McGuire Cries... 'I Am Innocent' ....But NCAA Decides Otherwise

ECC Pres. Speaks To Tau Beta Pi's

Greenville, N. C., Jan.—President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College, addressing members of the Tau Beta Pi Association, national engineering honor society, at N. C. State College, Raleigh, Friday night, Jan. 6, challenged his audience of engineers and student engineers not only to use their talents and training in the technical aspects of modern life but also to concern themselves more actively than at present with such problems of society as education, health, and politics.

The East Carolina president addressed the Tau Beta Pi Association at a banquet at the State College Union.

"You have contributed," Dr. Jenkins told the engineers, "to freeing a considerable proportion of man's available energies previously concentrated on providing the bare necessities of existence; but you have done mighty little in assisting him in his attempt to live in this new environment.

"You must help us from unconsciously becoming the servant of your technical progress. You realize, of course, that technical progress may not be identical with the progress of man. We may well witness through your efforts progress in the machines you make, but little progress in man himself."

Dr. Jenkins urged Tau Beta Pi members to exert efforts to end the present looseness with which the term "engineers" is used to designate people in many trades and callings. A loss of status results, he said, from misuse of the word.

Discussing the engineer's "apparent inferiority complex in the area of culture," Dr. Jenkins stated that the image of the engineer as a "rough and tough," uncultured character has become traditional and that the engineer's preoccupation with technical to the exclusion of other activities probably is a result of pioneer-frontier distrust of the specialist. Engineers are unfair to themselves, he said, in allowing these impressions to persist.

Since engineers "have been responsible for changing our world," Dr. Jenkins said, it seems only right that they should "assume an equal responsibility in helping us run this new world."

He urged a more active interest and participation by engineers in political affairs, in education, in health and sanitation problems, in cultural activities, and in other areas affecting man's welfare and progress.

What? Me Guilty??

Frank McGuire was the one that the NCAA pointed the finger at when they decided that the University of North Carolina was guilty of illegal recruiting practices concerning their basketball team. McGuire brings his Tar Heels to State College one week from tonight to meet the Wolfpack.

NCAA Deliberates Case, Finds Tar Heels Guilty

By JAY BRAME

Frank McGuire's "Payola kids" will not be in the NCAA tournament this coming March due to the "mild" sentence they received yesterday due to illegal recruiting practices. Yes, there will be no "MOE" NCAA championship games for Doug, Yorkie, & Co. as Uncle Frank was ruled the guilty one in the case that had been drawn out over a two year period.

We learned from a reliable source last spring that Carolina was due to go on probation soon but the NCAA took approximately nine months in finally bringing the case to an end.

Even though Carolina is our sister institution, there were many happy faces around the State College campus yesterday as the students, faculty, and other officials heard the news. One student claimed "that it could not have happened to a better school." Many of the people around the Raleigh area felt that Carolina would not be punished since the NCAA took such a long time in determining their fate.

The NCAA had the evidence that was needed to sentence Carolina. The NCAA usually slaps a school with a one-year probation period when it is their first offense. This applied to the great Carolina team.

Some of the "payola players" included Lennie Rosenbluth, Tommy Kearns, Pete Brennan, Lee Shaffer, Harvey Salz, York Larese, and Doug Moe. The majority of these players come from the New York-New Jersey area. It is believed that some of the coaches in the area mentioned were responsible for turning the Tar Heels in to the NCAA.

McGuire claimed all along while he was in Pittsburgh that he was innocent of charges. However, the NCAA named him as the principle factor in the charges.

It is known for a fact that the "payola players" really have it easy over at the Hill. They are probably the highest salaried college basketball players anywhere.

The NCAA is not through with the University of North Carolina. They can extend the probation period or shorten it as they see fit. It is a shame that the Tar Heels two All-Americans, York Larese and Doug Moe, will not be able to show their talents in the NCAA tournament this coming March.

Coach McGuire is sitting in the frying pan, and it is becoming hotter all the time. The Carolina alumni will not like this probation period one bit. However, they are lucky that they got off as easily as they did!

Dr. Swann, Former Missile Man, Named Chemistry Dept. Head

Dr. Ralph Clay Swann, a leader in the field of rocket research and development, has been named head of the Department of Chemistry at North Carolina State College.

The new department head was formerly technical director of the Ordnance Missile Laboratories at Huntsville, Ala. Announcement of Dr. Swann's appointment was made Monday (January 9) by State College Chancellor John T. Caldwell following approval by the executive committee of the Consolidated University of North Carolina Board of Trustees.

In his work in rocket research and development, Dr. Swann has been responsible for the planning, execution and review of projects valued at more than 50 million dollars annually.

Much of the work of the Ordnance Missile Laboratories is involved in the fields of propulsion research and solid propulsion development. These laboratories were at the forefront in the development of solid propulsion chemicals in this country.

The Ordnance Missile Laboratories also have made notable advances in the free flight and simplified guidance systems of rockets. The Honest John, Little John, and Missile A were among top projects undertaken by these laboratories. The Ordnance Missile Laboratories have made contributions on the propulsion systems of the Nike Zeus, Nike Hercules, Pershing, Lacroase, and many other service missiles.

Dr. Swann joined the Ordnance Missile Laboratories in 1953 and has been its technical

Formal Initiation Held For Twelve By Theta Tau

Twelve men became brothers of Rho Chapter of Theta Tau in the formal initiation held in Danforth Chapel Wednesday night, December 14, 1960. The initiates were Barry Frazelle of Raleigh, William Gardner of Kernersville, Edwin Hauser of Lewisville, Bob Holder of Winston-Salem, Pete Lesslie of Mt. In addition to the brothers of Rho, the initiation was attended by a special guest, Brother Robert Pope, the Grand Scribe of Theta Tau. Brother Pope visited Rho Chapter before going to Detroit, Michigan, where the biennial National Convention of Theta Tau was held December 28, 29, and 30, 1960.

Comments From The Editor Crime Does Not Pay

Gordon Gray, President of the Consolidated University in 1953, issued a letter to everyone concerned with athletics at North Carolina State College and the University of North Carolina that at anytime that it was established that any member had violated any of the by-laws of the Atlantic Coast Conference or the National Collegiate Athletic Association or that he had knowledge of any violation and failed to disclose this information to the proper authorities it would automatically bring dismissal to the coach or the party concerned.

William Friday replaced Gordon Gray at the helm of the Greater Consolidated University in 1955. President Friday has done a good job keeping State and UNC in the good graces of the NCAA and ACC. However, Coach Frank McGuire evidently went behind President Friday's back and spent more money than he should have. It is going to be interesting to see what President Friday and Jim Weaver, Commissioner of the ACC, have to say about Coach McGuire spending all the money that he did in the wrong manner.

The NCAA put the finger on McGuire as being the guilty party. The NCAA never did single out any one person in State College's case. There were several persons mentioned.

It might be said that the NCAA can either lengthen or shorten this probation period that North Carolina received yesterday. The NCAA could have burned Carolina more than they did, but since it was their first offense, the NCAA gave them the usual one-year probation period.

It seems to us that Carolina furnished the NCAA with all the evidence that they needed to convict them. The NCAA required the University officials to show them their financial books on what they had spent on athletics since 1957, the year of North Carolina's NCAA championship team.

The NCAA revealed that UNC's bookkeeping was sloppy to say the least. Money had been spent without putting it into the books. When the figures did not balance out, the NCAA had found Carolina guilty due to their own mistakes.

North Carolina will not be able to play in any tournaments for the next year. Many people have asked about the Dixie Classic. Carolina is listed as a host team. However, North Carolina State College is THE host school, and Coach Everett Case can invite anyone that he desires since it is his tournament.

Carolina was talking about walking out of the Dixie Classic a couple of years ago. Well, unless the NCAA rules otherwise, they may not have to walk out of the Classics . . . they will just have to lose a large sum of money that they would receive for participating due to some backward practices besides being PUT out of the Classics by the NCAA.

The rivalry between State and Carolina is strong and there is no love lost among students and alumni when it comes to athletic contests between the two institutions.

McGuire should, and will undoubtedly, be called before President Friday and Commissioner Weaver for his illegal practices. Coach McGuire claimed that he was innocent. However, the NCAA ruled otherwise. It is suspected that the University of North Carolina and Coach McGuire will hear from Commissioner Weaver, and it is certain that they will not be hearing a sweet song when the commissioner speaks to them.

The NCAA is not through with Carolina, and it is possible that some new evidence could lead to a longer sentence if they do not live cleanly in the coming year over at Chapel Hill. Yes, there are many grins on faces around State College, as the North Carolina "Tar Heels" have found that crime does not pay.

C U Library Committee Proving Value To Campus

The College Union Library Committee is a group that does much more than its name suggests. It is not only concerned with books, or the reading of books, but with the bringing of interesting, educational speakers to the State College campus. The aim is the introduction to the campus population of speakers who have something of interest for the average student.

A few years ago the Library Committee was just another committee in the College Union. Its program was small; the group itself was smaller; enthusiasm was weak.

When a committee gets low, it needs something to put it back on its feet. For the Library Committee, the "shot-in-the-arm" came from its incorporation in the spring of 1960. From the incorporation of the Library Committee, the committee membership has grown in number, the program has greatly expanded, and enthusiasm runs high. A forceful chairman has also done much to put life into the committee. Fred Slosman, of Asheville, North Carolina, has made the Library Committee a smoothly working group through his organizational ability.

What more exactly has its incorporation done for the Library Committee? It has made possible the bringing of speakers of high literary quality and interest to the State College campus. The Library Committee, Incorporated, has brought to the State College campus such speakers as John Dos Passos and Lawrence Ferlinghetti who were received by record audiences. Mr. Ferlinghetti, a leader of the "San Francisco" movement, publisher and poet, has published several books of poetry and a novel. Mr. Dos Passos is the author of MANHATTAN TRANSFER U. S. A., and other works. These two speakers were the first in a series of four such speakers. The last two speakers are John Ciardi, to appear on February 27, and Malcolm Cowley, to be here on April 18. The series has been appropriately titled "The Contemporary Scene" as these are all contemporary American writers. Next year's program should prove to be equally as good.

The incorporation of the Library Committee is not the only project of interest to the committee. The Library Committee is working now on a symposium with the aim of promoting creativity and originality on the part of the student as related to his technical studies.

An important duty of the Library Committee is the providing of up-to-date magazines and newspapers for the College Union. As these publications are greatly used by students, there have been several new publications added this year.

The Library Committee is an excellent example of what an interested and enthusiastic group can accomplish when they are working together on a subject which they like.

Sports Highlight Winter Intramurals

By Richie Williamson
Associate Sports Editor

With everyone back from the vacation, the winter intramural program is off to a flying start with three sports going at the same time. At the Frank Thompson gym, both basketball floors are occupied throughout the week with action in the fraternity, dormitory, and open leagues. Just past the basketball games, the three handball courts are being pounded with the little rubber ball in league action. At the Western Lanes, bowling has returned to the intramural program and interest is running high.

In the first night of the bowling schedule, SPE proved to be a strong contender as they took three games and total pinfall over Farm House. SPE was paced by McGugan's 589 series and Grant's 546 series. Although the other games did not produce quite the high scores, the closeness of the matches made the pins fall. AGR took a 4-0 win over LCA, Sigma Chi beat Theta Chi 3-1, Delta Sig stopped PKT 3-1, Sigma Pi over TKE 3-1, and Broughton had a 517 series for PKP as they split with KA.

In the double elimination handball tournament, last year's runnerup SAE has reached the finals of the winner's bracket. The defending champion SAM meets PKT Wednesday night for the other spot in the winner's finals. In the dormitory league, defending champion Bragaw South and Berry have remained unbeaten to meet each other to see which one will go into the finals with an unblemished record.

In the fraternity basketball action, Sigma Nu and SAE have each won two games without setback to lead the league. Sigma Nu rolled over Theta Chi 59-29 with Williams and Purcell getting 14 and 13 points respectively. Their second contest was an easy win over PKP 45-15. PKP had previously beaten defending champs Sigma Chi. SAE rallied strongly in the second half to stop SAM 35-30 after leading by only one point at half. In one of the closest contests of the young season, SAE edged KA 45-44 in overtime. Brown, Lytch, and Shotton each scored 14 points in paving the way to victory. Bowers was high man for the game with 16, for KA.

The dormitory league has already experienced its first upset in the very first game of the season as defending champion Watauga fell to Bragaw North 32-30. The early strong showings by Bragaw South and Tucker No. 2 have made them favorites in the dorm action. Bragaw S. stopped Berry 49-32 and trounced Owen No. 1 84-28. Dickie Culler scored 17 points

UNC Rolls With NCAA Probation Punch

United Press International
Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 10 (UPI) — The University of North Carolina rolled with the punch of a one year NCAA probation today and tried to take the punishment like a champion.

But the guilty verdict, probation and barring of the Tar Heel basketball team from the NCAA Tournament and invitational events smarted. Campus reaction was one of disappointment and hurt, but also of relief.

Rumors of NCAA investigation and likely punishment for basketball recruiting infractions had hovered like a cloud over the athletic department here for two long years. Until today, the status was uncertain. Following announcement of the action by the powerful NCAA Council in Pittsburgh, University Chancellor William B. Aycock issued an official statement:

"The University of North Carolina and its basketball program have been penalized by the NCAA for errors in judgment rather than for a deliberate violation of rules.

"We have cooperated fully with the NCAA throughout the long and extensive investigation into our basketball recruiting practices. In fact, it is apparent that the information on which the NCAA Council based its decision was supplied by us.

"The University of North Carolina will take every precaution to insure that its future activities adhere strictly to the rules and regulations of the NCAA."

Head Basketball Coach Frank McGuire was "not available" to reporters prior to tonight's basketball game against Wake Forest. It was understood that McGuire was meeting with his squad and hoped to avoid an adverse psychological reaction because of the NCAA ruling.

The ruling bars the Tar Heels from the NCAA basketball tournament which McGuire's "Miracle" team of 1957 won to claim the National Championship. The Tar Heels, with an 8-2 record thus far, are ranked seventh in the nation this week and two weeks ago won the Dixie Classic Tournament in Raleigh with three straight impressive victories.

The ACC representative for the NCAA Tournament is the winner of the annual ACC Tournament. Should the Tar Heels win the ACC Tourney — and they probably will be favored — the NCAA spot likely would go to the runnerup.

This was the case when North Carolina State's Wolfpack was under recently-ended five-year NCAA probation in all sports because of alleged basketball recruiting violations. N. C. State Teams were barred from all NCAA Championship events and the Wolfpack football team was prevented from an Orange Bowl appearance.

The five-year N. C. State probation arose from the controversial recruiting case involving Louisiana High School star Jackie Moreland who, after the NCAA action, withdrew from N. C. State and later starred at Louisiana Tech.

N. C. State earlier had been on shorter NCAA probation because of previous basketball recruiting "irregularities."

Today's action was the first crackdown on the University of North Carolina's athletic program by the NCAA, although the council's report specified that first complaints were received in February, 1957, the

Atlanta Publisher Urges U. of Georgia Erase 'Ugly' Images

ATLANTA UPI — Atlanta Constitution publisher Ralph McGill said Tuesday night University of Georgia students have "God-sent" opportunity to shatter the image of the "ugly southerners" painted by Communist propagandists.

McGill, long known as a moderate on the race issue suggested, that the students appoint a committee to meet the two Negroes, Hamilton Holmes, and Charlayne Hunter, and escort them to their classes.

"Such an act would electrify the nation—and the world," McGill said. "I would give the lie to Communists and their propaganda against the South."

year of McGuire's undefeated basketball team. The NCAA does not disclose the origin of such complaints.

The recruiting instances cited were believed to have involved a number of players on the Tar Heel squads of the past several years. The infractions involved "excessive" entertainment expenses for the student athletes and their families constituting "fringe benefits." The NCAA also cited "sloppy and inadequate" accounting which made it impossible to verify expenditures of large sums of money on the basketball program.

THE ENGINEERS HAVE HAIRY EARS

Today in this age of technology when engineering graduates are wooed and courted by all of America's great industries, how do you account for the fact that Rimbaud Sigafoos, who finished at the very top of his class at M.I.T., turned down hundreds of attractive job offers to accept employment as a machinery wiper at the Acme Ice Company at a salary of $20 a week with a twelve-hour day, a seven-day week, and only fifteen minutes for lunch?

I know what you are thinking: "Cherchez la femme!" You are thinking that Mr. Acme, head of the Acme Ice Company, has a beautiful daughter with whom Rimbaud is madly in love and he took the job only to be near her.

Friends, you are wrong. It is true that Mr. Acme does have a daughter, a large, torpid lass named Claudia who spends all her waking hours scooping marzipan out of a bucket and staring at a television set which has not worked in some years. Rimbaud has not the slightest interest in Claudia; nor, indeed, does any other man, excepting possibly John Ringling North.

So how come Rimbaud keeps working for the Acme Ice Company? Can it be that they provide him with free Marlboro Cigarettes, and all day long he is able to settle back, make himself comfortable and enjoy the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste?

a large, torpid lass named Claudia

No, friends, no. Rimbaud is not allowed to smoke on the job and when he finishes his long, miserable day he has to buy his own Marlboros, even as you and I, in order to settle back and enjoy that choice tobacco, that smooth, mellow flavor, that incomparable filter, that pack or box.

Well, friends, you might as well give up because you'll never in a million years guess why Rimbaud works for the Acme Ice Company. The reason is simply this: Rimbaud is a seal!

He started as a performing seal in vaudeville. One night on the way to the Ed Sullivan show, he took the wrong subway. All night the poor mammal rode the B.M.T., seeking a helping hand. Finally a kindly brakeman named Ernest Thompson Sigafoos rescued the hapless Rimbaud.

He took Rimbaud home and raised him as his own, and Rimbaud, to show his appreciation, studied hard and got excellent marks and finished a distinguished academic career as valedictorian of M.I.T.

Rimbaud never complained to his kindly foster father, but through all those years of grammar school and high school and college, he darn near died of the heat! A seal, you must remember, is by nature a denizen of the Arctic, so you can imagine how poor Rimbaud must have suffered in subtropical New York and Boston, especially in those tight Ivy League suits.

But today at the Acme Ice Company, Rimbaud has finally found a temperature to his liking. He is very happy and sends greetings to his many friends.
