State Marching Band Forms College Monogram IFC Rules Probation

The North Carolina State Marching Band displayed its precision drilling skills as it etched a living monogram across the field at last week's State-Carolina game. Lead by Donald B. Adcock, the one-hundred and seventy member band is the largest marching band in the state of North Carolina.

Wolfpack Marching Band Named Dept. Head is Largest in ACC

N. C. State College now has the distinction of having the largest marching band in the state of North Carolina and in the Atlantic Coast Conference Totaling one-hundred and seven ty in membership, this band is also the largest in the history of the school.

Under the leadership of Don Under the leadership of Don-ald B. Adcock, director, and J. Perry Watson, assistant direc-tor, the band this year features nearly thirty trombones, twelve sousaphones and twenty drum-mers. A section of five shining herald trumpets leads the band in all its performances, along with "the world's largest bass drum," a giant drum, seven feet in diameter, which is drawn by three "wolves."

From its founding in the early 1900's, with only twenty or twenty-five members, the or twenty-ne members, the band has grown yearly to its present status. According to Mr. Watson, it was formed as a function of the Reserve Officer

emocracy Without Constitution = Chaos

We witnessed a gathering yesterday which undered our feelings on democracy as it is presently being

At a meeting of the Interfraternity Council a resolution concerning the punishment of a fraternity for rush violations, clearly shown to be inconsistent with the IFC constitution, was passed. (see story page 1)

Although the point raised about the legality of the bill was small and the fairness of the bill was demonstrated by the majority vote which passed it, we do not feel that there can ever be any excuse for the repudiation of a written constitution.

Although the body voted on whether to accept the gality of the bill before it was passed by them, this vote seemed to be unconstitutional itself. We know of no way that an organization can "put aside" its constitution in one instance and expect it to still remain respected in other cases.

We do respect the body, however, for already making plans to revise the constitution; but we feel that a dangerous precedent has been set which may cause more trouble in the future than the minor annoyance of stretching a bothersome case out for a couple of extra weeks would have caused now.

Professor Snarf Debunked

"The Little Man on Campus" cartoon which we have in The Technician twice a week features a character called "Professor Snarf," an instructor who cares nothing for students, delights in giving excess homework, failing students, and generally making college life more difficult for his pupils. Although we have come into contact with some of his disciples on this campus, we would like to say that instructors of his type are very rare and that there are only a few teaching at this school.

Students, because of a mistaken belief that their instructors are "Professor Snarfs," lose many of the benefits most of our professors have to offer. On the whole, faculty members will go out of their way to help students in their classes who are having difficulties. They do not write their office number and office hours on the blackboard at the first meeting of a class just because they feel that it is the proper thing to do. Instructors realize that it is their job to see that students gain a thorough knowledge of their courses and that this can not always be done in the classroom. When a student needs aid, he should show no hesitency in asking his instructor for outside help.

Professors expect the students to come to them with their problems; and, many times, ten or fifteen minutes of personal instruction can be of more use than ten or fifteen hours of instruction in a classroom.

Virginia squad has much more spirit than in previous years.

Cavalier coach Bill Elias has revived some of the lost spirit on the Virginia campus in his first year as coach. He has developed a big line and has some fine running backs on his squad. Tom Griggs, fullback, and Gary Cuozzo, quarterback, have drawn raves from many other ACC coaches.

As for State, no major lineup changes are planned. Carson Bosher, injured in pre-season drills, may be ready to play against Virginia, but Coach Edwards will probably hold him out of play until the following Saturday when the Wolfpack will play Alabama.

Linebacker Sam Raneri, who had not played until last Saturday because of an injury, is expected to be available for full time duty against Virginia.

LUCKY STRIKE presents: home, send him off to college, and right away, look what happens."

"THE FRESHMEN"

SOPHOMORES, JUNIORS, SENIORS: DON'T TREAD ON FRESHMEN! They have been known to become employers. A freshman wants, above all, to be inaugurated into your world. Walk him to class, teach him longhand, explain how the Ph.D. wears his tassel, introduce him to Luckies (and tell him how college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular). You'll be a bigger man, and you'll be able to borrow Luckies from him any time.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!
