

Kennedy Speaks To Crowd of 8,000 Denouncing "Kitchen Debate" Tactics

Kennedy Speaks

By Jay Brame
Democratic Presidential candidate John F. Kennedy appeared in the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum Saturday night before a crowd estimated at 8,000 persons: Kennedy, in winding up a one-day campaign tour of North Carolina sharply criticized Vice-President Richard M. Nixon in his dealings with Russia's Nikita S. Khrushchev. Kennedy declared that "Kitchen debates" offered no means of solving peace or keeping the United States as powerful in the world. Kennedy was questioned by members of the audience after he concluded his speech. Kennedy was cheered loudly when he was questioned by one of the members of the audience about his religion. He was asked whether he thought his religion would hinder him during his campaign. He answered the question by saying that with such great issues of world peace and economic stability staring the United States in the face, he thought that these would interest the people of the state of North Carolina more than "where I'm going to church tomorrow morning." Kennedy was questioned further by the audience, but none of his answers drew the applause that the one about his religion did. Kennedy declared that the best chance for southern progress lay in return a democratic administration to the White House. In the crowd Saturday night were many distinguished Democrats from North Carolina. Among these were Governor Luther Hodges, who introduced Senator Kennedy, and North Carolina Democratic nominee for governor, Terry Sanford. Many posters were seen throughout the coliseum. These signs included "The Remedy is Kennedy," "Back Jack for the White Shack," "Baptists for Kennedy," and "Get the Facts; Back Jack." The program was televised throughout North Carolina.

Wolfpack Captures First Of Year

All This Week Book Exchange Open

The Fraternity of Alpha Zeta, an honorary Agriculture Fraternity, will open its Book Exchange for the fall semester on Monday, September 19, at 12:00 in the College Union coat room on the lower floor. This book exchange service, open to all students, will be operated in the College Union under the same rules as in the past years of operation.

This service that Alpha Zeta operates for the students at N. C. State is quite unique in that the students themselves buy and sell books through the exchange. Students are encouraged to leave their books in the exchange with the price being sought taped to the front cover. After the book has been sold, the student can request his money by presenting the card that was given to him on receipt of his book in the exchange.

The Fraternity of Alpha Zeta charges a very nominal fee, 10¢ up to $3.99, 5¢ on up, for selling books for the students. With the amount collected each year from the sale of books, the Fraternity awards three scholarships annually to the three outstanding sophomores in the school of Agriculture.

The Book Exchange will open this semester on Monday, September 19, at 12:00. It will remain open the entire first week of classes, September 19 through September 23, from 12:00 until 5:00 each day. All students are urged to make use of this used textbook service, since the returns are turned back to aid outstanding students.

Campus Crier

As of Monday, September 19, all parking rules and regulations will go into effect on State College Campus.

The first meeting of the Engineers' Council will be Thursday, September 22 at 7:00 p.m., Room 11, Riddick. All members from the Engineering School and from the new School of Science are urged to be present.

The State College Young Democrat Club is holding its first meeting of the semester Wednesday night, September 21, at the College Union at 8:00 p.m.

In accordance with college policy, Jewish students will be granted permission to be absent from class on the following dates for the observance of Jewish Holy Days: September 22-23, 1960 (Beginning of the Religious New Year) October 1, 1960 (Yon Kipur).

Silent week will not end on Wednesday at noon as previously stated in the IFC rush rules. Therefore, freshmen may NOT contact any fraternity man at that time. The new termination time for silent week, along with further instructions for accepting or rejecting bids, will be published in Wednesday's issue of the Technician.

All State College students are encouraged to try out for the cheerleader squad. Tryouts will be held Tuesday afternoon Sept. 20, 1960 at 5:00 p.m. on the track field directly behind the Coliseum.

William Cobb, chairman of the N. C. State Republican Committee, will speak to the first meeting of the N. C. State Young Republican's Club Wednesday night at 7:00 p.m. in the College Union theatre. Cobb, former state senator from Burke County was enthusiastic about the tremendous registration the Y.R.C. had.

State Losing Streak Broken As Pack Tramples VPI 29-14

By Earl Mitchell

The N. C. State football team once again opened up the season with a win over Virginia Tech by a 29-14 count. This win was much more impressive than last year's conquest of the VPI team. The Wolfpack looked much stronger this year than they did last year, according to Frank Moseley, head Gobbler coach.

At the end of the half it appeared that the game was going to be a very close one. At the end of the third quarter the Wolfpack opened its margin to seven points and outscored the Tech team 15-7 in the final stanza to register their first win of the 1960 campaign and their first win in the last ten games.

total of 57 yards. George Vollmar, who lettered as a tackle last year and was converted to end this year, also caught four passes but he picked up only 35 yards.

The State eleven got on the score board first by sending Jim D'Antonio over from the three yard line with 7:23 remaining (See LOSING STREAK, page 2)

Blue Key Begins Homecoming Queen Contest Planning

The Blue Key Honorary Fraternity urges all Fraternities, dormitories, organizations and interested individuals at State College to enter a contestant in the Homecoming Queen Contest.

Selection of ten finalists from the beauties submitted will be made by members of the Blue Key. The finalists will be formally interviewed by the judges on Saturday morning and will ride in the celebration parade. Announcement of the winner will be made during the Halftime Ceremonies of the game, and she will be officially crowned Miss Wolfpack on Saturday night in the College Union at the Homecoming Dance.

Rules of the contest show that each contestant must be single and between the ages of 18 and 25. Submission of one full length photograph and one 8 1/2 x 11 portrait is compulsory for the judging of each contestant. The name of each contestant and the name of her sponsor should be included with each entry. Pictures will be returned after the contest, and may be picked up at Room 206 Holladay Hall. Information and pictures on contestants must be submitted to Miss Shirley at the Student Activities Office, Room 206 Holladay Hall, not later than 5:00 p.m. Wednesday, September 28, 1960. Both organizations and individuals at State College are eligible to sponsor a contestant. This means that a contestant need not be a student either at State College or at another school. Any questions concerning the contest may be answered by contacting B. B. Redmon, TE 3-6901 or Lad Daniels at TE 3-4808.

Bulletin

Dr. Walter M. Kulash, 48-year-old professor of Entomology at North Carolina State College, died Sunday night of a heart condition. Kulash, who joined the North Carolina State faculty in 1942, had been sick for several days. He had just last week returned from the 11th International Congress of Entomologists at Vienna, Austria.

A native of Haydenville, Mass., Kulash was author of several publications and had presented two technical papers to the Entomologists Congress.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Gobish Kulash, six children, one brother and five sisters.

Registration this year was different from previous ones in many ways, such as the lack of rain and the seniors' priority, but the lines and the usual disorganization was the same as it always has been and probably always will be. (Photo by Hoey)

Comments From The Editor Standards Relaxed

State College is growing every year in attendance and in curricula, options, research, and prestige. With the opening of the new school of Applied Sciences and the announcement of new options in the other curricula offered at this school, State proved that it is evolving its program to meet our highly complex and rapidly expanding economy. Our school supplies the technicians, engineers, scientists, architects, and people in many other technical fields to our state and nation.

Our economy is based on machines and technological growth. Without schools such as State spurring out more and more technically trained people, our machines and our economy will come to a grinding or a screeching (from lack of oil) stop. While everyone realizes the need for ever increasing numbers of technical graduates, they should not forget that what this country needs is not more and more graduates, but more and more competent graduates.

Technical men are placed in positions of grave responsibility. If men are not able to competently fill jobs which call for knowledge and technical training, and are expected to, the wheels of industry will as surely grind to a stop as they would if there were no people which had been trained in these fields.

From this it is safe to assume that our country cannot afford mediocre technical graduates; if it is to survive the heavy economic pressures that it is subject to.

In the last two years, our college has twice relaxed the rules for the eligibility of a student to remain in this college. Both of these rule changes have, in our opinion, merit. The first, in essence, says that a student may continue in this school for a certain length of time after he has fallen below a "C" average, but that he must regain his "C" in the time period set to continue in school. The second, which was passed this summer, lets a student drop the hours in a course which he has flunked if he repeats the course and passes it. "D's" also can be made up in this way if the student is a Freshman or a Sophomore.

Neither of these rule changes should hamper the competence of our graduates, for the first just gives a little leeway on the attainment of a "C" average, and doesn't change the requirements for graduation, and the second implies that the person who has made up a course which he has flunked has learned it by the passing average which he must obtain.

The question is, however, when will this relaxing of standards stop. If this school keeps making it easier and easier for a person to get a degree, the degree will mean no more than one from our sister school.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

New NCS Traffic Rules Announced By Officials

By Kermit Humphrey
The College Administration has released the traffic rules and registrations costs for the current school year.

Registration costs of motor vehicles under the classification of cars and trucks has been reduced to two dollars over the previous three dollars cost. Scooters, cycles, and motorbikes carry only a dollar registration fee over last year's three dollar token. Bicycles have the privilege of registering their vehicles without charge this year.

This year's traffic rules supplement the State motor vehicle laws which also apply to the campus.

The same system of official stickers for all campus cars will be in effect this year. The stickers used on bicycles will be the City of Raleigh stickers. These stickers should be mounted on the post directly behind the seat. All outdated stickers should be removed from the cars. The fine for failing to register a car which is to be parked on campus is $10.00, and the fine for all bicycle violators will be one dollar.

The fine for any ticket should be paid within ten days after the ticket is received. If a person feels that he has been unjustly ticketed, he can appeal his case to the Traffic Records office which has been moved from Pullen Hall to the Business Office, Room "B", Holladay Hall.

A major change has been made concerning the parking of motorcycles, scooters, and motorbikes on the north end of the campus. There cannot be any parking on this end of the campus except in two designated localities near Syme Dormitory and the College Union.

Raleigh Cops Give Parade Restrictions

The word "parade" is defined as an assemblage of more than five vehicles or twenty-five pedestrians in public procession along the streets of the city.

City Ordinance 21.31 states that parades may be held in conformity with the following requirements:

- Parades may consist of not more than seventy-five motor vehicles but there shall be no restrictions on the number of bands or pedestrians participating therein.
- No parades, or parts thereof, may be upon the streets of the city between the hours of four-thirty p.m. and six p.m.
- No more than one parade may be conducted during any one calendar day, except Saturdays.
- Parade routes must be approved by the Chief of Police.
- Parades may not be conducted until a permit therefor has been secured from the Chief of Police of the City of Raleigh and the application for permit shall be made at least five days before the date on which the parade is to be held. The Chief of Police shall issue a permit if it appears that the parade will be held in conformity herewith, but may stop and disperse a parade conducted in violation of this ordinance even though a permit therefor has been issued by him.
- It shall be unlawful for anyone riding in a parade to distribute therefrom any candy, cigarettes, prizes or favors of any kind.

This regulation means that State College Students must obtain "parade" permits five days in advance before any demonstrations such as "pep" parades, patriotic demonstrations, etc. may be held on city streets. Failure to do so will be in violation of the law.

Advanced ROTC Information Released By Air Force Staff

Air Force ROTC Sophomores have an immediate opportunity to apply for the advanced AFROTC course, it was announced today Colonel Robert C. Paul, Professor of Air Science.

Cadets should make application for the advanced program by 5 October 60, in order to be ready for the physical examination and the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test to be held in October. Those persons who pass these examinations, and are otherwise eligible, may be accepted for advanced AFROTC training during their junior and senior years. Upon successful completion of this program, cadets are commissioned as 2nd Lieutenants in the United States Air Force.

Student cadets who do not elect to choose advanced AFROTC training leading to a commission, are subject to being drafted for a two year term in the military service, either while in school if grades are below minimum requirements, or after graduation from college.

Upon completion of service as a draftee, individuals are normally required to participate in a two year Ready Reserve training status, followed by a two year stint in a Standby Reserve program, making a total of six years active and reserve training.

Those AFROTC cadet students who qualify for and take advanced training receive a subsistence allowance of 90¢ per day in addition to Air Force uniforms. Some of the courses taught in the advanced program are Creative Problem Solving, Communicating and Instructing in Air Force, Military Justice, World Political Geography, and others. In addition, advanced cadets are appointed to responsible cadet officer positions in the leadership laboratory phase of the advanced course, such as commanders of units, administration and personnel directors, and other leadership training assignments.

This all adds up to excellent development of character and leadership in the individual—something that would be difficult to obtain in other pursuits.

A successful graduate of the Air Force ROTC advanced course is ordered to active duty as a 2nd Lt. for four years if he is a non-flyer and five years if he is a flying officer category. Six years of active and reserve service is required under the present Reserve Forces Act of 1955 to fulfill the selective service obligation.

Ask yourself? Do you want the opportunity of developing your professional ability? If you do, check into the possibility of applying for the AFROTC advanced program now.

Student Attendance Regulations

The following regulations have been approved by the Faculty Senate and the Administration of North Carolina State College:

- Attendance of classes, laboratory periods and examinations is expected of all students.
 - It is the responsibility of each student to present to his instructor a valid excuse for any anticipated absence or any emergency absence which has occurred.
- Valid excuses for make-up work include the following:
 - Sickness when verified by a form from the College Infirmary or a letter from a physician.
 - Death or illness in the family when verified by a letter from a family physician.
 - Official college duties or an approved college trip as certified by an appropriate staff member.
 - Court attendance when required as certified by Clerk of Court.
 - Excuses for other reasons may be accepted at the discretion of the instructor.

3. Excuses should be given to the instructor before the absence if possible or within five days after the student's return to school.

4. Class attendance records will be maintained by the faculty for all freshman classes and in any other class if desired by the faculty member. Instructors will report to the Division of Student Affairs those students creating scholastic problems by absenteeism. Contact Mr. Bowers, 206 Holladay Hall, by letter, by note, or telephone (Extension 215) at any time needed.

5. Students reported to the Division of Student Affairs for excessive absenteeism will be counseled as to the importance of attending their classes regularly and if advisable, their parents will be notified. Continued absenteeism will result in appropriate disciplinary action.

Gabriel, Taylor And D'Antonio Help End Victory Drought

State's Jack Stanton (45) brings down Dick Goode (80), VPI's left end, after he has grabbed a toss from Tech quarterback Warren Price. Jim D'Antonio and Nick Maravich (75) are the other State players in the action. (Photo by Hoey)

D'Antonio was right on the spot deep in Gobbler territory. Gabriel passed to Vollmar for nine yards and Taylor carried the ball to the three yard line before D'Antonio covered the final distance. Jake Shaffer's kick was good and the Wolfpack took a 7-0 lead.

After VPI booted to the one-foot line and the Wolfpack was forced to punt, the Techmen took the ball on the State 43 and moved the distance in seven plays with the help of a 15 yard penalty for a touchdown. Aster Sizemore tied up the score with a perfect conversion.

State took the second half kick-off and marched down the field covering 63 yards in 11 plays to score and pull out in front. Al Taylor hit off his left tackle for the final five yards and the touchdown with 10:03 left in the third period. Shaffer again kicked the point-after and the Wolfpack stepped into a 14-7 lead.

In the fourth quarter Don Vaught put VPI back in the game when he cracked over from the one yard line to put the Tech team one point behind State. Sizemore kicked the point after to tie the score at 14-all. State took the kickoff and hurried down the field for another score with Taylor again covering the final distance of seven yards. Shaffer again kicked the point-after the pack led 21-14 with 2:26 left in the ball game.

VPI took the kickoff and immediately started to pass in an effort to pull the game out of the fire. On the first pass that the Gobblers threw, State's D'Antonio was right on the spot and intercepted the ball and ran 46 yards for the final State score. D'Antonio crashed over for the two points to give the Wolfpack their final winning margin of 29-14.

The 29 points that the Wolfpack scored against Virginia Tech were the most points that a State team has ever scored against a Tech team with the exception of a 34-6 beating that the State team gave Tech in 1950. The 29 points scored by the State team was also the most points that the Pack had scored since 1957 when they were ACC champs.

The State team beat the Tech team in five of the six major statistics departments. The State team rolled up 284 yards on offense to 217 for VPI. VPI did outdistance the Wolfpack on the ground, but the aerial attack of the Pack proved to be too much for the Gobblers.

Next Saturday the State team will clash with the University of North Carolina in what promises to be a real game.

Al Taylor (42) breaks into the clear after Alex Gilleskie (on the ground) blocked out the last Tech defender. Taylor scored two of State's touchdowns in the game on Saturday. Earle Edwards, head Pack coach, singled out the running of Taylor as one of the key factors in the win for the Wolfpack. (Photo by Hoey)

Tools of The Trade

In considering the cost of a college education students often are prone to place undue emphasis upon the cost of textbooks. Yet a recent survey of college expenses indicates textbooks represent less than 5% of the total cost of a four year course in college.

To a college student textbooks are "tools of the trade." A carpenter, a brick mason, an automobile mechanic, a radio and television repair man, a skilled surgeon and all other categories of craftsmen and professional men own and cherish "Tools of the Trade." Without them craftsmen and professional men would be "babes in the woods."

You and/or your parents will spend up to $5,000.00 or more on your college education. Five per cent of $5,000.00 adds up to $250.00. That $250.00 represents one of the best investments of your entire college career. To save any part of $250.00 do you want to be a "babe in the woods" during your four years in college?

When you own your own copy of each required text in the courses you pursue you can annotate important facts on the margins. Years later you may have occasion to refer to your personal notes and the factual printed matter therein. To you, in your professional career, that textbook becomes a valuable reference guide.

When you have completed a course, evaluate its usefulness and that of its basic text content. If the textbook has possibilities of assisting you in your professional career, place it in your personal library. If it holds no promise of assistance carry it down to your book store and offer it for sale. Your book store will pay you its full market value and make it available for another student who will replace you in that course next year.

The writing, publishing and distribution of textbooks is an expensive operation, and potential sales are limited to a very small percentage of American consumers. Contrary to the common opinion of laymen, nobody gets rich in the process. First, the author—usually a professor—spends considerable time and money preparing his manuscript. In most cases his basic philosophy is not one of commercial gain. Second, the publisher who accepts the manuscript, assumes a calculated risk. Some books click and show a margin of profit to author and publisher. Many others fall flat upon their faces commercially. Third, consider the book retailer. His margin of profit is fixed by the publisher. Except in rare instances that margin is 20% of retail. With the exception of food products—which reflect 30 to 50 turn-overs of inventory per year as compared with 2 turn-overs for book dealers—no other category of retail merchandise has such a low margin.

The thousands of World War II veterans who attended college under the terms of the G. I. Bill were completely equipped with ALL the textbooks required for their respective courses of study. No other group of students has ever been so completely equipped. The academic records and professional achievements of this G. I. group stands head and shoulders above the American average or the record and achievements of total graduates of any institution or of the members of any fraternity or learned society.

The Most Profitable Investment You Will Make During Four Years In College Is Your Investment In Books. Visit Your Book Store Often During Your Stay On The Campus.

Yours for a better State College.

Sincerely,

L. L. Jolley
