Students Attend ACP Convention

Four State College men returned Saturday from a three-day stay in New York City where they attended the annual Associated Collegiate Press Convention.

At the convention were 936 college journalists representing 205 colleges. Students attended from thirty-eight states, the District of Columbia, and Canada.

The convention began Thursday night and lasted through Saturday afternoon. Lectures, panel discussions, displays and workshops for college newspaper, yearbook, and magazine staff members were included. The informal exchange of ideas during and outside the regular meetings completed the overall program.

The four State men were: Dick Chalmers and Alex Hall, Editor and Business Manager, respectively, of the Agromock; and David Barnhardt and Loyd Kirk, Editor and Business Manager, respectively, of The Technician.

Flu Shots
1000 Flu Shots will be available on Tuesday for students who failed to get shots last week. These will be given tomorrow between 12:30 and 3:00 p.m. at the Coliseum. Enter Northeast side door.

Danforth Chapel
A Chapel service is held each Wednesday at 12:40 in the Danforth Chapel. This Wednesday, November 6, Rev. Neil Lindley will speak on "The House on the Rock and The House on the Sand."

Graduate Dames'
The Graduate Dames Club will meet Tuesday night at 8:00 p.m. in Room 258 of the College Union. Nancy Rothrock will speak on "Cooking on a Budget." Also new members will be initiated.

Annual Air Force Inspection
The annual Air Force ROTC at State College will be held on Dec. 9-10. A formal inspection of the cadet corps will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Dec. 10. AFROTC cadets and members of the State College Band will be excused from conflicting classes during this period.

The Marine Corps has 25 vacancies for NCSC students in the Platoon Leaders Class Program. (See COVERING CAMPUS, page 4)

Cafeteria food, intercollegiate athletics, and appropriations to organizations were among the items of business at a meeting of Student Legislature last Thursday night.

Senator Hinson of the Investigation's Committee reported on student complaints concerning food preparation in the college cafeteria. It was suggested that this problem be studied by a professional dietician or a person better qualified than a student.

Athletic Questionnaire
Tabulated results of the student questionnaire recently distributed on the campus on intercollegiate athletics will be submitted to the Faculty Senate. The Senate requested that Student Government take this survey in order to better understand student opinion on the matter.

Bill Graham, Treasurer of Golden Chain, came before the Legislature with a request for $550. On a move by Student Government Treasurer Brooks, only $520 was allotted them. Blue Key received their full request of $182.18 for this year's expenditures.

The matter of dismissal of classes for the homecoming parade in the future, and the question of whether or not to make women student's housing compulsory when available were referred to various committees of the Student Legislature for further study.

Mock Assembly Arouses Criticism

North Carolina Student Legislators, meeting in mock Assembly from Thursday until Saturday, stirred up quite a hornet's nest when a resolution which called on all states to rescind laws and constitutional provisions against intermarriage was passed Friday.

Congressman Harold Cooley, who spoke Saturday at the Assembly's closing session, said, "You have shocked the sensibilities of our people. I regret very much the actions taken by this Assembly."

Reports of the bill in Saturday's News and Observer brought about a resolution which was passed Saturday by the legislators, condemning the newspaper for reporting that the legislators "gave their approval to interracial marriages." The purpose of the bill, reported student legislators, was to repeal present laws, not to give the Legislature's stamp of approval to racial intermarriage.

Engineers' Ball Features "Sputnik"

Skirts will be a-twirlin' and "sputnik" will be a-whirlin' in the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum on Saturday evening, November 23, from 8 til 12.

The event scheduled is the Engineers' Ball sponsored by the Engineers' Council, the student governing body of the School of Engineering.

Using an outer space theme for their only formal dance of the year, engineering students are developing their own North Carolina State College "sputnik" to be launched in a Coliseum orbit. As dancers circle the floor, so will the satellite circle overhead.

The Collegians from East Carolina College will furnish music for the evening.

Everett J. Poindexter, CE senior who is vice president of the Council and dance chairman, announced that plans are being made to make this one of the year's outstanding social affairs on the college campus.

Flu Poll Report Available Thurs.

Because students are still sending in clippings from The Technician on the "Flu Vs. Lessons" poll which we ran on November 4, we will not make a final report on this poll until this Thursday.

Any student still wishing to send in a clipping has until 8:00 p.m. Wednesday night to get this to The Technician Office. Clippings may be sent by Campus Mail.

Freshmen Vote Tuesday To Fill Seventeen Offices

Tomorrow will be Election Day at State for approximately 1500 Freshmen. Seventy-nine men will be vying for the seventeen offices.

Precincts

Ballot boxes will be placed in four places on the campus. Freshmen in Agriculture, Textiles, and Forestry must cast their votes in the College Union; Education Students will vote in Tompkins Hall; Engineering students will vote in Riddick Building; and Design students will cast their votes in Brooks Hall.

Freshmen must cast their votes in the places designated because the new ID card do not specify the class or curriculum of the student, and only in the designated places will the men in charge of the polls have a list of the freshmen in the schools scheduled to vote at that place.

Since there is no primary in the freshman elections, the man receiving the highest number of votes will be declared the winner, except in the senatorial races where there are several winners. Those with the most votes will win in this case.

The Technician will carry the election results on Thursday.

Graduate Students Name Officers

Progress of the one year old Graduate Student Association was emphasized at a meeting held last week. Twenty-five departments having graduate students were represented at the meeting.

The first issue of the Graduate Student's Monthly News Letter has been sent to department heads throughout the college. Graduate students should pick up their copies.

Included in the news letter is information on: plans for a dance to be held this term; progress in needed reforms on tuition charges; and a lecture series, which will become a reality if the response to a questionnaire attached to this month's news letter is encouraging.

Officers of the Association for this school year are: James Mason, president; Jim Leatherworth, vice-president; Bill Thompson, treasurer; Frank Pethal, recording secretary; and Charles DePoe, corresponding secretary.

Committee chairmen are: Jim Smith, elections; Clyde Donoko, social; Stephen Kaye, lectures; John Murphy, publicity; Jim Featherwood, constitution and by-laws; Foster Cady, policy advisory; and Bill Thompson, finance committee.

Portentous Signs Signal Trouble For Cafeteria

Three announcements from different sectors of the campus last week furnish the signs for the prediction that the Cafeteria is in for trouble—both now and in future years.

From the Student Legislature came talk of the poor food preparation at the Cafeteria. The Board of Directors of the College Union discussed plans for a new College Union near the dormitories with enlarged facilities for feeding students. And from the Cafeteria itself came the announcement of curtailment of regular Sunday morning cafeteria service.

The campus is both figuratively and literally moving away from the Cafeteria. More students are eating at nearby restaurants and cafeterias where the food is better and, in many cases, no more expensive.

The new 800-man dormitory is being built nearly one mile away from the Cafeteria. Long-range plans call for other new buildings to be built on the opposite end of the campus from the Cafeteria.

These signs should certainly provide some homework for the Cafeteria management. Immediate attention should be given the quality of food now being served. And further study should be given the possibility of relocating the Cafeteria.

Conventions Provide Ideas

Conventions are usually broadening experiences. Ideas and technical know-how are shared freely and benefit all who attend.

The Associated Collegiate Press Convention, held last week in New York, was no exception. Over 900 college journalists were there to discuss with others their problems and experiences.

In addition to the college men and women, professional journalists—an editorial writer, a reporter, a photographer, and a novelist—spoke to the students to give them a general, overall view of journalists work.

The most valuable part of the convention, however, was the "idea exchange" sessions—the panel discussions. Here questions were asked and problems stated. Others then told what they had done when similar situations had arisen at their schools. In this way, a multitude of ideas were thrown out by and to those attending.

There were, unfortunately, (though not unexpectedly) a few delegates who wasted both their school's money and their own time by going to New York. These people attended few, if any, meetings . . . they were too busy either "partying" or recovering from a party the night before. It would have been better had these men and women "stood at home."

For the large majority, however, the convention was most beneficial. The 205 colleges which sent delegates should realize a net gain from their expenditure.

Though some tangible improvements will result from sending delegates to such a convention, there will be other, intangible gains for both the schools and the delegates.

The precedent of sending students to such conventions is an excellent one and should not be broken in future years.

Veteran's Corner

Due to the flu epidemic and the absence of proper publicity, the attendance at the regular Veteran's Association meeting on November 4 was not up to par.

Plans were made to hold our first "Stag Social" sometime this month. A special committee headed by Phil Kannon was appointed to complete the plans. His report will be made at the meeting on November 18 at 7 o'clock in the College Union Theater. Veterans who are interested in joining this proposed "outing" are urged to attend for complete information.

The meeting will consist of a very brief business meeting followed by the guest speaker, Mr. E. W. Waugh. Mr. Waugh will present an interesting talk on the expansion of State College. If you have questions on housing, the stadium, fraternity row, cars, or anything at all about the physical plant of State College in the future, be present and have the chance to ask someone who knows.

Letters to the Editor:

Students Fear Encroachment On Holidays

We the undersigned collected these questionnaires. We collected one from every person on the second floor of Syme who felt that they could honestly answer. No suggestion was made as to how to fill out the questionnaires. In other words, each person made up his own mind.

One junior hadn't been to class for so long that he felt he couldn't honestly fill out the questionnaire.

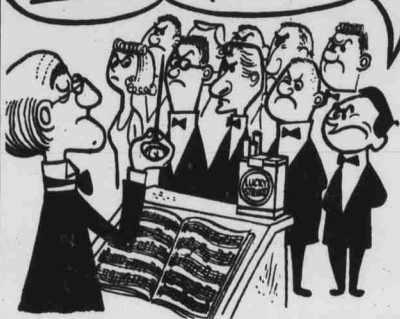

The most prevalent worry was that the Christmas holidays would be encroached on to make up for lost time.

We hope that this group of questionnaires will help out with your poll.

to present Coach Earle Edwards with a birthday present of a win over the Indians.

Christy Picks Up 101 Yards
But all events of the afternoon were not disheartening. Dick Christy, State's All-America half-back candidate, turned in another brilliant performance as he scored the only touchdown for the Pack and picked up 101 yards in 12 carries for an 8.4 average.

Statistic-wise, State also played one of its best games of the season in some departments. They picked up 14 first downs while they had been averaging 11 in the first seven games.

The Pack also picked up 195 yards on the ground and 71 through the air, which bettered the average in both departments. In seven games before Saturday, State had averaged 186 yards rushing and 45 passing.

Playing like a fired-up Pordunk College of Music and Literature against the mighty Oklahoma Sooners, the lowly Indians of William and Mary gave the State Wolfpack their first defeat of the season as they whipped them, 7-6, before a shocked crowd of 11,000 in Riddick Stadium last Saturday.

It was Homecoming Day at State, and also the last home game for the Wolfpack, and all the faithful State fans were there in full force trying to get one last glimpse of a team that could win the Atlantic Coast Conference title and a high final national ranking. In addition to this, the team was trying hard

Unable to Keep It Up

But in spite of this, the West Raleigh brigade was unable to keep anything going. Fumbles and intercepted passes were the culprits when several potential State scoring drives were nipped in the bud.

State's streak of luck with the pre-game toss ran out Saturday as team Captain Dick Hunter failed to call the toss correctly for the first time this season, and the Pack had to kick off. To a great many of the Wolfpack fans, this was an ill omen, and the moans were heard from all directions.

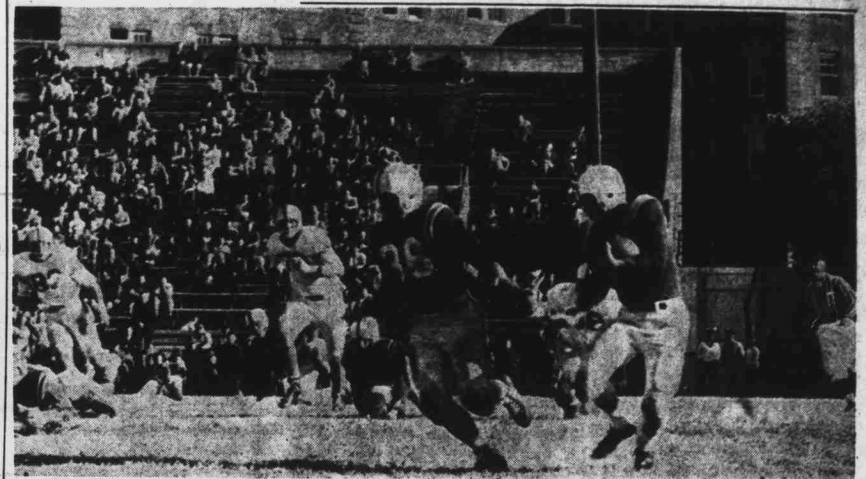

After the kickoff the Indians were unable to move for more than one first down, and they punted to the Pack 28. On the first play, Hunter drove to the 30.

State Hits Pay Dirt

The second play from scrimmage was State's only scoring play of the game. QB Tom Katichek faked off to a halfback and then handed in to big fullback Don Hafer. Hafer bulled through the Tribe line and couldn't be stopped until he reached the Indian one.

At the one, W&M halfback Jack Yohe hit Hafer, and the big boy fumbled into the end zone. As usual, Christy was there and he pounced on the ball for the score. On the try for the point, Hunter couldn't find the mark, and the score remained 6-0.

From that point early in the first quarter until midway the last period, things moved rather slow. The primary thought in everyone's mind was "When is State going to break loose and

Lad Daniels Issues Campaign Statement

After announcing his candidacy for the office of Freshman Class President, Lad Daniels had this statement to make to The Technician:

"Tomorrow we, the Freshman Class, will go to the polls to vote for the persons whom we will want to serve as our leaders for the remainder of the school year. Voting in this election is not something for us to think lightly upon, for upon our decision rests the fate of our class. Therefore I urge each of you to vote on the basis of qualifications and moral outlook rather than personal gain.

In voting for President, keep in mind that we want a person who will organize our class behind various programs, including the Freshman-Sophomore dance; who will represent our class to the best of his ability; and who will devote much time to the successful operation of our school. After considering these qualifications, I, Lad Daniels, sincerely hope that you will feel that you can place your confidence in me for your Freshman Class President."

Graham Teams With Leveque

Word has just been received that Mike Graham, an outstanding candidate for the Presidency of the Class of '61, has combined campaign forces with Pierre Leveque, Jr., a leading candidate for the Vice presidency of the Freshman Class and Senator from the School of Engineering.

Pierre Leveque, who is running for both the vice presidency and a Senatorship, joined forces with Mike Graham in supporting Graham's Great Goal, to get the Greatest Graduating Class ever—in '61.

Leveque, a freshman in nuclear engineering from Oxford, N. C., has been active in debating and speaking societies in high school. He was recently named a delegate to the 21st annual Student Legislature which convened on November 7, 8, and 9.
