S. G. Says Cafeteria Off Limits For Sweat Clothes & Athletic Shorts

Leave your jockstraps in the gym that, at least, is the mandate of the Student Legislature. The Chairman of the Cafeteria Committee made a resolution last Thursday that no athletic shorts or sweat clothes be worn in the Cafeteria. The motion passed unanimously, with the observation that this rule was not to be a hard and fast law, but was intended to be voluntarily upheld by the members of the student body who should be willing to conduct themselves in a manner befitting a gentleman.

Henry Pickett, President of the I.F.C., requested that the student legislature appropriate $200.00 to help the I.F.C. pay for a thirty page brochure to be sent to all incoming freshmen. Pickett explained that the brochure would tend to make the incoming students more fraternity conscious, and, therefore, better students.

Bob Gunn, vice-president of the student government, reminded the legislature that the N.S.A. regional convention was to be held April 20-21. Emphasizing the fact that State is to be host to the convention, he pleaded with the legislature to make a good showing at the convention. S. G. President Jim

Kick-off Dance

Don't forget the big Kick-Off Dance on Friday, April 20th! This semi-formal dance, designed to be a gala affair, is the opening event of the annual Carnival Week-end here at State, and every effort is being made to make it a dance that you will always remember. . . . Delancey will present . . . kind of music you like, whether you like your music hot and fast or sweet and low.

NO STAGS WILL BE ADMITTED! The dance will run the usual hours, 8 to 12, and the candidates for the title of Carnival Queen will be introduced during the intermission.

Symphony Concert Observes Mozart

The State College Orchestra will present a symphony concert in Pullen Hall Sunday afternoon, April 22, at 4 o'clock, featuring music by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

Mozart (1756-1791) in his short life-span of thirty-five years composed not only a fabulous number of works in all media of expression, but produced timeless masterpieces in practically every form. The program Sunday will open with the Overture to the still popular and famous opera "Don Giovanni" (or "Don Juan").

The next number will likely prove a novelty to most listeners who will attend Sunday, when Hobart Whitman, from Asheville, a freshman in Electrical Engineering, ably fills the role of soloist in the Third Concerto in E flat for French Horn.

The remainder of the program will consist of the Symphony Number 40 in G minor, generally regarded as one of his three greatest (the 39th, 40th, and 41st).

There will be no admission fee, and students and faculty and staff members are cordially invited to attend and bring their friends.

St. Pat's. Dance

The annual Saint Patrick's Dance will be held in the Coliseum on April 28. Faculty and Engineering students are cordially invited to attend.

Music will be furnished by the "Southerners" of Wake Forest.

During intermission Engineering Dean Harold Lampe will present the outstanding senior award.

Outstanding Engineering Seniors will be knighted into the order of Saint Patrick and top

Poor Turnout For Final Election

Carnival Night Saturday, April 21

Yea, hey, and away we go . . . to Carnival Night which is being held in the College Union building Saturday, April 21, from 6:30 p.m. until 11 p.m.

Fourteen organizations have entered booths in this year's affair. Mu Beta Psi, Honorary Music Fraternity, has entered a wandering German Band that will roam the building the entire night playing typical circus music. Pi Kappa Phi, Social Fraternity, has entered a booth that should interest all car owners on campus. Their booth will consist of throwing paper bags full of water at the campus traffic cop, Mr. Jim Burnett himself.

Alpha Gamma Rho has entered a Minstrel. Phi Kappa Tau's booth will have all of the participants trying to shave a balloon with a straight razor. Again this year, the Cosmopolitan Club will put on an exhibit of costumes from their various countries. Peace College will enter a fortune wheel.

CARELESSNESS

Dempster-Dumpster Truck Knocks Out Power Station

Carelessness on the part of a truck driver almost resulted in a major tragedy on campus Friday, April 6. A Dempster-dumpster truck, driven by a member of the M & O department, had brake failure, causing it to roll into a power station that carried 2,300 volts behind Winston Hall. According to reports, the following account was given of the accident.

The driver of the Dempster-dumpster was on his regular morning route when he decided to stop by the snack bar located on the east side of the 1911 Building. He parked his truck on the right side of the street heading north, and, leaving the motor running, entered the soda shop. The brakes supposedly failed and the truck rolled down the incline into the power plant in back of Winston Hall.

The instant that the truck hit the power station, it immediately extinguished all of the lights in the building. The truck motor kept running for about five minutes before a bystander had the courage to risk the danger of the high current to throw off the ignition switch.

This accident occurred at approximately 10:50 a.m. Had this happened ten minutes later when classes were changing, it is almost certain that some student would have been caught in the path of the runaway vehicle and injured seriously.

Macon R. Rowland, official of the M & O Department said that the driver violated several of the M & O's safety rules, and that the driver has been discharged from his job. Mr. Rowland also stated that all of the members of the M & O Department are indoctrinated in safety measures and that this was a matter of carelessness on the part of the driver, and not on the equipment on the truck.

One For The Laundry

The College Laundry is one student service that is a continual sore spot to many students. Actually, the man who is directly responsible for the performance of this service may mean well, but the fact remains that the Laundry produces some rather poor work. Past letters to the editor are testimony to this statement.

The Laundry seems to be making progress. Although it was news to us (considering the number of buttons that we have found missing from our shirts that were laundered at the College Laundry), the Laundry has been replacing buttons free of charge for quite some time according to J. R. Gower, superintendent of the Laundry, and recently the practice has been started of placing a card around any button that has been replaced. To us, this is an excellent idea. Now it is up to the women who iron shirts to keep a keen eye out for missing buttons.

A little assistance and advice from the women who work at the counter would prevent many justified complaints. If they observe someone bring in a garment to be cleaned that is made of material that might lose its shape during the cleaning process, they should advise him of the fact. Students are not usually well versed on what will launder or dry clean satisfactory and what will not. The women on the counter should know and not be afraid to tell.

Hearing Gower explain the laundry and dry cleaning process, it would seem that the work should be good—but it's not. A senior in engineering, when asked why he didn't use the College Laundry, explained, "Have you ever sent any sport shirts over there (College Laundry). Well, when you get them back they're so wrinkled that it makes one wonder just what happened to them. And the Cleaning—why can't they put bags over the finished cleaning like other dry cleaners do."

We wonder the same thing.

Just A Paper & Pencil

Just to make our policy clearer, the Letters to the Editor section of The Technician is open to anyone to expound on any subject—be it a gripe, be it praise, be it criticism, or be it philosophy.

Letters must be signed although the name will be withheld if requested with a good reason to back up the request.

Neither The Technician nor any staff member edits a letter to the Editor. Letters are always printed in full, and any letter will be printed if it is within the bounds of decency and outside of liable and signed with a bonafide name.

Do you have something on your mind—think someone deserves recognition who isn't getting it—think you have a solution for what's wrong with the world and State College—Well, if you do, just sit down and write a letter to ye old Editor of The Technician, Box 5698, State College Station, Raleigh, North Carolina.

MARK ETHERIDGE ASKS

"How Many Seek Votes As If It Were A Popularity Contest"

Monday night week, Mark Etheridge, editor of the Raleigh Times, spoke at the annual YMCA Leadership banquet held at the State College Cafeteria. Below is the text of his address:

"You gentlemen here tonight have a great advantage over me. You are in a school from which it is possible to move on with the secure knowledge that what you have learned—or are supposed to have learned—will stand you in good stead in your immediate future. I went to Princeton, bless its ivy-covered heart, after four years of which, I was told, I had to spend the next four years unlearning everything I'd been taught.

"At best, the difference between the systems is one of benevolent despotism at Princeton and democracy in action at State College. At worst, the difference is described by George Bernard Shaw in Maxims for Revolutionists.

"Democracy, he said, substitutes election by the incompetent many for appointment by the corrupt few."

"Anyway, the fact remains that I can't talk to you here tonight from first-hand practical experience in democratic—run government.

"I suppose the main reason I'm talking to you at all is that I was asked, and I couldn't resist. Normally mine is a frustrating existence of trying to get politicians, both real and would-be, to pay attention to what I have to say. When a chance presents itself to harangue a captive audience of them—well, I am not one to say no.

"The plain facts about the leadership at State College in recent years is that it hasn't led. The candidates don't really have to lead because they aren't making a career out of it. For the most part, the jobs are thought of as all glory and no gore.

"This isn't fatal, or course. The college will go on anyway, and somehow things that must get done will get done.

"Some of this leadership failure isn't on your own fault, perhaps. You work under a handicap here in a way. Because the vast majority of you are from North Carolina, you can go home on the weekends and I can't blame you for it—Lord knows—but it doesn't help to develop a community spirit in the affairs of State College. Politicians have to represent communities, not commuters.

"But whatever the reason, the facts are plan that—student leadership, you haven't got. Well, what's so bad about that? Just this. By accepting lousy government, and by being a part of it, you are settling for hamburger when you could have steak. You are getting out of here with nothing more than a degree you can hang on the wall.

"Maybe as far as the outside world knows, that degree is a great thing. It shows that you have learned certain skills which, like a union card, will get you a nice job somewhere.

"But if you spend four years here and get out with only a union card, you've been wasting your time. You will be technicians, neatly turned out little robots with no disturbing ideas and no plans for changing anything. You may not be the lines of a building, but you give a damn what the building's going to be used for.

"As citizens of the world, it's your job to know and care what that building, or any other building, is going to be used for. It's your job to care about everything that goes on around you. It's your job to defend what is good and fight what is bad.

"We have witnessed in this country in the past decade the mercurious effects of exactly the kind of thinking that it's not your business, that you're not your brother's keeper. We watched a few years ago the nightmare of public officials who moved into a vacuum of effective leadership to browbeat and bully those whose past views did not conform with the orthodoxy of the moment. We watched while men who were supposed to have been effective leaders of democracy sat idly by and counted the slob who shrived their souls to save their jobs.

"This kind of thing is happily gone from the scene now. It has not disappeared through the determined leadership of those entrusted with authority. This evil anti-intellectualism is only gone because its archangel overstepped himself. Had there been the leadership present, this philosophy would have been exploded before it ever became a terrifying nightrider in our society.

"That is the negative side of leadership. The positive side is more pleasant to consider, if more difficult to accomplish.

"Leadership is entrusted to you here in a testing ground for the future. It is here that you have a chance to prove your mettle, to gain what is dreadingly called experience. In the strictest utilitarian sense, it will serve you well if you never move from the confines of your business. You will need the knowledge gained here in dealing with people, in plain old getting ahead. But far more than that, student officers have an opportunity to help mold the thinking of their classmates. I do not mean the kind of thinking that tells you how to put on the gaudiest, and most glorious dance in the history of old N. C. State, or how to be chief beer guzzler on fraternity row, but how to be good citizens, both of the college and the world.

"Without suggesting that you should all become socialists, I'd like to remind you of a saying; that a man has no heart unless he's a socialist at 20, and no head if he's a socialist at 40.

"What's happened to both types? Where have the 20-year-old socialists gone to? Where, for that matter are the 40-year-old ones? You want to know? I'll tell you.

"The 20-year-olds are too busy working slide rules and compasses to bother thinking about being socialists or capitalists. They're too busy getting their all-important union card to worry about where the rest of the world is going. Then when they've got their cards, they sit quietly in a corner and hope no one asks them to do any independent thinking. They are totally unequipped to do it and afraid to try for the first time. They don't want to be bothered. They don't want to worry about communism or democracy or such things as James Gilliland or segregation or the farm bill.

"Yet each one touches them closely. Each one threatens their way of life, or offers promise to it. Jim Gilliland, for instance, is only a lawyer up in Warrenton, but he's a lawyer attacked for defending a college roommate accused of being a Communist. What's more, the Wake Bar Association only backed him by a 24-20 vote margin, when they should have been up and fighting in his defense.

"We had a man die in Wake County Jail a few months ago. We thought it was outrageous and lit into the whole problem. We carried editorials and long detailed news stories. We carried affidavits from eye witnesses.

"I know people read the stories because they'd stop me on the street and congratulate the Times for its "Bravery." But when I'd ask them to write a letter to the Editor, the chill descended like April in Raleigh.

"Why? It's because what they thought might have rattled a few bones wasn't exactly popular and they knew it. And, popularity is the magic password for success today.

"Our whole way of life is geared to the religion of success. From Dale Carnegie we've descended to Norman Vincent Peale and his belief that Horatio Alger was really Jesus in disguise.

"Many of you here tonight, are probably victims of it. How many, for example, are running for office because there is an important job to do and you think you can do it best? How many of you are seeking votes as if you were a candidate in a popularity contest?

"I don't know, but I bet you do.

"Any time you challenge the status quo, which a preacher defined as the mess we are all in, you are going to get into trouble. If you run from it, you're lost. If you are timid in the face of the fight, if you stop to calculate the effect of every stand you take in terms of popularity or success, then you're doomed to be nothing but a figurehead with no head. Long practice in shrinking will make you a coward too. Life is too short to be afraid and much too mean to live if you have to calculate the risk in everything you do.

"My father once made a statement that has stuck in my mind. I'd like to pass it on to you. Its equally applicable.

"If my children had left college, he said, subscribing to the pattern of civilization as they found it upon graduation, I would have considered them intellectual and spiritual paupers.

"Think about that when you're worrying with your slide rule and your notebooks. Think about it when you're counting the votes in the coming elections. You've got responsibility as well as authority. You've got a helluva challenge. No one but you can meet it for you."

Help Needed For Engineer's Fair

By tonight a few (very few) Engineering students are working in a frenzy to finish exhibits for the Engineer's Fair which begins tomorrow at 1 p.m.

John Lomax, fair chairman, has issued a call to any and all engineering students who are not already working on the fair to assist their departments tonight and tomorrow in putting the final touches on the exhibits.

"It doesn't matter," he said, "whether you are a freshman, sophomore, junior, or senior, your department can certainly use your help in wrapping things up tonight and in the morning."

OBITUARY NOTICE

It was a faithful old camera, but it's gone now. It was ten years old when I got it, and it served me faithfully for three years. It perished ignominiously when I staggered out of class one morning too sleepy to remember to pick it up. Someone else evidently picked it up, and ever since I've had a terrible time taking pictures for this newspaper.

The camera is insured, but it's not a valuable camera as cameras go. I would like to have it back. A reward is offered for its return; no questions asked. Please contact Austin Cooley, 320 Tucker Dorm, or the Lost and Found at the main desk of the College Union.

Looking for daring engineering?

Here are a few of the many projects Westinghouse offers the young engineer or scientist interested in daring engineering and research:

- First homogeneous or liquid-fuel reactor for full-scale utility power plant (see sketch at left).

All entries must be turned in at the Main Desk of the College Union.

The traveling salesman pulled up beside the farmhouse, hopped out of his car, leaped onto the porch, and rang the doorbell. A moment later a beautiful girl with long blond hair and blue eyes answered his ring.

"Boy, I'll bet you are the farmer's daughter!" exclaimed the salesman.

"No," said the girl. "I'm his mistress."

Diogenes Dullard Writes On Communism

Old Diogenes D. may find himself being entertained by a congressional committee ere long for even mentioning the subject, but . . . well here goes! Did you ever stop to think about them communist fellers? I mean did you ever think how well they are doing and then did you ever wonder why? I have and it worries me cause I don't really know. I ain't never heard this discussed in the classroom but I wuz reading a magazine over in the barbershop the other day and began 'puzzlin' about the whole mess and when I begin to think I'm really in trouble.

You just think how many millions of folks they has took in in jest a few years and you might'n as well figger they has got some kindy of a sellin' point. Most folks like me is just agin 'em and probably wouldn't know one ef'n we saw one. Now don't mistake me, I'm agin em an all that but I don't rightly know why if you know what I mean. Take Uncle Zacharia Dullard back home in Lincoln County fer an example (he can't read so I ain't worried bout his readin this no how). Uncle Zach, tho' he ain't right bright, is a right opinionated sort of a feller and like all of us Dullards he's a democrat and a member of a certain church of a certain denomination. Not only so but he's dead set and violently against anybody what ain't exactly like he is (course they ain't nobody around home what ain't just like Uncle Zack so he's safe for the present). But let me tell you HE AIN'T GOT EVEN THE REMOTEST IDEA why he's a member of that church or why he's a democrat—not the slightest idea. He just is cause that is all he's ever known an he don't want to be disturbed.

THE TECHNICIAN

April 19, 1956

What I was a worryin about wuz that one of them clever communist fellers ever came in there and told Uncle Zach that he was a Baptist (oops, let it slip) and a Democrat and then began to sell his bill of goods, ole Uncle Zack (and maybe even me) would swaller it hook, line and sinker.

Do you reckon that some of these here brilliant (?), concerned (?) profs would take it upon themselves to tell us ordinary folks why it is that we is captialists, democrats, Christians, etc., and why it is that we is agin being communists so if one of them fellers ever came sneakin in we'd know what he wuz and could—well whatever you do when you meet one?

What's doing... at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft

Professors practice what they preach... and vice versa

Following a practice of twenty years, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft will again welcome a group of college professors as members of the engineering staff during the coming summer months.

Last year our "summer professors" represented colleges from coast to coast. They tackled important projects in such diverse fields as instrumentation and vibration, combustion, compressible flow, and materials development. Despite the limited time available to these men, they made significant contributions to our overall effort.

Though it was to be expected that both the company and the participating professors might benefit directly from such a program, the sphere of influence has been much broader. The many students who are taught by these professors during the college year are sharing the ultimate benefits . . . profiting from lectures that are sparked by the kind of practical experience that can be gained with a recognized industry leader like Pratt & Whitney Aircraft.

Several "summer profs" voluntarily spent part of their time conducting refresher courses for P & W A's young engineers.

One assignment involved a comprehensive survey of equipment for the expansion of high-altitude test facilities in Willgoos Laboratory, the world's most complete, privately owned jet engine lab.

Technical contributions were varied. Worthwhile assistance was given in vibration and instrumentation studies.

By Bob Kirkland

O.K. boys, here it comes! You can ask almost anyone on this campus who knows me, and they'll tell you that I am a pretty sarcastic guy about many things, but, in spite of this, I am a pretty easy-going guy, too. There is one thing here at State that just gets me, though, and sometimes I wonder how this institution maintains its enrollment because of it. This, my fellow-slaves, is the excessive scarcity of what is tritely termed "school spirit." Of course, I am just a hard-working freshman, and maybe there is more here in the way of spirit than I've been permitted to see. I certainly hope so. Sure, I'll grant you that there are reasons for the lack of "rah, rah" stuff. No one realizes any better than I do that the work is pretty stiff, and not many students have the free time that they do at certain other colleges in Carolina. Also, there is the prominent shortage of members of the opposite sex, a situation which always depletes the reservoir of "oomph." Maybe these factors are just too much for the average student at State, or maybe prospective engineers are ashamed to show such a childish emotion as love of Alma Mater. I don't profess to know the reason, but I do say that it's a disgusting way to go to college. After all, you only live once, and unfortunately, you are only young once. If you put reins on yourself this early in life, you are going to find yourself pretty tired of living. Now, I've said what I think, and I believe I've looked at things fairly enough. How about you, doing something to change the situation! ! !

This week's picture: Pleasing to the eye? The tempting trio is called (among other things) "The Taylor Maids". They record for Eureka, which means "I've found it!"

Campus poets, attention! This column is running a contest beginning this week. All you have to do to enter is to write a short limerick (about 25 words) describing practically any old thing that comes to mind, girls, professors, classes, or what have you. Each week, we'll print the best (to quote Mr. Draughton) "within the bounds of decency." We should get some pretty funny stuff if you characters will get on the ball and write to us.

The newly formed State College Drama Club received a "Highest Award Rating" on Saturday, April 14 at the conclusion of the 33rd Annual Carolina Drama Festival held at the University of North Carolina. The State College entry, "John Brown's Body," which was presented on Thursday evening at the opening session of the festival, was one of the six groups out of 21 productions to be awarded a highest rating. Russell M. Grumman, director of the UNC Extension Division who presented the awards read the State College certificate to an enthusiastic audience, many of who realized this was the first attempt at an organized campus drama group here in over twenty years. The judges for the evening of State's presentation were Louise Lamont, director of the Children's Theater in Chapel Hill and featured actress in many Carolina Playmaker's productions; Foster Fitz-Simmons, author of the novel "Bright Leaf," choreographer for "Horn in the West," and member of the UNC faculty; and Kai Jurgeson, member of the UNC faculty and director for "Horn in the West." Positions are still open on the technical staff for this play, and persons who are interested are asked to contact George Thomason, chairman of the College Union Theater Committee and director for "My Three Angels."

I was a failure!

Brother, when I think of those lonely nights I used to spend. When I think of the scorn and derision cruel women heaped upon me. When I think . . . oh well, it's all behind me now. Everything changed on that fateful moment just one week ago.

That was the day I bought an After Six Dinner Jacket. With the stealth of an international jewel thief, I smuggled it up to my room. Then, with the doors and windows securely bolted, I hastily tried it on. What a change! Immediately, my muscles bulged. I was taller, slimmer, brimming over with brand-new pep and vigor.

Get rid of that pallid complexion, that feeling of inadequacy. Get back your self-confidence with a light new, bright new Super Stain-Shy After Six Dinner Jacket.

Danforth Chapel Dedicated Sunday

North Carolina State College dedicated its new non-denominational Danforth Chapel during formal rites at the college Sunday afternoon.

In the principal dedicatory address, Dr. Carey H. Bostian, chancellor of the college, hailed the $42,000 structure, which forms a part of the present YMCA Building, as an asset to the spiritual life of the campus and declared, "Religious thought of the most profound nature should find expression in this Chapel."

Dr. Bostian was presented by Acting President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, who joined Chancellor Bostian in expressing appreciation to the donors and in paying tribute to the late William H. Danforth of St. Louis, Mo., former president of the Danforth Chapel, whose gift helped build the chapel.

Formal presentation of the chapel to the college was made by Kenneth I. Brown of St. Louis, Mo., executive director of the Danforth Foundation. Accepting on behalf of the college was James M. Stewart of Norlina, president of the College YMCA.

The invocation was spoken by Edward S. King, former general secretary of the College "Y". Scripture readings were given by Rabbi Harry N. Caplan
