NC Colleges Represented

3 State Men Appointed To Governor's Committee

Three State College student leaders have been named by Governor Terry Sanford to the newly-formed Student Committee for a Better North Carolina. In its beginning, the committee consists of representatives from all of the state-owned colleges.

Leading the State College delegation is Norris Tolson, President of the Student Government. John Kanipe, Student Government Secretary, and Bill Jackson, Executive Editor of The Technician, are the other two members. The three men attended the kick-off meeting of the committee in the Senate chambers last Thursday afternoon.

According to Dr. Leo Jenkins, President of East Carolina College and advisor to the group, the committee will be concerned with long-range projects. Of immediate interest and significance, he said, is the 61½ million dollar bond referendum which will be decided upon by the voters of North Carolina on November 7 of this year.

Jenkins added that the college students of North Carolina, through their influence, could well be the deciding factor in the bond campaign. He urged the committee members to support fully the proposed plan, which Gov. Sanford described later in the meeting as "a good, sound program in every detail."

Both Sanford and Jenkins stressed the point that the young people of North Carolina stood to lose the most by the defeat of the proposed bond referendum.

The chairman of the student committee is Bill Harris, President of the Student Government at UNC. Other schools represented at the meeting were Woman's College, East Carolina College, Western Carolina College, Appalachian State Teachers College, Fayetteville State Teachers College, North Carolina College at Durham, North Carolina A&T College, Pembroke State College, Winston-Salem Teachers College, and Elizabeth City State Teachers College.

Student Tickets

Issuing dates for student tickets to the Duke game have been changed to October 16-20. Students will pick up both Wake Forest and Duke tickets the same week, 8:30 A.M. thru 4:30 P.M.

School Of General Studies To Offer Bachelor's Degree

By Jack Watson
The School of General Studies at State College will soon offer a Bachelor of Science degree.

According to Dr. Fred V. Cahill, Jr., Dean of the School of General Studies, the work toward the degree will be based on an "even split in basic science and technology on one hand and the humanities and social sciences on the other."

"We think that this is a highly appropriate step for State College to take," remarked Dean Cahill, "and we believe that it will make a major contribution to the solution of the problems of higher education in the country, because the communication between the areas of liberal studies and technical studies has become rather difficult. The program intends to bridge the gap between these two factions."

The proposal for the degree has passed the Courses and Curricula Committee but yet must clear Chancellor Caldwell and the Consolidated University. When asked as to its chances of being passed, Dean Cahill stated, "I am very hopeful."

The degree itself will require 126 to 130 credits in addition to those received in physical education and ROTC. During the course of study, a student working towards this degree will acquire training in mathematics, chemistry, physics, biology, English, modern languages, the social sciences, and history, and will have the opportunity to continue in one or more of these fields.

Continuing, Dean Cahill stated: "It is a rigorous program that would require high aptitude in both verbal and mathematical skills. It would not be a haven for those students on provisional status or probation in the present degree-granting schools. The program would also appeal to many able students who are unready to make a vocational or professional choice at the time they enter college. A student who did make such a choice could transfer to one of the technical curricula or to a liberal arts school.

"Upon completing the program, a general studies student would be exceptionally well equipped to enter business, industry, or government; should he lack particular skills he would be able to acquire them very quickly. For example, with some additional study he could qualify for an engineering degree. He would be ideally equipped to pursue a course leading to a Master of Business Administration; he would be exceptionally well prepared for law school. With appropriate area programs, graduates of this curriculum would be well equipped for foreign service, both government and private. These are illustrative merely; the graduate of this program would have a broad range of career opportunities in the current world."

In an interesting sidelight, Dean Cahill pointed out the fact that, although the eight departments in the school of General Studies have been used purely

NCS Sets Enrollment Record

State College has established a new registration record.

According to the official fall term figures released by Dean Stewart of the Student Affairs Office, there are 7117 students enrolled at this institution. This represents a 9.3% increase over last fall's number of 6510.

Mr. Stewart supplied a statistical breakdown of the students by classes. There are 1961

Freshmen, 1348 Sophomores, 1095 Juniors, 1339 Seniors, 897 Graduates, and 477 in other Classifications.

According to Mr. Stewart's breakdown, the School of Engineering again holds a rather prominent lead with 3485 students. A distant school is the School of Agriculture, possessing 867 enrollees, followed respectfully by the School of Education—577, Physical Sciences and Applied Mathematics—554, Textiles—448, Forestry—413, Design—351, General Studies—151, Agricultural Institute—212, and Unclassified Graduates—59.

Out of the 6220 undergraduates and 897 graduates there are only 173 women, representing a rather awesome ratio of 40 to 1. This is a decrease in value from last year when there were 186 women to 6329 men for a ratio of 34 to 1.

At the time of the Student's Affairs Office release of the registration figures, there were 3567 students living in dormitories, 299 in the college married student housing, 327 in fraternities, 381 in the homes of parents or relatives, and 2543 in other off-campus facilities.

According to residence classification, there are 5851 students from North Carolina, 966 from

Pack Routs Cavaliers As Offense Clicks

By Benny Pearce

The Wolfpack finally was able to feel the rapture of victory Saturday after defeating Virginia, 21-14.

Virginia, pushovers the week before at the hands of Duke, proved to be no pushovers for the Wolfpack. It was not until the final horn sounded that Pack fans were able to relax.

The Cavaliers drew first blood when guard Bob Rowley kicked a field goal early in the first quarter.

State retaliated in the first quarter also by marching 63 yards in five plays. The touchdown came as a result of a Roman Gabriel to Carson Boshier pass for 37 yards. Boshier caught the ball on the Virginia 24 and bulled his way over two Cavalier defenders for the six-pointer.

Virginia scored again when

Rowley kicked his second field goal with six seconds left in the half. Virginia had recovered a fumble by Bert Wilder to gain possession of the ball. The score was 7-6 at halftime.

The Wolfpack dominated play in the second half, scoring touchdowns in both the third and fourth quarters. Under the direction of Gabriel, State moved for touchdowns of 41 and 83 yards. "Gabe" mixed his potent passing with some well-executed running plays to enable the Pack to move down the field.

Gabriel passed to end Dennis Kroll for the Pack's second touchdown, and Mike Clark plunged into the end zone from two yards out for the last Wolfpack score.

The Cavaliers' last score was the result of a pass from Gary Cuozzo to end Ed Menzer with 2:55 left in the game. Cuozzo passed for a two-pointer to make the score 21-14. State proceeded to run out the clock after this to preserve their victory.

The Wolfpack runners, led by Carson Boshier, gained 223 yards on the ground. Coach Earle Edwards has hopes that this is an indication that the Wolfpack running attack has finally arrived.

Outstanding players for the Wolfpack were Roman Gabriel and Carson Boshier on offense; Sam Raneri and Joe Scarpatti on defense.

Wolfpack right guard Bill Sullivan (number 63) leads State quarterback Roman Gabriel on a jaunt through the Cavalier forward wall in this scene from Saturday's action in Charlottesville. The Pack came through with a 21-14 victory.

State Supported Colleges

Many of our nation's great men have arisen from obscure beginnings in a middle class home, and no little number of them owed much of their rise to education in a state-supported college. State-supported institutions of higher learning fill one of the most important roles in America because they offer outstanding educations at an almost nominal price. A person who wants an education but cannot afford to attend a private school can acquire in state schools fine training.

In this state, we are faced with a very difficult problem. A vast and unprecedented build-up of the public school system which requires a tremendous amount of money is taking place. People are reading about the build-up in education and feel that a sufficient action is being taken; and, therefore, do not want to add to the tremendous costs. They do not realize that all of the publicised build-up is taking place in public schools, not the institutions of higher learning.

The November 7 bond referendum is designed to keep the state colleges and the Consolidated University on a par with our improved public school system. Our state will gain little if it improves the educational system on the lower level and neglects to improve it at its top. We would have better and more high school graduates, but if our colleges are not good enough to attract the better graduates we will lose them to other states.

Recently, Governor Terry Sanford set up an organization, Students Committee for a better North Carolina, which consists of two students from each of the eight state-supported schools. This committee can have a great effect on the outcome of this election. They cannot do it by themselves, however. They must have the unqualified support of their student bodies if anything is to be accomplished.

This amalgamation of students of our state-supported schools is a valuable device. Around twenty-five thousand students attend the various state-supported colleges throughout North Carolina and these students can exert a powerful influence on the outcome of the vote. We would venture to say that a powerful campaign by the students can mean more to the passing of the bond issue than any other factor.

Student leaders and the administration have been working on a campaign all year, and it is just beginning to come into full swing; but these student leaders cannot do everything. Individual students will have to inform their parents and any other interested persons on our needs and urge them to vote favorably November 7.

Our higher-level educational system has meant more to this state than almost anything else. If it is allowed to remain unchanged, we will lose most of benefits; but if it receives the support of the state in votes similar to the forthcoming one, it will continue evolving and provide an increasingly greater service to North Carolina.

"I MAKE IT A POINT TO TAKE AT LEAST ONE COURSE FROM PROF SNARF - MAKES ME APPRECIATE TH' REST OF TH' FACULTY."

By Dale Thompson
This is a man's campus. And it is obvious! A perfect example of this is in the correspondence that coeds often get from the school.
My parents have recently discovered that their daughter Dale does not attend State, but that their son Dale does. This, needless to say, interested them greatly. And, since I was sort of indirectly concerned, I was also intrigued with the matter. I was not, however, so startled as my parents, for I had received mail from the administration all the summer before entrance addressed to Mr. Dale Thompson. Not only did I receive all my mail this way, but I also was urged to pledge a fraternity, to take Air instead of Army ROTC, and to be proud to be a State College man. It's not that I have anything against fraternities, or ROTC, or State College men, it's just that I think that perhaps I'm not eligible for these classifications.

American Girl Receives Lesson In Geography

The narrow outlook and unreasonable and unintelligent attitude of many Americans toward other parts of the world was recently demonstrated in a conversation which one of our foreign students had with an American girl.

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, we are happy to inform you that your son Dale is doing well at State College. His grades are as follows: . . ." the letter began. My mother slowly laid the letter on the car seat, turned a livid purple from suppressed laughter, and faced me. "How do you do, my dear son, I'm so glad to meet you. In fact, you don't know just how glad—you see, no one told me about this development in our family." This came as quite a shock to me, for I didn't think that Mother had lied. When I questioned her about this, she replied in a rather choked voice that she was very pleased to have a son, but that it might come as somewhat of a shock to my father, who was under the same impression that she and I had been—that I was an only child.

Noticing his accent, the girl asked where he came from. This student who is known for his humor told her that he was originally from Iran. She then asked him where that was and he told her that it was a little town in upstate New York. This answer did not faze her in the least and she remarked that she had always been poor in American geography.

Now, if this were an isolated case it wouldn't be so bad. With a name like Dale, I can understand it. After all, I get many advertisements intended for the boys—Esquire specials, car ads, etc. But Mr. Catherin Borteous is ridiculous! The cause of this error lies in the fact that there are no mimeographed forms for our grades, etc. This we don't blame Holladay Hall for, for there are not enough of us yet to warrant that. But if there are that few of us, then someone could write in "her" when our names are typed. This happened to my roommate when

As a note of terminal interest from Dean Stewart's office, there seems to be a preponderance of Baptists at N. C. State—2261 as opposed to 1785 Methodists, 876 Presbyterians, 351 Catholics, 320 Episcopalians, 168 members of the United Church of Christ, 141 Disciples, 91 Jewish, 55 Moravians, 224 of other denominations, and 579 who gave no religious preference.

The statistics from the Student Affairs Office show that marriage is a rather popular institution within this institution. There is one married student out of every 4.85 at State College. We have 1420 married students, 759 of which have a total of

This is not only impolite, it is very insulting and makes us insecure because we feel very unwelcome. After all, how would you guys feel if all the mail that the school sent you were addressed to "Miss"? And all that to your parents referred to you as "her" and "she"? Wouldn't you resent it?
