State Leaders Support Bond Issue

Caldwell Makes Statement On October 27 Referendum

An appeal to the people of North Carolina for an affirmative vote in the October 27 bond referendum was issued today by Chancellor John T. Caldwell of North Carolina State College.

Dr. Caldwell declared: "The success of the bond issue election on October 27 is of tremendous importance to the people of North Carolina.

"I can presume to speak with some authority in regard to one major institution to be aided by the bond issue—North Carolina State College. The total funds included for the College are $4,884,000. The amount soundly could have been doubled.

"As it stands every dollar contemplated is urgently needed now for expansion of classroom space, teaching laboratories, research laboratories, essential office space, and student service space.

"The rapid enrollment increase (over 700 this year over last) and the pressure of research and technical services demanded by the expanding economy of North Carolina combine to form the urgency for us of the success of this election.

"The proposed bond issue is of course a proposed investment of the people in the essentials of our welfare and progress."

North Carolina voters will go to the polls on Tuesday, October 27, to decide whether to grant the State of North Carolina authority to issue $34,400,000 in bonds to finance permanent improvements at many of the State's institutions.

Included in the issue are nine propositions.

To be considered are: State educational institutions capital improvement bonds, $18,891,000; State mental institutions capital improvement bonds, $12,053,000; community college capital improvement bonds, $1,500,000; hospital capital improvement bonds, $500,000; State armory capital improvement bonds, $100,000; State ports bonds, $500,000; and historical sites construction and restoration bonds, $250,000.

Of the $18,891,000 designated for permanent improvements at the State's institutions of higher learning, the sum of $4,884,000 is earmarked for permanent improvements at State College.

State College officials have pointed out the urgent needs of the college for the bond funds designated for it in the bond referendum and have urged an affirmative vote on all nine issues in the election.

If a favorable vote is cast for the bonds for higher education, State College will receive the following major physical improvements:

SG President Knox Tells of State Need For Bond Approval

The Students at State College have taken a forward-look at the significance of the October 27 Bond Referendum. Through daily observation of the inadequacies found in present facilities, it is with reason that the students are taking a positive step to gain an affirmative vote on the bond issue. As students, we are in a position to recognize the need for better classrooms, laboratories, and a cafeteria.

Higher education will receive one of its greatest tests when the people of the State vote on this issue. Out of the 34.4 million dollars, $18,891,000 will be for educational institutions. Within the latter sum, State College has a sizeable share of $4,799,000 to be used in securing the following needed facilities:

1. To construct a new cafeteria,
2. To construct an Electrical Engineering and Physics Building,
3. To repair and replace Horticulture Greenhouses,
4. To purchase an additional steam boiler,
5. To add additional space to Polk Hall,
6. To complete the budget for a much needed classroom building, and
7. To facilitate construction of a General Laboratory Building.

State College students recognize the importance of the acquisitions of such facilities, and as a result have worked in strong support of the bond issue. The Student Government, having unanimously endorsed the bond issue proposed a plan whereby students could help in informing the people of this State of these needs. Through personal contacts, printed postal cards to parents of our State College students, letters to edi-

Two-Thirds Appropriated For Educational Facilities

by George Hammett

A big question presently looming in the minds of many North Carolinians: Will the October 27th Bond Referendum be approved or defeated? This question will be answered by North Carolina voters who go to the polls on Tuesday, October 27.

The $34,000,000 bond issue is not the largest bond issue to come before the North Carolina voter, but it is acclaimed as one of the most important by many of the North Carolina newspapers. The Bond Referendum is a nine point issue, and each issue can be considered separately for approval or disapproval.

In the nine point issue, over two thirds of the $34,000,000 is slated to go to educational institutions. The other third is to go for health, historical, and defense facilities.

The break-down of the nine point issue is as follows: State Educational Institutions Capital Improvement Bonds, $18,891,000; State Mental Institutions Capital Improvements Bonds, $12,053,000; Community College Capital Improvement Bonds, $1,500,000; Hospital Capital Improvement Bonds, $500,000; State Armory Capital Improvement Bonds, $100,000; State Training School Capital Improvement Bonds, $400,000; State Blind Center Rehabilitation Capital Improvement Bonds, $140,000; State Ports Bonds, $500,000; and Historical Sites Construction and Restoration Bonds, $250,000.

The phase of the referendum on educational facilities is broken into two parts—$18,891,000 for State educational institutions and $1,500,000 for aid to community colleges.

The Board of Higher Education estimates, from a study of the educational facilities, that the bond funds would take care of one-fifth of the foreseen need of $90 million by 1969. The Board sent a recommendation to the 1959 Legislature, requesting two-fifths of the need be met by that session.

Governor Hodges has given the bond campaign his full support by getting together a committee of 60 persons to rally favorable votes.

By Consolidated University

Bond Issue Favored

The Consolidated University Student Council is another student organization that is supporting the bond issue. This council is composed of representatives from the three Consolidated University Schools; State, Carolina, and Woman's College.

On October 12, the Council passed the following resolution which was submitted by the State delegation to the council:

Whereas: The expansion and improvement of all services provided by the State of North Carolina is of vital concern to students, and

Whereas: The opportunity to expand one facet of these services, that being capital improvements, is being provided to the voters of this state in the bond election of October 27, and

Whereas: In the area of capital improvements, much is lacking and we have specific inadequacies in higher education, mental institutions, community colleges, local hospitals, state armory, correctional institutions, blind rehabilitation center, port facilities, and historical sites, and

Whereas: We believe that the feelings of the representative body of over 15,000 college minds should be voiced and heard by the people of the state since the needs for said improvements will be felt greater by our generation and their culmination more appreciated in the years to come than it can possibly be today,

Now, Therefore, be it resolved by the Consolidated University Student Council of the Greater

University of North Carolina that:

Article I. The Consolidated University Student Council go on record as supporting with great fervor the requests of the state bond issue to be voted on October 27, 1959.

Article II. Copies of this resolution be sent to the editors of the papers and student body presidents at the three branches of the Consolidated University.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A Vote For Progress

On the front page of this issue of The Technician, there are several articles urging the students of State College and the other people of North Carolina to support the Bond Referendum that is coming before the State on October 27.

As you have probably heard before, this Issue is one that, if passed, will provide for many needed improvements to several areas of great interest to all North Carolinians. Besides the section concerning the share that higher education will gain from this. Referendum, there is also the possibility that over twelve million dollars will go to provide capital improvements to the State's mental institutions, one hundred-forty thousand dollars for improvements at the State Blind Center, and five hundred thousand dollars to help in the construction of local hospitals.

Also there will be other worthy factors in the State that would gain a great deal if this Referendum were to be approved by the people, but the most important item to the ones directly connected with State College is the possible issuance of over eighteen million dollars for the capital improvement of the State's educational institutions.

Of this eighteen million dollars, State College will receive the largest amount of aid with the exception of the University of North Carolina. If the Bond Vote is approved, this school will gain almost five million dollars, with which many sorely needed improvements can be made.

The main general need which the appropriation would satisfy if it were passed is the need for increased classroom and laboratory space. This Bond provides for the construction of a general laboratory building, a classroom building, a Physics and Electrical Engineering Building, and a new cafeteria.

Other improvements for State College would be the replacement of the horticultural greenhouses, an addition to Polk Hall.

But greater still than these immediate advantages which State College would gain is the underlying boost which the entire educational system of North Carolina would receive. This State is looked upon by many of the other United States as the leader of the progressive South. We are fortunate to have had a succession of governors who kept as their primary objective the betterment of North Carolina in the eyes of America.

Thus far they have been successful in building our State to a position of prominence and respect. Countless honors have come to us for our forward look in the construction of roads, our forward look in the question of segregation, and our forward look in our system of education.

Now is the chance for North Carolina to prove again that it is progressive in the field of educational facilities. The people realize that we have, within our borders, some of the best schools in the arts and sciences in the South, one of the best design schools in the country, one of the few accredited schools of Forestry in the South, and one of the best systems of State-supported educational institutions in the South.

If this Bond Referendum is defeated by the people, it will mean a virtual end to the advancement that has characterized this state in years past. North Carolina will be stymied in so far as the development of the educational facilities are concerned. We will see a stagnant North Carolina while the rest of the South and the United States move ahead to greater conquests.

This Bond Referendum will not affect the present student body of State College. Instead, it will probably be several years before the improvements will be realized on this campus. The ones that will be affected if this Bond Vote is approved are the students now in high schools and grammar schools throughout the State. So that this great influx of eager minds can be provided for, and so that the educational system of North Carolina can be allowed to grow and flourish in America, this Bond Vote must be approved.

A vote for the Bond Issue on October 27 is a vote for the future well-being and posterity of all North Carolinians, young and old.

Greeks On Campus

Interfraternity Council news for this issue includes both business and pleasure. The Kingston Trio may be here in April along with the sunshine and flowers and Richard Maltby will be the band for the Fall I.F.C. Pledge Dance.

National Interfraternity Council (N.I.C.) representatives this year will be Ed Puckhaber, Sigma Nu, and Pete Moffitt, Pi Kappa Alpha, with Tom Eck, Theta Chi, acting as an alternate. I will give some poop on N.I.C. meeting next week.

I'd like to sarcastically say that I appreciate the hell out of all the news you Greeks are letting me in on each week. If you don't like this paltry article let me know some fraternity news, any fraternity news and you shall see it in print.

For the new pledges of the Greeks, I would like to attempt to give a rough, general idea of what to expect during your pledge training. As a pledge you are not expected to relinquish the way of life you have been accustomed to, but instead a certain amount of responsibility has been placed on your shoulders.

You are now a representative of your fraternity, and this responsibility has been given to you in order that the brothers may see how you react to it, cope with it, and the way in which you can conduct yourselves under responsibility. You will be under observance, and you will be carefully considered as to your merits and qualities according to their standards. You will have work to do around the house, pledge quizzes concerning different aspects of your particular fraternity, and you will attend your own meetings.

Pledge training is not intended to nor should it interfere with school work in any way. The smart pledge will learn to budget his time and to adjust his life early in his training.

I would like to suggest to you pledges to be yourselves now even more so than when you were rushing. Act naturally and feel at home in your fraternity house. Remember it is your home.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

Why should the people of North Carolina go to the poles on October 27, 1959 and approve the $34,000,000 Bond Issue?

Today North Carolina is a dynamically-expanding State of some four and one-half million people. We, the citizens, are fortunate to live in a state which is making an overnight transition from archaic government and an agrarian economy to a state with progressive government and a diversified economy. The legislative and administrative branches of our state government can do only so much to assure the continued progress of our state; it then becomes the responsibility of the citizens of the state to assume upon their shoulders a small burden which will provide the state with adequate funds to accomplish some of the necessary expansion programs.

The Bond Election consists of nine separate points, each one affecting particular agencies within the structure of the state. Of particular interest to the student at State College is the portion of the Bond dealing with higher education. After more than three years at State College I have become well acquainted with the needs of the college. Everyday we confront the necessity for new classrooms and laboratories.

This is why we must vote "FOR" every point on the ballot October 27, 1959. A vote "FOR" is a vote "FOR" progress.

G. P., Jr.

L.G.

Sometimes I wonder if I'm crazy; I have dreams that begin and never end. For example, the other night, I woke up at about 4:30 in a cold sweat. As the room slowly stopped rotating and began to level off, I could remember the dream as vividly as it had appeared only a few minutes before: I was living it again.

I could still see the small square building far off in the distance. In the oppressive heat the little box seemed to be shimmering and squirming, trying to rid itself of the bond of the earth. It seemed to be reaching for freedom as I was, writhing and grasping at the air, at nothing, at everything. I was thinking as I approached it, still far off in the distance, was I doing the right thing in running away from reality? shouldn't I face life as it really is? I thought I was different; I guess I always have; if it weren't for that fact, I probably wouldn't be out here now, by myself in the sun. Pretty soon, I thought, I would find some water, some shade; something would relieve my plight. I couldn't be that alone, could I; surely someone would see me and offer me a drink, someone would sympathize; there had to be others. But even the little house, fighting for its freedom seemed to flee as I approached; the farther I walked, the farther did my help seem to flee.

After many an agonizing hour of this walking, crawling, stumbling, I finally reached the house, only to see that it was empty, it was nothing but a shell, there was nothing inside, except the dirt floor, a few scattered spider webs, and a broken bottle. My small, square building was nothing but a shell.

I rolled over, closing my eyes, trying to get away from the burden of life, trying for the total unconsciousness which seemed an eternity away, but I feared the return to that cold reality of helplessness. I was completely within the power of my oppressor, completely defenseless; what could I do?

The pounding in my temples drowned out the soft rustle of my footsteps in the blistering sand. Would my savior never appear? Was there no one in whom I could place my trust? How like this world is unto a void; where is he? Am I to walk in silence forever, alone? But, then, will I ever find out?

Rambling 'Round

Ah, it is State Fair time again! It is truly wonderful: the exhibits, the fireworks, the brightly colored booths, the ferris wheels . . . and that abominable traffic on Hillsboro Street. It took me fifteen minutes to get from the Tower to the Textile Building. If the farmers must descend upon us, they could at least learn to drive first.

The following story was relayed to me by usually reliable sources, but oh, how I wish I had been there! The incident I have in mind occurred last Friday afternoon. There was a certain car with a Staff sticker parked in the vicinity of Withers Hall in a space which was, with one minor exception, a perfectly legal parking space. Through some oversight, one of the little white lines which mark off the space was missing. One of our eagle-eyed MEO protectors chanced to pass that way, and, noticing the absence of said line, stopped to investigate. He wasn't too sure about the whole thing, so he parked his little red jeep (in a no-parking area, naturally) and got out the little rulebook which all policemen carry. He still remained mystified, so he wisely called for help, which soon arrived in the form of a City of Raleigh Cop. This worthy then double-parked across a cross-walk, and dug out his little book. Well, to make a long story short, that car never did get a ticket. And neither of our heroes noticed when a woman driver went up that one way street the wrong way while they were looking for that little lost line.

Did you notice the return of 'old muddy to the new dorm? (I refuse to call it Bragaw.) After spending a full year trying to grow grass, they have now chopped it up again. During the rains last weekend, there was more muddy water on the sidewalk than anywhere else, except possibly in my shoes.

Please, Mister Telephone man, put my sidewalk back. I realize you had to lay your cable, but why under the walk? You don't have to walk in that "goo" when it rains. How would you like it if your roommate disappeared into the mud wearing your slide-rule?

Query: Do you know which instructor is letting the IBM computer in the basement of Patterson handle his grades? I suppose you'll answer his quizzes by punching holes in cards.

Someone who read my column last week says that Brigitte Bardot is a drawing instrument —she draws us to the movies by the dozen.

If someone knocks on your door next Monday, don't say 'come in,' say 'I'm reading the new N. C. State Technician.' If the knock is from your paper boy, and if you know the secret word, you win a year's subscription to the magazine of our choice. Also: last Tuesday I put into circulation a dollar bill with the serial number 21689792-A. If you bring this bill to me before Monday, I will be glad to take it back and try again.

P.S. The secret word for this week is BEER. Use it often; you may not win the prize, but you'll still be happy!

WF Edges State, 17-14 With 4th Period TD

Two fumbles proved to be very costly to State's Wolfpack Saturday night as the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest scored 10 points in the final quarter to edge the Wolfpack 17-14. The three point margin came on the strength of Nick Patella's right foot.

It drizzled throughout the game, but the passing of Norman Snead proved to be very valuable to the Deacons. Snead completed 6 of 16 passes for 95 yards.

Wake Forest moved the ball 63 yards the first time it took the ball on offense, and the Deacons quickly led the Pack 7-0. Snead scored the touchdown on a keeper play from his one-yard line, and Patella was responsible for the extra point.

The Wolfpack could not move the first time it had the ball, but it did move the ball the second time for 50 yards and the tying touchdown, Roman Gabriel scoring from the one-yard line on a play similar to Snead's. State made its first extra point of the season with Ron Wojcicki's kick being true.

This was all the scoring for the first half as the rain continued to hamper play.

There was no scoring in the third quarter, but in the closing seconds of the quarter, State's Randy Harrell could not hold on to the ball and fumbled on his own 33-yard line.

Wake could not move the ball and had to settle for Patella's field goal which proved to be the deciding margin of victory. This kick came from the State 17 and made the score read Wake Forest 10 STATE 7.

The Wolfpack was not to be denied as its sophomore quarterback, Gabriel, led the Wolfpack to its second TD on a 43-yard drive. This drive was aided by Bernie Latusick's fine 47-yard kickoff return. Gabriel was not on the field when the Pack scored its touchdown due to an ankle injury at the Wake 14. Wojcicki took over for Gabriel, and on a fourth and two situation Wojcicki's pass to Latusick put the Pack ahead 13-10. Wojcicki's kick was good, and the score read STATE 14 Wake Forest 10.

Wake Forest came fighting right back, when Claude Gibson fumbled the ball on his own 34-yard line. Wake quickly moved the ball for the winning touchdown with Joe Bonecutter scoring from the two-yard line. Patella's kick was good, and the Deacons were home with their fourth victory of the season. The final score read Wake Forest 17 STATE 14.

State Basketball Team Opens Practice

North Carolina State's defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions open basketball practice Thursday afternoon with 16 candidates for the varsity squad.

Everett Case, the dean of ACC cage coaches, will have seven lettermen on hand as he begins his 14th season with the Wolfpack. But the nationally-known mentor faces one of the biggest rebuilding jobs in his long and colorful career.

Gone from last year's team which had a 24-4 record, are four starters. Missing are Lou Pucillo and John Richter, the Pack's Mutt and Jeff All-Americans, husky George Stepanovich and clutch-shooter Bob MacGillivray.

The only starter who returns is guard Dan Englehardt, who will captain the 1959-60 squad. In addition to Englehardt, other lettermen are forwards Don Gallagher, Bruce Hoadley and Stan Niewierowski, centers Ken Clark (who returns after missing last season) and Bob (Moose) DiStefano, and guard Bob McCann.

The rest of the team is made up entirely of sophomores. They are forwards Russ Marvel, Dan

"With four starting positions open," Case remarked, "I look for our practices to be spirited. That's one advantage of a rebuilding year... everyone works hard to grab a starting berth."

In the past 13 years, Case's

Wolfpack squads have won 322 games while losing only 81. Included are ten conference titles and seven Dixie Classic crowns.

The feature game in the fraternity leagues last week was played between PKA and Sigma Nu with the PKA team winning by a 12-0 margin. The PKA team scored in the second quarter on an aerial from Langdon to Kirkley. They added another six points in the third period when Langdon passed to Maltese for a touchdown.

Bragaw South went on a scoring spree and dropped Owen No. 2 by a 29-0 count. Redwine of Bragaw figured in all of his teams scoring as he scored one touchdown himself and passed to his teammates for the other three. The Bragaw team also scored two points on a safety.

Redwine stepped into the pay-dirt in the second period to put his team out in front to stay. But before the second period was over, Redwine passed to Harril for another score. The rest of the Bragaw points came in the third period with Redwine passing to Cooke and Brown for touchdowns.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE — Students contemplating vocational testing and counseling at the Counseling Center are encouraged to make arrangements very soon. The number of students seeking such help is always very large at the end of a semester. It would be beneficial both to student and to counselor to avoid the rush by scheduling this activity as early as possible in any semester.

Students may initiate counseling by coming to the Center, 203 Holladay Hall, at any time between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday.

SPELLING CLINIC — The College Extension Division will offer a 10-week (non-credit) Spelling Clinic, beginning Mon., Oct. 19th. Classes will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. each Monday in 201 Winston Hall under the direction of Prof. William Barnhardt. The clinic is designed to diagnose the cause of chief errors of the poor speller, to teach him the rules of spelling, and to give him practice in proofreading. To enroll, write or visit the College Extension Division, 1911 Bldg.

FRESHMAN ELECTION BOOKS OPEN MONDAY, OCTOBER 12th — All freshmen wishing to run for a class officer or to become a freshman representative from his school to the Student Legislature must sign up in Room 206 Holladay Hall beginning Monday, Oct. 12th through Friday, Oct. 16th. Each person signing up must be endorsed by a friend.

SALESMEN, SOLICITORS AND THIEVES—Each year a number of State College students living in dormitories and fraternity houses are relieved of a sizeable sum of money by confidence men operating in the guise of salesmen, saleswomen or solicitors. A confidence man always has a reasonable story.

To protect the student body, the College has ruled that there is to be no solicitation in any dormitory or fraternity house unless the solicitor has been approved by the Financial Aid Office (Dr. Johns, TE 4-511, Ext. 466.) When it is given, it is only to State College students and the student is required to wear a badge issued by that office. NO person who is not a student at State College can get a permit to solicit.

If an unauthorized salesman comes to your door, notify your dormitory manager or call TE 4-5211, Extension 215, 370, or 460.

tors of our North Carolina newspapers, and this special edition of the student newspaper, The Technician, are the various modes of communication used to inform the voter of educational needs.

As students, we are concerned with the progressiveness of education in North Carolina. Needless to say, most of the facilities mentioned above would never be enjoyed by most of our present students. But, recognizing the ever increasing enrollment and the present inadequate facilities, our interest grows in what State College and other educational institutions will be able to offer our students.

The state of North Carolina stands on the threshold of tremendous developments and opportunities—yet if education fails to provide the means, the state's growth will be retarded.
