THE CLASS OF 1923 HAS HAD MANY EXPERIENCES

1923 COMMENCEMENT WILL BE GREATEST IN HISTORY

Leeper, as Class Historian, Tells in a Charming Manner of Things the Class Has and Has Not Done

It is impossible by a simple narration of events to give a true history of our four years in college. There are incidents, to be sure, which stand out in our minds. They are clustered with memories, pleasant or unpleasant. But a very great part of our college life has been made up of the usual things and the daily routine. There is the rising whistle which shatters our dreams, there is the call to the familiar breakfast menu, the chapel period, and the morning classes, each with its particular personality or atmosphere. There are the drill periods, the afternoon classes, and the evenings dedicated to mental toil or a care-free trip down town. Throughout all this there has been interwoven a constant contact with the other students, the professors, and the college atmosphere. A history should not overlook these things, but it must concern itself primarily with the narration of events in the order of their happening.

On September 3, 1919, the Class of '23 officially came into existence. We passed individually through the different acts of the registration process. After a few days of bewildering confusion we settled down in the prescribed channels of the College machinery. There were hitches here and there, but they were soon smoothed out. The different instructors took us in charge and began the refining process. They must have marveled at the great opportunities for development in the material before them. Of course they set themselves stoutly to the task and did their best. If the results seem less than perfection, we will make no attempt to lay the blame on their shoulders. They should be praised for what they did accomplish.

A few days after registration a class meeting was called and the class had the first look at itself. Justly or unjustly, it was rather proud of what it saw. Election of officers was proposed. This induced a mild wave of oratory, and the class found itself with an able staff of officers.

No history of a freshman year would be complete without reference to a sophomore class. The Class of '23 is no exception. It found a perfectly normal and able-bodied Sophomore Class fully entrenched on the grounds. The newcomers were visited, entertained and called upon to

Baccalaureate Sermon by Dr.
R. B. Peery, Commencement
Address by Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Dr. Royal S. Copeland United States Senator from New York, distinguished medical man, and former Commissioner of Health of New York, will deliver the commencement address on May 28, and Dr. R. B. Peery, pastor of St. Andrews Lutheran Church of Hickory, will preach the baccalaureate sermon on the evening of May 27.

Dr. Copeland, who is one of the outstanding figures in the medical world today, a writer of many works on medical subjects, together with widely read syndicated health articles, is serving his first term in the United States Senate. Prior to this he had been Commissioner of Health of the City of New York since 1918.

Dr. Copeland is a native of Michigan, and studied medicine in England, France, Germany, Switzerland and Belgium, after having been graduated with honor from the University of Michigan.

Dr. Peery is a graduate of Roanoke College and the Philadelphia Theological Seminary. For ten years he was on the Japan mission field, and also served for a number of years as president of Midland College, Atchison, Kansas. He is a gifted pulpit orator and a talented author and poet.

The classes of 1893 (the first graduating class), 1898, 1903, 1908, 1913, 1918 and 1922 will hold reunions on the campus on Alumni Day, Monday, May 28. The College will furnish free sleeping accommodations and meals to all visiting alumni, and all State College men, whether members of reunioning classes or not, are cordially invited to attend all of the exercises of commencement.

Commencement proper begins with the baccalaureate sermon, Sunday, May 27, and continues through Tuesday, May 29. Dances and other social functions will continue through the week.

The annual meeting of the General Alumni Association will be held Mon-

EDITORIAL

The seniors say these poor underclassmen have their sympathy.

The chief use of the abbreviation, "etc.," is to make the professors think you know a lot more than you do.

A junior here wanted to go into court because someone stole the movement from his watch. His lawyer took the case.

Freshman told his girl his love for her was as broad and deep as the rolling brine. She took it with a grain of salt.

We find among the Commencement orators for 1923 those old chums, Clay and Webster, but Calhoun seems to be absent.

Back in grammar school we often found ourselves at the foot of the class. Well, that end was nearer the stove, anyway.

Man down town bought a new car the other day, and almost immediately lost control of it. His wife drives it every day.

We are sorry for that poor dyspeptic fellow who was here yesterday. All he used his meals for was to tell when to take his medicine.

The new housewife we saw Tuesday down at Doak's Market must have come of a fine family. She didn't know one cut of meat from another.

We asked one of the Ag. students what was a millenium, and he went on to explain that it was the same as the centennial, except that it had more legs.

One of our professors, in a moment of confidence, said he owed his success to golf, but we are of the opinion that he comes nearer to owing his golf to his success.

We have always heard of men who were conversationally inclined, but the best example was seen yesterday. We saw a man sitting on the sidewalk, talking to a banana peel.

AN APPRECIATION

We wish to thank the staff of The 1923 Agromeck for their courtesy in allowing us to use many of the cuts for this issue, and for the Senior Class History and Poem. Indeed, it is not for this issue alone that we thank the staff of our sister publication, but for the entire year. At all times have they been ready to be of service to us in any way that presented itself. Had it not been for their kindnesses, we would have had a great number of problems which we could not have solved. Suffice it for us to say here that we thoroughly appreciate their kindnesses.

SENIOR CLASS POEM

Reflect! And memory brings anew
The scenes of childhood days,
As, one by one, the years we view;
Then upward on our ways
We see our childish footsteps go
Across grim alphabets—
Foundations firm of what men know,
That guard, lest he forgets!

And see! What mighty works are done!
Ourselves we see progress
Unto the High School's door, upon
Whom time has placed success.
Then, subtly ent'ring, came the dream
That haunted you and me—
Conveyed us far up learning's stream
Which gives mankind to see.

And lo! We find ourselves again,
Collegians? Nay, not so!
But rather, grouped with earnest men,
Who, having knowledge, know
How futile life unplanned may be,
We strive for higher things!
The end is nigh. E'en now we see Beginnings future brings.

Oh gaze! Ye men of fertile mind!
The world's for conquest fix'd;
Our college days sink fast behind
With joys and sadness mix'd.
Down future's path our trail we see
That spreads in divers ways;
The distant voice of Twenty-three Sings Alma Mater's praise!

—FOUNTAIN.

[Editor's Note: No apologies are offered for the above. We realize that if it stands only on its own merits, it has a rather weak foundation, but it fills up some little of the space.]

THE END OF THE MARATHON

Everything, however long and difficult, must have an ending. In the same way, everything of a pleasant nature must have its ending. This week we are finding that The Technician, which has been a strange blending of the pleasant and the difficult, has run itself out for the college year, and therefore must come to an end. At its going, there are mingled in a strange rythm, both sighs of relief and sobs of regret. It has been a genuine pleasure to us this year to have had these heart-to-heart talks with you students, faculty and friends, of State College, and, whether or not you have enjoyed them, we are still glad to have been permitted to say them. As this, the thirty-fifth copy of The Technician, which the administration and trustees were so kind as to tell us we could not publish, goes to press, we realize more than ever just how helpless we would have been without the support which we have received at your hands. To the business manager, the circulation folks, to all of our assistants, as well as to the entire student body, we are deeply indebted. So long as memory shall keep for us the picture of this year's work, we shall continue to thank you all.

THE NORRIS ATHLETIC TROPHY

The above is a cut of the Norris Athletic Trophy Cup, which will henceforth be given annually to the best all-round athlete at State College. The winner is to be chosen by the student body in a primary and final election. The cut is the gift of the Norris Candy Company, of Atlanta, and is secured through the efforts of Mr. Frank E. Lowenstein, an alumnus of State.

The cup will be awarded according to the following rules:

The Norris Athletic Trophy for 1923 will be awarded at Commencement 1924 under the following regulations, to the student who most distinguishes himself in athletics during the calendar year 1923:

1. The Norris Athletic Trophy Committee, made up of the Director of Athletics, the Chairman of the Faculty Athletic Committee, the Graduate Manager of Athletics, the President of the Student Body, and the Alumni Secretary, with Mr. Frank E. Lowenstein, of Atlanta, Georgia, as ex officio chairman, shall have charge of the details of awarding the trophy. In the absence of the ex officio chairman, the Director of Athletics shall preside at all meetings of the committee. The Alumni Secretary shall act as secretary to the committee, and shall keep a record of all proceedings.

2. To be eligible for the trophy the prospective recipient must have attained a passing grade on at least seventy per cent of his scholastic work carried during the year.

3. The winner shall be determined by a popular vote of the student body in a primary election to be held annually during the first week in December, and in a final election to be held annually at the same time and place that balloting occurs for the election of officers of the student government.

4. The three men receiving the highest number of votes in the primary election shall be considered as candidates for the trophy, and shall enter the final election to be held simultaneously with the election of officers of the student government as above provided.

5. Each regularly enrolled student of the College may vote once for the candidate of his choice in the primary by writing the said candidate's name on the ballot prepared for that purpose and depositing same in the ballot box; but after the field of candidates has been narrowed to three by the primary, only the three men receiving the highest number of votes shall be considered in the final election.

6. Ballots for the final election shall carry the names of each of the three candidates, and the voter shall indicate his choice by a cross mark (X) after the name of the candidate for whom he elects to vote.

7. Balloting in both the primary and final election shall be conducted by representatives of the Norris Athletic Trophy Committee. Immediately after the primary, the committee shall determine from a count, the three candidates to enter the final election. Their names shall be published in the students' newspaper, The Technician, and also be posted on all College bulletin boards.

8. If the three men receiving the highest number of votes in the primary are below the scholarship standard adopted, the committee may substitute the names of the next highest men whose scholastic work meets the requirement. In determining the scholastic standing of a student, the committee shall be guided by the records on file in the registrar's office.

9. All expenses incurred in holding both the primary and the final election, such as the cost of printing the ballots, etc., shall be borne by the State College Athletic Association.

10. The name of the winner of the trophy shall be given to the commencement program committee to be printed in the commencement program, and the trophy shall be awarded along with other awards, medals, etc., at commencement.

entertain. They responded with varying degrees of readiness and success. Sometimes the meetings were only moderately enjoyed by some of those present. After some weeks, the sophomores decided to withdraw most of the entertainment. Time-honored customs were discontinued and the freshman path took on a more rosy hue.

Time sped swiftly. The obstacles were passed one by one. We were constantly reminded that there is no downstream route to a college diploma. Some of the class fell by the way, but the majority passed the spring exams and were ready for the second lap.

Then came our sophomore year.

At its very beginning our ranks were pervaded in a greater or less degree by that age-old sophomore spirit. Class numerals blossomed out in various high places. Informal calls were made upon members of the Freshman Class. The real purpose of snow and snowballs was discovered and duly exploited. The class seemed to have been released into a new freedom characterized by a desire to pass through this dangerous period with no record to be ashamed of and no ill-feeling from the following class.

Among the most pleasant events of our sophomore year were the receptions at Meredith and our sophomore reception to Peace Institute. It was about this time that various members of the class suddenly acquired an interest in one of these institutions. If we were writing individual histories, we would find some other institution other than State College drawing a large share of our subject's interest and loyalty.

With somewhat reduced ranks we registered for our junior year. This year is usually considered a sort of classification to designate that period of time in which the student recovers from sophomore boisterousness and catches the reputed dignity of the senior. It is a combined convalescent and contagion period. Our own case seems to bear out this impression. We probably remember fewer incidents of our junior year than of any other year. At the same time one probably felt less conspicuous and less important.

It was with a feeling of relief that we finally stepped forth into our senior year, as the last lap in our college race. Its first impressions were not what we had expected. We found ourselves more conscious of the things we did not know than of the things we did know. Somehow we had failed to accumulate that vast store of knowledge which we once ascribed to college seniors.

Near the beginning of this year a cherished class dream came true. A section of concrete bleachers bearing the class numerals was completed. This project had inspired more oratory in class meetings than any other one item. It was a distinct relief to orators and listeners to rest upon this much talked of subject.

As graduation is about to become a memory, we may look at our college life as a whole. In athletics the Class of '23 has furnished a generous share of players for gridiron, cage, track, and diamond. From the bleachers we have proclaimed our support long and heartily. College publications and college activities have received our support. In scholarship the class may well be proud of its position. In the installation and support of Student Government the Class of '23 is second to none.

From back through the months we call up a flood of memories. We will ever remember the struggle to pass some difficult subject, the fear of failure, and the satisfaction of final victory. Perhaps it was some coveted honor, scholastic or athletic. In any case, we will remember the struggle long after the honor itself shall have paled in significance. There was the ever widening circle of friends among the students and faculty. All these things have made up a period in our development and a phase in our life. They have given us a love for the familiar scenes, the old friends, and the College itself which will last through the years.

You can go three days without sleep, forty days without food, and a lifetime without smiling—but why do it?

RAVINGS OF THE JUNIOR AGS

Long have we bred our little flies,
Those insects of such minute size,
And then the whole lot up and dies
Without the very slightest reason.

And though we fume and rave and swear,
And lamentations rend the air,
We have to mate another pair,
And wait another lengthy season.

If you but knew how you did vex
Our very souls to learn your sex,
And make of us such nervous wrecks,
You'd surely hang your heads of shame.

When we consider how your lives are spent,
Which cause our backs with trouble to be bent,

We often wonder why you were ever sent
To anger us with thoughts of your name.

Oh, Drosophila, if you but knew
The imprecations that are hurled at you

By every member of this Junior crew,

No doubt you'd die quicker than you do. W. W. W.

COMMERCE CLUB AT N. C. STATE ELECTS OFFICERS

Business Administration Department Places All Seniors With Prominent Positions

At the final meeting of the Commerce Club, held evening of May 16, 1923, the officers for the coming year were elected. The officers elected were: C. J. Roberts, president; J. N. Stewart, vice president; Carl Bridges, secretary; R. H. Raper, treasurer, and J. C. Clifford, Jr., reporter.

Upon taking over the office, Mr. Roberts made a brief talk outlining what he intends to do with the Commerce Club for the coming year. Besides a talk by the new president, other interesting speeches were made, among them one by Professor Journey of the Business Administration Department. Professor Journey complimented the work carried on, for the past year, by the club, and announced that for the coming year the students of this department would be graded for the year largely on the work they did in the Commerce Club. He said the work of this club was so great it should be counted as a part of the college course.

At this meeting Professor Journey announced that the Department of Business Administration had been successful in placing all of its seniors in prominent positions. Those graduating and where they go are as follows: E. W. Harris, accounting department of the Texaco Company, Houston, Texas; M. L. Reed, Asheville Contracting and Construction Co., Asheville, N. C.; and H. S. Webster, R. B. Lee, E. A. Randolph and H. E. Stout in the sales department of the National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio.

Rather a perplexing sign at a beach: "Don't take bathing suits from the bathhouse."

The University of Engineering

Of all the things that go to make the successful engineer, none is more important, nor more in step with the spirit of the profession, than a studious attitude. One man says about another—"he is always willing to learn," "he doesn't think he knows it all"—and he intends to pay a high compliment when he says it.

The great engineers are always at school, always learning, always seeking for more knowledge. They begin with this desire for fuller understanding, and they keep it up to the end.

Any engineering operation, over and above the primary purpose for which it is carried out, is an active and post-graduate class in engineering, also. So that Westinghouse, or any other great business, is, of its very nature, a University where theory and practice combine to make bigger, broader and more practical engineers.

The courses in this University are not limited to prescribed subjects nor terms—the subjects are almost infinite, and the semesters are endless. Men with the weight of years on their shoulders work and learn side-by-side with those whose day has just dawned.

This post-graduate school fits men for almost anything. Fits them for it, and makes them continually fitter. Out of this continuing fitness have grown the engineering accomplishments on which this institution has grown. It is, perhaps, one of the great educational institutions of its day.
