Edwards Chalks Up 4th Over U.N.C.

Hundreds of proud State students stream onto the field at Kenan Stadium Saturday afternoon after State dropped Carolina 3-0 to claim the goalposts that were at either end of the playing field. (Photo by Hoey)

By Earl Mitchelle

The tool of defeat in the past turned into the instrument of victory for the Wolfpack in Chapel Hill Saturday afternoon. With 9:48 left in the third quarter, reserve guard Jake Shaffer kicked a perfect field goal from the 11 yard line to give the State team a 3-0 win over the University of North Carolina.

The win for the Wolfpack was the fourth win for the State team over the Carolina team in the last five years. This 50th game between the two schools was only the ninth time that the Wolfpack has won the classic battle. Earle Edwards continued his successful domination over the Tar Heels with the fourth victory of his seven games with the Carolina team as head pack coach.

Scoring Drive

A strong Tar Heel defense kept the State team deep in its own territory most of the game. The first time that the Wolfpack moved into Tar Heel territory they scored. Dennis Kröll, a starter at left end, recovered a Ray Farris fumble on the Carolina 33 yard line on the third play of the second half. Jim D'Antonio picked up five yards, Randy Harrell gained three through the center of the line, and Roman Gabriel ripped off tackle for 12 big yards and a first down on the Carolina 13. John Stanton and D'Antonio picked up one yard each and then Gabriel fired a five yard pass to Collice Moore, who moved to an end position for this play.

Gabriel made the important decision to try a field goal instead of trying for the three yards and the first down inside the Carolina five. Shaffer ran onto the field and it was apparent to all the State fans what was going to happen. Gabriel took the snap from center placed it down on the 11 yard line and Jake Shaffer booted the ball straight through the uprights for the game's only score.

Tables Turned

Last year the State team was defeated twice by a field goal margin. In both the Wake Forest and Duke games, field goals in the late minutes of the game costed the Wolfpack victories. But Saturday in Chapel Hill the tables were turned and it was the State team that used the field goal to their own advantage.

A penalty, two intercepted passes, and a fumble stopped the Carolina team inside the State ten yard line four times. Midway in the first period, Carolina recovered a State fumble on the Wolfpack 29 yard line. The Tar Heels picked up a first down in three plays on the State 14. The Tar Heels moved five yards closer before being penalized five yards for illegal procedure. Gib Carson, who ripped the State line for 43 yards in 12 carries, gained four yards around left end. On the next play a Ray Farris pass was intercepted by Jim Fitzgerald and returned to the State 22 yard line.

UNC Drive

In the late minutes of the first period the Carolina team got the ball on their own 49. In 13 plays the Tar Heels moved for a first down on the State four. After two plays that resulted in a yard loss, the Carolina quarterback, Farris, pitched what appeared to be a touch-down to Carson. The play was called back and the Big Blue was penalized five yards for illegal procedure.

State took the ball after two unsuccessful plays on part of Carolina on their own five. Tom Dellinger reeled off nine yards around the right end, and Carolina was penalized 15 yards for a personal foul to give the State team a first down on the State 29. State again fumbled and Carolina recovered on the State 30. The Tar Heels moved to a first down on the 16 in three plays. They picked up six yards to move the ball to the ten yard line. Ward Marslender circled right end for four yards and the all important first down on the six.

Gibson Grabs Ball

Carson picked up four yards putting the ball on the two yard line. Marslender elected to sneak it across. There was a big pile-up and the ball squirted out of Marslender's hands right into the waiting arms of a surprised Claude Gibson, who was standing two or three yards deep in the endzone. Gibson took off up the field and Skip Clement, the only man with a chance to get him, dragged him down on the State 28 yard line. Once again the Wolfpack worked their way out of trouble.

Friday Night Parade Dissolved

By Jim Page

Last Friday night a group of several hundred state students started a march to the Capitol as a precelebration of the State-Carolina game. The demonstration started near the College Union gaining strength as it moved along. At the College

Union several students ran into the street calling for others to join the mass march. In moments hundreds of boys stormed onto Hillsboro Street and started running down toward the center of town.

As this demonstration was not planned, and the students did not have a permit to stage a parade; it was a direct violation of a city law. Upon hearing of the staged demonstration, Bob Cooke, student body president, and several other campus leaders moved around to the head of the demonstrators in an effort to prevent a recurrence of last year's "tear gas Parade".

When the mob of demonstrators got to the gates of the campus, Cooke was able to convince them to halt the demonstration for their own good and for the good of the College's reputation.

Comments From The Editor School Spirit

What is school spirit?

We feel that school spirit is a person's enthusiastic loyalty towards his or her school.

Is there school spirit at North Carolina State? And, if so, is there enough?

We feel that there is school spirit at State, but we do not feel that there is enough. School spirit does not have to come with winning football teams. It can come with losing teams, too.

Why does State not have enough school spirit?

There are many reasons, but it is hard to single out one and only one. It might be said that the NCAA probation did not help school spirit one bit! School spirit at the Carolina game Saturday was the best that it had been in a long time. The Wolfpack has doubled its victory output last season, and we look for school spirit to double for the Homecoming game with Virginia this coming Saturday.

When the cheerleaders ask for a cheer, shout out for the Red and White. You are just as much a part of the game as the players. They need your support. Give it to them, and let's show the Alumni that come back for Homecoming Saturday that there is more school spirit at State than ever.

Carolina Craven

We hope that the News and Observer's Charlie Craven enjoyed the game between Carolina and State Saturday. Mr. Craven stated in his Saturday morning's column, "Byways of the News," that writers should be fair when commenting on sporting contests between rival institutions such as State and Carolina.

He went on to say that if bias did creep in, it might be expected that State should be favored since the students spend much money and GENERALLY add to our betterment as a community.

"At any rate, like lawyers, we have a code of ethics, and they exclude an unfair favoritism," said Craven.

"But to hell with all that. LET'S GO CAROLINA!"

We would like to say that Mr. Craven is a typical Carolina fan . . . never willing to admit defeat. We would also like to say that maybe the Daily Tar Heel could use Mr. Craven as a sports writer. He would fit in well since he would be willing to favor the Tar Heels in every game . . . something Frank would like for every game.

Among the new additions at North Carolina State college is an attractive 300-unit married student housing center which features 120 efficiency, 148 one-bedroom, and 32 two-bedroom apartments.

Already rented are 169 units which include all of the two-bedroom apartments.

The units, valued at $2,200,000, are completed with the exception of 28 one-bedroom units and 60 efficiency units which will be ready for occupancy in the immediate future.

The center cover 25 acres, and 17 buildings are included in the project.

—Location—

Located approximately one-and-a-half miles west of the central State College campus, the well-planned units are bound by Gorman and Henderson Roads and Ligon and Jackson Streets.

The modern apartments are equipped with electric refrigerators and gas ranges. Water also is included in the monthly rent.

In addition, the efficiency units are supplied with a combination couch and bed. All of the three types of apartments are designed with spacious closets, cabinets, and shelves.

The occupants of the units are required to furnish their gas, electricity and telephones.

—Convenience—

For extra convenience, the project is equipped with two self-service laundrettes, each housing 10 washing machines and four dryers. Also available are paved parking areas which offer sufficient room for each family to have one space.

—Rates—

Rental rates for the 300 new apartments are $43.00 per month for the efficiency apartments; $57.50 for the one-bedroom apartments; and $69.00 for the two-bedroom apartments.

The efficiency units offer a living room-bedroom-dining room-kitchen combination and bath while the one-bedroom apartments include a living room-dining room-kitchen combination, bedroom, and bath. The two-bedroom units include a living room, dining room-kitchen area, two bedrooms, and bath.

In addition, each building is equipped with a television antenna which can be utilized by each apartment in the section.

Drum and Bugle Corps Continues Tradition

Among the sights and sounds of the new school year have been those of the State College Drum and Bugle Corps preparing for the first performances of the season. The Corps commander this year is Cadet Captain Eric Smart of Forest City, N. C. The season promises to be one of the most successful in the 33-year history of the Corps, which now has a record membership of more than 80 men.

Members

The members of the Drum and Bugle Corps are Army and Air Force cadets who have shown both a willingness to take part and ability in music and marching. The instrumentation includes snare, tenor, and bass drums, as well as a bugle ensemble.

Well-Known Unit

The Corps marches in most of the parades in Raleigh, such as the Homecoming and Christmas parades. It makes several out-of-town trips each year; in past years it has taken part in the Wilmington, N. C., Azalea

Gavin Advocates Two Party System

By Jim Page

Republican gubernatorial candidate Robert L. Gavin was the guest speaker for the newly formed Young Republican Club's luncheon held last Friday afternoon in the College Union. Gavin, who hails from Sanford, spoke to a group of 65 Y. R. C. members.

The Lee County Republican told the Young Republicans that the state of North Carolina was in desperate need of a two party system in order that it might be raised from the sorrowful slump imposed upon it by the Hodges regimen. Gavin stated that the committees, boards, agencies, and commissions appointed by the governor are controlled at this time by the Democratic party as a result of this many capable Republicans are left out of these responsible positions. Gavin pointed out that he estimated approximately 40% of the people of North Carolina were Republicans and that out of this 40% there were many capable leaders that were being omitted from all Governor appointed positions simply because of their party position regardless of their other qualifications. Gavin emphatically declared that in order to have a strong state government we need a two party system and we must put citizenship ahead of partisan views.

Pub. Relations Committee Meets Tuesday

A wide range of topics will claim the attention of the Public Relations Committee of the North Carolina State College Development Council at a meeting in Holladay Hall at the college Tuesday, October 4, at 4 p.m.

The committee, which advises the college's Development Council on various functions of the institution, is headed by Mose Kiser of Greensboro, general manager of the Guilford Dairy Cooperative.

Other committee members are Charles H. Crutchfield of Charlotte, executive vice president of the Jefferson Standard Broadcasting Company; Elon Borton of Chapel Hill, retired president and general manager of the Advertising Federation of America; John Gordon of Raleigh, Southern advertising director of The Progressive Farmer; and Herbert E. O'Keef of Raleigh, editor of The Raleigh Times.

Working closely with the committee are L. L. Ray, director of development and foundations at State College; and Rudolph Pate, director of the College News Bureau.

In an interview with the Technician Mr. Gavin stated that he wished to urge all students to gain a genuine interest in politics because politics was business and good politics was good business. He also told the Technician that if he were elected that he would see that the most capable men were placed in the governor appointed positions regardless of their party.

Governor Hodges, in support of his party's policies, lashed out at Gavin last Thursday night calling Gavin "Un-North Carolinian." This came after a Monday speech by Gavin at Rocky Mount in which he compared the present Tar Heel government to the governments in Cuba and Hungary. He also stated that the state is run by "grifters, grafters, and bosses." Governor Hodges, who has been the primary target of many Gavin accusations, stated that Gavin was following in the footsteps proposed by Nixon's original political mentor, California Politician Murray Chotiner, who advised Nixon that the first thing to do in a campaign, "is to run down your opponent."

Shaffer's Boot Scuttles Tar Heels

In the late minutes of the fourth quarter, Carolina returned a State punt to their own 49. The Tar Heels moved quickly down the field for three first downs the last of which was at the State ten yard stripe. Again Farris elected to pass and this time the big hand of Roman Gabriel, who rarely if ever plays defense, snagged the ball and the game was over. Gabriel killed the remaining 1:32 with sneaks.
An estimated 41,000 fans sat on the edge of their seats the entire afternoon as the two teams battled up and down the field. Those who came to see the passing of All-American candidate Roman Gabriel were disappointed, but those who came to see State win at any cost were pleased. Gabriel never really got a chance to show off his passing ability because the State team was either on the defensive or were deep in their own territory most of the game.
In the first half Gabe tried only two passes both of which were incomplete. For the entire game he tried only seven, four of which were completed. In the two games that Gabriel has played in this season, he has completed 17 passes for 27 attempts for a 63% completion average.

Bill Kriger, a sophomore quarter back, gave the State fans something to cheer about in the fourth quarter when he picked up 21 yards on an option play. It was the biggest gain of the day from scrimmage for Wolfpack and best scrimmage gain of the season for the State team.
The Tar Heels all but ran the Wolfpack off the field as far as the figures were concerned. The Tar Heels ran up 15 first downs to seven for the Pack. Carolina ran up 266 yards on offense to only 137 for the Wolfpack. The boys from the Hill ran 81 plays from scrimmage to 45 for the State eleven. There were a total of 11 fumbles during the entire game. State made seven bobbles and lost four of them while Carolina fumbled four times and lost two of them.
One bright spot on the statistics chart was the fact that the State team was penalized only one yard. This came at the last of the game when State was penalized for delaying the game.

In the fourth quarter when the Tar Heels were moving close and closer to the State goal line, the three points that the State team had on the score board got smaller and smaller, but when the game was over cause State had beaten Carolina that same three points could and the score didn't make one bit of difference.

Ward Marslender (17) moves for yardage before being stopped by an unidentified State player while Al Taylor (42) and Roger Moore (34) watch. The Carolina player in the action is Skip Clement. Marslender alternated with Farris at quarterback. (Photo by Hoey)

Edwards Says:

"It was the closest ball game I've ever seen."
"I've never seen two teams play around the goalline so much, for such a low scoring game."
"We felt that we are awfully lucky to win, but let me add that we are glad to win. It was some ball game."
"We got hit real hard causing some of those fumbles, but we hit hard too. North Carolina has a real good football team. Again, we are very fortunate to win."
"Carolina had the best position on the field during the first half to keep us bottled up a lot."
"It was a tremendous team effort by our boys. So many of them tried so hard to do their best."

ME Department Offers New Doctorial Degree

The State College Mechanical Engineering Department has 13 students studying for the Ph. D. degree in its first doctoral program, Dean J. H. Lampe of the School of Engineering said today.

The doctoral program, effective this year for the first time, covers specialization in four major areas and is headed by Dr. William T. Snyder, who is directing work in gas dynamics. Studies in heat transfer and thermodynamics is directed by Prof. T. F. Irvine and Prof. J. S. Doolittle directed thermal sciences. Prof. Patrick H. McDonald, head of the Department of Engineering Mechanics, a former member of the mechanical engineering staff, is directing the doctoral work in solid mechanics. Mechanical Engineering is the sixth department in the School of Engineering to conduct graduate work for the Ph. D. degree. Such programs are already active in electrical, civil, chemical, and nuclear engineering.
