Students Support Ike's Summit Stand

March On Capitol Arouses Police Ire, Tear Gas 'Attack' Fails, 13 Arrested

By Jim Moore

A planned rally, in support of the Eisenhower stand at the recent Paris Summit Conference, ended early this morning after Student Government President Eddie Knox squelched an aftermath which came about in protestation of the original interference of the Raleigh Police Force.

Knox addressed a group of about three hundred students milling in front of the College Union and at the Memorial Bell Tower at about one a.m., asking them "to return to their rooms and wait until tomorrow for further legal demonstrations."

The group, which was an outgrowth of a group that had earlier marched from the Textile Building to the Capitol Square, were gathered in an effort to protest the earlier arrest of some thirteen State College students and also the use of tear gas by the Raleigh police to quiet motorists in the march.

The rally was planned Wednesday afternoon as news reached Raleigh citizens of the insults directed at the President by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Placards were posted in dorms here on the campus, stating that a rally would begin at the Textile Building at 9 p.m., Wednesday.

The schedule was followed, and, by the time the march had reached the downtown area, there were more than eight hundred students and fifty cars participating. Police, in an effort to keep some of the drivers from operating their vehicles recklessly, threw several tear gas bombs at the automobiles.

After a momentary delay, most of the affected students had regained their sight, and the march proceeded to the Square. Upon reaching the Confederate Monument at the West entrance to the Square, students mounted its base and began singing the National Anthem, "Dixie," and various State College fight songs. Many of the participants carried signs, reading, "We're behind you, Ike," "Give 'em hell, Ike," etc. Bulletin: Members of the State College chapter of the Sigma Chi Fraternity sent the following telegram to President Eisenhower early this morning:

The President
The White House
Washington, D. C.

On behalf of the students of North Carolina State College, Raleigh, we wish to express to you our wholehearted support of your every action at the summit meeting in Paris. We sincerely hope that Soviet Premier Khrushchev will realize his grave error. Welcome home.

Respectfully,
The Delta Epsilon Chapter of the Sigma Chi Fraternity
After about thirty minutes of demonstrations, at the Square, the body dispersed to a large extent. However, some of the students proceeded to march toward the Memorial Auditorium on Fayetteville Street, stopping in front of the Sir Walter Hotel to recruit the support of visiting delegates to the State Democratic Convention.

After a while, the students remaining in the downtown area returned to the Capitol Square, whereupon about thirteen were seized roughly by the police and booked for "unlawful parading". Almost immediately after they had been jailed, they were released on bond.

When news of the arrests reached the State College campus, many of the students who had returned earlier were angered by these further actions of the Raleigh Police. Tempers grew, and in a short while a group of about two-thirds the size of the original band had grown in front of the College Union. It was at that time that Knox began his pleas for all students to return to their rooms and cease demonstrations for the night.

Various comments were heard at the scene of the rally, but one common idea was expressed by most. That idea was that "it seems a shame that students aren't allowed to peacefully congregate when a matter of grave national meaning threatens our rights and others' rights as citizens of the United States."

A couple of interesting sidelights were observed at the Capitol: When asked why they threw the tear gas at the cars in the rally, a certain patrolman of the Raleigh Police force laughed and said, "I wish we'd had more." (Not exactly a good-hearted chuckle, either.) To arrest one of the thirteen students, one Raleigh policeman jumped out of a patrol car in the middle of a block and ran across the street to seize the student. Jaywalking, anyone?

Grid Date Ticket Prices Altered

The Athletic Council recently approved a new plan concerning the policy of date tickets to football games. The price of the tickets have always been a source of student displeasure, and for the last several years student leaders have been attempting to have the old policy changed.

This new arrangement calls for an $8.00 season ticket for dates. This pass would enable the student to take a wife or a date to the three home games and the Carolina game, or two dollars per game.

Eddie Knox, in a recent interview with The Technician made this statement concerning the ticket change.

"This arrangement would enable many students to date at every event at a very reasonable rate. Individual date tickets to the State-Carolina game are set at $4.50 with the three home games listed at $4.00. These passes will be transferrable provided that a student's registration card is presented.

"At the meeting I issued a complaint of students concerning the seating arrangement at the State-Carolina game. The procedure which is now used in the allocation of student tickets at past games has provided the Carolina students with tickets up to the fifty yard line, while State students have been seated from the zero to the twenty-five yard line. The Athletic director, Mr. Clogston, is checking into the procedure with expectation that better seats for State College students will be obtained."

SG Banquet

Student Government members are reminded that the annual banquet will be held May 20. Anyone who wishes to go should turn their card in immediately.

For Math Proficiency

Students Recognized

Twenty-four rising engineering juniors at State College who have successfully completed the college's "Program for Superior Students in Mathematics" for the 1958-1960 period were recognized at special ceremonies Wednesday evening.

The students are among a group of 43 engineering sophomores with outstanding academic records invited by a special School of Engineering faculty committee to participate in the Junior-Senior Engineering Honors Program beginning with the 1960-61 academic year.

Each of the 24 superior mathematics students will receive a volume of "Elementary Mathematics from the Advanced Standpoint" by famous mathematician Felix Klein. Dr. John W. Cell, head of the Department of Mathematics, and Dean Lampe will award the volumes.

The awards are given to the students by Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic honor society, in recognition of their accomplishments in the Superior Student Program in Mathematics. Special nameplates have been designed for the volumes.

Walter B. Cummings, New Delhi, India; John T. Curlee, Winston-Salem; Charles L. Duke, Canton; Grady T. Ferrell, Raleigh; George W. Fisher, Mount Pleasant; J. C. Hart, Winston-Salem; John C. Harris, Rutherfordton; William M. Jackson, Winston-Salem; Richard McCorkle, Cherryville; Leland K. McDowell, Tarboro; Marvin S. Margolis, St. Pauls; Phillip N. Nanzetta, Winston-Salem; Hugh B. Noah, Raleigh; Van B. Noah, Raleigh; Albert K. Pearson, Greensboro; Richard Williamson, Canton; and Raymond S. Winton, Raleigh.

Featured 'Dixieland Combo'

The Symphonic Band will hold their fourth and last outdoor concert of the spring tomorrow.

Featured performers in the concert will be a six piece Dixieland Combo consisting of Robert Croom, Doug White, Jess Barber, George Seegars, David Teague, and Russ Cooke. The concert will include the Polka & Fugue by Weinberger, Amarpito Roca a paso doble by Texidor, a clever paraphrase on the Familiar Bluetail Fly.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Productive Year Nears Termination

Summing up the progress, innovations, etc., that have occurred at State College during this year is like being a participant in the "Sanford for Governor" campaign without being familiar with his smiling poster picture—it just doesn't happen! So much has either been started or finished this year for the betterment of the students, faculty, and administration that one finds it difficult to prepare a list.

However, in good faith, we will attempt to review the year nearing completion, pointing out the progress, while, at the same time, trying to avoid a covering-up of those matters which are not exactly settled.

In September, Dr. John T. Caldwell became Chancellor of State, succeeding Dr. Carey H. Bostian. Also in that month, a young wolf, "Lobo," arrived at the campus, and helped the State College spirit rise to a new high.

The next month saw a state-wide Bond Referendum pass which gave this College almost five million dollars for needed constructions and improvements. In addition, the enrollment figures were released which showed that this school had reached the six thousand students mark—a record high.

Early in November, news was received by over 800 fraternity men that their dream since enrollment—a Fraternity Row—had finally been realized. That month, also, plans for the establishment of a sorority—the first national—were finalized here.

The Holiday Month came, and, with it, the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation presented the State College faculty with a half-million dollars to be used for the construction of a State College Faculty Recreation Center.

The new year was ushered in with the establishment of a new school here at State—the School of Physical Sciences and Applied Mathematics — to embrace the present departments of Mathematics, Physics, Statistics, and Chemistry.

A new semester in February saw the officers of the Senior Class inaugurate a program here at State whereby the outstanding teachers from each of the schools would be honored each year at Commencement.

The month of March came, bringing the news that two State College deans—Dr. Addison Hickman and Dr. Dean Colvard—would relinquish their duties at the end of this school year to assume posts at other colleges.

Last month, the annual student elections were held with the same results—less than a third of the student body voting. But, an excellent slate of officers were elected to lead the State student body anyway.

Within the last few weeks, the student body, under the leadership of their president, have come up with two items worthy of reporting. First, the married student housing project, despite the protests arising from the release of its information, will fill a gap that has been empty for many years. And in tonight's issue, news of a season date ticket for four State home football games is released. This move, one that has been asked for for many years, will make it possible for those unmarried students to date to four games for only eight dollars. And different girls, too!

Of course, everything was not "a bed of roses". In several respects, the students fell down. One perennial area is that of the Honor System. Although much work was done during the year in an attempt to strengthen the meanings and functions of the Honor System, it seems that the same rate of cheating cases continues to be reported. Also, outside of the general apathy that still reigns supreme on campus, the student body fell down on the only appeal for money during the entire year—the Campus Chest Drive.

In the realm of administration, the prices for the rental of the Coliseum for student events continued to rise. However, this cost should drop considerably next year, for a request is in the making for funds with which to subsidize the student groups' appropriations for dances, etc.

Another sore spot which seems to become more evident each year is that of available funds for academic scholarships. With no full scholarships awarded to any students from the college for scholastic attainments, it is close to impossible for this school to compete with others in the State for the most out-standing high school students.

Of course, we cannot leave without taking one last look at the M and O. Throughout the year, many changes have been made which have improved the appearance of the campus grounds considerably. But, we remain steadfast in our (and many others, no doubt) opinion that the M and O operates, to a large extent, in an inefficient manner. Simple observation of brick-layings, grass-planting, etc., seems to point out this feeling even more.

But, it's been a good year, and we have learned a great deal. We wish that every student could be at this desk at least for one edition. It's stimulating.

1959-60 Technician

Agromeck Answers Student

Paragraph by paragraph I shall comment on the recent letter to the Technician concerning the 1960 Agromeck.

First of all I would like for the student to point out the numerous inexcusable errors. There are certainly errors, as there will be in any book of this size, but there are only a few rather pointed errors. On the IFC page there are two errors. With apologies to Ed Puckhaber—his name is not Fred as is printed—I claim this mistake for the staff, but the fraternity name beside Ralph Edwards' name is not our mistake. Proofs have been checked to see where the errors were made, and we sent the page in—Ralph Edwards, Pi Kappa Alpha, not Tau Kappa Epsilon. Score in mistakes: Agromeck 1; printer 1.

How did the pictures on pages 301, 327, and 331 get in the book? It was easy—we put them in. Also, if you will look closely, you will find one picture in twice and several other fraternities were asked by letter and by phone to turn in party pictures and pledge class pictures, but the results can be seen throughout the 40 page section. The suggestion of leaving a blank space or rearranging what pictures are turned in is ridiculous. The layout of the book is done by professional artists, and the deletion of pictures or the shifting of them would do more harm than good. The continuity of the book would suffer tremendously with the changing of one or two layouts. If organizations could turn in or not turn in whatever they wished (in this case it was negligence), a layout would be superfluous.

As far as my own organization having three pictures on pages that are not ours, this was done as a last resort. This was not done in an attempt to broadcast my organization's name throughout the book. Don't you agree that doing this for the above reasons would be ridiculous? Straining to complete the book and meet our deadlines, we used pictures from our only available source.

I shall wholeheartedly agree with the next two points.

The Agromeck spread should not be as large as it is. The size of this section has been fairly large for the past few years, and the layout artist sets up the lengths of the sections from past books; therefore, this year's book was no exception.

Concerning one organization monopolizing the Agromeck staff, I agree again.

As was stated in the letter, assistance is surely appreciated and welcomed. This year one man applied for section work, and Harris Caldwell was given the job of Sports Editor. Harris did a very good job, worked for long hours, and I appreciated his interest very much. Contrary to popular belief, the Agromeck door is not closed to "other" interested students. Everyone has made up his mind that we have the book, and there is no earthly way that he can "break through" the "Iron Curtain" and become part of the yearbook. If you're interested in work, how are we supposed to know about it unless you tell someone? One point that I would like to mention before making some final comments on how the book operates concerns the editor. The editor must get his staff together early and begin work for the next year. Only through close contact with the staff members will he ever get the book to the press. I had trouble in this respect this year as we were not as localized as we should have been.

A statement of finances can be obtained by any interested persons through me or the publications secretary. The book operates on a budget of 38 to 40 thousand dollars, which is a lot of money. The students pay $5.65 for their books, and the remainder of the costs of publishing the book comes from fees and advertising. The editor and the business manager receive a salary of $50.00 per month, and the section editors get a check at the end of the year in an amount more or less determined by Holladay Hall.

The Agromeck and the publications board have been for-

Grants-In-Aid Awards
To Students Released

The following students received grants-in-aid for the 1959-60 school year. These grants are one-year general scholarship awards made to those students who have clearly satisfactory records academically and with respect to citizenship, and who also can show clear financial need. Applications may be submitted at any time. However, the Financial Aid Office prefers that applications for such assistance in 1960-61 be filed by the end of the current academic year or at least by early summer. Application forms may be obtained at 207 Holladay Hall.

The same application is used for consideration for long-term, low-interest loans, including National Defense Student Loans.

Rising sophomores who received Talent For Service Scholarships designated as one-year awards must re-apply to have scholarship assistance continued.

tunate the past few years in that the yearbook has shown a profit. The 1954 Agromeck lost some $6000.00! All profits from the campus publications go into a reserve fund, and the funds are used at the discretion of the publications board. I'm sure that two major components of the publications board, WKNC and the Technician, are particularly happy that the Agromeck has made a profit in the past. Through this profit these two organizations have afforded certain items that they could not possibly have afforded without an extra expense to the students.

Lad Daniels, editor-elect of the 1961 Agromeck, has got off to a remarkable start on next year's book. With all of the student's and organization's cooperation, I predict the 1961 Agromeck will be the best book ever. Next year if you've got any gripes, complaints or questions, I'm sure that Lad would appreciate your speaking to him at any time. After you have talked the situation over with him, then if you see fit, criticize publicly. The editor of the yearbook deserves this consideration that I asked for and did not receive.

If any of you have any questions about this year's book or anything else concerning the Agromeck, get in touch with me. Please know what you are condemning before you toot your horn.

P.S.

I have learned a lot this year, but what I will value most is what I've learned about people.

Remember how great cigarettes used to taste?

Luckies still do.

When the class of '50 comes back for reunion this year—you'll see a lot of Lucky Strike smokers. Reason is, these graduates know how a cigarette is supposed to taste.

They still smoke Luckies.

They've seen a lot of changes in smoking since they left college. But they haven't found anything that beats fine tobacco—or anything that comes close to that Lucky Strike taste.

And funny thing! The Class of '60 seems to have made the same discovery about Lucky Strike. Today, Luckies are the best-selling regular cigarette in colleges throughout the country!

So, if you remember how great cigarettes used to taste, you'll find that Luckies still do.
