In ACC Tourney

Pack Rated As Darkhorse

By Jay Brame

The question that always arises before the Ides of March at State College is "Can The Pack Defend Its ACC Crown?"

As everybody remembers, the Wolfpack defeated Carolina in the finals of the Atlantic Coast Championship last year, 80-56.

It closed out the careers of four outstanding seniors on the Wolfpack squad. Those players were Lou Pucillo, one of the finest guards ever to play at State College, John Richter, the ACC's top scorer and rebounder, Bob McGillivray, and "Jumping" George Stepanovich, one of the roughest and toughest rebounders ever seen in this section of the country. Pucillo and Richter were All-Americans.

State does not have the team that it did last season. The material has not been as good this year as it has in the past. However, Coach Everett Case, who is the grand old master of tournament basketball in the country, has brought his cagers along more than some of the ardent Wolfpack supporters believed that he could.

Case's team captured five straight home contests before the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina were able to stop them at the friendly confines of the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum.

The Wolfpack finished with a won-lost record of 10-14, the worst since Coach Case arrived on the scene back in 1946. The Pack was unable to win a road contest all season long. Their home court record was a very fine 10-4. The only team to beat them badly at home was the University of Kansas. Carolina and Dayton were able to beat the Wolfpack by only four points. A strong comeback by Holy Cross in the second half enabled them to beat the Pack in the Dixie Classic by a margin of two points.

The Wolfpack closed out the season with a Marvel(ous) victory over LaSalle. A strong comeback in the second half led the Wolfpack to one of their best victories of the season against outside competition.

The brightest light in the victory was the play of center Russ Marvel, a sophomore, who scored 20 points and captured 16 rebounds. Marvel had been counted on to play like this all season long, but he never reached his full potential until Friday night. If Marvel can continue this fine play in the tournament this week, then the Wolfpack would be capable of beating anybody that they faced.

The Wolfpack will meet the Maryland Terrapins in the first round of the Thursday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. The Wolfpack beat the Terrapins by a scant margin of two points when they played here at the Coliseum a couple of weeks ago. At College Park, Maryland, it was a different story as the Terps defeated the Pack by a score of 63-53. The Terps will be up for the contest since they know that the Pack is capable of beating them down here. It will take a lot of desire, hustle, and effort from the State cagers if they are successfully able to defend their title. It is a known fact that the Wolfpack does not have the horses to compete with Wake Forest or Carolina. There is no Doug Moe or Len Chappell on the Wolfpack bench. If State is to defend its crown successfully, it will be one of the greatest accomplishments ever accomplished at State College. And if they do win the tournament, this year because of the underdog role that the Pack will take into the tournament with them.

If the Wolfpack does defend its crown, it will not be able to go to the NCAA playoffs because of the probation ruling. This will be State's last year on its four year probation that occurred when Jackie Moreland came to the State campus three and a half years ago.

Wake Forest and Carolina are the two favorites to win the ACC title this year. However, you can not count out South Carolina, Maryland, Duke, or State. Even Virginia and Clemson have chance to win the championship this year.

The pairings were set up yesterday morning at the Sir Walter Raleigh Hotel. Ray Reeve, sports announcer at WRAL, made the drawing for Carolina and Wake Forest to see which one would be seeded No. 1 in the tournament. Carolina won the draw.

First round pairings are as (See ACC, Page 3)

Impressive Program To Mark Installation of Chancellor

Final plans have been made for the installation of Dr. John Tyler Caldwell as chancellor of North Carolina State College during formal exercises in the college's William Neal Reynolds Coliseum Monday, March 7, at 3 p.m.

The Chancellor's inauguration also will mark the 73rd anniversary of the college's founding. State College was created by an act adopted by the North Carolina General Assembly on March 7, 1887.

The program, which will be open to the public, is expected to attract several thousands of persons from throughout North Carolina and from many sections of the United States.

Hundreds of America's top educators as well as representatives of learned and professional societies from throughout the nation will attend the rites.

Hodges To Speak

Governor Luther H. Hodges will conduct the investiture of Chancellor Caldwell. The oath of office will be administered by Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne of the State Supreme Court.

Following his investiture, Chancellor Caldwell will deliver an address.

President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina will preside.

Greetings will be extended by Judge Rudolph I. Mintz of Wilmington, representing the Board of Trustees; Prof. L. Walter Seegers, chairman of the State College Faculty Senate; H. Eddie Knox of Route 1, Davidson, president of the Student Government; and Mose Kiser of Greensboro, representing the General Alumni Association.

The invocation and benediction will be spoken by the Rev. W. W. Finlator, pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, Raleigh.

and members of the faculty installation committee.

Dr. Caldwell, former president of the University of Arkansas, assumed his duties as chancellor of North Carolina State College last September 1.

As chancellor of North Carolina State College, Dr. Caldwell directs an educational and research program embracing 50 instructional departments; a $50,000,000 plus physical plant; a technical mission to Peru; forest laboratories in four regions of North Carolina; engineering facilities at Asheville, Gastonia, and Charlotte; 16 test farms at various locations throughout the State; 2,000 staff members in Raleigh, employees in all of the State's 100 county seats; a student body of 6,000 plus; the nation's first privately-owned and operated nuclear reactor; a $5,000,000 annual research budget; a $16,000,000 annual payroll; and the authority to grant bachelor of science degrees in more than 50 fields; master of science degrees in 57 fields; and doctor of philosophy degrees in 23 fields.

Native of Miss.

A native of Yazoo City, Miss., Dr. Caldwell holds a bachelor of science degree from Mississippi State College, master of arts degrees from Duke University and Columbia University, and a doctor of philosophy degree from Princeton University.

His principal field of study was political science.

A nationally-known educator, Dr. Caldwell is a member of the 12-man executive committee of the American Association of Land-Grant Colleges and State Universities, the board of directors of the Educational Testing Service, and the Committee for the Advancement of School Administration.

In addition, he is a member of the American Political Science Association, the American Society for Public Administration, and the National Com-

Campus Crier

The Math and Science Club will meet on Wednesday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m., in the College Union. Mr. E. G. Blakeway will speak to the group on "Education—U. K. and U. S. A." All members and guests are invited to attend.

The Pershing Rifles will hold its formal initiation on Tuesday night, March 1, in the M. S. I classroom of the Coliseum at 7:30 p.m. All members are urged to attend and uniforms should be worn.

The AIIE-IRE joint student branch will meet Tuesday, March 1, in 242 Riddick. Mr. Bill Troxler, Troxler Electrical Laboratories, will speak on The Neutron Method of Moisture Measurement, Transistorized Binary Counters, and Pulse Height Analysers. All E. E. students are urged to attend.

The AIIE and FMM members will meet Tuesday night, March 1, at 7:30 p.m., in the IE lounge (Riddick). Mrs. Ruby Uzzie, Consumer Marketing Specialist, who is with State's Extension Service, will speak on "Trends in the 1960 Food Dollar".

Applications for the Order of Thirty and Three, Sophomore honor society, are now available at the College Union main desk and Room 207 Holladay Hall. Any Sophomore may be nominated by himself or any other student. The deadline for nominations is March 9, at 6:00 p.m. Please turn all nominations in at the College Union Main Desk.

The State Student Legislature will meet March 1, 1960 at 7:30 p.m. at the Student Government Office in the College Union. All delegates to the Student Legislature should make every effort to attend this important meeting. The State Student Legislature will be held in the Capitol Building on March 10, 11, and 12.

The YDC will meet Wednesday, March 2, in the College Union at 8:00 p.m. The speaker will be Pop Taylor who will explain the purposes of the Alumni Association.

NOTICE

The State College Administration has been informed by the U. S. Post Office Department and by the United States Attorney's Office that any use of U. S. Postal Money Orders for the purpose of a chain letter gambling arrangement is illegal and in violation of Federal Law.

The use of Money Orders for this purpose must cease at once or the Federal Law Enforcement authorities will act to prosecute all persons in violation of the Law. We are further advised that each individual who has purchased a Money Order in the last two days for chain letter purposes should return the Money Order to the Post Office Department for a refund at once.

Any further purchases of Money Orders for the purpose of using them in a chain letter arrangement of any kind will result in legal action by Federal Authorities.

At Mock UN Assembly

Israeli Delegation Successful

The seven members of the student body who attended the Mock United Nations at Chapel Hill from February 25-27 successfully represented the aims and hopes of the nation of Israel. The delegation took part in three of the U. N. committees, and the General Assembly. It was co-sponsor of a Russian resolution on the refugee problem which was successfully adopted by the General Assembly. It also instigated an emergency resolution which didn't appear on the agenda. The resolution was over-whelmingly passed by the nations present.

Along with the other sixteen colleges present, including West Point, the Israeli delegation argued, bargained and learned much. A feeling of peace and understanding followed the delegates wherever they went.

The general opinion of the groups present was that the college student of today is not as apathetic towards problems of the world as the nation might think. These students are hungry to learn and willing to understand the nations of the world. They demand to know why the problems arise and how they as citizens of the United States and the world, can help solve these tensions.

These students realize they may never be able to directly have any voice as a head in the government of the United States. They only wish to bring a sense of purpose and direction to their lives and the lives of others. They want the American population to realize it is the one that is apathetic, and wishes only a second car. The members present want the United States to rebuild the foundation of her leadership. They understand that a nation cannot stay on top if the ground below washes away.

The Mock United Nations, sponsored by the C.C.U.N., accomplished its role by giving the students a personal contact with the other nations of the world. This personal contact and experience was one of the main factors which made the meeting the great success that it was.

As a member of the Continuation Committee of the C.C.U.N., I offer an invitation to the students of N. C. State to join in the work for next year's meeting. Any help that you wish to offer, whether in organization or in the preparation for the role as a delegate, will be very greatly appreciated. I'm sure it would be one of the most interesting, enjoyable, and informative experiences of your life.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Immaturity

An article in the Saturday, February 27, issue of The News and Observer states that "of the high school's 165 population, only seven students claim that they have never cheated". The high school at which this study was made is not located in either New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, or any other distant state, but it is in Columbus County, North Carolina.

To draw any concrete conclusions from this report is senseless, but, whether some of these students were lying or not, it is obvious that the practice of cheating goes on in high schools throughout our state as well as colleges. So, to a certain extent, we may assume that the students here at State College who are now violators of the Honor System were already habitual cheaters before they came here.

Among the reasons that these high school students gave for cheating were "just for fun", "just for meanness," and "... because there is no reason for not cheating". It is obvious that these answers are without substance and would be given by only those people who have somewhat immature minds.

So, therefore, it would seem that this college would find it a relatively simple matter to cut the cheating here to a bare minimum. We have concluded that any reasons in favor of cheating came only from immature minds, so the only thing we have to do is convince the entering freshmen here that cheating is only for those without maturity.

However, it seems that the problem cannot be corrected so easily. For some reason, the students that do cheat have no desire to grow up and cast off this childish act. They thrive on the fact that they are young and they continue to indulge in cheating and other acts with little thought involved. Only when they are caught are they somewhat sorry for their actions.

In order for this school to do away with its present state of affairs, one in which an alarming percentage of the student body is cheating, it must convince the students when they enter that there is no place here for a student who is not mature enough to maintain his position in school under his own steam.

It seems that this is the area that the college is falling down. Perhaps the restrictions on students here are too relaxed to allow them to mature. If this is the case, methods should be imposed that will place all students under a certain amount of restrictions until they have had the chance to become adjusted to college life.

If cheating is so prevalent here at State, we feel that it results basically from this immaturity. As soon as students are convinced that there is no place for an immature outlook here at State, we will find that cheating has relinquished its present position also.

Greeks On Campus

By Bill Marley

This weekend seems to have been a good one as far as parties go for the Greeks at State, or at least that's what I've gathered from very few sources. I know that at my house we had an excellent crowd, many visitors, and a good combo to top it all off. It amazes me to see some of these so called "combos" charge from $85. to $100 a night, arrive late, and then proceed to raise so much hell (they call it music) that the whole party turns out to be a complete "loser".

Sigma Alpha Mu has had a full slate of events lately. This past Saturday night they held their fifth annual Parents Weekend and the members and parents had dinner at the college inn. Chancellor Caldwell spoke after dinner and the occasion was a great success.

Other news from the SAM's is quite unusual. They will soon initiate a father and his son simultaneously. Colonel H. Shachtman, USAF, a 1930 graduate of State, and a member of the forerunner of SAM here at state, Theta Phi, will become a member of SAM along with his son, Richard Shachtman. This may be a first in SAM history.

Finally at the SAM house, Lenny Lavitt has informed me that his chapter has won the National Scholarship Improvement Cup for 1958-1959 out of a total of 52 chapters.

Congratulations are certainly in order for the men of Sigma Alpha Mu.

HONOR CODE COMMISSION

Whole: Equal To Parts

By Mel Poulson

An honor system is beset by many problems. If one were to take a look at these problems in the order of their detrimental effects it could be logically assumed that at the top of the list should be students who cheat or otherwise violate the honor code.

This isn't the case at all. Probably the two most undermining factors to any efficient honor system are indifferent students and an uncooperating faculty. At State College the honor system has, to some degree, to cope with both of these problems.

To operate along its intended lines an honor system must have participation from the great majority of the students. Participation, however, means not only self-honesty but also includes a deep-seated desire to uphold the principles that are conveyed by the word honor.

In this respect a great many of the students at State fall far short of the standards set for them by the Honor Code. There is no reason to doubt that most students are basically honest and the fact that from such a large student body there may be found a few dishonest people is not in any way a reflection on the students as a group.

In fact, the honor system recognizes both the honesty of the majority and the presence of some undesirables. This can be seen by considering that if all people were inherently honest there would be no need for a system to curb the dishonest and, on the other hand, considering that if most people were dishonest the system would only be an invitation to cheat.

But the honor system depends on more than the honesty of the greater majority. It is also based on the assumption that people of honor do not wish to place themselves in a position where persons without honor are constantly practicing deceitful acts.

However, a great many State College students who consider themselves to be honorable don't seem to think that honor goes quite this far. They don't approve of cheating or cheaters, but simply are indifferent to the actions of their fellow students. There is little thought concerning the enforcement of the Honor Code even by people who endorse it as the best answer to an acknowledged problem.

In a small survey made among approximately fifty students it was found that by far the greater majority of them favored the honor system over any other system, yet almost half of these people admitted they would hesitate to report a cheating violation because they felt that cheaters harmed no one but themselves.

As long as this type of thinking is present the operation of the student honor system is seriously hindered. Not only verbal support, but active and sincere participation is needed if the Honor Code is to achieve the merit that is its due.

In view of the student attitude discussed above, it can be easily seen that some faculty members may be justified in not extending their wholehearted support. Some instructors may feel that the students will not thwart would-be cheaters so they must, by their own presence, make some attempt to maintain honesty.

Students, particularly students who believe in the system as a workable thing, seem to resent this. Many complaints are heard from students who find it hard to comprehend the non-uniformity of faculty members in the degree of responsibility allocated to their classes during quizzes.

The problem created by the non-trusting instructors is the attitude fostered among the students that the honor system is

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of the Technician:

There are times that I am ashamed to admit that I am a student at N. C. S. The following is an account of one such time.

I was in my friend's room studying last night when an irate student burst into the room. "Are you the so-and-so that turned me in for using a penny in the pay phone?" he demanded.

"Yes," my friend answered. "What's the big idea," he demanded.

"I asked you not to use the penny and you told me to mind my own business. When I said I would report you, you threatened to 'beat my ass'."

"It was an emergency call and I didn't have the right change."

"Do you realize that five phones have already been removed from the dorm this year? The phone that you put the penny in is one of the two left."

"It was an emergency call. My girl was sick."

"You could have borrowed a dime."

"I couldn't find anybody." (... in a dorm of about 400 occupants.)

"You didn't look very hard." The angry student stormed out of the room yelling, "... and I will beat your ass."

Not only did this student steal from the telephone company and violate our Honor Code, but he also threatened a fellow student for living up to the Honor Code that all students agree to abide by when they enroll in State College.

It frightens me to think that this petty thief might be in a future graduating class of N. C. S. When the speaker at graduation charges the class to help shoulder the responsibilities of society and work for a better world for our fellow men, I am afraid that this plea for humanity will fall on at least one pair of deaf ears.

Thomas M. Smith

To the Editor of the Technician:
How good is the Honor Code at State College? Apparently it isn't very good and doesn't mean something that exists in name only. This leads to further indifference among students and brings about a line of thought that seems to be, "If they don't trust us, let them do the best they can without us."

In all probability the instructor can manage very well without the student's aid, but by doing so he is threatening the basic foundation of the Honor Code, which is the privilege the student has of being honorable for honor's sake.

very much to many people. The reason for making a statement like this is the continuing loss and theft of various items ranging from books to umbrellas to overcoats and even to bicycles.

It seems that it isn't even safe to hang your coat up without locking it for fear of having it stolen. On February 25, between 6:30 and 7:00 p.m., some unthinking person took my London fog overcoat from the Dining Hall, and what is even worse is the fact that my car keys and gloves were in the pockets of the coat. This person would have known by feeling in the pockets that the coat was not his. Nevertheless, he took it anyway, and I had a very cold walk back to Bragaw without my overcoat.

It seems to me that if the Honor Code were any good it would make people think before taking even the smallest article that didn't belong to them. An honor code that really worked would probably make people stop stealing any kind of article even down to newspapers.

The rate of theft on the newspapers placed in the racks around the campus is extremely high. Many people don't realize it but some student has put those papers around the campus to try to make money. Chances are very good that this student is having to work his way through college. Therefore, as you can see, it is wrong to steal anything, even a five-cent newspaper.

After my coat was taken, I put up sixteen notices around the campus asking the person to return my coat. Again I would like to appeal to the better side of this person to please bring my coat back. As I stated in my notices, no questions will be asked, and no charges will be pressed. This coat, incidentally, was a fairly expensive coat, not a jacket, and it will be extremely hard to replace.

I feel that if there is any honor or honesty at all in the person who took my coat, he will return it. If not, then my convictions about State's honor system are confirmed.

Marvel(ous) Victory Climaxes Pack Season

By Jay Brame

North Carolina State defeated LaSalle, 80-65, Friday night to end the regular basketball season for State this season. Next week of course is the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament at the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum.

The Wolfpack ended the regular season just as they started with a win over the strong Explorers from Philadelphia. Their victory at the start of the season came against Penn State.

The Wolfpack started the game in the worst manner it had played all season long. The ball would just not go in the hoop for Everett Case's cagers. State managed only four field goals in the first 17 minutes of play.

With three minutes remaining in the first half, a sophomore by the name of Russ (Marvelous) Marvel came off the bench and got two quick baskets for the Pack to send them on their way. From a 25-13 deficit the Wolfpack cut the Explorers lead to 27-23 at halftime.

Marvel continued his hot streak in the second half and it rubbed off on the other State players as they scored 67 points in the final 23 minutes of play.

The Wolfpack, with Marvel leading the way, out rebounded the visitors 52-34.

The Wolfpack captured the lead early in the second half and never relinquished it as they shot the Explorers right out of the Coliseum.

With nine minutes to play the Wolfpack led 53-50. From this margin the Wolfpack outscored the visitors 10-2. After this the Explorers were never in the game as Captain Danny Englehardt, Don Gallagher, Anton Muehlbauer, and Marvel led State's fast break to perfection.

Marvel had the best night of his varsity career as he hit on 8 out of 16 from the floor and 4 out of 5 from the free throw line for 20 points and top scoring honors for the night. Gallagher added 19, and Englehardt had 15 to lead the State team. DiStefano and Muehlbauer also were in the double digits with 12 and 10 points respectively. Hoyer with 18 points led the LaSalle scoring. Thus, State ended the season with a 10-14 record overall and 5-9 in conference competition.

The Wolfpack meets Maryland in the first round of the tournament Thursday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. If they can play like they did Friday night, they will handle the Terps easily.

South Carolina against North Carolina. The Gamecocks defeated the Tar Heels ten days ago at Charlotte and are capable of doing it again. If the Gamecocks can shoot like they did at Charlotte, they will beat the Tar Heels. If not, Carolina will be in the finals Saturday night.

Wake Forest defeated State at Winston-Salem back in December. It was a different story when the Deacs came to Raleigh. In one of the hardest fought games at the Coliseum this year, the Deacons were defeated by the Wolfpack, 51-45. It must be said in the Deacons' behalf, that Lennie Chappell played only 17 minutes. It will take a superhuman effort by Coach Everett Case's cagers to defeat the Deacs.

ence, will assign the referees for each game. Bello will not call any of Duke's games since he is a graduate of Duke.

Everything is set for the ACC dribble derby which will start Thursday afternoon. Who will win? That's one of the toughest questions of the season. This writer will lean towards Wake Forest because of their strong bench and the way Len Chappell and Billy Packer have played lately. They have the horses to defeat anybody in the ACC. Carolina will be tough since Doug Moe has had time to round into shape.

First round winners will be State, Wake Forest, Carolina, and in the upset of the opening round, it will be South Carolina over Duke. That would make Friday nights semi-finals pit State against Wake Forest and

Watauga Favored To Retain Dormitory Basketball Title

As promised in Thursday night's edition of The Technician, the sports staff has picked a favorite for the Intramural Dormitory Basketball Tournament. The staff has picked Watauga to defend its crown that it captured last year. Watauga went undefeated over the regular season to win the title in Section #1.

Leading the way this year for Watauga has been J. King, S. Kitchin, G. Milligan, E. Holmes, R. Yokely, and L. Edwards. Watauga will meet Verville in the first round of the playoffs tonight at 8:00. They will be heavily favored to beat the boys from Verville.

In the same bracket with Watauga is Tucker #1, the only other dormitory team to go undefeated over the season. Tucker #1 meets Berry in their first round playoff game which promises to be a thriller. They meet tomorrow night at 8:00. This is undoubtedly the strongest bracket. The four teams that are in this bracket lost a total of two games over the season.

Other first round playoff games in the dormitory division find Bagwell meeting Syme at 7:00 p.m. tonight. Bragaw North meets Bragaw South in a bitterly contested game tomorrow night at 7:00 p.m.

The semi-finals and finals in both the fraternity and dormitory tournaments will be played next week.

The first round of playoffs in the fraternity division find Kappa Alpha, the favorite, meeting Pi Kappa Alpha tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. Sigma Chi battles Sigma Phi Epsilon at 9:00 tonight. Phi Kappa Tau and Sigma Alpha Epsilon tangle at 7:00 tomorrow night. Sigma Nu and Theta Chi play tonight to see which team will enter the first round of the playoffs tomorrow night against Lambda Chi Alpha. Gametime is set for 9:00 p.m.

Sigma Nu, Theta Chi, and Delta Sigma Phi tied for second place in Section #4. Sigma Nu defeated the Delta Sigma Fri-

- 2:00 p.m. Maryland vs. State.
  - 4:00 p.m. Wake Forest vs. Clemson.
  - 7:30 p.m. Carolina vs. Virginia.
  - 9:30 p.m. Duke vs. South Carolina.

These are the games for the opening round of play which will take place this Thursday at the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum.

There was also a drawing for home uniforms and which bench each team would occupy in the Coliseum. Clemson, State, UNC, and South Carolina will wear their home jerseys in the first round of play and will occupy the bench at the north end of the Coliseum. The other teams will wear their road jerseys and will occupy the bench at the south end of the Coliseum. After the first round of play the teams will flip for benches and home jerseys.

Referees for this year's Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament are Red Mahalik, Charlie Eckman, Lou Eisenstein, Lou Bello, and Charlie Garber. Footsie Knight, director of referees for the Atlantic Coast Confer-

INSTALLATION CEREMONIES—On Monday, March 7th at 3:00 p.m., Dr. John Tyler Caldwell will be officially installed as the Chancellor of North Carolina State College. The installation ceremonies will take place at the Reynolds Coliseum. In order that students may attend, all classes will be dismissed at 2:00 p.m. All students are urged to attend.

THE CHORUS FOR CHANCELLOR CALDWELL'S INSTALLATION—All students who desire to participate in the "mailed" male chorus, which will sing at the installation of Chancellor Caldwell, should report to the rehearsal on Thursday, March 3rd at 5:00 p.m. in the Textile Auditorium.

ATLANTIC COAST CONFERENCE TOURNAMENT TRAFFIC—N. C. State College is host to the Atlantic Coast Conference Basketball Tournament to be held in the Coliseum on March 3, 4, 5, 1960. The presence of these visitors will add to the pedestrian and vehicular congestion about the campus. Faculty, staff and students are requested to cooperate in lessening this congestion in all ways possible. The day night 29-23 to earn the right to play the Theta Chis who carried a bye.

A warning to all fraternities! Be sure that all your participants are on the active roll at Holliday Hall. There was a big dispute over a player last week who played for his team and was not on the roll at Holliday Hall. Normally a team is ordered to forfeit the contest when a player is not on the roll. However, the Intramural Office felt that in order to make everybody happy they would overlook it this time. Next time will be different, however. It can be said, also, that one of the athletic directors of one of the fraternities was not happy at all!!

mission on Accrediting. He was a consultant to the Ford Foundation on education in Pakistan for three months in 1954.

Prior to becoming president of the University of Arkansas, Dr. Caldwell was a teacher at Holmes Junior College, Goodman, Miss., 1932-36; junior economist, U. S. Resettlement Administration, 1936-37; member of the faculty (instructor to associate professor) at Vanderbilt University, 1939-47; U. S. Navy, 1942-46, advancing from rank of ensign to lieutenant commander; and president of Alabama College, Montevallo, Ala., 1947-52.

The Caldwell family resides at 1903 Hillsboro Street, Raleigh, official residence of the North Carolina State College chancellor.

only afternoon games will be played on Thursday, March 3rd.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS—Many students have changed their addresses since the beginning of the semester. Those who have changed should be sure to give their latest address to the College Union Directory Service and to the Student Activities Office, 206 Holliday Hall. This will insure proper delivery of mail and other messages.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES—See Dr. Kingston Johns, Financial Aid Office, 207 Holliday Hall.

1. Married men and women students and single women students for participation as subjects in research projects and demonstration. $1.25 per hr.
2. Student wives to work as waitresses.
3. Waiters.

NEW FOREIGN STUDENTS—All students entering State College this semester from foreign countries are reminded that they are obliged to have accident and sickness insurance. A college-sponsored plan is available for those who have not enrolled in some other plan. Enrollment deadline is March 1. All new foreign students should report to 201 Holliday Hall at once to give information about their insurance coverage.

FREE FLU AND POLIO SHOTS—All students who have not yet received polio vaccine or a flu shot should do so by reporting to the College Infirmary during the hours from 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily. All students are urged to take advantage of this free inoculation and immunization provided by your Student Health Service.

ASIAN STUDENTS—The Asian Student, weekly periodical, announces an essay contest on "The Asian Student and American Society: What Do They Have to Offer Each Other?" Prizes of $150, $100, $75 and Certificates of Merit will be awarded. Open to Asian students residing in United States and Canadian colleges or universities. ## Slime From Syme

During the year and a half that I have been a student here at State College, I have noticed many discourteous acts by our ballplayers. I realize that many of our ball players are thoughtful and considerate of others, but some of them show very poor taste in their actions toward other people.

For example, one day shortly after 12:00 p.m., a basketball player came to the cafeteria to eat, but instead of waiting in line, he walked to the front of the line, picked up a tray, and broke in line. Since this incident, I have noticed that many ballplayers do this.

On another occasion, a ballplayer who had broken in line in the cafeteria offered to step outside with the student behind him when the student mentioned his breaking in line. The ballplayer was, of course, bigger than the student that he offered to fight with.

Perhaps other students do break in line, but I have never seen anyone except ballplayers do this.

Neither have I seen anyone except ballplayers pick up a bottle of sauce from a cafeteria table without first asking the boys eating there if they were finished with it. On one occasion when this happened, the ballplayer became angry when his rude behavior was questioned.

These acts are childish, but they are done by ballplayers. One sign of maturity is using the ability to get along with others. If some of our ballplayers have this ability, they certainly don't use it.

Is this the way that they would like to be treated? Haven't they grown up yet? Haven't they learned to act like men instead of children? Is this the way their parents taught them to act? Do they behave this rudely on dates?

Perhaps some of the players haven't realized how their actions appear to others. I have attempted to point this out, and I sincerely hope that this criticism will be taken constructively.

THREE WHO PASSED IN THE NIGHT

Last year, as everyone knows, 1,210,614 undergraduates dropped out of college. 256,080 flunked; 309,656 got married; 375,621 ran out of money; and 309,254 found jobs. As you have, of course, observed, this accounts for only 1,210,611 out of 1,210,614. What happened to the other three?

Well sir, to find the answer, I recently completed a tour of American campuses where I interviewed 40 million students and sold several subscriptions to The Open Road for Boys, and it pleases me to report that I can now account for those three elusive undergraduates.

The first was an LSU junior named Fred Gaugin. He was extremely popular, always ready with a smile, fond of folk dancing and pralines, and last semester his Chi Psi brothers unanimously elected him treasurer of the fraternity. This proved an error. Gaugin, alas, promptly absconded with the money and went to Tahiti to paint. The fraternity is bending every effort to extradite Gaugin, but Tahiti, alas, is currently observing the feast of Diphong, the Sun-God, a five-year ceremony during which all the islanders wear masks, so nobody, alas, can say for certain which one is Gaugin.

Nobody can say for certain which one is Gaugin.

The second missing undergraduate is William Cullen Sigafoos, Oregon State freshman, who went one day last fall to a disreputable vendor named A. M. Sashweight to buy a pack of Marlboros. Mr. Sashweight did not have any Marlboros because Marlboros are only sold by reputable vendors. However, he told Sigafoos that he had another brand which was just as good, and Sigafoos, being but an innocent freshman, believed him.

Well sir, you and I know there is no other brand as good as Marlboros. That fine filter, that flavorful flavor, that pleasure, that joy, that fulfillment—are Marlboro's and Marlboro's alone. All of this was quickly apparent to young Sigafoos and he flew into a terrible rage. "As good as Marlboros indeed!" he shrieked, kicking his roommate furiously. "I am going right back to that mendacious Mr. Sashweight and give him a thrashing he won't soon forget!" With that he seized his lacrosse bat and rushed out.

Mr. Sashweight heard him coming and started running. Now Mr. Sashweight, before he became a disreputable vendor, had won numerous prizes as a cross-country runner, and he thought he would soon outdistance young Sigafoos. But he reckoned without Sigafoos's stick-to-itiveness. At last report the two of them had passed Cleveland. When they reach the Atlantic Seaboard, bad Mr. Sashweight will get his lumps from Sigafoos, you may be sure, and I, for one, am glad.

The third missing undergraduate, also named Sigafoos, is a Bennington sophomore named Celeste Sigafoos and, ironically, she never intended to leave college at all. She was merely going home for Christmas on the Natchez, Mobile, and Boise Railroad, and during the night, alas, her upper berth slammed shut on her. Being a Bennington girl, she naturally did not wish to make an unseemly outcry, so she just kept silent. The next morning, alas, the railroad went bankrupt, and Miss Sigafoos today is lying forgotten on a siding near Valparaiso, Indiana. Fortunately she has plenty of Marlboros with her.

And how about the rest of you? Do you have plenty of Marlboros? Or if you like mildness but you don't like filters, plenty of Philip Morris? Hmm? Do you?
