CU Directors Refuse To Reorganize; S G, Administration Wishes Ignored

Foreign Correspondent Speaks

Apollos Hold Meeting

The second meeting of the Apollo Club in its spring series will be Thursday, March 5, at 5:45 p.m. in the Grill Room of the College Cafeteria. This series of four meetings is entitled "Man and the Moral Problem;" and to further explore this problem, Mr. Joseph G. Harrison will speak to the club.

Mr. Harrison is Overseas News Editor of the Christian Science Monitor. As a war correspondent, he served in North Africa, Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia, and The Middle East, and in 1946 he was appointed Chief of the Mediterranean News Bureau with headquarters in Rome.

In 1954, King Paul of Greece decorated Mr. Harrison with the Gold Cross of The Order of Phoenix for services to the Greek nation. He studied at Williams College, Harvard, Boston University, the University of Geneva, Switzerland, and at The Sorbonne in Paris.

Mr. Harrison's topic is "The Mind and Its Limitations." He will meet with a fraternity Thursday Night, a faculty group at 10 a.m. Friday, and with the YMCA Cabinet at 12 noon on Friday.

Fadum Speaks To Engineers

Dr. Ralph E. Fadum, head of the Department of Civil Engineering at State, was the chief speaker during the observance of National Engineers' Week in Charleston, S. C., last week.

Dr. Fadum, who recently returned from a tour of Russia as a member of an eight-member Exchange Mission on Engineering Education, addressed a joint meeting of 212 members of five engineering societies in the Charleston area Tuesday evening at the Frances Marion Hotel.

The State College engineering educator spoke on the engineering education system in Russia and related some of the observations he made concerning the people and their way of life behind the "Iron Curtain."

Dr. Fadum was introduced to the group by Lt. Col. L. K. Himelright, head of the Department of Civil Engineering at The Citadel.

National Engineers' Week in Charleston was sponsored by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Civil Engineers' Club of Charleston, the Institute of Radio Engineers, the National Society of Professional Engineers and the Society of American Military Engineers.

Essex: What's Good For the Union Is Good For the Students

Yesterday afternoon, in a special meeting, the College Union Board of Directors voted down a proposal to change the representation of the Board. The vote was 12 to 7.

Dr. Beers, a faculty representative on the Board, submitted the proposed amendment to the C.U. Constitution, acting as chairman of the committee which had been appointed by the Board to investigate C.U. "government."

Jim Hunt, President of the Student Government, and also a Board member who favored the amendment, said in a release to The Technician:

The resolution, if it had passed, would have replaced four representatives from the C. U. Board of Chairmen (out of five) by the presidents of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes, and by the addition of a representative of the Student Legislature.

Also, the amendment proposed to increase the continuity of the Board through election and distribution of faculty representatives and the three members at large from the three upper classes.

The opposition to the amendment centered around the proposed decrease in the Board of Chairmen representation. It was argued by the opposition that the Board of Chairmen needed the present representation of five to keep up the morale of the committee chairmen, in that they would feel they were having a greater part in determining their own policies; also, that membership on the Board of Directors was a reward for all the work the committee chairmen do. Others spoke out against the resolution to the effect that those connected internally with the C.U. would know best how to set its policy, and that "outsiders" would not be familiar enough with C.U. programs to be effective in their Board responsibilities.

Paul Essex, President of the College Union, who opposed the amendment, said that whatever benefited the College Union would in turn naturally benefit the students; or, in the words of Essex, "What's good for the

"The demands of the student body that they be given a majority vote in determining how the $15 each student pays into the College Union is to be spent today was ignored. I do not believe that the student body and the administration of this school will allow this rebuff to stand. The College Union belongs to all of us and the Board of Directors which directs its policy must represent all of us adequately."

"I believe the Board has taken a very blind position which it will have reason to regret."

Union is good for the students."

Those supporting the amendment thought that the increased representation from outside the internal structure of the Union would make the students more responsible and responsive in College Union affairs. Also, it was the belief of the supporters that this action would help disperse prevalent feelings that the College Union is run by a self-perpetuating group.

Those voting against the amendment were: The President of the C.U., the Secretary of the C.U., the alumni representative, the five representatives from the Board of Chairmen, two of the three faculty representatives, two of the three student representatives (who were both previous committee chairmen).

Those voting for the amendment were: the President of the Student Government, the Editor of The Technician, the President of the Interdormitory Council, the representative of the Interfraternity Council (acting for the President), the Mayor of Vetsville, one faculty representative, and one student representative.

Third of Student United Fund Goal Goes To Aid Children's Lunch Relief Program

Two hundred and fifty dollars of the $750 goal set for the Student United Fund Drive will go to the Raleigh United Fund Drive.

This money is earmarked to provide lunches for underprivileged school children. The program, supplemented by federal funds, begins when a teacher notices a child has brought no lunch to school and has no money to eat in the school cafeteria.

After visiting the child's home, the teacher issues meal tickets to the child that cannot afford to pay for his lunch.

Fred Houtz, chairman of the student United Fund Drive, said in a statement to The Technician (See UNITED FUND, page 4)

Campus Crier

All students who served as group leaders in this past September's Orientation Program may pick up their certificates of commendation at the Student Government office in the College Union on Wednesday, March 4, between the hours of 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. All group leaders are urged to pick them up.

The Young Democrats Club will meet Wednesday, March 4, at 8 p.m. in Room 256-258 of the College Union. A lobbyist from the North Carolina State Legislature will speak, giving details on the "behind the scene" work on bills presented in the Legislature.

Members of the Club who are running for YDC offices will be allowed to announce their candidacy at this meeting.

All members of the Ag Club are reminded of its meeting this Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in the College Union Theater. The main item of business will concern the proposed changes in the Constitution.

The Starlight Club will again be held in the College Union on March 7, beginning at 8 p.m. The dance, sponsored by the Dance Committee, is for dating couples only.

ATTENTION: ALL JUNIORS AND SENIORS! Bids will be available for the Junior-Senior from March 11 through March 13 from 5:30 through 8:30 in the basement of the lege Union. All juniors who have not paid their dues will be able to do so at this time, which will entitle them to a bid to the dance.

In order for seniors to receive their bids, they must show both their Identification card and their Registration Card.

The State chapter of the Order of Demolay will meet on Tuesday night, March 3, at 7 p.m. in Room 108 of Polk Hall. Meetings will be weekly for the rest of the semester. All Demolays are invited to attend.

Nomination books for the Spring elections will open on March 6 in the Student Affairs office in Holladay Hall. Books will remain open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. through March 20. The Elections Committee strongly urges all students who have a C average and are willing to work to run for some office.

A two-unit stamp machine disappeared from the YMCA building during the night of February 25. Unless it is returned immediately, it will be assumed that this property has been stolen and the loss will be reported to the Federal authorities.

There will be a Danforth Chapel Service on Wednesday, March 4, from 12:40 until 1:00. The speaker for the service will be Rev. Walsen Allen, the chaplain to Moravian students here at State. Music will be provided by the Danforth Chapel Choir.

Notice

All students and faculty members are urged by the S.G. Traffic Committee to help in the probable traffic congestion during the ACC Tournament. The major congestion will come on Thursday, March 5th when there will be afternoon games.

Students and faculty members are urged to park on Thursday morning and not try to leave the campus and return during the lunch hours. They will encounter heavy traffic at this time.

Sick, Sick, Sick . . .

Stability. Togetherness. Again and again and again. The College Union again closes ranks against those pesky, bothersome, unharmonious outsiders (See page one).

In an unprecedented show of stubbornness and stupidity, the C.U. Board of Directors mouthed sickening, sentimental resistance to any change which would disrupt their happy, self-extending, self-pollinating Family.

It was pure folly for us to hope, even for a second, that the Board of Directors would agree to change its structure . . . especially since the Board is loaded in favor of the Family-Whose-Father-Is-Norman Vincent Peale. You see, the largest and most powerful organizations on campus are represented in a minority on this Board . . . and the C.U. Family only tolerates them as a necessary (and probably evil) concession.

With mouths set in grim, petty, unyielding lines, the Family one by one told of the plight of their committee chairmen . . . who simply could not work joyfully unless they could have a large say in determining their own policies. As we listened, we missed the sound of violins, for they would have formed an effective background to the sad story . . . possibly playing the sound-track from "Aesop's Fables."

The Union-loaded Board seemed to have a remarkable ability to say the same things over and over again . . . as if, by chance, they were inspired by some mysterious leading force. All-American determination coupled with kindergarten reasoning carried the Family to another glorious, proud victory . . . and the only people who lose are several thousand students.

The College Union is blessed with a staff well-versed in politics; some have hinted that their manipulations have even gained them influence of some lower echelons of the administration, specifically and especially in the realm of student activities. However, these politics may backfire; we could foresee that the Chancellor would be disturbed if he suspected collusion between Union staff and any member of the College administration.

To be truthful, there is not much recourse left open to the students through their own representatives. If we are not to see more endless rounds of time-consuming and disheartening controversy, someone with high authority and a clear perspective will have to take action. As the largest, richest group on this campus, the College Union must find direction from some source outside of itself.

The government of the College Union, which should be centered around the Board of Directors, has the primary responsibility of being the means to an end . . . not an end in itself.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

The current debate, if it can be called that, over the possibility of State granting a liberal arts degree seems to be a cart-before-horse situation.

Recently, I started taking a social studies night extension course. I won't speculate on the academic standing of many State College students in this class but their mental attitude is something else again.

The first lessons have been a discussion of facts . . . F-A-C-T-S! One student's terse comment: "The author is so dogmatic. How can he expect us to believe that?" When I pointed out the factual nature of the material, a peachy-creamy faced boy snippily countered, "How can you defend him when it's against everything we believe?"

His assuming that I believed as he did because his opinions are so damned infallible is at the root of the problem. I gather that students who take up a science or math program are bigoted by nature; these fields, being studies of facts, offer no intellectual challenge to the individual's personal moral, social and political views. Adding a liberal arts program is not going to make them think for themselves.

The even bigger question is this: What are they doing in college anyway?

Disgustedly yours,
Mrs. W. C. McGee

Technicalities . . .

By Steve Daves

They say that your blood boils and your eyes and brain and lungs and heart explode and your soul is torn out of your shell, tearing all roots and hemorrhaging your being. If you are near, but not too near, your flesh is burned, and blown away as if you were standing in the exhaust of a jet engine, and your cheek bones and skull and ribs and spine are bared and seared and charred. If you are farther away, your lips curl back over your teeth and burn and the fat of your body and your muscles and tendons burn and leave your skeleton covered with a hard, black, human charcoal. And if you are even farther away, in a jungle somewhere, you breathe this burning and you get sick and rot and burn inside and die.

And the animals in the forest and the trees and rocks are scorched and burned and killed.

And the grass on the plains is burned and the air and the earth are burned and the oceans are almost sterilized. And the earth is without form, and void; and darkness is upon the face of the deep and the earth is a chatoyant stone, a child's toy, to be played with and spit on and stepped on and played with again. And the almost sterile oceans and chemistry and protein bodies begin a new time, but all time is futile.

It is futile because of a fat, stupid little man with blue eyes, and other fat, stupid little men like him of both factions, and a filthy, ugly city called Berlin that nobody really wanted in a filthy, ugly world that even God doesn't want now. . . .

The executive committee of the I.F.C. met Sunday night to make nominations for officers for the coming year. They will make a slate of nominations drawn from committeemen who have served for the past year. Nominations from the floor will be in order at the next I.F.C. meeting.

Lenny Lavitt, chairman of I.F.C. publicity committee, needs some cooperation on his project of publishing a bigger and better fraternity booklet for next year. The pictures used last year are outdated and this includes those of the individual houses, also. If those men at each house who have access to newer pictures would give them to him it would help to put a better foot forward to those prospective fraternity men arriving next year. Another thing is that the resumés beneath the house pictures can be changed to be a little more informative. This booklet can be very influential, so let's pitch in and give Lenny a hand. (He wants to get it finished before the semester ends).

The Four Freshmen are available for the weekend of May 17, a week before final exams begin. They will cost $1250, but if you'll remember last year's concert this could be a profitable afternoon for the I.F.C. if fraternity men will not only support it by their presence and also with a little salesmanship. If you like the idea and are willing to support it, let your I.F.C. representatives know.

I sincerely hope that some consideration over this hazing problem has been made. Whether you are for or against hazing, at least be interested enough to think about it and how you would solve it, then pass it on to somebody who can do something about it with your suggestion in mind.

The I.F.C. voted in favor of having Chris Connor to sing with Stan Kenton, and after Phil Gaines contacted her agent he found that she was not willing to split her time between the concert and the dance, so Phil inquired about June Christy and found that she is more willing, and since she started with Stan Kenton she knows his arrangements, and perhaps is the better choice anyhow. She will sing for $1500. That's a lot of money, but I believe it's well worth it for the "Misty Miss Christy." I can't see how the Spring Greeks can miss being great with both Kenton and Christy, can you?

E. Kentucky Scores 71-69 Upset Over Pack

ACC Tourney Opener Set for Thurs. ... State Awarded Top Con. Spot

The State College Wolfpack closed its regular season of play Saturday night in Reynold's Coliseum by suffering a 71-69 upset loss to Eastern Kentucky's Maroon cagers. A stunned crowd of 6,500 sat out every second of the thrill-packed contest, which wasn't decided until the final gun sounded.

Leading most of the way, the Pack seemed to have it in the bag with a minute and 3 seconds to go. The score stood 69-68 and the State squad had the ball... moving downcourt the ball was lost by a bad pass and Eastern Kentucky pounced on it and raced toward the winning two points.

After making it 70-69 in favor of the Maroons, State took over again, but this time Dan Englehardt was charged with traveling and the Kentucky team took over and froze the ball. Not until only 2 seconds remained could the State team get close enough to foul in an attempt to get the ball.

With 2 seconds left to play in the game, the Maroons made good on their free throw and the score stood 71-69. Bob MacGillivray tried a desperation shot from mid-court as the buzzer sounded, but the shot was high.

Saturday night's loss gives the Wolfpack a season record of 19-4, with an ACC record of 12-2.

In Psychiatric Illness

VA Undertakes New Treatment

A new departure in psychiatric treatment has been undertaken by the Veterans Administration, VA said.

The agency's first mental hygiene day center for treatment of veterans with service-connected mental illness was established recently at the VA outpatient clinic in Brooklyn, N. Y.

VA expects that more of its mental hygiene clinics will establish similar centers within the next few years.

The day center program is designed primarily to provide more and better outpatient treatment for the increasing number of veterans being released from VA hospitals after treatment for service-connected schizophrenia.

Many of these veterans recovering from schizophrenia, one of the most severe of mental diseases, need a great deal of help through the VA outpatient treatment program if they are to adjust to community living and avoid rehospitalization.

The Brooklyn clinic director, Dr. Philip R. Casesa, said some 75 patients will spend the major part of their time at the new day center in a therapy and planned living program under supervision of psychiatrists, psychologists, and social workers.

New tranquilizing drug therapies and improved treatment programs are increasing the number of patients being released from VA mental hospitals, especially the number of those being released after hospitalization for schizophrenia.

VA hospitals placed 13,332 patients on trial visit away from the hospitals during fiscal year 1958, a 34 per cent increase over the 9,985 on trial visit during fiscal year 1955. The day center is part of VA's continuing efforts to explore new methods of psychiatric rehabilitation.
