For Committee Appointments

Knox Issues Request For Student Interviews

Each year, the president of the Student Government appoints a number of students to serve on various committees and other responsible positions. These committees are concerned with specific areas of campus welfare and policy.

In order that I will be able to make intelligent appointments to fill these various positions, it is imperative that I be familiar with the qualifications of the interested students. I also must know his interests in these areas and whether he will be able to devote the time and effort to fulfill his duties.

As a result, I plan to interview those persons who are interested in serving. So that I might know how many students are interested, I am requesting that a form be picked up at the College Union Main Desk, filled out, and returned to the Main Desk. After receiving these applications, I will run an interview schedule in The Technician.

The following is a listing of the positions available with a synopsis of what each one is composed of and does:

Campus Student Traffic Committee: This committee is composed of eight members, five of which will also serve on the General College Traffic Committee. These eight students hear all appeals on student traffic tickets.

Orientation Commission: This committee is composed of twelve members, five of which will be chosen this year. This committee is responsible for the Orientation Program for all incoming students. (I would especially like to see a number of freshmen and sophomores apply.)

Campus Stores Advisory Committee: Three student members are appointed to serve on this committee.

Cafeteria Advisory Committee: This committee is composed of three students and acts in an advisory capacity.

NSA Coordinator: The Student Government is a member of the National Student Association and it is the campus coordinator's responsibility to inform the campus of NSA events and to initiate new programs here on the campus. The Coordinator will attend the National NSA Congress.

CUSC: This committee is composed of fifteen State students who serve on the Consolidated University Student Council. The Council, composed of State, Carolina, and W.C., serves as a policy council for the Greater University.

It is imperative that I select the members of the Consolidated University Student Council and the Orientation Commission by Friday of this week. Therefore I am asking all those students who are interested in applying for positions on these two committees to come to the Student Government office in the College Union between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Tuesday, May 12.

As a member of any of the above committees, you can offer invaluable service to State College and the student body.

Eddie Knox, president

Symphonic Band To Give Final Spring Concert

The N. C. State Symphonic Band will present the last in a series of spring concerts, Tuesday night at 7:00 p.m., on the College Union Terrace.

The featured soloists on the program will be Leon Jordan, trumpet, who will play The Flight of the Bumblebee and Frank Reich, saxophone, who will play Valse Lynette.

Other numbers on the concert program will include The Italian In Algiers Overture; Latin At Large, a brilliant South American selection; Lady Be Good, by George Gershwin; March From Tannhauser, by Richard Wagner; The Swedish Rhapsody, by Percy Faith; and many other concert numbers.

Among the Military Marches will include John Phillip Sousa's Stars and Stripes Forever.

The band will be conducted by Robert A. Barnes, director of music at State College.

The earlier concerts in this series have been received by large enthusiastic audiences.

Bids Considered For Construction of Married Housing

State College is now considering bids for the construction of married housing units.

Bids for the construction project, which is expected to cost $2,200,000 were opened at the college Thursday afternoon.

J. G. Vann, college business manager, listed the low base bidders as follows:

General construction — McDevitt and Street, Charlotte; electric worker—F. E. Robinson Company, Charlotte; heating—Acme Plumbing and Heating Company, Durham; plumbing—Rural Plumbing and Heating Company, Raleigh; water, sanitary and storm sewers—O. D. Wyatt, Raleigh.

Architect for the structure is Thomas T. Hayes, Jr., of Southern Pines.

Contracts for the construction of the married housing facilities, college officials said, will be awarded after a study of various alternates offered in the bids.

Approximately 300 apartments are included in the project, which will be built west of the present Verville and east of the road leading from Method to Western Boulevard.

Construction, officials said, will probably begin around June 1 and will be completed in approximately one year.

Among the housing facilities to be built are 120 efficiency apartments in two three-story buildings; 148 one-bedroom apartments in two-story build-

Phi Psi Plans Textile Fashion Show

A textile student fashion show will be presented in the auditorium of the Nelson Textile Building at State College Saturday, May 16, at 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the college chapter of Phi Psi, national textile honor society, the fashion event will feature approximately 25 models who will show from 30 to 35 garments.

Also on the program will be a 22-minute color movie, entitled

"Facts about Fabrics."

Clay Smith of Spindale, president of Phi Psi, said students hope to make the fashion show an annual event. He said the models will be wives and girl friends of the student members of Phi Psi.

The fashion show will be open to the public without charge.

Campus Crier

The North Carolina State College Veterans Association is having a family picnic with barbecued chicken at 12:30 Sunday afternoon May 17, at Pullen Park. You are cordially invited to attend and bring your family or a date. Tickets for non-members cost 50c. Members will be charged 10c per person.

The annual Old Clothes Drive will be held on the State College campus and the surrounding area beginning Monday, May 11 and extending through May 29, which is the Friday before exams are over on Saturday. By this time most of you will have your closets cleaned out, and you are urged to deposit your old clothes in the boxes provided in the dorm lobby.

Outstanding ROTC Cadets Honored At 'Awards Day'

Outstanding members of the Army and Air Force ROTC units at State College were honored at the Joint ROTC Awards Day Parade and Ceremonies at the college track stadium Saturday, May 9, at 10:20 a.m.

The following students received awards at the ceremonies: William B. Kay, Jr., and Robert L. Williams, the American Legion Medal; Jesse H. Scott, Jr., the Association of the United States Army Medal; Alton J. Sheek and Homer S. Brown, Sons of American Revolution ROTC Medal.

Elwin J. Buchanan, Jr., and Reginald M. Cilvik, the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association Award; Thomas F. Wyke and Jerry A. Sawyer, the Society of American Military Engineers ROTC Awards of Merit.

Charles W. Hammer and

James A. Warren, the Chicago Tribune Gold Medal Awards; Stephen S. Koszewski, Jr., and Wallace R. Baker, Jr., the Chicago Tribune Silver Awards.

The Chicago Tribune Awards to outstanding Air Force ROTC cadets were presented to Grady T. Ferrell, Jr., William R. Conley, and Benjamin C. Rush.

The Daughters of the Founders and Patriots of America Awards were presented to Paul W. Brant and Leon A. Chadwick, III.

The Colonel John W. Hagrelson Scholarship was awarded to Richard H. Williamson.

The Air Force Association Award was presented to Joseph A. DuBois, Jr. The Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation Award was presented to James A. Pierson.

The recipient of the American Ordnance Association Key was Lawrence Harris, Jr. The Armed Forces Chemical Association Honor Award was presented to Hugh C. Bennett. Reserve Officers Association honor awards were presented to Charles R. Younts and James L. Raper. Recipients of the Reserve Officers Association Medals were Kenneth E. Steppe and Louis R. Kirchdofer.

The Department of the Army Superior Senior Cadet Ribbons were awarded to Preston L. Hasson, Ronald L. Olive, James E. Watson, Jr., and Thomas F. Wyke.

The Master Sergeant Horace C. Thomas, Sr., Award was presented to Daniel Whiteside. Bruce Hoadley and Edward S. Oberhofer were presented the Scabbard and Blade Award. Marshall E. Miller, Jr., received the Scabbard and Blade Marksmanship Medal. The Arnold Air Society Awards were presented to William S. Smith.

The AFROTC Fight Leader Award was presented to Jesse F. Montgomery. The AFROTC Honor Squadron Guidon Banner Award was presented to Arnold H. Cohen, and the recipient of the Professor of Air Science Award for Honor Squadron was Franklin H. Mitchell, Jr.

The Certificate of Meritorious Leadership Achievement was awarded to Frank M. Alley, Jr.

Foundation Awards Grant For Student Research

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $13,510 grant to State College to conduct a research participation program in the sciences for approximately 20 undergraduate students during the next year.

Dr. Carey H. Bostian, who is retiring July 1 as chancellor of State College, will direct the new program—a pioneering attempt designed to assist students who are preparing for careers in science.

Announcement of the awarding of the grant and the selection of Dr. Bostian to head the project was made today by Dr. H. F. Robinson, head of the college's Genetics Department, in which Dr. Bostian will serve as a professor following his retirement as chancellor.

Chief objective of the program, Dr. Robinson reported,

"is to accelerate and enrich the development of undergraduate science majors through direct experience in current research."

Under the terms of the program, funds in the foundation grant will be used to provide stipends up to $500 each for each of 20 students chosen to participate in the project next year.

State College will be one of the few colleges and universities taking part in the research undertaking, which will be conducted on an experimental basis this year and may be expanded during the 1960-61 academic year.

Chancellor Bostian and Dr. Robinson said that State College was awarded one of the larger grants in the country this year. Dr. Bostian explained that the State College project was prepared and submitted to the National Science Foundation by a committee headed by Dr. Robinson.

Dr. Bostian stated that students taking part in the work will be "junior scientists—not routine laboratory assistants." The students will be associated with the institution's top-level research personnel.

Faculty members, the chancellor said, will be invited to submit research proposals suitable for student participation.

Interested students should submit their names to their faculty advisers, who will be contacted for applicants as soon as selection procedures are established.

-- Notice --

The College is offering a Linen Rental Service to its students next year beginning with the fall semester of school. (There will be no outside commercial agency offering this service next year.) For the sum of $22.50 the service provides for an initial issue of two sheets, one pillow case, three towels, and a weekly exchange of linen during the school year.

The initial issue of linen will be made to students by their respective Dormitory Managers when they check in and draw their room keys. Weekly exchanges will be made during the remainder of the school year by the College Laundry through its four stations established for receiving and delivering laundry and dry cleaning. The station locations will be Room 18, Beeton Dormitory; Room 40, Owen Dormitory; Linen Room, Bragg Dormitory; and the College Laundry Office.

Applications for this service may be obtained from the Dormitory Rental Office or at the College Laundry.

Let Guilty Change

In the "Letters to the Editor" section of this issue, the chairman of the Honor Code Board for next year has written a reply to the letter that appeared in last Monday's issue. The letter that did appear was written by one of the former students of State who was recently suspended for breaking in an office and changing the answers to a quiz that he had already taken.

The chairman of the Honor Code Board answers many of the questions raised by this former student and also attempts to bring out other weaknesses of the Honor System. But, one of the most obvious weaknesses of the Honor System, as it is now, was not brought out by either of the writers.

That weakness is not brought about by any violation on the part of the students, but instead, it is caused by the professors. This weakness deals with some professors not changing their quizzes for long periods of time.

This may sound like a boon to the student body, but such is not the case. These professors do not change their quizzes, but, in order to make up for the high grades that come when the students do know the exact questions that they will receive, they grade all of the papers down to a average level.

This is not fair to any party that is involved. The student, who knows every question that will be asked, can still not expect to make more than 75 to 85 on the quiz. He knows that he will be graded down, with no regard to what he actually knows.

Also losing in this situation is the student who does not have a copy of the former quizzes. He, like the other members of his class, is expected by the professor to have seen and studied the former quizzes, and, therefore, he is graded down. And he is the one that is really penalized. Unless he is an above average student, he can expect no more than 75 on any quiz. Therefore, when he is graded down about fifteen points, he ends up with a grade on the quiz of about 60.

Although this situation comes under the general heading of the Honor System, nothing can be done to alleviate it by the Honor Code Board. The correction must be made by the professors who are guilty of the infraction. If they are too lazy to change their quizzes more than once in three years, they should be relieved by more competent instructors.

If they have outside activities that are so pressing that they cause the professors not to have time to make out quizzes, the professor should have "pride of profession" enough to either drop his job as instructor or drop some of his outside activities.

This is a serious problem in our Honor System. It must be changed by those who are guilty of it. Many students are being hurt needlessly.

Honor Board Chairman Answers Former Student

To the Editor:

This letter is, in effect, a reply to the letter which appeared in last Monday's Technician. I fully realize the circumstances which propagated the writing of that letter by the suspended student. And after reading it several times I had decided that it did not warrant a reply. But knowing full well how public opinion can be aroused by such an expression of discontent and disgust, I came to the conclusion that a factual reply could justify the meaning and position of the Honor System much better than silence.

I am not so naive as not to admit that something is wrong with our Honor System. We all know that this is true. We all know that something must be done about it. But I do not think that this man's proposal is the answer.

He criticized members of the Board for not being familiar with the Constitution. Does he not know that a person's conviction of cheating automatically brings him an "F" on the course, as stated in the Constitution? This is merely a technicality, so let me point out a few practical fallacies in his proposal.

A decrease in the severity of the punishment will certainly not be balanced with an increase in the certainty of it. Why won't a student turn another in for cheating? Simply because he is not mature enough to realize that, as a member of this community, he has a responsibility to his fellow students as well as himself.

Too many people have the misconception that there is no such thing as honor and they must get what they can for themselves and to hell with the other fellow. It is the individual who possesses the personal integrity and a feeling of obligation to others that makes an honor system such as ours even as effective as it is.

A set penalty is neither fair nor just. How you could feel justified in levying the same penalty to a person who happened to look on another's paper and one who broke into an office to steal a quiz is completely beyond reasoning. This is analogous to any criminal court, where premeditated murder brings a much stiffer penalty than manslaughter. There are other things which enter into the levying of a penalty.

The person's character and his past record are very important factors which must be considered when a sentence is to be handed down. Granted, a certain amount of consistency must exist in all cases. This is a fundamental law in all courts of justice. But let us not set up a system which is so consistent as to be unfair.

In this undoubtedly biased and bitter letter, this former student contrasted incidents with reference to college classification. He told of a freshman who was convicted of plagiarism and placed on probation; he compared with this the case of four seniors who were convicted of a much more flagrant type of cheating and given a one-year suspension. To him, this was completely unfair.

I ask you, what consideration should the factor of classification be given when a penalty is to be dealt out? What difference does it make whether the student is a freshman or a senior? This brings to my mind a statement which I am sure most of you have heard. "The higher up the ladder you are, the farther you have to fall."

In another statement, he asked if a teacher could not be partly to blame. Must supposedly mature college students always have someone watching over them, making sure they don't cheat? Is this the way our Honor System is set up? No, it isn't. The basic principle of this system lies in the student's acceptance of responsibility. I assure you, there are teachers on this campus who find it necessary to proctor quizzes and so forth.

This is a major fault of the system, and it should be corrected. But how can it be possible for a teacher to be directly responsible for a student's cheating unless he encourages or condones it? The student should be willing to be responsible for his own actions without placing any of the blame on anyone else's shoulders.

It was also mentioned that the 33% voting turnout indicated disapproval. How can this be? It seems to me that if the students disapproved of the system, they would vote to change it. The simple truth is that you, the students, don't care. When will you begin to care? Maybe when you are faced with a possible suspension or permanent dismissal will you begin to realize the seriousness of this thing called the Honor System.

As I said before, there are serious weaknesses in our system; but this is not a thing which can be changed overnight. It must be a gradual process. There has been an improvement over last year, which is mainly due to the small group orientation which was initiated this year. This will continue, along with other changes here and there and someday we might have an effective Honor System here at State. But this will happen only when the attitudes of the students can be molded into acceptance of the system.

Joel Ray, Chairman,
Honor Code Board

Attendance Responsibility Rests With Instructors

By Gil Schwartz

There has been considerable protest made recently by the instructors on this campus concerning our unlimited cut system. Since this rule was put into effect, it seems that students are taking advantage by frequently cutting class.

My sympathy is extended to those instructors who know so little about teaching that they have to appeal to the administration to encourage students to attend their class.

It is evident that these teachers (and I use the term loosely) are admitting that they are incompetent.

Generally, it is these same instructors who claim "there is a definite positive correlation between frequent absences and low grades." Who couldn't find some correlation? After all, whose grading the test papers?

Most often, there is a valid logical reason why students frequently cut a particular class. If the instructor would analyze his own teaching techniques and personality he probably would find a dull, stereotyped, spiritless character. His voice is monotonous, his lectures are boring, and in general, his class is more conducive to sleep than it is to learning.

A conscientious teacher who carefully plans each class meeting with specific objective, who makes use of teaching aids, who introduces variety to each class, who learns to satisfy the student's needs, and who encourages constructive criticism should have no difficulty motivating a class. Surely, he should not have to resort to penalizing a student by lowering his final grade, or throwing "Pop Quizzes".

The instructor in college is given a tremendous responsibility. He should not be a second-rate educator, but the most competent man available. The college professor who is entrusted to teach other men can make a great contribution as he is directly responsible for developing the knowledge, insight, and attitudes of every student under his direction. His opportunities to indoctrinate students are limited only by his own interest, initiative, and skill.

There are always workers (in this case, instructors) who will seek the easy way out. Wouldn't it be less time consuming and more economical to replace them with text books?

To the Editor:

I should guess that by now you've been said concerning the faux pas made by the editor and staff of the Agromeck. This is unfortunate. Can't you just imagine the comments of our friends on our "quaint old library" with its 1911 style of architecture.

Let's try, though, to be objective about the matter. A mistake was made and everyone regrets it, especially those who are directly responsible for publishing our Agromeck. Whenever there is a human element involved in any process, there will be mistakes. When people are no longer involved in assembling our year book, we shall then have no Agromeck. And who is such a perfectionist to prefer nothing over an otherwise fine annual with a couple of mistakes?

I am glad to see a sensible arrangement of the students by alphabetical order once more, much better than the confusing classification by schools that we had last year. I feel that we have a fine Agromeck for 1959, one that we should all be proud of.

Maryland Wins ACC Track Meet . . . State Seventh

The Maryland Terps won their fourth straight ACC track championship, Saturday, at the Atlantic Coast Conference Meet held in Columbia, S. C.

The Terps massed an amazing 106½ points compared to second place Duke's 37, as they placed first in seven of the fifteen events. ACC champs for the fourth straight year, the Terps literally coasted to the championship as they won with ease.

Second was Duke with 37 points; North Carolina had 30 for third place; South Carolina took fourth with 20 points. Clemson claimed 12 points, Virginia had 9, State collected 6, and Wake Forest had 3.

Although the Terps proved themselves superior in the meet,

Tarheels Top ACC Tennis Tourney . . . State Fifth

In the annual Atlantic Coast Conference tennis tournament, the Tarheels of North Carolina took the team championship by defeating the doubles team of Duke by 6-4, 7-5.

The victory won the tourney for the Tarheels and gave them the John Kenfield Trophy. The Carolina team compiled a score of 19 points, compared to the second place team's 14. Tied for second place were Duke and Virginia. Clemson was fourth with 13 points; then came State, Wake Forest, Maryland, and South Carolina, in that order.

In the singles division, Wake Forest ace Bill Cullen came from behind to win over Ray York of Virginia, 5-7, 6-2; 6-2. Cullen, the No. 1 choice in the tourney, succeeds Bobby Bortner of North Carolina as top man in the ACC. Ray York was the No. 2 seeded player before the tourney got under way Thursday. Out of a field of 51 contenders, Cullen was rated No. 1 and York No. 2.

State Loses To Duke, 5-1 . . . Four Games Remain

The State College baseball squad dropped an ACC decision to Duke, Saturday, by a score of 5-1, to allow the Blue Devils to rise from their cellar position.

Duke's Ron Kalish limited the Pack to four hits, as he led his team to the victory. Carruthers went all the way for the State team, allowing the Blue Devils five hits.

Duke collected two runs in the second, one in the third and two more in the eighth. The Pack scored its lone run in the fourth on a homerun by Don Hafer with the bases empty.

The State team travels to Winston-Salem for their next game with the Deacons of Wake Forest Wednesday. With just four games remaining till the season draws to a close, the Pack has a 7-10 record overall, and a 4-9 ACC record.

Before you are forty you will want and need between 25 and 70 thousand dollars in insurance. If you can't afford it now at least you can afford to protect your ability to get it when you can afford it. Don't let an accident or illness in the meantime run your rates out of reach.

With no pressure and no obligation on your part I will show you how to build security for the future while protecting those you love today . . . and tomorrow.

(I can tell you about it on the phone. Just call TE 2-3000 day or TE 4-1516 nite.)

"MAID IN PARIS" (A bedtime story for adults)

by BARONET

When she arrived in Paris, the mademoiselle received detailed instructions on the Place Pigalle.

... then she took a bath in the wrong apartment ...

... which made her hurriedly cover up in a man's pajamas ...

... and in the strip-tease contest she even showed the Montmartre professionals a thing or two!

Parbleu! Never had a 19-year-old mademoiselle taught a police officer how nice vice can be!

ESSO RESEARCH works wonders with oil

Let it spray! New plastics stay fresh and soft!

Around your tub, around your windows, plastic curtains stay colorful and fresh, drape better, look better longer. Around you, plastic rainwear stays comfortably soft and pliable. Contributing to these qualities in many plastic is an oil-based ingredient developed by Esso Research. Better house-keeping ... better car-keeping ... there's no end to the ways ESSO RESEARCH works wonders with oil.
