Fr. - So. Dance Is Saturday Night

This Saturday afternoon and night, the annual Freshman-Sophomore weekend will be in full swing.

This year, the weekend will have a new feature; on Saturday afternoon, a "Bermuda Hop" will be held in Frank Thompson Gymnasium. Highly informal, the idea is to have a casual afternoon of dancing to a combo from Chapel Hill, "The Tops." The Dance Committee suggests that men come dressed as they pleased (within reason) and perhaps bring blankets to sit on when they are not dancing. The Hop will last from 2-4 Saturday afternoon, and refreshments will be served.

Saturday night will see the big band of Count Basic with Joe Williams providing the music for the formal dance. The dance will start at 8:00 p.m. in the Coliseum and will last until midnight. The decorations for the dance will center around an underwater theme, and will be provided through the services of a professional decorating company from Charlotte.

Symphony Band Will Present Concerts

The North Carolina State College Symphony Band will present a series of outdoor concerts during the month of May. These will be presented on Tuesday and Thursday nights of May 6, 8, 13, and 15 from 7:00 to 7:45.

The concerts will feature a variety of music including popular and some classical tunes. A number of special solos and ensembles will be presented. These include a trumpet trio, two cor-

"We are hoping that this weekend will follow the tradition of past successful dances, and we are looking for big support at both the 'Hop' and the Dance."

New Landscaping Program Begun

The State College campus is in the process of having its face lifted.

Members of the N. C. Nurserymen's Association have contributed 4000 shrubs and trees for a major landscaping job here.

The landscaping is under the direction of J. McCree Smith, head of the M&O. According to Mr. Smith, the objective of the project is "to make the State College campus an arboretum containing indigenous trees, shrubs, and exotic plants which thrive in this area."

"The contribution of N. C. Nurserymen," said Smith, "is helping the college in a program designed to give State one of the most outstanding college campuses in the country from the standpoint of physical appearance."

Species of flora which have been donated to the college include hollies, flowering trees, azaleas, camellias, evergreens, roses, and shade trees.

Identification for the plants will be provided to enable students and visitors to readily recognize the plants.

SG Constitutional Revisions Change Judicial System

Tonight, Student Government will start the discussion for final approval of the revised Student Government constitution.

The Committee on Constitutional Revision, headed by Ray Fountain, has been working on the revision for many weeks, and it is anticipated that the Student Government will iron out the details by Tuesday, May 6.

Changes in the constitution centered primarily in revision of the Judicial system. At this writing, the new system will have four different sections; the Honor Code Board, which will try all Honor Code violations; a Men's Campus Code Board (all men) and a Women's Campus Code Board (all women), for the trial of Campus Code violations; and a summer Judicial Board.

As before, all meetings and trials of the various Boards will be closed to the student body. Since campus elections have already been decided under the old constitution, the President of S.G. will appoint the members to the Men's and Women's Campus Code Boards, but his appointments must be approved by three-fourths vote of S.G. (See CONSTITUTION, page 4)

Alumni Weekend Starts Tomorrow

Hundreds of former students of North Carolina State College are expected to attend the annual "Alumni Weekend" program at the institution Friday and Saturday.

H. W. (Pop) Taylor, director of alumni affairs, said a wide range of events will be presented for the entertainment of the visiting alumni.

A registration desk will be open in the College Union Building Friday from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Class luncheons will be held Friday at 12:30 p.m. Campus tours will follow from 2 until 4 p.m.

A baseball game between the University of South Carolina and N. C. State is set for the college baseball field Friday at 3:30 p.m.

The annual alumni reception is scheduled in the College Union Building Friday from 4 to 5:30 p.m.

Class reunion dinners will be held Friday at 6:30 p.m. at various places on the campus and at various Raleigh restaurants.

Informal alumni gatherings will be held in the College Union Building Friday at 9 p.m.

Highlights of Saturday's schedule will be the annual alumni luncheon in the College Union Building at 12:30 p.m. and a baseball game between Clemson and N. C. State at 3 p.m.

Other Saturday features will be "Ag Day" at the college dairy farm, campus tours, and a hospitality hour in the Alumni Memorial Room of the newly-completed Alumni Building.

Leslie N. Boney, Jr., of Wilmington is president of the State College Alumni Association.

Run - Off Elections Fill 43 Campus Offices

Final elections were held last Tuesday to determine office-holders for 1958-59. Only 25% of the student body cast votes in the run-off election.

Last week, primary elections were held which determined the finalists for the run-off. Named as Senior Class officers in the run-off election were Arron Capel of Troy, president; Tom Gilmore of Julian, vice president; and Bobby Deaton of Morganton, treasurer.

Junior Class officers will be Dave Thomas of Asheville, president; Ben Sugg of Kinston, vice president; Bill Morrison of Burlington, secretary; and Jim Moore of Rocky Mount, treasurer.

Terry Brooks of Raleigh and Joel Ray of Asheville will be secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Sophomore Class.

The new secretary of the Interfraternity Council will be Bob Davis of Salisbury.

Eddie Barringer was named president of the Tompkins Textile Council.

Dick Hunter of Leechburg, Pa., will receive the Alumni Athletic Trophy.

New members of the Judicial Board, by classes, are:

Senior Class: Gene Butler of Wilmington and Bill Rearick of DuBois, Pa.

Junior Class: Thomas Hewitt of Newton and Tommy Krimminger of Mt. Pleasant.

Representing the Senior Class on the Athletic Council will be Bud Warren of Raleigh and Joseph Rodri of Downingtown, Pa., while Jim Moore of Rocky Mount will represent the Junior Class.

College Union representatives will be Jim Anderson of Asheville from the Senior Class and Speed Williams of Raleigh from the Junior Class.

The following students were named as senators to the student legislature:

Fourth Annual Ag Day To Be Held Saturday

The Fourth Annual Ag Day will be held this Saturday in the Dairy Pavilion at the College Dairy Farm. In case of rain, it will be moved to the State Fair Arena, due to the crowded conditions at the Dairy Farm. All Ag students will be excused from their classes and transportation will be provided by the buses.

The various contests actually begin on Friday afternoon. There will be several judging contests, such as Livestock Judging, Dairy Judging, Poultry Judging, etc., which all students are invited to enter.

Saturday is going to be the big day. The livestock will be exhibited Saturday morning and completed by lunch time. Saturday afternoon is going to be devoted entirely to recreation. There are going to be softball games, horse shoes, sack races, and possibly volley ball.

Saturday evening every Ag student and staff member is invited to the Ag Picnic at the Dairy Pavilion. Immediately after the picnic, there will be an awards ceremony, with prizes being given to the winners of the various contests.

Then after the Awards Ceremony, everyone is invited to an old-fashioned Barn Dance in the loft of the Dairy Barn.

All Ag students and staff are urged to attend and to bring their dates or wives.

Pub. Board Says 'No' To Wolfpack

By David Barnhardt

The Publications Board formally and flatly turned down a counter-proposal by the Wolfpack Club last night. Not a single vote was cast in favor of the latest plan by the Wolfpack Club to clear up the $31,000 debt it owes the College Print Shop for work done as far back as twelve years ago.

In March, College Business Manager J. G. Vann drew up a proposal which would have wiped out the Wolfpack debt in exchange for a reduction of the amount of equity in the Print Shop owned by the Wolfpack Club.

Under the proposal by Vann, the equity in the Print Shop of the Wolfpack Club would have been reduced from 33 1/2 per cent to 20 per cent and the share of the business owned by the Publications Board and the Alumni Association would have been raised to 40 per cent.

Also under the original proposal, the Wolfpack Club would have the option to buy back its equity within five years on the same basis that it was surrendered; that is, based on a percentage of the net worth of the business at the time they buy back.

The counter-proposal presented last night by the Wolf Club was the same as the Vann proposal except for the part concerning buying back the equity in the future.

The Wolfpack Club asked that ten years, rather than five, be allowed for the Wolfpack Club to buy back its equity. Also, the proposal asked that the Wolfpack Club have the privilege of buying back for cash its fractional equity for the sum of $36,000 (the cash value of the equity now being surrendered) plus 5 per cent per annum.

On this final point the Publications Board balked. The argument against this point was that it did not adequately take into consideration the fact that the net worth of the Print Shop in ten years would be a great deal more than it is now.

The Board felt that the Wolfpack Club should be given the privilege of a ten-year option to buy back, but that it should not be allowed to buy back its equity on any other terms than those under which the equity is surrendered.

James Brasswell will be featured in a trumpet solo in the first of four concerts to be presented by the State Symphonic Band on Tuesday night at 7 p.m. on the College Union Terrace. Photo by Kjosnes.

Two-Party System Here?

Next year, we at State may very well see an explosive proposition come before the student body . . . a serious proposition of a party system to control campus politics.

At present, there are several prominent campus leaders definitely in favor of a party system, and there is much opposition to it also. It is fairly certain that any definite move will await the fall semester, but it may be well for those of us who will return to State to start thinking seriously of both the advantages and disadvantages of political parties.

North Carolina's Secretary of State, Thad Eure, speaking recently before the annual Leadership Banquet at State, expressed very strong approval of a system of political parties at our college. He believes it would both stimulate interest in campus political activities and also be instrumental in teaching college students how a party system works in a practical sense.

In a majority of colleges and universities the size of State, there are political parties in existence. These parties have had a definite effect on campus life, and even the most rabid critics of political parties have to admit that more interest is stimulated when there is competition between two campus parties.

The primary problem in establishing parties is this: just how will the parties be determined, how will the campus be divided? The answer to this question will decide whether or not a party system will be successful at State or merely a dangerous alignment of one prejudiced group against another.

Those of you who will be returning next year should begin now to think seriously about such a two-party system for State. —RL

Coats and/or Ties . . .

Technician columnist John Cocke most effectively and picturesquely presents a picture this week of the dress of many of the State College students.

We have long felt that a better-dressed student body would lend much credit to our campus.

We are, therefore, seeking to inaugurate a new idea (style, tradition, etc.) at State.

Our idea is this: Each Friday is to be coat and/or tie day. Tomorrow, and every Friday thereafter, we are asking the students to wear either a coat and tie or simply a white shirt and a tie. (And on these days, students might carry their slide rules with their books instead of wearing them like holsters!)

If you like the idea of a better dressed student body, if you think it would add a little to the campus in general, take part tomorrow in our little adventure . . .

Wear a coat and/or tie to class tomorrow! —DB

Will Integration Be Forced On Fraternities?

A study of reports which the heads of the fraternities at Williams College were required to make recently to the College's Board of Trustees discloses that 12 of the 15 social units are free to elect to membership any individual on the basis of his merits as a person.

The reports on discrimination in fraternities was requested by the Board following a survey made last year by the Phillips Committee, a student group. In a statement President J. P. Baxter reiterated the Trustees' stand against discrimination in the social units. Dr. Baxter's statement follows:

"All fifteen fraternities on the Williams campus have replied to my letter of inquiry. Twelve have assured me in explicit terms that the undergraduates of the chapter are free to elect to membership any individual on the basis of his merits as a person.

"The Trustees' committee will pursue the matter further with the (other) three fraternities to ascertain when action will be taken to clarify and, if necessary, to remedy the situation. The Board is unanimously of the opinion that no fraternity should be permitted to operate on the Williams campus whose Williams chapter is not free to elect to membership any individual on the basis of his merit as a person.

"The Board welcomes any action taken by the graduates of any fraternity chapter to improve its management, conduct and scholarship, but is opposed to restraint forcing the undergraduates to practice discrimination on the basis of race, creed, or color."

Campus Really Not So Bad

by Chuck Lombard

It has been nice to walk between classes the last few weeks (when it wasn't raining, that is.)

Anyone who has taken the time to look will recall that there was rich green grass (where we haven't stomped it into muddy obscurity.) The azaleas and cherry trees were blooming in well-kept gardens up near the cafeteria.

I saw where men were planting new shrubbery around the library and I felt pride in the fact that ours was a fresh, growing campus.

The weather, the world, was so brilliant that I even forgot to notice that a couple of the paths I walked on weren't paved.

Perhaps I saw what others continue to miss — that our campus has improved a great deal and is not the eyesore the blind cynics profess.

Perhaps the reader of this column will merely laugh at the above reverie. I hope not. Perhaps my joy was somewhat idealistic. My point, however, is well made by those who laugh.

On every campus there are three classes of people. The first class is the largest and is composed of people who "just work here." These people rarely have an opinion of their own but just voice the accepted gripes.

The second class goes around looking for something original to gripe about. This type doesn't really care that anything constructive is done to improve the situation—he just likes to hear himself talk.

Then there is the third kind who is sadly in the minority. This man tries to gripe constructively. When things aren't going right, he stands up and says so.

But this man must have his eyes open for the good in his life too. One of the good things in our lives at State is the effort of our administration and M&O Department to beautify this campus.

Let's look around when we're changing classes, men, and try to see our campus as it really is—not all good, but not so bad either.

With a positive attitude to our campus and our world we can rise above the "six thousand apes" and be accomplisheers and enjoyers and not just jabberers.

WAY OUT . . .

with John Cocke

I was walking past the bookstore the other day feeling serene and peaceful and warm in the April sunshine when, turning a corner, I happened to notice a rather depressing sight leaning up against a wall. My calmness was instantly shattered to fragments. My fingers quivered spasmodically.

He was standing there thumbing through an old copy of Reader's Digest. The tail of his wrinkled green and yellow plaid shirt was out over his filthy, ill-fitting khaki pants; and from his belt hung the omnipresent slide rule. He had "State College" written all over him.

Feeling a wave of aggression pass over me I walked over to him and said, "Hey, buddy." My subject lowered his magazine and looked slowly around at me, his mouth slightly open. "How fast can you draw that thing?" I said.

"What? Whudda 'ya mean?" "That slide rule. How fast can you draw it? Think you could beat Matt Dillon?"

He seemed utterly dismayed and appalled and stood there frozen for a second or two. Then he pushed himself away from the wall, mumbled something incoherent, and shuffled off toward Syme dorm. The smell of his hair tonic and the trail of dried clay from his scuffed-up shoes are not very pleasant memories. But still they linger on.

This prompted me to take a good look around. It was between classes and people were rushing by, hurrying for probably no reason at all; for they had a good five minutes before the next bell. Maybe they were all eagerly anticipating their next lectures, but I am inclined to doubt it. Anyway they were coming by from all directions, and I couldn't help noticing that about half of them had slide rules slapping against their legs. Really collegiate, I thought. One guy was really sharp. He had the free end of his strapped down by what looked like a garter. I sincerely hope it wasn't, but it still bothers me sometimes when I think about it. And within the next three or four minutes I saw no less than a dozen who were fitted out in tee-shirts and dirty blue denim overalls. Very neat, I thought to myself. Is this place really a college campus?

I looked around at the buildings. They weren't much help either. I looked down at the muddy cinder walkway and over at the pockmarked road. No support there. Then the bell rang and I was alone with my thoughts.

I had no class that period (fortunately); so, depressed, I walked past the administration building and down toward the entrance at Hillsboro. The trees by the side of the road and over by the Tower had come out, and the air was filled with the delicate smells of spring. My spirits began to rise a little.

I took in a big lungful of air, let it back out slowly, and continued on down among the magnolias to where the walkway, concrete for a change, opens onto Hillsboro Street from between the pair of red brick columns. "North Carolina State College. Speed limit 20 m.p.h." the sign said in big red letters.

Maybe it is a college after all, I thought. The sign says so. But then that doesn't mean anything. What makes this place is the people here, and their attitude, which is probably expressed in their clothes.

Oh, the style doesn't really matter; there's no accounting for taste. But you'd think people could at least be clean. At least they could change their underwear and go to the trouble of putting on a clean shirt once every few days.

I did an about-face—ROTC style—and walked back up toward Holladay Hall, crossed the street continuing on by the Tower, then between the hedges and across the grass to the cafeteria. There was a crowd of students standing around in front waiting impatiently for it to open. They were jostling each other around and looked like grimy little grammar school kids rather than college students. Without any difficulty at all, I could picture them all sitting cross-legged in front of a TV screen bobbing their heads up and down in time to Lawrence Welk's "champagne music" or watching the Mickey Mouse show.

"Turn off the bubble machine," I murmured to myself . . . and walked away.

Now, I didn't rent it - I'm just lucky to have a roommate who owns a tux.

Football Offers More Than Science?

From Assoc. Collegiate Press "Whoever is foremost in the world of science, their way will be the world's way," Dr. Edward Teller, father of the H-bomb said at Western Reserve University, reported the Reserve Tribune.

"Russian children have a very real incentive for becoming scientists," he said. "Only in the scientific field can they be reasonably certain of comfort, security, and respect."

In America, Dr. Teller contrasted, children learn education is boring, illogical and difficult. Football offers many more tangible rewards than does science.

State Graduate Makes Discovery

By Billy Evans

A State College alumnus and former slave boy in a Turkish harem has discovered a new variety of Liberian coffee which could revolutionize Liberia's coffee industry.

Jack T. Jackson

Jack Toro Jackson, agricultural extension adviser for the International Co-operation Administration in Liberia, found the new variety in Liberia's Gola Forest growing on a fifteen foot tree estimated to be between 10 and 12 years of age.

A former resident of Raleigh, Jackson is well known to thousands of State College graduates, staff members, and other residents of the Capital City.

A search of the area revealed no other similar trees, which led to the theory that the new discovery is a mutation.

The yield of the tree was estimated at three pecks and all of the berries were bright red in color, which according to Jackson, indicates that they had all ripened almost simultaneously, which is unique for a coffee tree.

Experiments are being carried out with the new variety at the Central Experimental Station at Suakoko, Liberia. The amount of time required for harvesting the new variety would be substantially reduced if ripening is simultaneous for the berries.

$60,500 In Supplements Approved

The Board of Directors of the North Carolina Engineering Foundation, in a meeting at State last week, approved salary supplements totaling $60,557 for top-ranking administrative and faculty leaders in the college's School of Engineering.

In a special report, L. L. Ray, director of foundations at State and secretary of the Engineering Foundation, said income to the Engineering Foundation since the last audit period on August 31 has amounted to a total of $207,530.79—a record-breaking sum in any one year for the Foundation.

The Foundation's income since August brings its total income since it was established in 1944 to more than $1,000,000.

The organization currently is supporting a wide range of teaching and research programs in the State College School of Engineering, North Carolina's principal center of engineering and technology.

George P. Geoghagan, Jr., of Raleigh, vice president of the Foundation, reported on recent fund-raising efforts within the State and said the Foundation has set as an annual goal a total of $250,000.

Principal aim of the Foundation is to retain and attract a staff of the nation's most eminent engineers and engineering educators for teaching and research duties at State College. In a brief talk, Dr. Carey H. Bostian, chancellor of State College, expressed appreciation to the Engineering Foundation for its help in making the college "a superior institution." "No Land-Grant College or State University," Dr. Bostian declared, "has ever really become really eminent and superior without outside help."

ME Senior Wins Contest

Charles E. Feltner of Raleigh, mechanical engineering senior at North Carolina State College, took top honors in the Student Technical Papers contest at the Southeastern Conference Meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held at Nashville, Tennessee last week.

Feltner's paper entitled "The Design and Development of a Fatigue Testing Machine for Axial Load Applied by Resonant Vibration" was selected out of a group of twelve on the basis of imagination, originality, and presentation.

He received a cash award and an expense-paid trip to Detroit, Michigan, to compete with winners from several other regions throughout the country in the National Contest scheduled for June 15-17.

"We are very proud of the outstanding record young Feltner has made since his enrollment at N. C. State College," said professor Karl P. Hanson, head of the Mechanical Engineering Department.

Feltner has made a high scholastic average at the engineering school and has a 3.66 average. In his junior year, he was awarded the Superior Cable Corporation Scholarship.

He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic society; Tau Beta Pi, national engineering society.

Symphony To Appear

The North Carolina Symphony will appear in Raleigh on Wednesday, May 7 at the Josephus Daniel Junior High School at 8:30 p.m.

Soloist will be pianist Fred Sahlmann. A program of classical music to please every taste has been chosen.

The program will open with Dvorak's Carnival Overture, and Schumann's Symphony No. IV in D minor played by the Orchestra.

After a brief intermission, Mr. Sahlmann will join the symphony to present Mozart's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in E flat major.

The orchestra will conclude the program with excerpts from Stravinsky's ballet suite "The Firebird."

The North Carolina Symphony is nationally known as an outstanding musical organization. It was the first Symphony Orchestra to receive State support. Each year for the past 13 consecutive years the Symphony has toured the cities and hamlets of the State, playing over 100 concerts annually. More than half these concerts are free for school children.

Greatly responsible for the success of the Symphony is its director, Benjamin Swalin. Dr. Swalin reorganized the floundering N. C. Symphony in 1939 and since that time has built it into an organization known as a pioneer in music education.

Diploma Fee Breakdown Is Given By Peden

Several members of the Senior class have asked about the $9.00 Diploma bill. Jim Peden, President of the Senior class, has given a break-down on the areas of expenditure, and says that Dean Stewart will be glad to show any senior the total budget for the bill.

The breakdown is as follows:
Cap and gown rental—$2.83
Diploma (genuine sheepskin)—$2.35
Diploma holder—$2.00
Seniors' reception, Senior dance, Commencement speaker, and programs with list of graduates' names—$1.82
Total—$9.00.

Peden added the following: "I think that many of you will agree with me that actually the $9.00 we pay for graduation exercises and a diploma are nominal. If it were not for the expected number of close to 1,000 of us graduating, I can assure you that each would have to pay more than the $9.00.

"Information on the graduation exercises and Good Wife Diplomas will be mailed to each of you within a week.

"I would like to take this opportunity to mention that the class gift has been decided upon. We will have brick steps leading from Hillsboro Street towards the side entrance of the D. H. Hill Library. We should have enough money to build a short wall on either side of the steps if a few more of you would like to donate to the class gift. Send any donations to me (Jim Peden), 2514 Clark Ave."

A new appeal system will be inaugurated, called the Board of Reviewal this Board of Review will consist of both faculty and students. Members to this appeal Board will be appointed from the student body at large. A defendant has the sole responsibility to show that new evidence is available that may affect the decision of the first trial, or he may appeal if an error in proceedings has taken place in the first trial.

The Board of Review has the following characteristics: 1) The Board cannot increase a penalty; 2) the Board may simply uphold the decision of the first trial; 3) the Board may re-evaluate and change (decrease or otherwise alter) the first decision; 3) the Board may acquit the defendant.

Other changes in the overall Constitution include the creation of a separate Executive department in S.G., and it is assumed the powers and duties are defined; the Executive branch will consist of the four main officers of Student Government.

Also, the committee is suggesting for approval that anyone who gives up an elected office (scholastic difficulty, etc.) will not be able to run for an elected office the following year.

Another committee was also added to S.G., the Academic Affairs Committee, which will advise Administration on such matters as grading systems, testing, teaching standards, etc.

It is the hope of the Revision Committee that the new Constitution will be approved by next Tuesday; it then may have to go before the Faculty Senate for approval, and then have the approval of the Chancellor and President of the Consolidated University.

After these approvals, the new Constitution will be printed and distributed to each student for study; and last, the students must approve the Constitution by a two-thirds majority.

The International Club of the YWCA meets Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. Informal dancing will follow the program, so members are asked to bring dates.

Wolfpack Succumbs To Carolina Heels, 7-0

It was a case of having to take this one for the Pack, but the young Tarheels of North Carolina had just a little better day as they eased the West Raleigh boys right out of the ACC title race with a 7-0 victory in a game played at the State field Tuesday.

With that loss, it is virtually impossible for the Wolfpack to finish in the qualifying position for the crown. They now have a 9-5 record for the season, but their conference mark, the one that makes the difference, is just 5-5.

With just four games remaining on the ACC slate, it would take a collapse by Duke, Carolina, and Clemson for the Wolfpack to attain the coveted first place position.

The man that stopped the State team was sophomore hurler Wayne Young who handcuffed the Pack with only seven hits. Along with the able assistance he got from his teammates at the plate, he had only slight trouble at any time during the tilt.

Carolina got its winning run in the third inning when Wolfpack starter Owen Wright walked in the first tally of the game. The Heels followed with insurance runs, getting two in the sixth, three in the seventh, and one in the ninth.

The Pack threatened only twice in the entire game. In the first inning, after there were two outs, Russ Casteen started off with a single, and his brother Danny followed it up with a double. The threat ended though when Catcher Bob Kennel grounded out to the second-sacker.

Again in the sixth the Wolfpack looked as if it was on the way to a score, but this was also a two-out situation. Dick Hunter picked up a base on balls and Kennel beat out a grounder to the shortstop. After both runners had advanced on a wild throw to first, Don Hafer drew an intentional walk to load the sacks. But the threat ended before there was any scoring as Bernie Latusick was called out on strikes.

INTRAMURALS

In the Big Four Rod and Gun Meet held recently, it was State College all the way. The shooters from Raleigh won a smashing victory over the Carolina team. The State team piled up 42.5 points to 21.5 for the Carolina boys.

Taking first place in three of the four contests, and winning all four positions in two, it was really State's day. The first place honors were taken in Trap shooting, Archery, and Rifle competition, while in Archery and Rifle competition the State boys ran away with all honors, taking all four spots.

Taking first place honors were Langdon in Trap shooting, Thomas in Archery, and Moody in the Rifle competition. Other State participants to win laurels were Amburn in the Trap shooting, McIntosh, Wood, and Hunt in Archery, Hagler in Bait Casting, and Hinson, Rummel, and Northcutt in the Rifle meet.

Elsewhere in the Intramural picture this week, the P.E. Department has been attempting to solve the problem of the tennis facilities on campus. The department is doing everything possible to provide better and larger tennis facilities for the students and faculty of State College.

Due to the present crowded conditions of the courts it has been necessary to put the tennis courts off-limits to all individuals other than State College students and faculty. It is also asked that all students and faculty limit their playing to one hour when others are waiting to play. Signs have been erected and supervision of the courts will be established Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

And then, there's the weightlifting finals just around the corner for the Big Four Meet. Last year's champs, Bill Pangle and Harold Hanes, are back again to shove their weight around in the big competition—so says Art Hoch, Intramural Director.

In the point totals, the winter finals are in and the point average has been released. In the Fraternity division, it seems the champs for the past eight years will repeat as Intramural Champions, as Sigma Chi leads with 807 points. Following the Sigma Chi are SPE with 749 points and Delta Sig with 664 points.

In the Dormitory division we see Becton No. 1 leading with 689 points, closely followed by Tucker No. 1 with 661. Syme has compiled 595 points while Becton No. 2 follows with 582.

Former State Coach Dies In Washington

One-time line coach for the State Wolfpack and possibly the greatest American sportsman of all time, Herman Hickman, died Friday from a stomach ulcer, and laid to rest near his summer home in Florida.

Coach Hickman, who has given a lifetime to sports, was an outstanding example to the youth of today, and his death was mourned by the entire nation. The former All-America football player from the University of Tennessee, Yale coach, and radio and television personality, was admired by all, as can be witnessed by this statement from his minister: "His type of sportsmanship can be admired by all, and he lived a rich, full, happy life."

State Tracksters Dropped By Duke

Dave Sime and Cary Weisiger led the Duke track men attack, handing N. C. State a loss of 94½-36½. Duke remains undefeated.

Sime placed a 9.4 in the 100, which equaled his run against South Carolina in March. Placing a 20.9 in the 220 is just .9 shy of his world record at 20.0. He is the world record co-holder of the 100 at 9.3.

Weisiger, a junior, added his punch by stamping a new school record with a time of 1:54.4 in the 880.

Students May Apply Now For Grants And Loans

State College students who anticipate need of financial assistance to continue in school next year should apply now for grants-in-aid or loans. Although there is no deadline for such applications, it is more convenient for all concerned if applications are submitted before the close of the current school year. Forms may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office, 207 Holladay Hall.

Grants-in-aid are one-year, general scholarships, amounting to not more than $200 per student, awarded to students with satisfactory academic and citizenship records, who have demonstrated clear need for such help. The completed application includes a family financial statement which provides the principal basis for judgment of need.

Long-term loans at 3 per cent simple interest are repayable after the student graduates or rolls. Notes are secured by the signatures of two financially responsible persons, one of which is usually a parent.

One application serves for both grant and loan consideration. A student may have both if his need justifies it.

Freshmen who have one-year Talent For Service Scholarships also may apply now for grants-in-aid if continued help is needed.

The following students have received grants-in-aid during the 1957-58 school year. (The Board of Trustees requires that these names be published each year in The Technician.)

Design Prize

Student Awarded $5,000

A State College student has won a $5,000 fellowship covering 12 months of study and travel in Europe and the United States.

Selection of William Warren Edwards of Oklahoma City, Okla., to receive the top honor was announced Friday by Dean Henry L. Kampfoefner of the State College School of Design.

Edwards is a fifth year student in landscape architecture at State and was chosen as the recipient of the fellowship in competition with graduating seniors in accredited schools of design throughout the nation. The award also is open to practicing landscape architects under 35 years of age.

The award is one of the world's top honors in the field of landscape architecture and is given through the trustees of Harvard University.

The award is officially known as the Junior Research Fellowship in Landscape Architecture of Dumbarton Oaks Research Library and Collection in Washington, D. C.

Dumbarton Oaks has one of the world's finest collections of medieval and Byzantine art, a small museum, and library.

Edwards will spend a month at Dumbarton Oaks, beginning July 1, and will then travel and study in Europe for nine months. At the end of his European tour, he will return to Dumbarton Oaks for two months.

The faculty of the State College School of Design last month voted Edwards the 1958 recipient of the "Certificate of Merit" of the American Society of Landscape Architects as the outstanding student in his graduating class.

Selection of Edwards to receive the fellowship marks the second time this year that a State College School of Design student has won a major world academic honor.

Earlier this year, Edwin Free-land Harris of Roxboro was chosen as the 1958 winner of the $5,000 Paris Prize of Architecture—world's highest academic award in the field of architecture.

AF 5-Year Plan Success

The five-year obligated tour for new Air Force pilot and Navigator Trainees is proving successful, according to news from Headquarters Air Force.

Records indicate that acceptance of the five-year tour by AFROTC cadets has been increasing since inception of the program last summer. Officials said this week that 63 per cent of the graduates this June, who were originally ear-marked for flying, had agreed to the five year option.

Major objectives of the five-year tour is to get more active duty service out of expensively trained persons. Under the former system far too many newly trained pilots and navigators left the service just as they were becoming combat qualified. Air Force officials feel that the tour will:

1. Reduce the flying training wash-out rate. (It has been running about 29 per cent). Thinking is that only the best motivated students will enroll.
2. Sharply improve over-all combat capability by reducing the number of turnovers in the operational units.
3. Save many millions of dollars in training loads, reduction of training schools, training staffs, etc.
