REGIMENTAL PARADE FOR THE PRESIDENT

Captain Whitener's Company Stands Highest, While Battalion Honors Go to Major Anderson's Outfit

Last Monday was the day set apart for the annual review of the R. O. T. C. Regiment by the President of the College. Although the weather was very uncomfortably cold, the parade was the best that has been staged here this year. The companies formed on Riddick Field, and the band was brought into its usual place. Following the band came the companies past the reviewing stand, where the few spectators who were brave enough to withstand the cold, saw them pass in perfect line, with much of the precision of seasoned soldiers. Behind the regular companies came a platoon of Senior students, without arms, led by Lieutenant Duncan.

Immediately after the parade, the companies were drawn up in the form of a square, from the center of which they were addressed by President Riddick. From his position on the reviewing stand Dr. Riddick briefly spoke to the students, complimenting them on the excellent character of the parade. "I am no militarist," said Dr. Riddick, "but I feel that in times of peace some preparation should be

CHAMPIONSHIP CROSS COUNTRY RUN IS WON BY N. C. STATE

By winning second, third and fourth places, in the meet held at Chapel Hill, State College won the title of All-State Champions. Ransom of Carolina was the first man to breast the tape, closely followed by Corkill, Crockford and Latham of State. Sesler of Davidson finished fifth.

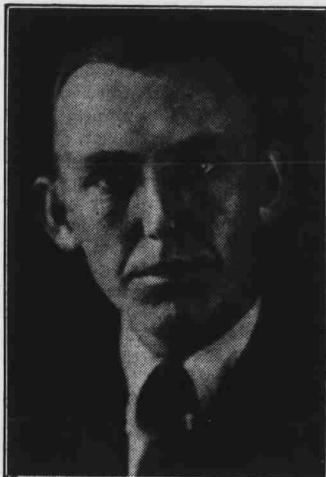

The 2.9 mile distance was run in the creditable time of 15 minutes and 42 seconds, which is good time considering the muddiness of the course.

Davidson finished third and Trinity fourth. The poor showing of the Methodists can be accounted for, since their best men were at Atlanta competing in a road race, only second-stringers entering the State meet.

The meet was the first of its kind held in recent years, and was a decided success.

AG. CLUB CLOSSES A SUCCESSFUL TERM

An Ideal Spirit of Co-operation Between Officers and Members; Interesting Program

The Agricultural Club of State College, under the leadership of W. R. Anderson, as president, and C. D. Killian, as secretary, is about to close the most successful term in its history. There has been an ideal spirit of co-operation between officers and members. The programs have been both interesting and beneficial throughout the semester. Those of us who took part in and listened to them have been filled with enthusiasm to do our bit in making North Carolina a greater State.

During the fall we have had several lectures by men like Dr. Taylor, Mr. Hudson, and Professor Journey. They have given us visions of the future, and the possibilities of service we may render to our fellow-men, if we prepared ourselves to meet requirements of an all-round college man. The future of State College as to what it ought to be, and what it ought to mean to the State, depends on its students.

The second annual Students' Fair was pushed to the front by loyal members of the Club. Many people, who live in Raleigh, have admitted that the parade was the best that ever went through the city. This, at least, goes to show how the people of Raleigh are waking up in realizing what the boys at State College can do. We hope to surprise them again next year with a greater display of things we learn by scientific study and practical applications. If we can get the loyal support of the people of Raleigh ours can easily be the greatest College in the State.

The Club had its last meeting before Christmas, on Tuesday night, December 5. An entire new set of officers were elected for the spring term as follows:

- H. N. Kelly, president.
- J. A. Smithwick, vice-president.
- J. M. McGougan, secretary.
- L. A. Whitford, assistant secretary.
- H. L. Seagrove, treasurer.
- C. W. Tilson, assistant treasurer.
- C. H. Warren, critic.
- E. F. Strupe, press reporter.
- F. B. Monroe, corresponding secretary.

In President Anderson's final address he thanked the Club and expressed his appreciation for the unanimous support the officers and members had given him. This, no doubt, has been the greatest term, as indicated by an average attendance of one hundred members. The twenty-two floats and six shows put on in the fair was the result of team-work. Each man put on the program has been given a subject of the nature he was capable of discussing. Each of

EDITORS AND MANAGERS HELP WOMAN'S CLUB

Assist Greatly in Removing Left-Overs After Faculty Banquet;
Ready to Serve in Any Way

The editors and business managers of the Agromeck and Technician displayed their much-vaunted readiness to serve every branch of College activities the other night, just after the Faculty Banquet, when they appeared with an eager and wistful expression on their faces, and timidly asked if there was not something that they could do to assist the ladies in the removal of the left-over portions of the feast. One glance at the hungry countenances told the members of the Woman's Club that the boys were really in earnest, and on investigation it was found that there were just four plates whose contents were unused. These particular plates had been causing considerable debating as to what would be the proper method of disposition, but on the appearance of the publishers, the question was solved very quickly. The plates were brought forward, and by the time their companions had gone through the soap and water process, they were ready to follow. The men of the respective staffs are glad of having had the opportunity of thus assisting the Woman's Club, and it is hoped that the opportunity will present itself again in the near future.

A PLEA FOR BETTER METHODS OF STUDY AT STATE COLLEGE

In looking over the list of student's names posted in Holladay Hall, I notice that there are a number who have "checked out." Now I have no reason to know just the reason for these students leaving, but I dare say that a great per cent of them have gone because they have failed in some of their work in the classroom. Possibly, there are some who cannot possibly keep up with their classes, but the ones who are not able to keep up with their classes would be few and far between if they really knew the art of studying and concentration. Most students do not know how to concentrate, even the best of us fail at times. Mr. Barker, in his talk, December 6, gave some very helpful suggestions, that if carried out, would reduce the number leaving College to the minimum. He showed very vividly how the average students in colleg studies; with his mind on everything except his work. He then contrasted this Cheer up! Christmas is coming.

Faculty motto: They shall not pass!

About the only surd that a freshman can work is absurd.

No, no one is sick. It is only the Glee Club practicing.

There is a member of the Sophomore Class who seems to be a home Brewer.

Have any of you noticed how Yankee-like Irving Clay can say Noo Yawk?

The Ag. men say that a bee can sting only once. Gosh! Isn't that enough?

Raleigh is to have still another new hotel. Seems as though it is an epidemic.

These mufflers the tea-hounds wear would make excellent shoe-shining cloths, don't you think?

The holiday moonshiners will probably be busy, looking out for our spiritual good.

Those high school boys, who were here last week, were not members of a newly-instituted sub-freshman class, as one of the fellows thought.

They have invented a way to show moving pictures without dimming the lights. Doggone it, we knew somebody would ruin everything!

A cannibal is not so bad after all, says an exchange. They only eat their enemies, while there are plenty of modern young men who live on their friends.

Quite an improvement was shown in the matter of giving reviews and inspections last Monday, when the State College unit of R. O. T. C. gave its annual parade before President Riddick. The former reviews were more or less of a failure, because of the inexperience of the new men. However, the excellence of the performance last Monday was so great that the minor faults of the others were forgotten. State College may well be proud of the excellent military unit she has, and even the national Government has in this regiment the makings of leaders in case of future trouble with other nations.

State College has had the honor during the past few days of having as its guests the farm and home demonstration agents from all over the State, who are here attending their annual conference. A great many of the men are alumni of State, some of them of the very last few years, as is evidenced by the fact that among the faces we find many that the older men knew as students here. The ladies, too, although not quite so well known, are just as welcome as they can be. Come again, folks.

The track season was given quite a boost Saturday when the cross-country championship went to State College by a substantial margin. Although the first place went to a Carolina man, State was able to bunch her men for the next four places, and thus was enabled to get the coveted championship. Captain Corkill led the men from State, with second place. Since he has been here, Captain Corkill has worked faithfully for raising the standards of track achievements here, and this year, even in the absence of "Long Distance" Blakeney, last year's captain, we expect a very favorable season. Coach Taylor made a very creditable team last year despite the many handicaps that were offered, and this year, as his second, should be the climax of his works in that capacity.

HONOR

To the Freshman Class:

The reason this article was written and published is that some of the students at State have made conclusions that have been drawn too quickly, and without thought, pertaining to the Freshman Class and the Honor System here.

Honor is one of the greatest things that a man can weave into his character, and honor alone can cause an excellent character. In high school, "riding" or cheating was sometimes considered as an achievement, not so much because the high school students were lacking in honor as because they never had an open chance to show their honor, and never considered the seriousness of cheating.

Honor, combined with pride, made the South famous in its Colonial days, and today honor systems are in use in all the best colleges in America. When we say that we have an honor system, we mean that we will fail on an examination or quiz before we will accept any aid whatsoever; it takes honor to do that, but we have an honor system here, and we must live up to all that it means. In this system is included giving as well as receiving aid.

The Student Government at this College forbids the violation of the Honor System, and the penalty for cheating is immediate expulsion. Who could bear the name of a man who had been discharged from College because of dishonor? Gentlemen of the Freshman Class, I know that you believe in Student Government. I also know that the class has honor and that it will live up to the Honor System at N. C. State College.

Also remember that after Christmas a member of the class will be elected to the Council, and in picking your man, decide intelligently and with seriousness.

EDWARD C. YORK, President.

method with that where the student disregards all the distractions that may surround him, and applies himself to his books, whether he wants to do it or not. This latter method, if carried out from now till the last of May, will train any boy to do the best work possible; it will give him courage, self-confidence, self-mastery, and what is of more immediate importance, will give him a mastery of the subject at hand. If the suggestions of Mr. Barker were carried out by every student at State College, it would soon become a well known fact that State College students are "stickers," and not slackers, a place where men leave after graduation to really make a success in after life.

He has spent one summer in signing up farmers for co-operative marketing, and one summer in making a survey and report on the tenancy problem. These former experiences have fitted him for this work, and especially that of directing the fair.

The newly-elected president, H. N. Kelly, made a few remarks as to what he hoped the Club would accomplish in the spring term. He said that he felt flattered to have such an honor thrust upon him, however he expressed his thanks for the honor and requested the support of every member to do a great work in the future.

After the address, the companies were again brought into their former formation, and various close-order movements executed, along with some of the movements of the manual of arms. From the excellence of these movements, Company F was declared the winner, while the battalion honor went to the third battalion. The leader of the victorious company was Captain J. S. Whitener, of Hickory, and the victorious major was W. R. Anderson, whose captains were: R. W. Underwood, Durham; Company G; E. W. Harris, Seaboard, Company H; J. L. Shuping, Morganton, Company I. The inspectors of the winning companies were: Lieut.-Col. J. W. Harrelson, Capt. George C. Cox, and Capt. N. L. Simmonds.

THE STATE COLLEGE
AGRICULTURAL FAIR WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Every Phase of Farm Life Represented; Fun and Entertainment of Many and Varied Kinds

All Agricultural students at State College declared a holiday November 24, to stage the best and biggest event of its kind ever attempted in the South. Combining fun and entertainment with educational features, the fair was staged on a most favorable day, with a large crowd in attendance, making the event one to be long remembered by all who saw it. It started with a parade, the line of march being down Hillsboro Street from the College, to Salisbury Street, to Edenton, around Meredith, then down Person to Cabarrus, up Fayetteville and back again to State College. Headed by "Red" Kearns' famous Haywood Band, and M. L. Tatum, as chief marshal, the floats, 25 in number, of every hue and color of the rainbow, and extending for half a mile in length, presented a great variety of fun and entertainment to the spectators, of which there were thousands on the streets. Every phase of farm life, from the highest to the lowest was represented on the different floats, and every conceivable way that could be devised to give fun and entertainment were included. They were mounted on all kinds of conveyances, from ox carts and farm wagons to enormous trucks and tractors. Clowns there were in abundance to add laughter to the merriment. There were clowns dressed as darkies, circus clowns, and one in particular showed very forcefully the effects of the Boll Weevil. Among the outstanding floats in the parade were those by the Animal Husbandry Department, showing the production of one of the College cows in one year, the death sentence of the scrub bull. One by the Agricultural Engineering Department showed the clean and the dirty unsanitary way of life on the farm. One by the Vocational Education Department had an enormous figure of Uncle Sam pointing with pride to the fact that he was improving his farming, by teaching High School Agriculture. One by the Poultry Department showed eggs as the ideal human food. Among the clown floats were the Skunk Creek Agricultural High School and The Faculty Float. W. J. Bryan and the Missing Link were in evidence all along the parade.

Two reels of moving pictures were made of the parade, to be shown over the State, to advertise State College and its activities.

After the parade, at 1 p. m., the attention of the crowd was turned to the excellent exhibits, the midway, and the judging contests. The exhibits, the products of the boys themselves and from their homes, were a close rival to the best seen at the State Fair and would have done credit to any fair. They were arranged very artistically in Patterson Hall. They consisted of grain, hay and horticulture crops, wheat, rye, oats, corn of all kinds, tobacco, apples, garden vegetables, apiary exhibits, and legume seed. This department of the fair was under the direction of Mr. J. W. Hodges, the secretary of the fair. Mr. Hodges deserves special credit, for it was largely due to his and his associates' efforts that so many excellent prizes were obtained for the fair.

In the exhibit hall the attention of the more serious minded turned to the various contests in judging. These contests were for the best corn judge, farm crops, poultry, livestock, and horticulture. Then there was the contest of turning a tractor in the smallest space, and lining a tractor in a belt. There were handsome prizes offered in all the contests.

On the midway, which extended from the Animal Husbandry Building to Patterson Hall, there were attractions of every kind, ranging from the truly educative and entertaining to the ridiculous.

There were six big shows besides the numerous smaller ones. They rivaled in their performance the best at the State Fair. Among the outstanding ones were the United Biological Shows, with Darwin, the Missing Link, and W. J. Bryan, in contrast, the Dixie Minstrel show, the Crazy House, and the Mayer Intelligence Test. Among the other smaller side shows were the tight-rope walker, the snake charmer, the Siamese twins, and the Fattest Lady in the world. Hot and cold drinks there were in abundance, to satisfy the thirst of the crowds. At night the midway was brilliantly lighted and presented a real circus-like appearance, with fireworks as an added attraction. Hundreds visited the midway in the course of the day and all seemed well pleased with the attractions.

The success of the fair was due to the absolute co-operation of all Agricultural students, and the kind co-operation of the faculty in giving suggestions and advice. The actual work of the fair was done altogether by the students themselves. The business men of Raleigh helped in donating prizes, over $700 in prizes being given by them.

The State College Fair is the result of a decision of the Ag. students of several years ago, when they struck to attend a corn shucking, and called the day Agricultural Day; later it was changed into Corn Show Day. This was continued for several years, the three years ago, under the leadership of Dr. C. C. Taylor, of the Economics Department, they decided to put on the first fair last year, which was a great success. This year the fair was many times bigger than last year, and was attended by much larger crowds.

To State College supporters the Ag. Fair is getting to be one of the drawing cards of the year. It is certainly a great advertising scheme, and shows State College as it really is to the State. It is the intention of the students to make State College mean to the city of Raleigh just what Georgia Tech means to Atlanta. They believe the way to do this is to constantly bring before their very eyes the workings of the College.

This year the fair was put on a sound financial footing by the students themselves, by forming a corporation, and selling stock at five dollars a share and selling $250 dollars worth. This was more than sufficient to care for current expenses, which consisted in advertising and putting on side shows. The midway more than paid the money back. The success of the fair from now on is assured.

The judges for the parade and midway were as follows: John A. Park, of the Raleigh Times; E. A. Walborn, of the State Fair, and P. T. Hines, of

Blazing Trails for Progress

Curiosity may have killed the well-known cat, but it has been underneath most of the hard-won developments that lastingly benefit mankind. Once in a great while, perhaps, accident has been the spark that has lighted the torch of achievement; but much more frequently—always, nearly—accomplishment, especially in the field of science and invention, has grown out of the insatiable curiosity that seems to be the heritage of us all. Mankind wants to know—and is slowly finding out. Curiosity, the complement of imagination, knows no appeasement.

This is, however, no essay on the vague subject of idle curiosity. There is a vast difference between that and the organized, untiring, well-planned activity which, as an integral part of Westinghouse organization, searches continually for the answers to problems which intelligent speculation sets up. This, if you please, is curiosity in its highest and most intensified form; and it is a fundamental thing in the Westinghouse operations.

Research, as we know it, is the guiding hand upon the purely creative activities of business. Constantly it brings to light new aspects of known laws, new visions of laws yet to be uncovered. But the search for these is not haphazard nor whimsical; it is organized and planned as carefully and thoroughly as any other business activity. Whether chemical, electrical, or physical, it is engineering; and it follows engineering methods and tradition.

Many great engineers have been wholly at a loss in this specialized activity. For research, in a sense, reverses the usual order. Its endeavor is to discover unknown laws in the known facts—a thing which is quite at variance with ordinary engineering practice. Yet there is a fine type of engineering mind which finds its great opportunity in this kind of work. And to that type of mind, and that type of man, research beckons with an unmistakable hand. It is engineering pioneering, it blazes trails for progress, to new triumphs, in a wilderness into whose outskirts man has scarcely penetrated.

"MAT AND MIT CLUB" ORGANIZED AT STATE

Boxers and Wrestlers Get Together and Plan for a New Form of Athletics

Those who were interested enough to attend the meeting of the boxing and wrestling club held last week, decided to organize a club to forward the movement here at State College. The organization was named, "The Mat and Mitt Club," and the following officers elected:

President—D. T. Memory.

Secretary—L. D. Bell.

Treasurer—G. H. Linebury.

Reporter—Buck Morris.

Sergeant-at-arms—"Pop" Taylor.

By means of this organization it is hoped that the art of boxing and wrestling will be established on our campus, and that we can put out a team to compete with the other colleges. So far not much headway has been made; the men who are interested are meeting on the fourth floor of Watauga in the afternoons for their work-outs. Soon after Christmas the Club plans to further its work and perfect its organization.

All those who are interested in learning to box or to wrestle will do well to get lined up in the Club. Come out and let's put out a good team.

The following men are charter members of the Club:

L. D. Bell, W. M. Cummings, G. H. Linebury, D. T. Memory, W. S. Morris, C. A. Warwick, J. E. Weeks.

EH?

THE OTHER day
I WENT down
TO THE Wiggle Woggle
AND I watched
THE clerks
THROWING
THE BASKETS
AT THE iron bars
AND THEY always landed
JUST where
THEY should,
AND I watched
THEM
THROW them
OVER THE heads
OF THREE customers
AND THEY HIT
THE bars
AND dropt
INTO THE pit,
AND I thought
AS I watched
THE baskets
BOUNCE
AND drop
IN THE right place
THAT THOSE clerks
WOULD make GOOD
BASKET ball players.

The poor, overworked wife was calling her lazy husband to get up and eat his breakfast so that she could get the washing done, and when she called him the sixth time remarked, "You need a self-starter to get you up in the morning." The hubby was ready with his reply: "Not when I have a crank like you to start me."—Ex.

BARNYARD PHILOSOPHY

By

Sidney Pureblood

Be not easily made fearful by the woeful predictions of those about you.

The fool speaketh as a roaring lion, but the voice of the wise man is that of a lamb—humble but firm.

By the thoughtless neglect of our bodies we dig our own graves.

A strong body and a strong mind are the two most valuable things a man can possess.

When you do a thing, do it with all your might!

The principle of sincerity is one of the best principles on earth.

Try to remember the good in people—not the bad. If we think good, our actions will be good.

You cannot do your best at a work that does not draw your heart into it.

I have never seen the time when it paid to be sour and grouchy.

Whatever you do, let it be done sensibly and systematically.

Use your head!

Be the best man possible. We cannot all be Lincolns or Washingtons; but if we do the best we can with the talent given to us, our lives will be as great a success as was theirs.

Life—the mystery of all mysteries.

We are told that a certain Raleigh mother took her baby down to a clergyman to be christened. Nothing wrong about that—but read on.

The clergyman began to fill out the necessary papers but couldn't remember the date. Turning to the mother, he said: "Let's see, I believe this is the eighth, isn't it?"

"Certainly not," replied the mother; "we've been married only three years."—Happy Jack.
