In a release Verble said, "This is my first attempt to become a part of Student Government on a campus wide basis. If elected I shall endeavor to serve in the best interests of the student body as a whole."

President of I.F.C. Candidate H. Pickett Present Secretary

Henry Pickett, rising senior in mechanical engineering, has been announced as a candidate for President of the Inter-Fraternity Council.

He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honorary fraternity, the ASME, and the Arnold Air Society. He is also a member of Sigma Pi Fraternity, and has served in the capacities of rush chairman, athletic director, pledgemaster, and secretary.

He is now Secretary of the IFC, and served on the Greek Week Committee and other projects.

Among his ideas for next year, he has proposed to widen the nominations for President to four men instead of two to cover a bigger cross-section of fraternities and to stimulate interest in the fraternity elections. He is in favor of the IFC putting on such community projects as would be of service to the community and tend to better the community relations. He also feels that sponsoring big name bands in concerts as well as dances will do much to enhance the prestige as well as the treasury of the IFC.

Hawkins Running For Athletic Coun.

Spec Hawkins, sports editor of the Technician and assistant athletic publicity director for the college, has come out as a candidate for the junior seat on the State Athletic Council.

Hawkins is a rising junior in Industrial Recreation and since his entrance at State has worked in several ways with the college's athletic program and is familiar with the functions of the department. He is a member of Sigma Nu social fraternity and is a native of Salisbury, N. C.

In announcing his candidacy Hawkins said, "Through the experience that I have gained by working with the athletic program here at State, I feel that I can competently carry out the duties of this office."

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young manager handles finances for building of $5,000,000 plant

In the next ten years, the demand for General Electric industrial heating equipment will double. To meet this demand, a giant new plant (model at right) is being built at Shelbyville, Indiana.

The plant will cost $5,000,000, and the man responsible for handling finances for the entire job is 32-year-old R. E. Fetter.

Fetter's job is important, responsible

Dick Fetter's work as Financial Manager of the Department began long before General Electric started building the plant. He and his group first had to estimate probable operating costs and predict whether the plant would be profitable.

Now, during construction, Fetter's chief concern is keeping track of all the expenses on this multimillion-dollar project. When the plant is completed, he will set up a complete financial section and manage everything from tax, cost, and general accounting to payrolls, budgets and measurements, and internal auditing.

25,000 college graduates at General Electric

This is a big job. Fetter was readied for it in a careful step-by-step program of development. Like Fetter, each of the 25,000 college-graduate employees is given the chance to grow, to find the work he does best, and to realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: When young, fresh minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the company, and the country.

DICK FETTER joined G.E. in 1947 after receiving a B.S. from Bucknell University, and serving 32 months in the Air Corps. At G.E. he completed the Business Training Course, class of '49.

Judicial Nominee Joseph L. Plum

Joseph L. Plum, nuclear engineering senior and a newcomer to campus politics, announced his candidacy Monday for senior member of the Student Judicial Board with an extensive five-plank platform.

An Army veteran and a former highway patrolman, Plum pledged his efforts in (1) having a study made to determine how the present honor system may be improved; (2) having the present closed trial system replaced by open hearing; (3) requiring more study by board members before a verdict of guilty can be imposed; (4) obtaining power for the board would give it power to impose reformatory penalties rather than solely punishment; and (5) making decisions based upon facts instead of personalities.

L. Binder, Candidate For IFC Secretary

Former Technician sports editor Leonard Binder announced his candidacy for the office of Interfraternity Council secretary in a prepared statement released early this week.

Standing on his past record and experience as staff member of both The Technician and the Agro-mech, Binder said, "this past year I served as IFC representative as well as president of Sigma Alpha Mu. In the course of my junior year I filled the post of editor for the Army ROTC brochure. I sincerely feel this varied experience gives me the necessary background and undertaking to serve the Interfraternity Council best."

Cash Prize Winner

Roy F. Brissenden, engineering student from Winston-Salem and Vetsville resident, was named winner of $50 cash and $300 credit in the "Name the New Development" contest held last month by a local real estate developing firm.

Brissenden's entry, "College Gardens," was considered most appropriate for the new 75-acre housing area which is being developed as an exclusive neighborhood for persons affiliated with State College.
