RELIGIOUS LIFE ON THE SUMMER SCHOOL CAMPUS

Some Suggestions For Increasing Interest of Summer School Students in Chapel Exercises

A definite effort has been made to supply a wholesome religious life for the students in the Summer School.

The plan for fostering and stimulating religious life includes many activities. First, there is the daily chapel period, which has a real devotional atmosphere. The services have been conducted by the ministers of the city and by the members of the faculty. Other persons may be called upon from time to time.

The attendance at the chapel service was good for the first two or three days. For some reason very few people are attending the service this week. Perhaps the chapel exercises aren't as attractive as they should be. Would it help to have a student choir? Many of the teachers can sing and would be glad, no doubt, to contribute in that way. Miss Rodiger, a distinguished musician, is conducting the singing, and is thereby doing much to add to the interest and attractiveness of the devotional services.

Would it help for the students, certain groups of them, to have charge of the chapel exercises. Perhaps so. It is certainly worth trying.

THE TEACHERS LIKE ORPHANAGE PLAY

A Four-Act Drama Is Presented Before a Large Audience at the Summer School

"The Dust of the Earth," Katherine Kavanaugh's four-act drama of rural life, presented Monday evening before the State College Summer School by the senior class of the Methodist Orphanage, won instant approval. The large audience of teachers and residents of the city, which crowded Pullen Hall to the very doors, liked the way the youngsters swung into the difficult roles, and the play won another triumph even more notable than that achieved last Friday when it was presented at the Orphanage as one of the opening features of the commencement exercises.

The play is a simple story of country life made up of a happy mixture

DR. E. C. BROOKS

DR. E. C. BROOKS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF N. C. STATE COLLEGE

Dr. B. W. Kilgore Will be Dean of Agriculture; Dr. W. C. Riddick, Dean of Engineering; Dr. B. F. Brown, Dean of Social Science and Business Administration; Dr. C. C. Taylor, Dean of Graduate School

It is no small task to turn over the direction of the State's educational system and assume the duties of president of one of the State's largest institutions of learning all in the space of a comparatively few days. This is the task to which Dr. Brooks has set his hand, and in accomplishing the task he is one of the busiest men we know. He says he is green, but is "taking his lesson like every good freshman should."

Friends of the College everywhere are loud in their praise of the Trustees for their selection of Dr. Brooks to guide State College in what all believe is to be the greatest period of expansion and service in her history.

EMILY ROSE KNOX GIVES THIRD ANNUAL RECITAL

Familiar Selections Gracefully Rendered Win Admiration of Each Hearer

On Friday night, the 15th, Pullen Hall was filled to hear Miss Knox give her third annual recital for the students of State College Summer School. Her coming has aroused much interest among the students and faculty of State College, as well as the citizens of Raleigh. To the students who have had the privilege of hearing her before, it was the greatest of entertainment, and to those who heard her for the first time there was a revelation of masterful musicianship. To both there was the utmost of enjoyment in her playing, and they rewarded her with continued heart-warming applause.

Her selections were familiar to the audience, and the graceful manner in which she rendered each piece won for her the admiration of each hearer. If encores would have held her, the length of the program would have been unlimited.

Miss Knox was assisted by Miss Sue Kyle Southwick, of the music faculty of St. Mary's. It has been said repeatedly that Miss Southwick never played with more grace than she did for Miss Knox on this night.

We feel honored in having had these musicians with us, and trust we may hear them again.

DR. BROOKS ADDRESSES AUDIENCE OF TEACHERS

He Charged the Teachers to Observe the Two Corner Stones of Organization and Co-operation

In addressing an audience of teachers on Friday night, Dr. E. C. Brooks placed himself somewhat in his former position as State Superintendent of Schools, and spoke of aims in education. This well fits his new work, also. His address was "chuck" full of practical things applicable for the alert teacher.

The State pays for schools, he said, for no other reason than to improve its citizenship. He urged that teachers make this their aim when entering the school, and at this point brought to the audience some of the practical problems that are to be met and solved in the work of administering a school.

EDITORIAL

Well, State, here we are!

Faint heart never won a slap.

"This ends my tail," said the monkey as he backed up to a lawn mower.

The true heart needs no alibi—it is always on the beat.

No, it is no proof that you spoon merely because you belong to a "Knife-and-Fork Club."

There is a good bit of community music these days, mostly against the early rising whistle.

Milton wrote "Paradise Lost," but quite a few are looking on State College now as "Paradise Found."

Professor Blank says that the earth is losing its moisture, but there are some who show no signs of drying up.

A certain professor said that the reason he played golf was that he would rather swat a pill than to swallow one.

The members of the old staff are tickled. Look at the new staff and know. They are due credit for part of this issue.

"Park Here" is the invitation given to all motorists using the highway in front of the campus. State always was noted for its cordial greeting.

An old student returning to the campus, unaware that the Summer School was in progress, commented to himself, "Gee, the angels must be having a recess on old State's campus!"

A lack of time to write home as we would like, as expressed by so many of the students, has actuated the drawing up of a form letter which may be used advantageously in writing home on most any occasion. This letter will appear in next week's issue of The Technician. It has been suggested that each one clip and use it, as we realize time is scarce about this place.

"GANG" FORMATION

The title fits very well the lining-up processes seen in Holladay Hall during registration. With all due respect to women and their ability to do and put things across, there are some things they just can't do. Falling in line must be one of these few things which they do not do. A checking system has been suggested which would enable the person on duty to designate the line and number fitting the person in question. This should probably be installed at the "mess" hall, postoffice, and in Holladay Hall. For further information—line up!

YOUR VACATION

AN ASSET

—OR—

A LIABILITY

If you use your opportunities here at State for development.

If you idle away your time.

If you increase in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man.

If you let your standards go down as the mercury goes up.

If you tighten your grip on your faith.

If you link up with the wrong sort of summer acquaintances.

If you are better because of the experience.

If you fool around with a habit or think you can play loose with your feelings, "just for the summer."

If your community is to be benefited by your added knowledge.

SING

There are among this large number of leaders in school and community work many who can sing. Miss Rodiger has a choral club that meets every Tuesday and Thursday at 4:30 o'clock.

In a short while she hopes to give a public performance. Not only would it help teachers and prospective teachers, in their school work, but it would make our few weeks together much more enjoyable. We would have more of a student body spirit if we were more active in such things.

This does not apply to ladies alone. There is an abundance of music for male voices.

Come on, men, let's not have the ladies furnishing all the music. We can do our part.

GAMES

Miss Houchen and Mrs. Strickland, physical directors of Summer School, are to be congratulated on the splendid array of followers which they have to gather about them daily on the campus just in front of Holladay Hall.

We feel that too much stress cannot be laid on physical training. It is an absolute necessity for students. The role of student life is peculiar in that one never, so to speak, works, but is all the time tired. We are confident that the students who gather daily and enjoy the games on the grassy lawn are the ones that will be found most active in general campus activities, and after all this will be a great part of the training we receive from attending Summer School. Too, the one who fills a place regularly there will not be expected to be tired, complaining, or blue. Play games, students—play games!

GET ACQUAINTED

For everyone on the campus, Summer School offers an opportunity for an increased acquaintance. When we think of the power or influence we would have with our friends or acquaintances, we begin to realize the value of actuating while possible, the often heard term, "Get acquainted."

For some it is an easy matter to walk up to a stranger and speak to him or her; for others it is a TASK. Where will you class yourself, and are you in the class you would like to be in? Probably none have thought of this seriously, but we are for the most part North Carolinians, and in pursuing our work at various points in the State are sure to meet again and to be able to speak a good word for each other at this time, because of our acquaintance here, will give us even more prestige than the person about whom we speak. It is a way of helping others and helping one's self. Let's begin today, Summer School students, and meet our classmates, our table-mates, and those constituting every group we may happen to meet while on the campus. By doing this we will each enjoy the summer even more, and, too, some one else will be made happy by the small kindness shown.

"AND COLONEL OLDS SHALL LEAD THEM"

First of a Series of Visits to Places of Interest in the City Taken by Summer School Students

Colonel Olds has once again proved himself a leader of men—and women. Last Saturday he gave the Summer School the first big treat of the season by taking them to Dix Hill, better known as the State Hospital for the Insane. To most of those who went it was something entirely different from anything ever seen before, therefore will always be remembered as one of the really big things of the Summer School.

Promptly at 9 o'clock, as he had promised, Colonel Olds had cars on the track at the campus ready to take the entire student body. After a long and pleasant ride entirely across the city, the sight-seeing crowd left the cars and marched in double file to the summit of the beautiful hill on which the hospital is located. At the door were whiterobed nurses ready to escort everybody through the wards and grounds of the institution. Evidently the visitors made a good impression, for the inmates seemed happy to see them, and asked that they stay.

Following an hour of inspection of the hospital, the school teachers turned their faces back to the waiting cars, and thence to the Capitol, where Secretary of State Everett made some pleasant remarks. Leaving the Capitol, they turned in the direction of the Governor's Mansion, and after a thorough inspection of his place of abode, they once again returned to the Capitol and to the Hall of History. This being enough for one day, they again boarded the cars and returned to the campus to await the time for the next tour to come—next Saturday.

WANTED TO KNOW

Why so much homesickness but no weeping.—Boys.

Who blows the orchestra since Bonnie Norris is away.—Byrd.

Who wishes to ride in my new coupe.—"Red."

Why all the girls like "Big Dick" Bostian so well.—Kelly.

Why so many new conveniences at the postoffice.

Who wants to get in love at first sight.—Strupe.

Why Blanche Mooring thinks this is like a prison.

Why "Pap" Taylor took his wife home at the opening of Summer School.

Why it takes the girls so long to meet the few boys on the campus. (One not yet acquainted.)

What is good for a finger that has been bitten. (Address M. L. Tatum, State College Station.)

If there are any "pirty" girls at N. C. State Summer School. Answer requested. "Girls, now is your time to answer. We have free suffrage."

CAMPUS SAYINGS

"Buy a gallon of gas and we'll go to ride."—Irene Taylor.

"Cars washed while you eat, ladies."—Ed Burgess.

"Lights out, up there!"—Doc Prentis and Trevathan.

"Let's catch some air."—Anybody.

"Milkman, lady; have your bottle out."—Mike Breen.

"Meet an honest man from Virginia, ladies."—Bob Keys.

"Why did they put the number of the Textile Building on the tower?"—Cora Chapman.

"Please learn me to dance."—Mary Tharrington.

"When do we eat?"—Sammy Homewood.

"It's hotterthenhell, ain't it?"—Big Eller.

Propaganda dope of the railroad autocrats is not proving as effective on the public as it did once upon a time.

A Good Reason

Insane Man: "Bring me a piece of toast."

Attendant: "What do you want with a piece of toast?"

Insane Man: "I'm a poached egg, and I want to sit down."—Oklahoma Whirlwind.

As a matter of public information, it is here chronicled, upon authority of Dr. C. G. Abbott, National Academy of Science, that the sun will shed 3 to 4 per cent less warmth this summer than last.

For example, all the Wake County teachers might take charge on Monday, Franklin on Tuesday, and so on for the counties having any considerable number of persons in the Summer School. Again, Meredith girls or Peace girls attending the Summer School might become responsible for the service on a given day or days.

The point is, the chapel service has possibilities which have hitherto been only partially realized. By attending with some degree of conscientiousness, the students can make the period set apart each day for chapel service an increasingly effective force in the religious life on the campus.

For purposes mainly inspirational, and also informational, a Bible Study course has been arranged. The first meeting was held on the campus in front of Holladay Hall last Friday at 6:30 o'clock. This meeting took the nature of a Bible Study Rally and was well attended. Those who were to give the various courses made brief statements with regard to their work, after which the groups met for short periods. Mr. W. N. Jones is giving a course in "The Spirit of Old Testament Prophecy." Rev. W. W. Peele, pastor of Edenton Street Church, took charge of a group which will be taught later by Mrs. J. R. Chamberlain, using studies in the Old Testament. Dr. Chas. E. Maddry's course is "The Life of Christ." Mrs. T. W. Bickett will begin next Friday evening a course in "Messages From the Great Women of History." Prof. Chas. M. Heck is teaching "The Story of Jesus." "The Poetical Books of the Bible" is the subject of the course given by Mr. J. Henry Highsmith.

The Bible Study groups will meet on the campus each Friday evening at 6:30, and it is hoped that every student will feel his obligation to use this opportunity to study some portion of the Bible. Is it too much to ask that every student give just three-quarters of an hour a week to so significant a subject as Bible study?

The representatives of the various churches of Raleigh have most cordially invited the Summer School students to attend Sunday school and preaching services each Sunday. The students will find it worth while from every standpoint to visit the Sunday schools and churches, for some of these are known throughout the State for their very effective service.

Let no student accept attendance upon the Summer School as conveying any right or authority to go on a spiritual furlough.

Dr. Brooks Addresses Audience of Teachers

He would have the teachers of today minimize the giving of mere facts. The teacher who gives the pupil something one day to be returned the next day is not the teacher that the State needs most, and is not worthy of being a teacher and a leader, he declared. He stated that the greatest thing one could get from the Summer School was not the facts learned, but the association with other people, the learning of new and varied customs, and the acquiring of the ability to adjust one's self to the new environment and conditions. The manner in which one meets this phase of teaching often makes sure the success or failure of a teacher at the outset. Too, the customs recognized in one community will be termed rude in another equally well educated community, as shown by citing illustrations as to the conduct of peoples in distantly related towns.

He charged the teachers to observe the two corner stones of organization and co-operation. Responsible direction of a school and the fullest co-operation of each teacher with the organization, including State, county and local, under which each works, are the important factors in its success, as clearly shown by his citations.

He stressed the importance of relating subject-matter to the activities of the community in which the subject-matter is being taught, as far as possible. He stated that geography, history, sanitation, etc., should each be taught peculiarly to fit the needs of the community and that each teacher should be governed by this fact.

of humor and pathos, and the cast, composed of six boys and four girls, handled their parts skillfully and with an ease and assurance that showed careful training. The comedy parts were effectively played by Miss Addie Mae Davis as "Miss Arabella," the village gossip; John Wortham as an old-time darkey, and Paul McReady as "Jerry," a typical country boy.

These shared the honors with Miss Katie Richardson as "Nell," the heroine, and Ralph Thomas as "John Ryder," the young master of "The Maples." The other players were Miss Bertha Smith, Miss Adlec Stokes, Walter Biggs, Joe Becton and Charlie Clark. Each won new laurels in their respective roles.

NEAR NATURE'S HEART

Mr. Ah Young, a former Chinese student of N. C. State College, recommends to all students of N. C. State, and to all readers of The Technician, the book entitled, "Near Nature's Heart," by Mr. Cranford Jackson, of Guilford, N. C.

Mr. Young says the book will give one a greater insight into Nature itself. It is full of philosophy and of high ideals of life. Enrico Leide, the popular Atlanta artist, called it "great stuff."

The staff regrets very much that it cannot spare space for the entire article as written by Mr. Young, who was a very accomplished and well-thought-of student among us.

Dean of Agriculture, B. W. Kilgore; Dean of Engineering, W. C. Riddick; Dean of Social Science and Business Administration, Dr. B. F. Brown; Dean of Graduate School, C. C. Taylor.

Third, That greater emphasis be placed on graduate instruction at the College and that the Graduate School be placed in charge of Dr. C. C. Taylor as dean.

Fourth, That further purchase of books for departmental libraries be discontinued and these libraries be centralized in the New College Library, plans for which are now being prepared. Additional library assistants will be employed.

Fifth, That such new publications be authorized as shall bring the work of the College constantly before the people whom it was established to serve.

Dr. Brooks is spending about eight hours a day at the College, meeting the members of the teaching staff and planning for the carrying out of the program outlined above.

The friends of Dr. C. C. Taylor and Dr. W. C. Riddick will be glad to know that these two men have been retained as deans of the Graduate School and School of Engineering, respectively.

THE SONG OF THE WORKER

I lay no claim to a niche of fame
In the halls of the storied years;
I may not hope for the crowd's acclaim,

Swept high in a storm of cheers.
Obscure, unknown to crown or throne,

I journey my prosy way—
But I do the task that is mine alone
As well as a worker may.

On far winds flung by script or tongue
The fame of the great is whirled;
They have wrought full well and their deeds are sung
Through the width of a grateful world.

I have not won to a place in the sun
With the kingly ones of the earth—

But I know that the humblest task,
well done,
Is not devoid of worth!

I have no part in the mighty art

That flowers in the dreamer's breast;
But I know the joy of a workman's heart
In doing his little best!
I boast my role in the world's great plan—
My share in creation, too;
For I do as well as a worker can
The task that is mine to do!
—Ted Olson.

uncle, on account of being a brother to my step-daughter. My step-daughter also gave birth to a son, who was certainly my brother, and the same time my grandson. My own wife, through this, was my grandmother. I was at the same time my wife's husband, and in consequence that the husband of one's grandmother must be his grandfather, I became my own grandfather, which was more than I could bear."

He: "If you saw a woman's head floating on the water, what would she be singing?"

She: "I ain't got no body."

"Say, Bill, h'ev you ever seed enny o' these 'ere 'permanent waves' that folks talk about?"

"Nix! Have you?"

"Nope! I've seed some pretty big waves an' some pretty long waves, but, sooner or later, they all dash ter pieces on the shore. There don't seem ter be anything 'permanent' about 'em."—Fun.

He: "If you saw a worm crawling on the ground, would you pick it up?"

She: "Of course not!"

He: "Then you are no chicken."

SHORTAGE IN LABOR SHOWN TO BE LARGELY FICTITIOUS

With the adjournment of Congress and the failure to secure free immigration, many employers have abandoned their shortage-of-labor claim.

The National Industrial Conference Board, representing a score of employers' organizations, states that there is not so great a labor shortage as is frequently supposed from current reports.

The estimate is based on returns from more than 1,000 manufacturing establishments in all parts of the United States.

A Toast

Here's to the girls—the young ones;
Not too young,
For the good die young,
And nobody wants a dead one.
Here's to the girls—the old ones;
Not too old,
For the old dye, too,
And nobody wants a dyed one.—Ex.

She Was a Bear

One evening a farmer met his man with a lantern and asked him where he was going.

"Courtin'," was the reply.

"Courtin'," said the farmer, "with a lantern? I never took a lantern with me when I went courtin'."

"Yes," replied the man, "an' look what you got."—Ex.

Absent Minded

"Mr. Smith left his umbrella again."

"I do believe he would lose his head if it were loose."

"I dare say you're right. I heard he was going to Colorado for his lungs."—Reflector.

If you love a man, he isn't worth it.
If you don't love him, you don't know what you want.

If you lead him on, you're a flirt.
If you ignore him, you're heartless.

If he has money, you're mercenary.
If he hasn't any money, you're foolish.

If he's old, you're robbing the grave.
If he's young, you're robbing the cradle.

If you stay at home, you're an old maid.

If you don't, you're a rounder.

For the love of Mike—
What's a poor girl to do?

Yield not to flirtation,
For flirting is sin;
Each sister will help you
Some brother to win.
Look not at the boys, girls,
Dark eyes will subdue;
Look not at the boys, girls,—
Let them look at you.

To conduct himself in Russia as an American trade unionist conducts himself in the United States is treason, according to soviet ideas, and death has come to many who have been foolish enough to think they were entitled to freedom.
