Textile School To Stage Fashion Show at College

The latest spring fashions and the newest developments in fabrics will be on a review in a textile student fashion show to be staged in the auditorium of the Nelson Textile Building at State College Saturday at 4 p.m.

Approximately 25 models will take part in the show, which will be sponsored by the college chapter of Phi Psi, national textile honor society.

Also on the program will be a 22-minute color movie, entitled "Facts About Fabrics."

Clay Smith of Spindale, president of Phi Psi, said students hope to make the fashion show an annual event. He said the models will be wives and girl friends of the student members of Phi Psi.

The fashion show will be open to the public without charge.

Models and their escorts will be:

Linda Troutman of Mount Holly with Bob Ward of Mount Holly; Katherine Miller of Raleigh with Bennie Jenks of Wake Forest; Nancy Brown of Wake Forest with Bob Mayse of Spindale; Barbara Medders and daughter Ronda Lee Medders of Raleigh with Ron Medders; Alene Ray of Haw River with Stan Mullis of Haw River; Ellen Rabb of Mount Holly with Charles Huffstetler of Mount Holly; Mrs. James Moser with Jim Moser of Raleigh; Judy Aman of Clinton with Don Gardner of Mt. Airy; Betty Hicks of Burlington with Pat Duncan of Siler City; Joyce Harper of Albertson with Paul Tyndall of Albertson; Patsy Harper of Albertson with Paul Tyndall of Albertson.

Helen Small of Salisbury with John Nash of Salisbury; Ise Gormley with Bob Gormley of Cranston, R. I.; Ann Bird of Raleigh with Benson Crofts of Trinity; Laurel Veazey of Raleigh with Gerald Veazey of Raleigh; Kitty Henson of Forest City with Clay Smith of Spindale; Flora Daniels with Charles Daniels of Raleigh; Nancy Cash of Spindale with Dan Cash of Rutherfordton; Sally Newell with Dick Newell of Raleigh; Yvonne Hale of Raleigh with Dan Cash of Rutherfordton; Mrs. Robert Cushman with Bob Cushman of Raleigh.

Organizations assisting Phi Psi in presenting the program include Delta Kappa Phi, Kappa Tau Beta, Sigma Tau Sigma, the Tompkins Textile Council, and the college chapter of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists.

The commentary will be given by Inez Aldridge of Boylan-Pearce in Raleigh.

At a banquet Saturday night at 7:30 p.m., Phi Psi will present its "Man of the Year" award to a leading figure in the nation's textile industry.

Fac. Sen. Supports S. G. Resolution On Supply Store Split

In the Faculty Senate meeting of May 5, the body voted to back the Student Government resolution concerning the division of Student Supply Store profits. No dissenting votes were cast.

The Student Government resolution stated that the Student Store profits should be divided in the following manner for the school year, 1959-60: 60 per cent for support of the Grants-in-Aid Program, and 40 per cent for the support of the Athletic Awards Program.

With the approval of the Faculty Senate, the only remaining approvals to be sought are those of Chancellor Carey H. Bostian and President William Friday of the Greater University. The decisions by these two men are expected in the near future.

Also, the Faculty Senate further discussed the ROTC program here at State. A bill will be presented in the Student Government meeting tonight concerned with the advisability of altering the present military program at State College in some way.

A complete report of the motion and resolution to be made by the Student Government will be in the Monday issue of The Technician.

State Awarded Grants For Missile Research

Grants totaling $70,000 have been awarded to State College to conduct research for the advancement of the U. S. Army's long-range missile and space programs.

College and Army officials reported that the projects are currently in progress at the institution.

Brig. Gen. J. A. Barclay, commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at the Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala., said his agency has awarded State College $30,000 to investigate the causes of brittleness in ceramics.

Prof. N. W. Conner, director of the Department of Engineering Research, reported that an additional grant of $40,000 has been awarded to the college by the Army Guided Rocket Missile Agency to study instrumentation for space and missile projects.

Professor Conner said that Hayne Palmour is the chief investigator for the college on the ceramic brittleness study and that Dr. A. C. Menius, head of the Physics Department, is chief investigator for the instrumentation project.

The Birmingham Ordnance district administers the contract for the missile agency. Dr. Werner von Braun directs the agency's development programs.

CEC Students Submit Low Bid

Two groups of Civil Engineering students of State College submitted mock bids for Raleigh's proposed City Hall against top construction companies in the State. The two teams of State College juniors in construction option came within $486 and $32,186 of the bid submitted by R. N. Rouse, Goldsboro contractor, who was awarded the actual contract with a low bid of $502,650.

Professor Carroll Mann's team submitted the winning mock bid. The bids were taken at a meeting of the City Council's Building Committee on May 7.

The new City Hall, to be at the corner of Hargett and McDowell streets, will be a modern three story building with a foundation capable of eventually supporting six stories.

For Student Housing

IDC Praises Bostian

The Inter-Dormitory Council of State College has adopted a resolution praising Dr. Carey H. Bostian, the college chancellor, for developing "a completely new approach in student affairs and in student housing."

Dr. Bostian will retire as chancellor July 1 and return to fulltime teaching duties in State College's Genetics Department.

Presentation of the resolution was made to Chancellor Bostian by Philip M. Deans of Wilson, secretary of the Inter-Dormitory Council, who released the text of the resolution Monday.

It said:

"Whereas Chancellor Carey H. Bostian, after years of devoted and unselfish service to North Carolina State College, has announced his retirement as Chancellor to return to his distinguished career as teacher;

"Whereas during Chancellor Bostian's administration, the role and experience of students and faculty alike have been examined in a totally new light; and

"Whereas his interest and initiative has been responsible for a completely new approach in student affairs and in student housing—a complete catalogue of his contributions is impossible, but to mention a few specifically;

"1—Every dormitory has been redecorated during his term of office.

"2—The host and hostess program was initiated and expanded to include eight hosts and hostesses in seven dormitories.

"3—The South's finest dormitory was planned and erected at North Carolina State College.

"4—The campus improvements in housing areas to include creation of new recreational facilities, parking areas and overall progress in providing better streets, walkways, lighting system and the campus beautification program which has resulted in one of the most pleasant campuses in the South and has done much to boost the students' morale and pride in their campus;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that we, the Inter-Dormitory Council of North Carolina State College, do express to Chancellor Carey H. Bostian our regret at his decision to retire as Chancellor, our pride in the fact that he has been our Chancellor, our lasting gratitude for what he has done for us and for North Carolina State College, and our renewed faith in the future of North Carolina State College, a faith which is strengthened by the return of such a man to active teaching."

3. Other than arranged examinations for graduating students, no examinations will be scheduled or held by any member of the faculty before May 25.

first meeting of the week on Wednesday at 10 o'clock will take the examination as a Monday 10 o'clock class provided no student in the group has a regular class on Monday at that hour.)

Final examinations for graduating seniors—By action of the Faculty Senate and the Administrative Council, a student who will graduate at the end of this semester will be excused from the final examination in all courses in which he has earned a grade of A or B. Graduating students will inquire of instructors whether or not they are to be excused. The determination of the instructor is final. A graduating senior with less than a B average in any course must see his instructor to make special arrangements for that examination.

Dormitory rooms for the first summer session are available in the south wing of Bragaw only. During the week of May 18, all unreserved rooms in Bragaw Dormitory, South Wing, will be available on a first-come first-served basis.

If room reservation is cancelled on or before the last day for registration, the rent paid will be refunded less the $5 room reservation fee or a charge of $1 per day, whichever is greater, from the day of registration to the date of cancellation. After the last day for registration, no refund will be made for any reason other than official withdrawal from college.

Graduation Invitations may be picked up at the Student Supply Store.

All students who are registered with local boards and who do not have ROTC deferments based on their enrollment or contemplated enrollment in ROTC should come to the Selective Service Office, Room 9, Holladay Hall, with their Selective Service cards in order to furnish data necessary for us to report their ranking to their local boards. This should be done prior to May 20.

Consummation Devoutly to be Wished

The outgoing editor will forego any sort of farewell summary of this year's glorious happenings at N. C. State College. It would be the essence of hypocrisy for him to write a glowing tribute to this school and its faculty-administrative-student leaders.

In this realm of communications, we have been given access to many areas where the average student does not penetrate . . . and admission to some of the inner sanctums about which few know the truth. Therefore, we will now reveal a few truths and conditions as we see them. When we are through, perhaps a few eyes may be opened . . . and perhaps a few people may well wish that this newspaper could be censored.

In comparison to the needs and problems of this school, very little has been accomplished this year to improve our college. In quietness and in deference to all-pervading, omnipotent, terrible tact, our leaders have not led us anywhere. The administration has consistently proved that calculated boldness is unknown in their policy deliberations.

Pressures from all factions, especially from those not concerned with student welfare, have worked to stymie and neutralize most movements to change or correct or improve existing conditions. We see an extension of the organization man into every level of our college, especially in top administrative positions. People in position to make decisions, and with full authority and responsibility to do so, rarely make the slightest move unless everyone connected with the college is satisfied and happy. As is obvious, any important decision is, more often than not, met with varying degrees of dissension. Take it from there.

In the higher echelons of Holladay Hall, we find that public relations are more important than education; and those that disagree with this idea are in subordinate, helpless positions to those who perpetuate the idea with all their zeal. So in the process of being all things to all people, we as a college are failing to be vital to anyone.

In Holladay Hall, we can imagine that most of our administrators who determine overall policy are instructed first to read Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People," and then to read the Rockefeller report on education if time can be stolen from head-patting and back-slapping.

Student Government too has felt the lack of dynamic leadership from within its ranks. Pitifully few new ideas have emanated from this body . . . and the few ideas in evidence were primarily suggested by the administration and/or the Faculty Senate, to which the Student Government sounds a hypnotic Amen.

The outstanding exception to this cowed inertia was shown by the resolution to reallocate student supply stores' profits to emphasize academic awards; this resolution showed courage and realism. And in impressive support, the Faculty Senate voted unanimously to support the S.G. resolution. In addition, popular opinion of the student body as a whole is strongly in favor of the idea behind the resolution.

And yet we find to our chagrin and real embarrassment that the Chancellor is going to defer any decision on the resolution until the issue dies down and is at least partially forgotten . . . because the business men of Raleigh and the alumni have been calling the Chancellors office and threatening to cut him off without a cent if he approves it! Evidently, the Chancellor's own convictions, as well as those of the student and faculty governing bodies, are not strong enough to risk raising the wrath of entertainment-hungry, selfish, unthinking outsiders.

There are exceptions to all that has been said here . . . but as usual, they do not disprove the rule. We have been in contact with many truly dedicated and hard-working men on this campus . . . students and faculty. We write this editorial in a one-shot attempt to show that these men are chafing under a system which tries to glow with sweetness and light at almost any cost . . . and that cost may well be the quality of N. C. State College.

This college is not giving the impression of leading from or with strength. At State, familiarity with the "top" does breed contempt . . . and if enough become contemptuous, perhaps they will demand that strength be used in proper proportion with insincere, dishonest tact. Perhaps with a show of strength our administrative leaders can regain the pride and confidence of all those working under them, as well as discover that the state legislature may admire something other than bowing, scheming, fearful leadership. And perhaps our Student Government will be regarded internally as something other than an interesting experiment in appeasing students by making them believe they have any real power at State College.

Disillusionment leaves a bitter taste, sweetened only by the great hope that others will indeed "take arms against a sea of troubles" . . . and by intelligent, bold opposition, end them.

Letter to the Editor

ROTC: Integral Part Of National Defense

To the Editor:

Should the ROTC program at North Carolina State College remain compulsory and be offered for credit? A bill presented in Student Government says the program should be non-compulsory and its courses offered for no credit toward a degree. What are the issues? The issues lie on levels of importance that expand from State College to all colleges to the nation and to the world and its people.

If N. C. State College were an ivory tower within, yet apart, from the troubled world, the issues would be simple and the question uncomplicated. Certainly we would not need and not want an ROTC program. Someone has hailed us from a larger and higher tower and proclaimed that if we continue the ROTC program as compulsory and with credit, our tower will no longer be accredited among the towers of learning in the land.

Military training courses detract from the time available to produce an intellectual professional class above and apart from the problems of petty belligerences between nations. A loophole has been found in the Morrill Act of 1862 that the land-grant institutions merely "offer" courses in military "tactics." Therefore we should just offer ROTC to students, and ROTC military "training" courses should be taken with no credit toward a degree.

The proclamation implies further that we should view the purpose and program of The Armed Forces of the United States from our ivory tower through the eyes of a romantic who sees war in terms of so many foot soldiers and the military establishment as composed of a special breed of men not necessarily of college graduate intellect. The intellectual is more vital to the economy than the military. Meanwhile there is reality.

The removal of The Armed Forces of the United States for a single instant or any lessening in its capability to wage war as retaliation would leave us open to a Pearl Harbor Sunday punch that could push us all into eternity. The modern technical army is not an army of the musket-toting foot soldier of 1862.

Scientific advancement has placed highly technical weapons and tools in the hands of every PFC. The modern officer must have a working knowledge of all the tools and weapons in his command and an understanding of capabilities.

At the same time he must understand the structure of the military establishment. Who can be a better modern officer than the ROTC-trained graduate of the technical college? The technical degree alone does not give the graduate the executive direction ability of the officer nor the understanding of the structure of The Armed Forces.

The apex of the inverted level of importance pyramid of the ROTC issue is on this campus. Sixty-five per cent of the officers of the armed forces came through ROTC programs on college campuses. More than ever before State College has an obligation to maintain compulsory ROTC as a source for officers of the modern technical army.

The non-compulsory program would necessarily mean a reduction in the number of officers who complete the program. It would eliminate the prospective officer who first gains an understanding of his military obligation through participation in the program. The removal of credit from ROTC courses will lessen their effectiveness. The student will not prepare for a course for which he receives no credit. The student who misses courses in the structure, organization, and purpose of the military establishment misses a study of human relations, for they concern the

with John Cocks

It was real pretty when I got up for class that morning, so I didn't think to change my shorts or undershirt. Somehow a real pretty day does that to me. You know, it makes me all lazy and careless.

Anyway, I woke Clyde up (Clyde's my roommate) and we went over to the cafeteria for breakfast and had some nice scrambled eggs. Only thing was, I had to go and spill some on my blue jeans. Then I poured coffee on my nice new red and green plaid shirt and I knew right then I was off to a real good start.

Well, then I went to class. The instructor came in with mustard or eggs or something all over his big blue tie, and that made me feel real good because somehow if the people you look up to make the same sort of mistakes you do, you don't feel half as bad about it all.

But that wasn't what I really wanted to talk about. I want to talk about what happened when Clyde and me were in this bookstore across from the campus after lunch.

Now don't think Clyde and me are intellectuals just because we went into this bookstore. What we went in for was to see if they'd got in any new sex books. You know, those pocket books.

So Clyde and me, we went on in and started poking around in the racks. Then all of a sudden, in comes this girl that was the prettiest I'd ever seen. I mean she was real nice. She looked even better than some of the ones you see on the sex book covers. I felt all weak-kneed just to stare at her.

"Hey Clyde," I said. "Yuh see that?"

He giggled. "Yuh goddam rite! Heh-heh!"

"Hey," I said. "Think we mite pick that up?"

"Damn rite! Heh-heh!"

So we walked towards the back where this chick was thumbing through a real intellectual book.

"Hey," I said to her. "What-cha readin'?"

She turned around and looked real surprised and I could see she looked even better close up. Some of them ain't like that, you know. Some of them look real nice from away off, but then when you get close you can see they've got pimples or wear glasses or something.

She sort of looked at us and didn't say anything. Then Clyde said, "My name's Clyde. Clyde Lee-cester. What about that?"

"Yes," she said. "What about that?"

Then I came in with one that usually gets them. I said, "What did you say your name wuz? I didn't ketch it. . ."

"I don't wonder. I haven't told you," she said.

Now that was real sharp. Even Clyde told me later that he had never heard of that one before. And Clyde gets around. Yes sir.

After that she turned to the front of the store and walked on out, and I began to feel real silly. I looked at Clyde's dirty tee-shirt and then down at my dirty jeans and all of a sudden I realized why we couldn't pick her up.

"Let's git out of here, Clyde." Clyde didn't say anything so I went on out into the street with my slide rule making a slapping noise against my leg.

Campus Cosmo

By Chuck Lombard

The student body of any university has a very real interest in the quality of the faculty under which the students must learn. Because of this immediate concern to us, the students of State College, we should have a definite interest in the North Carolina budget appropriations for faculty salaries.

Eleven faculty members have quit the staff of Woman's College for more money elsewhere. The same thing could happen at State or Carolina; it does happen on a smaller scale. It is especially significant that the faculty who do leave a campus for higher salaries are generally the most competent.

The American Association of University Professors, meeting Tuesday night at the College Union, held a panel discussion with four North Carolina legislators to discuss the problem: How can the University better present its case concerning appropriations to the State Legislature?

One of the real problems in North Carolina education is that imposed in defining the democratic concept of education and the role of the Greater University in general. It is too apparent that, in the U. S., the ideal of "Educational opportunity for all" is being translated to the more mediocre idea of "education (college diploma) guaranteed to all."

In connection with the founding democratic ideal, it seemed the idea of some of the Legislature panelists that rather than continue exponential expansion of the Greater University, it should be stabilized to some optimum size. The University should be the "gem in North Carolina's education crown." The Greater University education should become an opportunity whose realization would be reserved for those demonstrating merit in high school or other colleges.

It is perhaps not generally realized that North Carolina supports nine colleges in addition to the three parts of the Greater University. Because of this fact, reserving the University education for the student of outstanding ability might well serve to increase the incentive of high school students to greater scholastic competence, yet, in no way, denying the average student a college education in North Carolina.

From the standpoint of the Greater University in particular, a system of selective admissions could only result in a cyclic improvement of the schools in student competence, school reputation, and faculty competence.

The Legislators, in referring to State College in particular as well as the Greater University in general, stressed the importance of educating students towards the significance of education and in the importance of democratic, civic responsibility. It is only when the Legislature of North Carolina is composed of men fully aware of the mission of education, its needs, and their responsibilities towards it that the status of public education and the Greater University will be really secure. State College has its responsibility to educate some of these responsible individuals.

Finally, in a recommendation to the Faculty members present at the discussion, the panelist felt that there was real academic freedom of expression in North Carolina and that the schools and their faculty have the right and the obligation to speak up and fight for better education in this state and College.

Well, if ever we have received any comments on a column, it was last week when we did the ALTON AWARDS. Of course, we can't print many of the comments. Censorship, you know! However, we appreciate all of the pro and con remarks.

Tonight, on "Entertainment Unlimited," we'll discuss a highly interesting book about television and radio. The book deals with every aspect of the business and is one of the finest in existence. Sembower's has been very wonderful in giving us many books this semester for review, and we think you'll really enjoy hearing about this one. The program is heard on WKNC at 8:00-580.

Everyone has heard of the "Hi Fi Club" on WKIX by now. We're very happy to announce that we are now the representative of the club for State College. You can get a membership card from us as well as turn in requests for the program heard each week night and Saturday at 8:30.

We understand that some of the boys in the C U State Room have formed a choral group as a hobby. They call themselves the C U Specials. Glenn Plott is the one who originated the group. Understand their singing is "real tough"—like the C U Specials someone has added. He was just kidding, of course.

Claude Jones, a faithful reader, (Obviously he has a strong stomach) is on a diet. These few lines are for him. Steak, Chicken, Strawberry Shortcake, Veal Cutlet, Coconut Pie, Etc.

Of course, next week is the final column of "E.U." Aren't you glad? Anyway, we'll be saluting some of the many people who have helped us tremendously with our column as well as talking about one final book, a vacation book.

In The Raleigh Times column this week—if all goes well, we'll have a story on Jim and John Myhre as part of our three week series on outstanding students in this area.

Although we have been limiting our musical comments to the Raleigh Times, we must mention one record. It's "Along Came Jones" by the Coasters. Looks like a very big one.

Also in the line of music, a reader has asked why Mickey & Sylvia no longer record together. We are looking into this and hope to have an answer soon.

Cruelty Joke: "Mommy, can I go out and play in my sand-box?" "No, dear! Not until we find a better place to bury daddy!"—Max Rezwin. This is a joke? Sounds like morbidity incorporated.

A word about the Agromecks: The most impressive thing about the whole book is the way they have at last decided to put all the classes together rather than list them by curriculum. We think its much better the new way. The Agromeek staff deserves a round of applause.

Now, a word about the "Emmy Awards": Where were all the really big names of TV? Here is a partial list of the people you didn't see: Steve Allen, Loretta Young, Alfred Hitchcock, John Daly, Ariene Francis, Bennett Cerf, George Gobie, Lucille Ball, Desi Arnez, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Eve Arden, Bob Cummings, Spring Byington, Pat Boone, Jim Arness, Clint Walker, Garry Moore, Bill Cullen, Jayne Meadows, Dick Powell, Perry Como, Danny Thomas, even Milton Berle, and many, many more. These awards still have a long way to go before they can be classified as a successful method of rewarding deserving performers.

Someone has asked our opinion on the stories appearing in the expose magazines about Pat Boone. Such titles as "The Lies They Tell You About Pat Boone" and "When Pat Boone Was A Shoplifter" are currently adorning the newstands. Well, obviously one buys such a publication hoping to find

Yogi Gets Record

Yogi Berra was charged with his first error since July 28, 1957, Tuesday night—one game after he set a major league record for catchers with 148 consecutive errorless games.

The New York Yankee veteran marking his 34th birthday Tuesday, was charged with an error when his throw went into center field as he tried to nail the stealing Minnie Minoso in the fifth inning against the Cleveland Indians.

"I'll be all right, the hits will come."

Ted Williams, the 40-year-old defending American League batting champion, was not disappointed after going 0 for 5 in his first appearance of the 1959 season for the Boston Red Sox.

"I'm satisfied with my efforts for my first game back. I'm not tired. In fact, I feel real good."

Pack Blasts Deacs, 9-2 To Put ACC In 3-Way Tie

N. C. State beat Wake Forest yesterday to throw the ACC Championship into a three way tie. The score of the ball game was 9-2.

After the game Commissioner Jim Weaver of the ACC tossed a coin to determine who would get the bye in the playoff. Carolina won the toss and will play the winner of the Clemson-Wake Forest game.

The locations and dates of these games will be announced at a later date.

Wake Forest beat Carolina by a score of 3-1 Tuesday. If Wake Forest had beaten State yesterday, it would have given them the ACC Championship.

However, State was not to be denied. Before the game Coach Vic Sorrell had stated that since his team had had a poor season, it would only be fitting to close the season in glory . . . and close the season in glory was just what the Wolfpack did.

The Wolfpack came out on to the field with blood in their eyes and the first inning proved this. Jim Lancaster and O'Neal Eason hit back-to-back doubles to account for the first Pack run. First baseman Stacey Wells then hit a home run to account for the Wolfpack's second and third runs of the inning.

Right-hander Wilson Carruthers, a sophomore from Greensboro, N. C., scattered six hits as he picked up his fifth victory of the season. He has suffered three setbacks.

Eason, Lancaster, and Wells had three hits each for State, while Jim Hill, Glenn Sparrow, and Carruthers had two in the sixteen hit barrage against the Demon Deacons.

Carruthers was robbed of a shutout in the eighth inning when Buster Ledford homered after Jack Phillips had singled.

This was the first victory of the season for the Wolfpack over the Deacons, and it came at an opportune time for the Wolfpack.

This victory undoubtedly took the bad taste out of the Wolfpack's mouth. Here was a team that had played practically every game away from home. It closed the season in fine style for the State fans, too.

Now, the championship will be decided between Clemson, Wake Forest, and Carolina to see which team represents the ACC in the Regional Playoffs.

Although the Wolfpack will not finish high in the conference this season, a quick glance of the roster shows that the Pack will have most of their starters back for next season. Only Hafer, Hill, and Jones graduate this year.

So maybe next year with a new field to play on and most of their starters back, the Wolfpack will give the rest of the teams in the ACC a run for the Championship.

State College To Be Site Of This Year's Carolinas AAU

State College will be the site of this year's Carolina AAU. A field of 241 athletes are entered in the meet which will be held on the State track Saturday afternoon.

Dave Sime of Duke, Lee Calhoun, Elias Gilbert, and Fran Washington top the list of outstanding trackmen. Both Calhoun and Gilbert will fly to Raleigh by plane from California to compete in Saturday's events.

Gilbert, who last year flew in from California on one day and set a new world record the following day in the 220 low-hurdles, will arrive in Raleigh Friday all set for action.

Frank Murray, assistant track coach for the Wolfpack, is this year's AAU chairman. Murray said that the big question would be the probability of Dave Sime's performance. "Sime is entered, but he is having some leg trouble and is presently undergoing treatments in a whirlpool bath, but he's given me his word that he would try and be here."

In addition to the mentioned stars, there will be a host of participating runners. From State, there will be John Davis, who placed third in the ACC Relay in Columbia last week. Bob Schweindel of Furman, Southern Conference 100 yard dash champion, will be entered.

Jessel Curry of East Carolina, North State Conference champ in the high and low hurdles as well as the broad jump, will be competing, as will Earl Poucher of Camp Lejeune, who is the former Southeastern Conference pole vaulting champ.

In addition there are many service entries who have been outstanding in both service competition and collegiate athletics.

Trial are scheduled for 2:30 Saturday afternoon with the finals at 8 p.m.

Murray expects many surprises Saturday; he said, "it could be anybody's victory."

Sime is suffering from his leg injury, and Washington is nursing a previous shoulder injury. Except for these two, the remaining field seems to be in top-notch shape.

"This is one of the largest fields ever to participate in the Carolinas AAU Meet and we hope the turnout of spectators is equally as large," said Murray.

WKNC To Present Classical Music During Exams

It's nearing that time again . . . exams. As in the past, WKNC will program classical music, "Music to Study By," throughout exam week from 5:00 p.m. until 1:00 a.m. WKNC will leave the air for this school year at 1:00 a.m. on May 30.

Many big plans are in the works for next year. Three new satellite transmitters are ready for installation to improve campus coverage. Actual installation is being delayed by the inefficient operations of a certain campus department. All we can promise is that they will be in operation for next fall. . . we hope.

Plans for the addition of an FM transmitter are being considered. Student interest in this matter will better insure the establishment of such a facility. If you are desirous of FM service here on campus, address a card or letter to WKNC Radio, Box 5748, State College Station, or call the station at TE 2-7861 during broadcast hours. Your interest will be appreciated.

The "Highlights of '59" was presented last Thursday night. This comprehensive news program will again be presented by popular request on Friday, May 22, at 7:45 p.m. Included in this program are all of the important news stories which were covered by WKNC through the past school year.

A final reminder . . . tune WKNC Monday, May 18, at 10 p.m. for the presentation of "Music Dedicated to You" from East Carolina College.

Foreign 'Students' Face Rigorous Final Exams

Feature! That lousy Clique Unanimous coffee still tastes like the worst part of a Mau Mau initiation.

Booming Business: A friend was explaining how he could afford his new 300-SL Mercedes Benz. "Man, I've got a natural—I've got the dynamite concession in Henderson."

Silver Lining: Guy on the J. Parr show was all broken up—tears, sobs, the works.

"A sad thing today," he explained, tears streaming down his wet cheeks, "My poor old grandmother died today. She was 97."

"Oh, I'm sorry, truly I am," sympathized Joey Bishop.

"It's OK, Joey, because there's a bright side too," bawled the mourner. "They saved the baby."

Iron Bars Do Not . . . To those IE students who are not graduating on schedule, Dr. C. A. Anderson's IE Department has suddenly become "Andersonville".

Justified Plug: That IE Picnic this Friday (that I plugged last week) is really growing into something interesting. Tom Davis, the brains behind the blast, tells me he's already had to order more kegs of what-you-call-it. There'll even be food!

Moral: Andersonville ain't all bad!

Music (?): Walter Winchell, who normally nauseates me, comes up with the truth of the year. He refers to rock-and-roll as "ROT-and-roll!"

Liquid Propellant: A member of Theta Tau was telling me about J. C. C. (Johnson County Corn that Percy Flowers made famous) and the name given this rocket fuel locally. It's called Block & Tackle liquor—take a drink, walk a block and tackle a telephone pole.

Entertainment

(Continued from page 3) some dirt. Such is the opposite case in this particular incident. The magazines claim that the stuff recently released about Boone showing that he's no angel is all false. They say he's a "goody-goody" and that press agents made up or highly magnified this stuff because Mr. B. needed a boost. He's still a person to be admired!

Jokes:

(1) "Romeo, Romeo, wherefort art thou, Romeo?" Juliet plaintively called.

"Down here in the bushes," came the disgusted reply, "the damn vine broke!"

A Level Head (meaning flat):

An anti-Hodges democrat, who is also "slightly" anti-management, was heard, the first day of National Guard policing in Henderson, to say, "Those damn National Guard storm troopers are skewering union babies on bayonets like shisk-ka-bob!"

This is what we need. Clear thinking!

Sigma Upsilon Alpha Report:

It is with deep regret that the officers and brothers of SUA must announce the closing of their proposed Co-ed Nudist Camp for Teenagers. They were denied a beer and wine license. "Hells bells," the fraternity president is quoted as saying, "they won't let ya do nothing that's good no more. I'll bet them Baptists had a hand in this, but I can't figure why. We already promised them there'd be no dancing!"

Last on Media's This Year:

Then there's the story of the operation. Dr. "Busy" said definitely don't operate. The patient was told by the other doctor that he definitely should have an operation. The patient was smart—he ignored Dr. "Busy" and now is doing just beautifully.

Look Out: Next week, for the last Clean Living column of the year, I'm gonna give "credit" where "credit" is due. Will your name be here?

future peace and the well-being of us all.

Let us realize that the purpose of the military coincides and does not conflict with our personal interests. Let us hope that the Student Government will make a careful study of the report of the Engineering Council for Professional Development concerning the accrediting of the State College Engineering School. Let us hope also that our senators will see State's ROTC program as an integral part of the national military establishment.

John Fulton
Cadet Brigade and Wing

This June, as your parents applaud their favorite graduate, a proud Bantu tribesman in Africa will be painting his!

He will smear the happy lad's face with certain designs that signify the family to which he belongs; a few more dabs will portray the animal held sacred by the boy's clan; and, if the lad has learned his work well, additional blobs of home-made paint will announce his chosen profession—warrior, hunter, craftsman, priest.

A young researcher at Underwood Corporation, who uncovered these oddities in preparation for the company's new advertising program, found gradations around the world fascinating. For example, on the other side of the world, equally far from books and classrooms—but not examinations—the eyes of a few chosen Melanesian boys will sparkle as bones are inserted through their noses—symbols of their having reached the estate of manhood, with its privileges and responsibilities.

Some young men on nearby islands must endure much more. Having spent their youth accompanying their elders on hunting expeditions, they must pass one of the most rigorous tests ever devised for a student.

Accompanied by two adult men from his family, each youth is escorted into the wilderness or to some mountain top far from his village.

All he has are the clothes on his back and a knife—no food or tools. His kinsmen search him for contraband, then leave him without a word.

His mission: survive for one week and find his way back home. He must prove himself capable of tracking down and killing game, making a lean-to of whatever materials he can find, reading the stars and avoid getting killed.

Sometimes the boy doesn't make it—and his family is deeply shamed. But when, on the seventh day, a successful candidate stumbles into the village, dirty, exhausted and shivering—what a celebration! The clan throws the biggest party of its existence. The hero can do no wrong for the following week. He may kiss any girl he wishes, drop in for supper anywhere, drink himself senseless—anything he wants. For he has returned; he is a man.

If you think that's tough, consider the boys who aspire to native priesthood. In order to qualify as a shaman (medicine man), they undergo the same test as their less ambitious brother, but are forbidden to est. For a solid week, all they may have is water. And though they are unguarded, they obey—for they firmly believe that the full-fledged shamans can tell whether or not they have had food.

This enforced hunger spell has a purpose. Sometime during these seven foodless days, the young man must have a "vision." He must be visited by a god who tells him he is shaman material. When he returns to the village, he relates his "vision" to the shamans, who decide whether he is truly among the chosen.

Most of the candidates have the "vision" (hunger-induced hallucinations are common), but few possess the eloquence to describe it effectively. And the shamans, who know how important a glib tongue is to their profession, soon separate the eloquent from the merely ambitious.

SCHULTZ IS A MANY SPLENDORED THING

Beppo Schultz, boulevardier, raconteur, connoisseur, sportsman, bon vivant, hail fellow well met—in short, typical American college man—smokes today's new Marlboros.

"Why do you smoke today's new Marlboros, hey?" a friend recently asked Beppo Schultz.

"I smoke today's new Marlboros," replied Beppo, looking up from his 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car, "because they are new."

"New?" said the friend. "What do you mean—new?"

"I mean the flavor's great, the filter's improved, the cigarette is designed for today's easier, breezier living," said Beppo.

"Like this 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car?" asked the friend.

"Exactly," said Beppo.

"She's a beauty," said the friend, looking admiringly at the car. "How long have you had her?"

"It's a male," said Beppo.

"Sorry," said the friend. "How long have you had him?"

"About a year," said Beppo.

"Have you done a lot of work on him?" asked the friend.

"Oh, have I not!" cried Beppo. "I have replaced the pushrods with a Roots type supercharger. I have replaced the torque with a synchromesh. I have replaced the tachometer with a double side draft carburetor."

"Gracious!" exclaimed the friend.

"I have replaced the hood with a bonnet," said Beppo.

"Land o' Goshen!" exclaimed the friend.

"And I have put gloves in the glove compartment," said Beppo.

"My, you have been the busy one," said the friend. "You must be exhausted."

"Maybe a trifle," said Beppo, with a brave little smile.

"Know what I do when I'm tired?" said the friend.

"Light a Marlboro?" ventured Beppo.

"Oh, pshaw, you guessed!" said the friend, pouting.

"But it was easy," said Beppo, chuckling kindly. "When the eyelids droop and the musculature sags and the psyche is depleted, what is more natural than to perk up with today's new Marlboro?"

"A great new smoke with better 'makin's' and a great new filter!" proclaimed the friend, his young eyes glistening.

"Changed to keep pace with today's changing world!" declared Beppo, whirling his arms in concentric circles. "A cigarette for a sunnier age, an age of greater leisure and more beckoning horizons!"

Now, tired but happy, Beppo and his friend lit Marlboros and smoked for a time in deep, silent contentment. At length the friend spoke. "He certainly is a beauty," he said.

"You mean my 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car?" asked Beppo.

"Yes," said the friend. "How fast will he go?"

"Well, I don't rightly know," said Beppo. "I can't find the starter."
