For Parents' Weekend

Varied Events Slated

State students and their parents are faced with a busy weekend of activities, starting Friday.

The annual "Parents' Weekend," sponsored by Golden Chain will get underway with the official opening of the 28th annual Engineers' Fair in Riddick Stadium Friday at 1:30 p.m.

Chancellor John T. Caldwell, will welcome parents, high school students, principals of North Carolina high schools, and others attending the exercises in the stadium.

The campus "open house" program, during which parents will be given the opportunity of observing how their sons and daughters live and study at State College, will continue through Sunday.

Jose Greco

Preceding the formal opening of the parents' program will be a performance by Jose Greco and his Spanish Dancers in the Coliseum tonight at 8 p.m. under the auspices of "The Friends of the College."

Hundreds of exhibits and demonstrations, all of which will depict the role of engineering and technology in the modern world, will be featured in the Engineers' Fair. Sponsoring the fair will be the Engineers' Council.

Engineering Exhibits

The exhibits will be shown in engineering buildings Friday from 2 until 9 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. All events at the fair will be open to the public, free of charge.

Gubernatorial Candidate Sanford To Speak At C. U. Monday

Terry Sanford, candidate for Governor of North Carolina, will speak in the CU Ballroom Monday, April 4, at 8 p.m.

Sanford, a native of Laurinburg, who has lived and practiced law in Fayetteville since World War II, will be the first in the series of candidates for Governor. He attended Presbyterian Junior College, the University of North Carolina, and was graduated from the University of Law School.

He was a Special Agent in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and a paratrooper in

A sports attraction is scheduled Friday at 3 p.m. when the Wolfpack will meet Princeton University's team in an inter-sectional game.

Carnival Events

In conjunction with "Parents' Weekend" and the Engineers' Fair, the College Union will sponsor its annual Carnival Weekend Friday and Saturday.

This is a major project of campus organizations of Woman's College, the University of North Carolina, and State College.

The Kick-Off Dance will be held in the College Union Ballroom Friday at 8 p.m. Music will be furnished by the Chorvettes.

One of the highlights of the carnival will be the queen contest. The preliminary judging will take place in the College Union Theater on Friday night with contestants from campus organizations of the Consolidated University. The queen will be presented and crowned Saturday night.

The carnival booths will be the center of attraction during the two nights. Some of the booths will feature events of penny pitching, shooting gallery, bingo, dart throwing and other activities.

The carnival will operate from 12 noon until 12 midnight on Friday and Saturday.

Parents' Registration

Registration for Parents' Weekend, which will be held from 9 to 12 Saturday morning at the College Union, will be sponsored by the Order of Thirteen and Three.

World War II in Europe. He has been a State Senator, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of North Carolina, a Democratic National Convention delegate, and was on the North Carolina State Ports Authority. He managed W. Kerr Scott's campaign for the United States Senate.

The core of Sanford's campaign for Governor is a "Crusade for Education."

The talk is sponsored by the College Union Forum Committee under the chairmanship of Fred Toms of Forest City.

Dean Of Agriculture Accepts Presidency Of Miss. State

Dr. D. W. Colvard, dean of agriculture at State College, accepted the presidency of Mississippi State University Monday.

Trustees of the Mississippi school had offered Colvard the job about 10 days ago. The trustees were reported to be unanimous in their choice of Colvard.

In announcing his decision, Dean Colvard said "I am accepting the position because of the broader educational responsibility it offers me and because of the overwhelming invitation I have had from the people of Mississippi."

The change becomes effective July 1. Dean Colvard will succeed Dr. Ben F. Hilbun, who is retiring after a long tenure as president of Mississippi State.

In commenting upon the acceptance by Dr. D. W. Colvard of the position as president of Mississippi State University, Dr. John T. Caldwell, chancellor, declared:

"Dean Colvard has provided superior leadership to State College's School of Agriculture during his years as dean and prior to that as an animal scientist. In regretting his departure, President Friday and I realize that he will bring magnificent leadership to the whole of Mississippi's Land-Grant College. Everyone in our community who knows them will miss his lovely family. Mississippi is fortunate. We shall announce quickly will assure its advancement."

As dean of agriculture, Dr. Colvard directs a program of teaching, research and extension that reaches every county in the State.

During his seven years as dean, Dr. Colvard has worked to build a program that will serve the total needs of agriculture. He has appointed many of the top people in the School of Agriculture who have helped him plan and carry out his program.

While the number of people actually engaged in the production of crops and livestock is declining, Colvard has repeatedly pointed out that agriculture in its total sense is growing in importance.

And to serve the future needs of this total agriculture, he has helped revamp the school's program of instruction to prepare men for careers in agricultural business, agricultural science and agricultural technology.

Dean Colvard has been instrumental in getting a new two-year agricultural program approved. The program, known as the Agricultural Institute, will begin this fall.

He has worked to strengthen undergraduate teaching and has helped build the graduate program to 300 students.

One of his chief accomplishments has been the closer cooperation he has helped foster between the School of Agriculture and various agricultural interests in the state.

As indicative of this closer cooperation, grants and gifts to the school for research in 1959 totaled $800,000 as compared with $300,000 when he took office in 1953.

In four of his seven years as dean, School of Agriculture faculty members have received O. Max Gardner awards. Eleven out of the 12 Reynolds Professorships have been filled during his term.

Campus Chest Campaign Commences Tomorrow

By Jim Griener

This year's Campus Chest Drive got under way last night with a dinner meeting of the solicitors in the Grill Room of the Cafeteria. This was the third of a series of meetings for solicitors, during which they learned where the money was going, and why we should have such a campaign on our campus. Also discussed were the techniques of soliciting.

Campus Chest, just what is it? This is the drive which on our campus, has previously been called the Student United Fund. The money raised has been going to the World University Service. This year W.U.S. will receive only forty per cent of the proceeds of the Drive with forty per cent going to the Raleigh United Fund and twenty per cent to the American Friends Service.

This year's goal has been set at $3,000. Some people feel that this is too high. After much consideration the Campus Chest Advisory Board, composed of campus leaders, set this goal. It is based on the number of Students enrolled. When the goal is considered this way this is not too great.

In order to reach this goal we are asking $1.00 per accessible student. By accessible we mean the students living on campus. The scattered conditions of the off campus students make it impossible to solicit each of these individually. However, there will be booths at several strategic points around the campus for the off campus students to make their contributions.

Many students question the act of giving to help these organizations. How would you like to try to study when your dinner consisted of one bowl of rice and your lunch was a bowl of potatoes, and then go to your room which six other guys occupy and try to be comfortable when the room is only 8 by 10 feet. These conditions exist in India and Korea and some are almost as bad in South America.

The next afternoon you are free to go to the Cerebral Palsy Hospital here in Raleigh and visit with the children. This hospital is supported completely by Charity. There is nothing that these children can do for themselves. They must rely entirely upon the aid of others.

Quite often we hear students on this campus say that school spirit is low. There is only one way to do something about this situation. That is to participate in something as a whole. Here is the perfect chance. Here is the opportunity for every student at State College to do his or her part.

So when a Solicitor ask you for a contribution think of these helpless children or the conditions in which some of the foreign students live. Just remember . . . Don't Pass the Buck. Give it, Support your Campus Chest Drive.

our plans for seeking his replacement. It is my expectation that an appointment can be achieved in a reasonable time. We shall, of course, make certain of a selection which will do credit to our extraordinarily fine program of service to North Carolina's agriculture and which

The dates for the opening of the election books on campus were reported erroneously in the last issue and should have been March 28 through April 8.

GSA Plans Election For April Meeting

The Graduate Students Association Council will elect officers for the coming school year at the regular April meeting.

In an interview with The Technician, president Ken Fisher said, "Under the present rules, any graduate student may be nominated for any office by either another graduate student or himself. The officers will be elected by vote of the Council members present at the April meeting. If you wish to nominate or be nominated, you are encouraged to attend the meeting. The meeting will be held in the College Union on April 5, at 8 p.m."

ME Dept. Head To Give 'Curie Lectures'

Prof. John F. Lee, head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, who has been invited by the Faculty of Science of the University of Paris to give the 1960 Curie Lectures, will leave for Europe Thursday (March 31) for a six-week stay.

The educator is the first engineer and the sixth American selected for this honor during the 25-year history of the Curie Lectures, which were established by the French Government in honor of Madame Curie.

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, well-known American physicist, gave the 1959 Curie Lectures.

Upon his arrival in Paris, Professor Lee, who will be accompanied by his wife, will be welcomed at a formal reception by the French Academy of Sciences.

Professor Lee will lecture on Statistical Thermodynamics, a field in which he has won much acclaim, both in this country and abroad, for his noteworthy contributions to this science. He is junior author of a book on the subject written with Dr. Francis W. Sears, head of the Physics Department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In addition, the two men have co-authored a book on classical thermodynamics.

Statistical thermodynamics is the basic engineering science pointing the way of direct conversion of thermal energy into electric energy without the need of the huge power stations now required.

The State College department head said that "this science offers an insight into the possible synthesis of new materials to withstand very high temperatures and shock such as encountered in rocket re-entry."

While in Europe, Professor Lee will also visit several universities and the Max Planck Institute at Gottingen, Germany, to compare notes on engineering education.

Before leaving Paris, the United States Ambassador will hold a reception in honor of the lecturer at the United States Embassy in Paris for the French Academy and the Faculty of Science of the University of Paris.

Prior to his return to the United States on May 10, Professor Lee on the invitation of Sir James W. M. Boya, president of the British National Association of Engineers and Cambridge University regent, will address the National Liberal Club in London on "Educational Responsibilities of a Democracy." He will also give an address on "American Engineering Education" to the British National Association of Consulting Engineers at a luncheon to be held at the St. Stephens Club in London.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Dean Colvard-State College's Loss

Again it has become the regrettable duty of State College officials to accept the resignation of a top member of the college staff. This time, that person is Dr. Dean W. Colvard, Dean of the School of Agriculture, who has accepted the presidency of Mississippi State University. (See story, page one.)

The record that Dr. Colvard will carry with him is one of an honorable and almost unbelievable nature. During the few years that he has been head of the School of Agriculture, he has made virtually every improvement that could be anticipated even by the most optimistic ones in the fields of teaching, research, and extension service.

One of the most notable improvements which Dr. Colvard has achieved is in the recent revamping of the curricula in agriculture. Under his guidance, the school has broadened its scope in a way to allow students to prepare for careers in agricultural business, agricultural technology, and agricultural science.

Since he assumed his duties here in 1953, the value of grants, gifts, and donations to the school for research has risen from $300,000 to $800,000, which shows the degree of co-operation that he has helped to bring about between the School of Agriculture and interested patrons of agricultural development throughout this state.

We cannot help but feel regretful when a man of Dr. Colvard's ability is called to another post. But, we must still feel a great amount of pride when we look and see

Realization Needed

In order to clear up any misconceptions that may have developed concerning the attitude of this newspaper towards the athletic picture in general and athletes in particular that may have arisen during this school year, we think it is necessary to say a few words in the same vein as the column, "The Word," which appears on this page this issue.

After a couple of paragraphs, the aforementioned column goes to say, in essence, that the conduct of a few individuals have caused a bad taste to develop in the minds of many people. This axiom, although it is applied specifically to athletes in this column, can be said about almost any group, of course.

But, we are speaking now of the athletic group, since that is the one that is under the greatest amount of fire at the present time.

It has long been the general feeling on this campus that the athlete is actually not a student as the others that are seen in the classrooms, but instead, are here in school only for the purpose of receiving a little bit of money while participating in a sport which he has grown up with and enjoys.

This newspaper does not concur with this belief in any way. We feel that the athlete, on or off the playing field, is as much a part of the educational institution as any other person that is enrolled. We have printed these articles with the fervent desire in mind that those members of athletic squads, who have, in the past, given the whole group a bad name, reconsider their actions of the past and reform their ways for the future. Evidently, this desire hasn't been realized, for the same topic seems to appear over and over again on our desks.

The Technician has the apparently insatiable desire to see all members of this campus, athlete or non-athlete, to join together and appreciate each other for their scholastic activities at least.

Whatever the reason that these two forces must always be at odds may be, the situation that has developed is completely deplorable. Obviously, no reason can be accepted as legitimate. Both groups, athletes and non-athletes, must change their outlooks so that a more desirable state of affairs can exist.

We can only hope that someday the athlete at State College will be looked upon with a bit of respect. The students that our coaches have brought to this school are basically sound men, with high moral standards, as well as athletic ability. When the student body as a whole can realize that the only basic difference between an athlete and a non-athlete is the fact that the athlete's ability lies in two areas—the classroom and the playing field—rather than just the classroom, the situation that now exists will be remedied. But not until then.

The Word

Last Saturday night one of the social fraternities on campus had the honorable distinction of being selected by a few particular athletes as the one they would visit that night. These athletes were admitted and stated that they would like some drinks. One of the few brothers who happened to be at the house told them that the fraternity was having a cabin party that night and there were no drinks available. Being denied what they thought was rightfully theirs, they tried to get it the only way they knew how. "Beat" at their own game, they beat a hasty retreat.

In anticipation of their return, which was expected to be executed with even more haste than their retreat, one of the brothers called the local constabulary. Just as the police were arriving, the athletes arrived also. It was really remarkable how their pugilistic nature changed when confronted by the long arm of the law. They were full of

Open Letter

S. G. President Writes

Annually, the students of North Carolina State College have the opportunity to participate in a drive designed to help others. The Campus Chest Drive provides the student body the opportunity to unite in a joint project with an outstanding objective, namely to provide assistance to those that are less fortunate. Only once a year are we requested to stop and consider the needs of others. Thus it is only appropriate and necessary that every student participate actively in this event.

In past years that this fund has been conducted on our campus, it has met with limited success. Particularly is this true when compared with the potential. For example, the drive of 1958-59 netted $750, which was approximately 13 cents per student. Perhaps the previous drives limited success cannot be contributed solely to the failure of students to contribute, but also to those organizing and conducting the drive. This year, under the leadership of Alpha Phi Omega, all aspects of the forthcoming drive have been planned carefully in order that those students desiring to participate will have the opportunity to do so. The success of the drive now depends on your willingness to help.

The goal for this year has been set at $3,000, which is considerably higher than in previous years. Even at this figure, only an average of fifty cents per student is required to obtain the goal. During the period of April 1-8, you will be contacted and requested to contribute to the drive's success. Let me urge you to do so.

Editor's Letter

To the Editor of The Technician:

It seems to me that a certain Air Science II student had better get his facts straight. I was in that L-17 when it was supposedly "buzzing" the drill field. The A. S. professor and I went through a lot of trouble to get pictures of the Wing formation.

I don't know why he was afraid to let his name be printed, and I believe he would be able to pass any A. S. course if he would take the time to study.

I ask him, "Why do you think that N. C. State's AFROTC is no good? It was picked as one of the two in the nation to have a feature article written on it in the Airman's Magazine. If your charges are true, sign your name like a man!"

Rambling 'Round

By Harvey Horowitz

It is easy to tell that it is finally spring, not by the first robin, the first crocus, or the first daffodil—I can tell it is spring because all the convertible tops have come down and most of the trouser cuffs come up. I am convinced that of the fifty-odd percent of State College males who have suddenly blossomed out in Bermuda shorts, not more than one or two individuals are even slightly aware how absurd the garments look on the average man. If one hasn't the legs for them, one shouldn't try to wear them.

I find solace only in the thought that even Bermudas are an improvement over those abominable 'levis' that so many people wear the rest of the year.

I believe I have discovered the bravest man on campus—or perhaps the most foolhardy. He is the chap I observed tearing through the traffic at the intersection over by the print shop, looking neither right nor left.

Anybody who tries that feat is indeed taking his life in his own hands!

I note with interest that the stop signs at those pedestrian crossings are still down. This leads to one of two conclusions: either we didn't need them, so why put them up in the first place; or we do need them, but someone has goofed. No matter which alternative you choose, someone is obviously not operating in the student's best interest. But that, of course, is nothing new around here, for even the students don't care about what is good for themselves.

M and O, with their usual hind-sighted-ness, blocked off their new street next to the Textile building, and then decided that the parking lots in that area needed to be paved. Of course it did not bother them in the least that they made it impossible to reach four or five lots while they were paving just looking neither right nor left.

Entertainment Unlimited

Alton Lee

Since all of the so-called scandal in the entertainment world, there have been a number of improvements. One network—and you know the one to which we refer—seems to be carrying things just a little too far as we see it.

This organization, which has for years used canned laughter, (and most of the audience can tell whether it's real or faked) suddenly started saying something to the effect of "Audience reaction technically augmented". In everyday language, that means the sound track is as phony as a three dollar bill.

Jack Benny and some of the more established stars revolted. He won, and now the announcer does not say this trite statement at the conclusion of the Benny show. However, it's still written.

Recently, Mr. William Talman of "Perry Mason" got caught at what must have been a rather wild party in Hollywood. His trial is still more than a month away at this writing; and, yet, this network fired him—BEFORE HE WAS EVEN PROVEN GUILTY. The very week after the mess, Mr. Talman's name was omitted from the credits. A last minute show, in which Mr. Talman did not appear, was quickly substituted. Normally, even when a star does not appear in every show, he gets credit. On the same evening, Ray Collins, who plays Lieutenant Tragg, was not on. However, he got credit. This is obviously not fair.

Since a writer's strike is in process, and since the show must finish out the season, the network officials have decided to show five of the completed shows in which Talman appears. Apparently after this, he's had it!

We would be the first to admit that "Perry Mason" is not TV's most super show—though it is certainly not without entertainment. However, we think an important principle is involved here.

Let's face it! Talman is no big star, so he's being dumped. But is that fair? Whether he's really guilty or not—and he may well be—does not enter into this. Should an actor's personal life ever be allowed to interfere with his acting? We feel that Talman is a more than capable actor who has done quite a bit with his part. The fact that he is a good man on the side of the law might be a little harder to believe after there's a scandal in his life, but it shouldn't be.

If all the actors and actresses who lived a trashy life were thrown out of the business, you wouldn't see much entertainment. Because of all this recent mish-mash over TV dishonesty, and because Talman is not a big star, he may be "washed up".

But was Liz Taylor hurt by scandal? No. Lana Turner? Ingrid Bergman? Ava Gardner? Frank Sinatra or a host of others? No!

We are not condoning evil; we are simply saying an actor's personal life should not interfere with his acting abilities.

Phil Silvers as a baddie on a recent Jack Benny special, after having "killed" a host of people, had this line to say: "Strange things are happening. Mortuaries are sending me payola."

'Peace' Essay Contest For Students Announced

The magazine New World Review announces an essay contest on the subject, "A Peace Program for Our Country". The contest is open to young people of 18 through 25. The entries are to be judged by four outstanding leaders in the field of international relations and peace:

- (1) Rev. Henry Hitt Crane, Pastor Emeritus, Central Methodist Church, Detroit
- (2) Gen. Hugh B. Hester, Brigadier General U. S. Army (retired)
- (3) Dr. Guy Emery Shipler, of The Churchman
- (4) Dr. John Somerville, author of "The Philosophy of Peace"

The writer of the essay judged the best will receive a prize of $200; the second prize is to be $100; the third, $50; and ten honorable mentions will receive $15 each.

"Cherry Pie". Neil Sedaka is climbing the charts with "Stairway to Heaven", and Kitty Kalen has "... A Date With an Angel". Couldn't believe it when we heard it, but that's Jackie Wilson who does "Night."

Next week: Songs and their meanings.

The deadline for receiving the essays is May 15.

The contest is particularly intended for college students, workers, all young people for whom the whole question of a peaceful future for our country and the world has a special urgency. Writing an essay for the NEW WORLD REVIEW contest will give young people the opportunity to formulate their ideas on the question that above all others will dominate the coming elections. The top prize winning essays will be published in the magazine.

Veterans' Corner

By Gabe Hartsell

The hammers have been pounding, the artist painting, and of course the mad genius working with his rotating, gyrating, gear contraptions. Put 'em all together and what does it look like—well, it looks like a Carnival Booth. If you've never seen a real electronic gun and spacemen to go along with it, then come on out Carnival Night and try to win yourself a genuine rocket nose cone by shooting down a rocket in our Electronic Space Shooting Gallery. The Association is sponsoring this booth for Carnival Night, April 1 and 2 at the College Union.

The dates for the April meetings of the Association will be the second and fourth Fridays and not the usual first and third Fridays.

Association elections are coming up in the near future and the Nominations Committee has presented a commendable slate of candidates. Wade Radford has been nominated for President, Jim Lawrence for Vice President, Darwin McCombs for Recording Secretary, Wayne Philbeck for Corresponding Secretary, Harold Eskridge for Treasurer, and Carlton Carver for Auditor. All of these will be nominated at the next meeting along with any further nominations from the floor.

It surely would be nice if the Veterans' Association could be the proud owner of the Campus Chest Drive Cup. If any of you veterans are going to contribute to the Drive, please do so through the Association.

As you veterans know, last week the Association suffered a great loss when our faculty advisor lost his life in a plane crash: Mr. Bomar was a definite asset to the Association and his loss will certainly be felt.

The Association has thrown its hat—er—I mean shoes in the ring for the Beautiful Legs Contest. We have some real choice "hams" to choose from. Our entrant is being chosen by a committee appointed by the President. A penny is the price of one vote, and if you're looking for a bargain, you can get 110 votes for a dollar. Vote, vote, vote! This is deductible on income tax. All proceeds will go to the Campus Chest Drive and of course all the donations in our jars, which will be distributed all over the campus, will be credited to the Veterans' Association as donations to the Drive.

Don't forget now, the next meeting of the Association is April 8th. Nominations, and another program in our "Financial Series" is on the agenda.

WELCOME STUDENTS!

The touring Michigan State Spartans defeated the Wolfpack 2-1, in a game that was stopped after five innings of play Tuesday.

UNC Golfers Beat State

Carolina's golf team scored an 18½ to 8½ victory over State at the Carolina Country Club, Monday.

Medalist for the match was Carolina's Bobby Galloway who shot a 68. Peter Green had a 70 and Ed Justa a 71 for the Tar Heels.

Low scorers for State were Al Harris with a 72 and Bob Smith with a 74.

The summaries:

Ed Justa (C) d. Bob Smith, 3-0; Bobby Galloway (C) d. Jimmy York, 3-0. Best ball, Carolina 3, State 0.

Peter Green (C) d. George Dunlap, 2-1; Al Harris (S) d. Hugh Goodman, 3-0. Best ball, Carolina 1½, State 1½.

Paul Earhardt (C) d. Charles Stone, 2½-½; Charles Furman (C) d. John Isenhour 2½-½. Best ball, Carolina 2, State 1.

tans came in the fourth, when a throw from State's third baseman, Neil Easom, drew Stacey Wells off the bag at first. Sinks followed with a walk, sending Luminaski, who had reached first base on Easom's throw to second. Luminaski then scored when shortstop Dick Golden hit a pitch, just out of the reach of State's Vern Strickland, into leftfield.

State scored their only run in the bottom of the fourth, when Jimmy Cox sent a long drive to left-centerfield for a ground rule double. Cox remained on second as the next two State batters made outs. Vern Strickland singled him in, however, as he hit a grounder off the second baseman's glove.

It was a tough one for the Wolfpack to lose.

The Wolfpack was scheduled to go against Yale this afternoon, and Princeton tomorrow.

State Nine Promises To Be Contender For ACC Title

This year's baseball team at State promises to be an improvement over the team that finished last in the Atlantic Coast Conference along with Duke last year.

The strongest point about this year's team is the pitching. With veterans like Wilson Carruthers, Owen Wright, Gordon Neville, and Jim Overby, to go along with newcomers Joel Gibson and Roman Gabriel, ACC teams are going to find it tough to compete with the Wolfpack—in the pitching department.

Although the Wolfpack has dropped three of its first four games, the pitching has been more than adequate. In the first game of the season against Dartmouth, Carruthers allowed only one earned run, although he lost, 3-2. Gibson, pitching in his first college game, against Dartmouth pitched a no-hitter. Against Hampden-Sydney, the roof caved in on the Wolfpack pitchers as they allowed 10 runs to be scored. Then Tuesday, Gibson allowed the Spartans of Michigan State two runs, as the Spartans defeated the Wolfpack, 2-1. Excluding Saturday's game against Hampden-Sydney, the Wolfpack pitching corps has allowed only four earned runs in three games. It is easy to see from these statistics that the Wolfpack hurlers will do all-right this year.

The catching chores will be handled by Latham Smith and Adjar Perry, a transfer from Wilmington Junior College.

The infield is pretty well set with Stacy Wells at first, Jimmy Cox at second, Vernon Strickland at shortstop, and Neil Easom at third. Easom might lose his job to sophomore Wayne Edwards in order to get a better defense at third. Edwards has been out with a sprained ankle.

Playing the outfield in the early season games have been Jim Story in right, Bernie Latusick in center, and Jim Lancaster in left.

The Wolfpack has had little hitting this season as only Cox has been able to hit the ball with any consistency. Cox has had two home runs, on a triple, and a double in compiling a batting average of .555 for three games. He did not play in the second game of the doubleheader against Dartmouth.

Cox will get help from Gabriel in the hitting department, when the lanky sophomore rounds into shape. Gabriel will probably play outfield and pitch.

When the hitters catch up with the pitchers, the Wolfpack will be right in the thick of the ACC race this year along with North Carolina and Wake Forest.

All students and fans are urged to go out and support the Wolfpack nine in action on the new field behind the infirmary.

The Wolfpack meets Princeton tomorrow at home, and then play host to Maryland in their first ACC battle next Thursday.

LUCKY STRIKE presents

Dear Dr. Frood:

BAFFLING BLOT FAILS TO FAZE FROOD!

(see below)

Dear Dr. Frood: Every night for the past two weeks I've dreamt that I am being pursued by a beautiful girl in a Bikini who wants one of my Luckies. Just as she catches me, I wake up. How can I prevent this? Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: Go to bed a few minutes earlier.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am the ugliest guy on campus. My face looks like 90 miles of bad road. When I go to a party someone always steals my date. I worry about this. Can you help me? Loveless

Dear Loveless: Take heart. Any girl who would go out with you isn't worth worrying about.

Dear Dr. Frood: I think this ink blot looks just like rabbit ears. My friends say I'm nuts. What think? Bugs

Dear Bugs: It's your friends who are nuts. Those are clearly rabbit ears. And the long shape extending down is the rabbit's trunk.

Dear Dr. Frood: I have invited three girls to the dance this Saturday. How do I get out of this mess? Uptha Creek

Dear Mr. Creek: Tell two of them to dance with each other until you cut in.

Dear Dr. Frood: I have been dating one girl but I am so good-looking and so popular that I have decided to spread myself around a little more. What should I do about this girl? Dashing

Dear Dashing: Tell her the good news.

Dear Dr. Frood: My roommate always wears my clothes. What should I do? Put Upon

Dear Put Upon: Cover yourself and stay indoors.

Dr. Frood, Ph.T.T.

Dear Dr. Frood: My mother and my brother don't like my boy friend, but my father and my sister do. His father and two brothers don't like me, but his mother and his other brother do. What should I do? Miss Muddle

Dear Miss Muddle: Tell your father to talk to your mother and tell your sister to talk to your brother. Then tell your boy friend's mother to talk to his father and tell his brother to talk to his brothers. If that doesn't work, then talk to your mother and brother yourself. Maybe they know something you don't know.

At The College Union

By Ann Smith

Dancers will perform in the Coliseum Thursday, March 31, at 8 p.m. This "Friends of the College" sponsored event is free to all State students and their dates.

Tryouts will be held for the production of the "Browning Version" (sponsored by the CU Theatre Committee) Tuesday, April 5, at 7 p.m. in the CU. The cast will consist of five males and two females. Any person who is interested in either working on or off stage is invited to attend.

Professor John Mattox of the Department of Visual Aids will speak on Lighting in Photography at the Photoscopes to be held Wednesday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the CU. Professor Mattox will discuss and demonstrate lighting techniques. There will be a live model—so bring your cameras to this meeting. Who is the model? Come see!

The Annual Spring Pocket Billiards Tournament will be held Wednesday, April 6, at 7 p.m. in the CU Games Room. All interested people are asked to sign up at the CU Main Desk. The tournament is sponsored by the CU Games Committee.

"Boots Malone" is the movie for this week-end. The film, starring William Holden and Stanley Clements, is the story of the deep bond between a boy who left home and a man who never had one. It is a film that will make all viewers glow with pleasure. Showings will be at 1, 3, 5, 7, & 9 on Sunday only.

Stain finish will be discussed at the Ceramics Class that is held every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the CU Craft Shop. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Modern Church Architecture will be the next exhibit in the CU Gallery. The exhibit, circulated by The Museum of Modern Art, New York, shows through photographic enlargements, plans and interpretive text some 24 buildings in seven countries in which an atmosphere appropriate to the religious aspirations of our day has been achieved through the use of contemporary architectural forms and techniques.

The College Union will sponsor the annual Carnival Week-end on April 1 & 2. This is a major project of campus organizations of Woman's College, University of North Carolina, and State.

One of the highlights of the Carnival will be the Queen Contest. The preliminary judging will take place in the CU Theatre on Friday night with contestants from campus organizations of the Greater University. The contestants will be introduced during the intermission of the Kick-Off Dance. The Queen will be presented and crowned on Saturday, April 2.

The Booths will be the centers of attraction during the two nights. Some of the Booths will feature Penny Pitching, Shooting Gallery, Bingo, Dart Throwing, and many others.

The Kick-Off Dance will be held this Friday night from 8 p.m. until 12 p.m. in the CU Ballroom (not the Snack Bar as previously announced). All students from schools participating in the Carnival are cordially invited to attend. Music will be furnished by the Chorvetts.

The Carnival will operate from 12 noon until 12 midnight on both nights. To add to the excitement and gaiety of the evening, a German Band will tour the building playing and singing their songs.

The most difficult puzzle in the world

Do you have a solution?

In high school, you may have thought you had the solution, only to have it vanish. In college, it may seem well within your grasp, only to vanish again. But this is not unusual. It's a very difficult puzzle.

The puzzle? How to find your life's work. The solution? It comes only with searching. It may be right under your nose or it may still be far away in the future.

But the solution will come. You will very probably find it in the work you undertake after college.

This has proved true many times at IBM. For instance, young engineers and scientists—after learning the scope of IBM activities in research, development and manufacturing—have found their interests leading them into such vital growth fields as microwaves, circuit design, solid state physics, magnetics and manufacturing research. Depending on individual talents and inclinations, a college graduate may acquire skills at IBM that lead to a variety of careers.

When a person is able to move into areas where his true interests lie, and when he has many areas to choose from, it will certainly be easier for him to find his life's work.

After all, it's easier to find the solution to The Most Difficult Puzzle in the World when you have access to all the clues.

THE PENQUIN'S ROOST

I don't want to embarrass anyone, so I am not going to mention any names, but this story is true . . . more than being true, it's so damn typical that I believe you will understand just what I am talking about, and why I am writing this.

The other week I was dating a girl from _____ and we decided (or rather, I decided) to go to a fraternity party over on the Hill, that wondrous educational institution in Orange County. Now right here I would like to comment on what is so wondrous about this particular place. It's a wonder that it is called an educational institution, for classes seldom disrupt the social life on campus, and quizzes almost never deter parties.

However, one student there assured me that during exam week parties usually break up in time for testing.

Now, this was the first date I ever had with this particular girl, whom I must admit was pretty good looking and Ivy. As a matter of fact, she was so Ivy, that at times when I looked at her I thought for sure I heard the bells of the old tower at Yale. We arrived at the Hill and went straight to the . . . house. Neither of us had said much, but I figured in a more suggestive and easy atmosphere, things would improve. We walked downstairs and over to the bar. I ordered a drink.

"Well, here we are," she said and smiled.

"Yes, you're right", I replied. (Well we're off to a booming start with a marvelously intellectual statement.)

I took my drink from the bartender.

About that time someone slid from his bar stool and sprawled into the floor in a pool of liquor.

"Oh," cried my date, jumping back, "What's the matter with him?"

"This, dearie, is Chapel Hill," I said.

"But of course it is," she said with a puzzled look.

I was ready to give up and get drunk, but I decided to try once more, for posterity's sake, if nothing else.

"Say, how about those riots in Africa."

I saw the puzzled look come over her face again.

"They . . . they weren't very good, were they?"

THAT DID IT! I filled my drink and chugged it.

"What time do you have to be in?" I queried. (I knew already).

"About twelve", she said.

I looked at my watch. Ten o'clock. Two full hours. How could I take it.

Well, it was, and had been for almost two hours. I mumbled a reply and looked out the window at the rain. A car drove by, illuminating a garbage can outside.

I started thinking back. This was not the first time I had dated a girl from . . . and some of them had been almost as bad. Hell, all of them! Why kid myself. They were all the same, with their dry clothes, their pretty faces, their rich parents, their naive, simple ways. Always talking about how nice people were and how wonderful life was, and drinking their sociable Pepsi Colas, and watching Lawrence Welk's, One Man's Family, and the Mickey Mouse Club on TV. Their phony smiles, dry clothes, calculated poise . . . the end product of a name brand society.

Their high unrealistic ideals, lack of direction, naivety, and general apathy . . . the result of a loss of contact with the real and hard facts of life, the struggle for mere existence which goes on at a level so far below their life that it is unnoticed.

But to say that one person is ignorant and simple is to say apologies for their hasty and unkind actions. Not wishing to cause any more bad feeling the fraternity man did not press charges. Also during this moment of renewed friendship several more athletes approached the scene making one wonder why it would take more men to start the fight at the beginning.

If this had been the first instance of this nature, the apology would have been taken with absolute good faith. Fraternities welcome all visitors, but a number of the athletes who do visit fraternities usually conduct themselves as bums rather than gentlemen.
