World-Renowned Statistician

Gardner Award Received By Prof. Cox

Prof. Gertrude M. Cox, internationally known director of the Consolidated University of North Carolina's Institute of Statistics with headquarters at State College, tonight (Sunday, March 22, 1959) was named the 1959 winner of the Oliver Max Gardner Award.

The award, accompanied by a citation, was presented to Professor Cox as the member of the faculties of the Consolidated University of North Carolina who, in the judgment of the Board of Trustees, "has made the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race" during the current academic year.

A veteran teacher and world-renowned statistician, Professor Cox became the first woman department head in the history of State College when she joined the faculty November 1, 1940, as head of the newly-organized Department of Experimental Statistics in the college's School of Agriculture.

She served as head of the department until 1944 when she became director of the Institute of Statistics at State College. A year later a grant from the General Education Board enabled the creation of a second department, the Department of Mathematical Statistics at Chapel Hill, which was organized July 1, 1946, as a part of the Consolidated University's Institute of Statistics, of which Miss Cox is director.

Presentation of the award to Miss Cox was made at the 10th annual Gardner Award dinner, held in Spencer Dining Hall at Woman's College in Greensboro. Attending the dinner were trustees, university officials, and representatives of the faculties of the three institutions of the Consolidated University.

President William Friday of the Consolidated University presided over the dinner meeting. The award was presented by Mrs. L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro, a member of the Gardner Award Committee of the Board of Trustees. The invocation was spoken by Dr. Warren Ashby, head of the Department of Philosophy at Woman's College.

Under the terms of the will of the late Governor Gardner, the award is given each year to a member of the faculties of the Consolidated University. This includes the Woman's College in Greensboro, the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, and North Carolina State College in Raleigh.

The award carries a cash grant from the income of $25,000 which was placed in trust by the late Governor Gardner, a 1903 graduate of State College (See GARDNER AWARD, page 4)

Bottom row: Miss Marilyn Carr (for Tommy Saied, Secretary); Miss Sylvia McLin (for Les Northcutt, Rose Ball chairman); Miss Sarah Ivey (for Nathan Moore, Treasurer).

Tau Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity at State College will hold its annual Rose Ball, March 28th at the Carolina Hotel. The climax of the "Rose Ball" will be the crowning of the fraternity "Rose." An award will also be made to the outstanding pledge of the past year. The persons to be honored will not be announced until the "Rose Ball." No Exceptions

We have always been ready and willing to print any news story which is of sufficient importance to enough people to warrant the space.

However, we do not have the staff—nor does any college newspaper—to go out and get all the news and bring it to our attention in time to be printed. Therefore, we must depend on representatives of interested organizations in helping us get their news in the paper.

Now that elections are coming up, we will take this space to repeat a policy which has been declared all year long, both in print and by word of mouth . . . a policy which has been ignored and violated on numerous occasions. We're talking about DEADLINES.

Those of us who are concerned with the job of getting the paper into its final form are few in number, and those few spend three nights a week—Sunday, Tuesday, and Wednesday—in our offices. The average amount of time spent by each one is five hours per night . . . writing, printing pictures, engraving, editing and rewriting, laying out, making headlines, typing, marking copy, etc. These people do their jobs often with little or no recognition . . . mainly because they like the work, it gives them valuable experience, they meet interesting people and situations, and they have the satisfaction of seeing a final product to which they have contributed.

The reason for this lengthy explanation is this: we can not and will not expect these staff members to do other people's work. If you or your organization want news in this paper, then it is your responsibility to get it to us. We will not put a greater burden on our staff by asking them to compensate for other people's neglect, laziness, and disinterest.

If our deadlines are not met, it puts the entire staff behind schedule and involves many more hours of unnecessary work. From now on, we will have to insist that deadlines be met without exception . . . our staff would like to stay in school too.

Deadlines are: For Monday's paper . . . 7:30 p.m. Sunday night. For Thursday's paper . . . 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night. See you then or not at all. —RL

School Spirit In A Nut's Shell

To the Editor:

In the past and, no doubt, in the future we students here at State College have been and will be faulted for our lack of school spirit. Indicated and implied in the following submission (double entendre) are a few of the causes which I believe to have influenced the actions or inactions of the students:

"Just Keep Cheering"

"Don't Take Your Guns to School, Son"

The spirit of this school is low; we have to change that, men!

So crammed into a three-man room my college life began. 'Twas all so new, so different, and so, so many lines; And crawling from my sagging bed I met each new day's finds:

The smell of books . . . a hundred bucks! "Cheer up," they said, "don't shirk."

"We're here to help you, son." They smiled. I hadn't learned the smirk.

How lucky when my friends and I were blessed to rooms by two's

Accepting blindly hammock beds . . . but what had we to lose?

We left a room, a newer one, with closets built inside, to habitate another clime And hardly saw the bare-ing wall the chipping paint had ceased to hide.

I've studied here for three years now . . . I've seen them come and go.

I've seen new chairs and single beds purloined and stored in basement below.

To keep the rooms from looking good, I guess, and sleep from giving rest

Or else to make the contrast more, by gosh, from "Edifice Built On Crest."

I've walked in mud on rainy days . . . I could not count them all;

And bought more shoes, and laundered pants, (and paint's still popping off my wall). I've seen some thrilling football games, as all good students do,

From way up there in "24" (I think I saw some rich men too),

And never thought it strange at first while students strain to see

Down there at 40, 50, 30 yards some people watch contentedly.

And so, though battered, bumped, and shoved by my environment,

"Manure Kicker" such as I could have no cause to cry lament.

I buy my books, forget my wall, and concave in my bed I see

Why spirit here at State is so damned high . . . whoopee!

Greeks On Campus

By Bill Marley

This past weekend was a real partying one for several of the State Greek fraternities.

The Delta Sigs had their annual Sweetheart Ball out at their house, which has recently been refurbished, and enjoyed a four piece combo. The ball was semi-formal and was well attended.

The FarmHouse men had a first in their FarmHouse Ball out at Scandia Village and intend to make this an annual affair. Buddy Klein's combo furnished the music and it was a tux affair.

The Sigma Chi's were fortunate enough to go to Virginia Beach for their annual Sweetheart Ball held this year at the Cavalier Hotel. The ball was formal with about two hundred brothers and alumni and their dates attending.

The TKE's celebrated their yearly Red Carnation Ball at the Woman's Club on Hillsboro with a good crowd, so I understand. Pat McCoy's combo played for the Ball.

Apart from the partying, the Sig Eps from State attended the annual Leadership school in Winston-Salem. All nine chapters of the SPE's in North and South Carolina send representatives for good training in fraternity leadership.

Other than those parties mentioned above, things on the fraternity front are quiet. So I'll just creep away to my hole in the wall and try to dig some physics out of a moldy book. Have your professors gone quiz-happy like mine? Never fails, they always start firing them at you before a vacation break . . . that's life at State and with the Greeks.

It rained Saturday, making travel by thumb uncomfortable. I couldn't really afford such luxury, but travel was imperative, so I caught a bus (as regular passengers say) and began my journey home.

I slept until the bus reached Chapel Hill, but when I heard the driver announce the station I immediately became alert and observant. You see, I had heard a lot about Chapel Hill, and I wanted to see it for myself. We moved rapidly through the traffic of sports cars and Cadillacs and down streets lined with quaint old colonial houses and stores. It was all beautiful I guess. At the bus station all the people were neat and well-dressed and the young men all wore ties and coats. I wished then that I had worn a tie, but I guess it didn't matter, because I don't have a light blue shirt with a high, rounded collar and a shiny safety pin to hold my collar together and make my tie stick out. Everybody there had one of these shirts. I've always wanted one, but I don't know what to ask for.

Then some of these people began getting on our bus, and one of them sat down beside me. I thought that he was rather odd looking, but that is probably because I haven't been many places. He was very pale and his hair was long and wavy and chestnut-brown. He had probably spent hours combing it. He had a soft, curly beard around his mouth and chin. It looked too soft. Yet he didn't seem to be a weak person, and I could tell by the way that he walked and looked at everybody that he was probably an intellectual.

He was reading a book titled Evergreen Review, and now and then I would look over his shoulder and read a paragraph, but I couldn't understand it and I really respected him for reading something like that. He was wearing a high, rounded collar and a very narrow tie and expensive looking trousers and jacket. I wondered if he always dressed like that. He didn't talk to me but kept on reading Evergreen Review, so I started reading my ROTCM-1419-QR. I'm behind in Military Science because of that big Calculus quiz we had. He laughed weakly at something, and I thought he might be laughing at my ROTC Manual, so I put it under the seat. I didn't want to offend his intellect.

It stopped raining and we were passing through small towns and through stretches of farmland with small frame houses with small cars sitting in the driveways. I thought everything looked nice, but he looked out the window and said: Those stupid people. They think they are really living, but they're just miserable and stupid. I looked out the window again, and most of the people looked happy, but I guess they weren't. I guess they were just miserable and stupid.

He got off the bus at the next city and I watched him walk down the street still reading Evergreen Review, and I thought: What an intellectual giant. He is really an intellectual. And I felt very, very inferior. And I still do . . .

Spring Sports Swing Into Action This Week

State College's spring athletic teams swing into action Monday with a busy week.

The varsity baseball team has a full card with five games on tap, the golf team opens its season with two matches, while the tennis and track teams have one match each.

Vic Sorrell's homeles baseball squad opens a three-game series with Dartmouth Tuesday on the Raleigh High School diamond. All three games will begin at 12:30.

The Wolfpack's new field will not be ready for play this season, and Devereaux Meadow is also unavailable. Sorrell said the Raleigh High diamond will be used whenever possible, but most of the games will have to be played on the road.

He said that there's a possibility that several games will be played at the University of North Carolina field in Chapel Hill.

The baseball team, following its series with Dartmouth, plays host to the University of Connecticut Friday afternoon and takes on Ohio University Saturday afternoon.

Coach Al Michaels' golfers open the season against Ohio Wesleyan Monday and then take on Virginia Tuesday. All home matches will be played at the Carolina Country Club.

Michaels said he thinks this year's team will be one of the best the Wolfpack has had in several years. Co-captains are Pete Patton and George Allen. Michaels is expecting plenty of help from Jimmy York, John Isenhour, Bob Smith, Gene Smith, Fred Ayers, Frank Cackovic, Charles Stone and Bob Roach.

Coach John Kenfield, Jr., returning to the tennis team after a two-year leave of absence, has one match for the inaugural week. The netters meet Ohio State Tuesday afternoon on the local courts.

Kenfield will have Mickey Solomon at the number one position, with Irwin Holmes backing him up.

Coach Paul Derr's track team goes to Gainesville, Fla., Saturday for the Florida Relays. That's the only meet on the schedule for this week.

Four More Selections Added To North-South All-Star Roster

Four more players, two for the South and two for the North, have been added to the rosters for the second annual North-South All-Star game here March 28.

Coach Everett Case's South squad was bolstered by the addition of All-America Johnny Cox of Kentucky and Jim Henry of Vanderbilt, two of the Southeast Conference's top performers.

The North squad, coached by Joe Lapchick, picked up Hank Stein of Xavier and John Cincebox of Syracuse, a pair of high-scoring cagers with impressive collegiate records.

Cox was the top performer for the Wildcats and played a key role in Kentucky's ascent to the NCAA national championship last year. A 6-foot-5 star, he averaged 18 points per game.

Henry holds numerous Vanderbilt scoring records, including the single game high of 40 points. He averaged 18.1 points per game this year and set a career mark of 17 points per contest for his three varsity years.

Both Cox and Henry, a six-foot guard, were named to the All-Southeastern Conference team this year. They join two other SEC stars on the South squad. They are All-America Bailey Howell of Mississippi

State and Rex Frederick of Auburn.

Cincebox was an all-around performer for Syracuse, grabbing 18 per cent of his team's rebounds and scoring at an 18.8 clip. He was the nation's seventh-ranking rebounder. He is 6-foot-8.

Stein, a 6-foot-2 guard, has been Xavier's workhorse for the past two seasons and last year was named Most Valuable Player in the NIT. He was the nation's second best free throw shooter, hitting 86 out of 100.

The teams will arrive in Raleigh Wednesday afternoon and work out twice daily. In the first North-South game last year, fans were treated to one of the most exciting contests ever staged in Reynolds Coliseum. The North won an overtime thriller 111-109 on a last second field goal by Jack Parr of Kansas State.

This year's game is being sponsored by the Civitan Club for the benefit of the Boys Home of North Carolina. Tickets are on sale at the Coliseum Box

AFROTC Rifle Team To Host Gun Match

The State College AFROTC Detachment will play host for the Annual North Carolina ROTC Invitational Rifle Tournament on April 4 and 11. This match is considered to be one of the finest small bore competitive matches in the country.

This year, competing teams will be entered from N. C. State College, U.N.C., Duke, Wake Forest, Davidson and A & T College. Awards for this match will be on display in the College Union from March 10 through March 31.

Under the guidance and supervision of M/Sgt. Robert L. Murphey, the Air Force ROTC Rifle Team at State College, Raleigh, has made considerable progress during the past several months.

Sgt. Murphy reports: "Although three out of five regular team members failed to return this year because of graduation, ineligibility, etc., this year's rifle team seems to be shaping up very well."

The team got off to a slow start this year and serious practice was not begun until the latter part of November, 1958.

Nevertheless, the lack of practice appears to have affected the cadet team only slightly. The cadets have fired in two major matches and in each case have been very successful.

Early in December, 1958, the State College Team fired in its first "shoulder to shoulder" match against A & T College of Greensboro, N. C. The results of this match were favorable for State, as it edged out its opponent.

The victory was followed in Currently, Professor Cox is treasurer of the International Statistical Association; a member of the council of the Biometric Society; adviser to the Office of Statistical Standards, Bureau of the Budget; and executive reservist with the Bureau of the Census.

In addition, she was a member of the council of directors of the Psychometric Society, 1954-57; and was president of the North Carolina State College Chapter of Gamma Sigma Delta, 1957-58.

She is listed in "Who's Who in the South and Southwest," "Who's Who in American Education," the "Directory of Statistical Personnel in the American Nations," "Leaders in American Science," "Who's Who of American Women," and other noted directories.

On March 22, 1958, Miss Cox was awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Science by Iowa State College during its centennial graduation rites.

Miss Cox has traveled widely throughout the world and has attended conferences of world-wide professional and learned societies in many countries. She is the author or co-author of more than 50 technical and scholarly publications and papers, outlining her research findings. THE TRUE AND TYPICAL CASE OF CHATSWORTH OSCEOLA

You all know, of course, that every engineering senior is receiving fabulous offers from dozens of corporations, but do you know just how fabulous these offers are? Do you have any idea how widely the corporations are competing? Let me cite for you the true and typical case of Chatsworth Osceola, a true and typical senior.

Chatsworth, walking across the M.I.T. campus one day last week, was hailed by a man sitting in a yellow convertible studded with precious gem stones. "Hello," said the man, "I am Norwalk T. Sigafos of the Sigafos Bearing and Bushing Company. Do you like this car?"

"Yeah, hey," said Chatsworth.

"It's yours," said Sigafos.

"Thanks, hey," said Chatsworth.

"Do you like Philip Morris?" said Sigafos.

"Of corris," said Chatsworth.

"Here is a pack," said Sigafos. "And a new pack will be delivered to you at twelve-minute intervals every day as long as you shall live."

"Thanks, hey," said Chatsworth.

"Does your wife like Philip Morris?" said Sigafos.

"She would," said Chatsworth, "but I'm not married."

"Do you want to be?" said Sigafos.

"What American boy doesn't?" said Chatsworth.

Sigafos pressed a button on the dashboard of his convertible and the trunk opened up and out came a nubile maiden with golden hair, flawless features, a perfect disposition, and the appendix already removed. "This is Laurel Geduldig," said Sigafos. "Would you like to marry her?"

"Is her appendix out?" said Chatsworth.

"Yes," said Sigafos.

"Okay, hey," said Chatsworth.

"Congratulations," said Sigafos. "And for the happy bride, a pack of Philip Morris every twelve minutes for the rest of her life."

"Thanks, hey," said Laurel.

"Now then," said Sigafos to Chatsworth, "let's get down to business. My company will start you at $45,000 a year. You will retire at full salary upon reaching the age of 26. When you start work, we will give you a three-story house made of bullion, complete with a French Provincial swimming pool. We will provide sitter service for all your children until they are safely through puberty. We will keep your teeth in good repair, and also the teeth of your wife and children unto the third generation. We will send your dentist a pack of Philip Morris every twelve minutes as long as he shall live... Now, son, I want you to think carefully about this offer. Meanwhile, here is ten thousand dollars in small, unmarked bills, which places you under no obligation whatsoever."

"It certainly seems like a fair offer," said Chatsworth. "But there is something you should know. I am not an engineer. In fact, I don't go to M.I.T. at all. I am a poetry major at Harvard. I just came over here on a bird walk."

"Oh," said Sigafos.

"I guess I don't get to keep the money and the convertible and Laurel now, do I?" said Chatsworth.

"Of course you do," said Sigafos. "And if you'd like the job, my offer still stands."
