"The Cruel Sea"

CU To Begin New Series, Fine Arts Film Festival

By George Wallace

In addition to the weekend film series, the College Union has instituted a new program under the heading of Film Festival. It is the endeavour of this new series to present films of excellent quality and of great import in the emergence of the film as a medium of communication. The films which have been selected are classical in their own right and will be presented on one Wednesday night per month, as well as on occasional weekends.

ed his own command by the Admiralty, bonds of loyalty formed by common sweat and strain on board the Rose take control to influence them to accept another ship together.

This greatest of naval war films to come out of the second World War contains little glory, much heroism, and much heartbreak, for it is the true story of men suffering under threat of imminent death and of their struggle for survival.

This addendum to the rising excellence of the C.U. program will realize its birth on Wednesday night, the 20th of September, with the showing of "The Cruel Sea", starring Jack Hawkins, Donald Sinden, and Virginia McKenna. This is a dramatization of the best selling novel of the same title from the pen of Nicholas Monsarrat.

The film, a clean cut unadulterated rendition of the novel, begins with the commissioning of the ship Compass Rose, the first of the new Corvette class, shortly before the outbreak of World War II. Soon after the start of the war, the Compass Rose is claimed by the cruel sea, a sea which, through the terror of war, is made more cruel by man and his insidious machines. The Captain and his First Officer are among the survivors, and though each is offer-

Mutual Company Offers Insurance For State Students

By Grant Blair

Students who are not already protected by health insurance may be insured against sickness and accident through a plan provided for State College students by the Educators Mutual Life Insurance Company.

This insurance plan is designed to supplement the medical service provided by the State College Student Health Service. It is designed to give 24-hour, full-semester coverage to the student, and also to his wife and family, if he has one.

The policy provides benefits up to $1,000 for each accident. The accident may occur anywhere, as long as the policy has not expired, and as long as the student is not participating in intercollegiate football. However, injury to teeth is limited to a $250 benefit.

Reimbursements for accidental death or dismemberment are as follows:

Loss of:	Amount
Life	$1,000
Both hands, both feet	$1,000
sight of eyes, or combination	$1,000
One hand, one foot, one eye	$ 500
Thumb or fingers	$ 250

Reimbursement is also provided for hospital room and board, hospital charges, and physicians' fees up to $250. Surgical expenses are limited to $300. Maternity benefits are also provided for student's wives.

The cost of this policy is $12 for a single student, $25 for a married student, and $40 for the student, spouse, and children. Second semester students may enroll for $5, $15, and $24 respectively. The policy becomes effective September 1, 1961 and expires September 1, 1962. Applications cannot be accepted after October 15, 1961.

urged State College faculty members to support the November 7 State-wide bond referendum for capital improvements.

The $61,665,000 bond issue includes $4,741,000 for capital improvements at State College.

Chancellor Caldwell addressed faculty members Monday night, September 11, at their first meeting of the 1961-62 academic year.

In explaining State College's need for money, Dr. Caldwell said that the expansion of State College has just begun from the standpoint of enrollment alone. The college will not feel the big push until 1964, although the college is bulging now.

In expressing his appreciation of recent State legislation, Dr. Caldwell said, "Our 'A' budget came through in predictable fashion to take care of the normal course of development, such as increase in enrollment, new buildings, non-academic salaries, etc.

"The achievement in the 'B' budget which includes academic salary increases was in a sense remarkable, for at no time during the entire budgetary process, including legislative hearings and action, was the figure submitted by President Friday (of the Consolidated University of North Carolina) reduced," he said.

Along with either college activities and programs, Dr. Caldwell commented on the proposed State College Faculty Recreation Center which will be made possible by gifts totaling $500,000 from the Z.

Smith Reynolds Foundation.

He strongly urged faculty members to join in this enterprise with enthusiasm, explaining that this will be the real way to say "thank you" to the Reynolds Foundation.

"It is your club that you will be joining, not mine, though I will be a member, and you will control its progress. Let's have no hold-outs now," he continued.

Dr. Caldwell concluded his initial fall semester talk to the faculty with a personal touch. He said, "I note that September 1 began my third year as a part of this scintillating academic community. My children are in school with yours, and we are all in the school of life together. It is good to be at North Carolina State College."

Campus Crier

THE ALPHA ZETA BOOK EXCHANGE will be open the entire first week of classes, September 18-22, in the cloak room of the College Union from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. each day.

Alpha Zeta serves the students, through the Book Exchange, in two ways: first, it allows them to buy and sell books reasonably; and second, the commissions received are awarded as scholarships. The commission is 10¢ for books to $3.99, and 5% for books over $4.00.

A general meeting will be held at 7:00 p.m. on Monday, September 18, in the CU ballroom for all persons interested in joining a College Union Com-

Now Is The Time To Begin

Many of us students returned to campus to find ourselves without a place to stay. While State is blessed with relatively modern facilities and some of the better buildings in the state educational system, we still find ourselves faced on every side with deficiencies in housing, laboratory space, and numerous other places. We are fortunate in what we do have, but there is still a much greater need for campus improvement.

Chancellor Caldwell set a good prescient for all State students, faculty members, administrators, and supporters for the next month and a half when he spoke before the first faculty meeting and urged all members to support the forthcoming bond election which includes clauses for improvements to our college.

Although this bond election will not be held until November 7, now is the time to begin making plans for a campaign to aid the passing of the bill.

Two years ago, State students were instrumental in helping a similar bond issue to pass. By banding ourselves into a large pressure group, and by publicizing our deficiencies, we showed the voters of North Carolina how badly we needed and deserved the improvements.

We should follow the same lines this year and begin immediately to formulate ways in which we can aid the passing of the November 7, bond issue.

We Still Need Help

Upperclassmen will recognize these words, for they have read the same plea in The Technician year after year.

As always, we need staff members. We have a total of eight people to write and to make-up sixteen pages a week. We are doing our best, but it is impossible to have a very good paper with so few staff members.

Working with the Technician, we think, is one of the most interesting extra-curricular activities that a student can participate in. It is always interesting to see what is happening on campus, and working with this newspaper can give you more insight into the workings of the school than almost anything else.

Almost all the members of the staff will be graduating after this year, so there is a grave need for more people to become interested in The Technician. Anyone who begins working with the paper this year will find himself in one of the more important and interesting jobs next year.

Anyone who likes to write or feels that he would enjoy joining the staff of The Technician, please come by our offices in the 1911 Building on Sunday, Tuesday, or Wednesday night.

This was before Barricade.

Some State College students felt that the network of sidewalks surrounding the new Bragaw Dormitory, showplace of the west campus, was not enough. The imprint of dozens of inconsiderate footsteps is easily visible. The men who feel capable of handling the engineering, managing, and other top level work in the nation's complex industrial framework are evidently too immature to keep their two left feet off the greenery.

Good grief!

Regulations For Operation Of Out-Of-State Automobiles

The following regulations concerning the operation of automobiles for out-of-state students were recently released to The Technician.

1. Students attending North Carolina colleges who have their private passenger vehicles properly licensed in their state of residence and who do not become gainfully employed in North Carolina or establish a residence in North Carolina may operate their vehicles with their home state license plates. This applies whether the student is single, living in the dormitories or married and living in an apartment with his wife.
2. A non-resident student, if at least 16 years of age, having in his immediate possession a valid operator's license issued to him in his home state or country, may operate a motor vehicle in this State only as an operator. His home state driver's license would be sufficient for driving his out-of-state car. The same would apply to temporarily driving an automobile registered in North Carolina.
3. The fact that a student's wife is working in Raleigh does not affect the student's position in respect to license requirements if he is owner of the car. However, if the automobile is owned by his wife, the fact that her husband is a student would not exempt her from North Carolina registration requirements while she is residing and working in North Carolina. A student's wife working in Raleigh would not affect the student's position in respect to driver's license.
4. As long as the student remains a non-resident, he may drive a car, registered in North Carolina, with his home state driver's license. This would also apply if he owned a car registered in North Carolina or his home state. If the car is registered in his home state and the driver's license issued in another, he would either have to obtain North Carolina's driver license or secure one from his home state.
5. The above exemption from registration for out-of-state students does not extend to members of the faculty who are gainfully employed in North Carolina.
6. Out-of-state students who may have other questions concerning operation of out-of-state or in-state motor vehicles should communicate with the following:
  - a. Registration matters — Miss Foy Ingram, Director of Department of Motor Vehicles Registration Division
  - b. Matters concerning drivers licenses—Mr. E. R. Peele, Director of the Drivers License Division of The Department of Motor Vehicles.

Thoughts At Random

By Mike Lea

Many times one is aware of a certain tendency for people who work for the state or federal governments to sort of "drag their feet" in their jobs, but the other day I was extremely gratified to see a state employee go out of her way to pay strict adherence to the rules of her job.

I walked over to the College Union about 7:00 p.m. the other night to cash a check because I had given out of money and had not eaten since breakfast. Everyone knows that cashing checks is one of the many services that the College Union provides the students.

After writing a check at the main desk and talking to a friend who is a committee chairman at the Union, I gave it, along with identification, to the student who was working at the desk. After handing him the check, I was informed that I needed my State College Identification card.

Since I had registered only that day, I had not bothered to cut it out yet and it was sitting with the other literature that I had gotten during registration in my room. I then gave him my registration card from last semester, thinking that it would be sufficient. It wasn't. He told me that he had received orders not to cash any checks without the I. D. Card. Thinking that this was reasonable, but knowing that I was rapidly starving to death; I went up to the main office and asked a College Union officer to certify that I was a State student. The officer went down to the desk with me and told the lady in charge that he knew I was a student, and that my check would be all right. She, however, did not seem to think that this was a good enough endorsement; and still did not want to cash the check. Then another officer came up to the desk and I talked to him a while. This was still not enough, however. Since the two officers and I are all on the Board of Directors of the College Union, I can only say that this was one of the most striking examples of courageous adherence to regulations in the face of pressure (or maybe I'm priding myself and the CU leaders who were elected by the students to head the organization).

Since I had to get some money that night to eat on, I trudged the half mile back to my room to get my I. D. card and the half mile back. Since it was sort of chilly, and I was terribly hungry, I can say it was one of the most miserable journeys of my life. As I trudged down the road, getting hungrier and colder by the minute, I started thinking of ways in which such a strong dedication to regulations should be rewarded, but could think of nothing appropriate. I'm sure, however, that a certain Eighteenth Century Count could have given me some very good ideas on the subject.

One Way Streets

I saw that M & O is taking advantage of the new flock of one way streets. At college off hours, when the parking spaces on both sides of the streets are not filled, you can get two cars abreast. It was sort of funny to witness a pick-up and a bigger truck in an event that looked surprisingly like a drag race.

Hear And Their

To avoid misunderstanding, we would like to state our policies on editorials and letters to the editor.

All unsigned editorials are written by the editor, and he takes full responsibility for anything he says. Any editorials written by anyone else will be signed with the writer's initials.

We will print any letter to the editor that is signed by the writer. If anyone prefers to withhold his name for any reason, he can request for us to do so. Any unsigned letters or letters which are slanderous or libelous will not be printed.

We would like to state another facet of the Technician. Since both we and the College Print shop make up the paper with very tight schedules, readers will probably notice more errors in our publication than in many other newspapers. We apologize in advance, but it is just one of the weaknesses inherent in the system that we must use.

An example of this is the fact that we do know the difference between "their" and "there", but anyone reading the first issue would not think so.

Wolflets Open With Carolina

Although the Wolflets have been practicing only a week, they are already giving Coach Johnny Clements reason to have an optimistic outlook towards the coming season. Coach Clements would readily admit that this year's squad will have a tough time repeating the fine performances of last year's undefeated squad.

Homegrown Talent
The 1961 Frosh squad is loaded with North Carolina boys. Out of the 40 which reported to the opening practice, 27 are from North Carolina. During the investigation of the basketball scandal last spring, many persons had the theory that North Carolina athletes could not provide our athletic teams with good performers. If the 1961 Frosh squad is any indication in numbers, then the future stars of the Wolfpack should come primarily from North Carolina athletes. Of the other 13 freshman candidates, five are from Virginia, five from Pennsylvania and one each from Tennessee, Delaware and New Jersey.

Big-Four Champions
Last year's Frosh squad handily beat the frosh teams of Wake Forest, Duke and Carolina. They completely humiliated the Duke freshman 62-28 conquered the Deacon frosh 34-8 and were two touchdown victors over the Tar Babies 28-14. It is a cinch that the freshman coaches at these three schools will have their charges in high spirits when they meet the Wolflets this year.

Follow In Brothers' Footsteps
The roster of the 1961 Wolflets has included Louis DeAngelis, 5-9, 185-pound guard from Pennsylvania. DeAngelis is a brother of former Pack star Dick DeAngelis. Also included on the squad is Horace Moore, a 5-11, 195-pound halfback from Littleton. Moore is a brother of Roger Moore, a present candidate for the starting position of fullback on the Wolfpack Varsity.

Men To Watch
Others to watch besides DeAngelis and Moore are: tackle Steve Parker of Durham; Ray Barlow of Crewe, Va.; John Irvin of Nashville, Tenn.; Dan Golden of Hazelton, Pa.; Jimmy Deaton of Mooresville; Don Hamilton of Charlotte; Bennett Williams of Ahoskie and Will Mann of Durham.

Lacks Size
This team doesn't have quite the size that last year's team did," says Coach Clements, "and we may not have as good a season; but there are some fine individual prospects in camp who should develop along the way and prove to be fine Wolfpack players of the future."

The Freshmen will have the following schedule:

- Sept. 29, North Carolina, 8:00 p.m., Raleigh
- Oct. 13, South Carolina, 3:00 p.m., Columbia, S. C.
- Oct. 20, Wake Forest, 3:00 p.m., Winston-Salem
- Oct. 27, Duke, 3:30 p.m., Durham
- Nov. 4, Virginia, 8:00 p.m., Raleigh.

Bosher Receives Injury; Wyoming Wins Opener

Wolfpack followers received jolting news Saturday after the Pack gridders completed a live scrimmage. It was learned that ace sophomore halfback, Carson Bosher may miss Saturday's scheduled opener with the Cowboys of Wyoming. Bosher sustained an injury during the workout Saturday. Sam Raneri, expecting to serve as a linebacker on the Wolfpack team, was already not expected to play due to a knee injury sustained during the summer. The knee had to be operated on and has not healed sufficiently to permit Raneri to return to action.

Coach Johnny Clements To Lead Frosh Gridders

By Benny Pearce
Sports Editor

John Clements is beginning his third year as Frosh football coach. He coached the Wolflets in 1958 and last year he guided the Frosh to their first undefeated season in thirty years. He joined the Wolfpack staff in 1957.

Coach Clements, a Crewe, Virginia, native, did his football playing for arch-rival, Carolina. Clements was a star wingback at the University from 1946 to 1949. He received his BA degree in physical education in 1950 and was awarded his Master of Education degree the following year. After graduation he coached football and baseball at Whiteville High School for a year. He then joined the coaching staff at William and Mary. He resigned this position in 1953 to become district representative for the U. S. Rubber Co.

While the Wolfpack was going through its Saturday workout, the Cowboys of Wyoming were completely dominating the Montana State team in their season opener, 29-0. This also was sad news for the Wolfpack since Wyoming will have already played a game and will be ready for the Pack when they take the field at Laramie next Saturday.

Dean Talley Issues Statement

Banks Talley, Director of Student Activities at North Carolina State College explained the college's policy toward the establishing of contracts by students in a statement to The Technician:

"Students who participate in contract negotiations on behalf of the student body and the college assume a great responsibility to negotiate such contracts to the best advantage of those they represented. In order to do so it is important to avoid all commitments, implied and actual which might conceivably effect such negotiations. It is also important to avoid the appearance of placing one's self under obligations to anyone with whom contracts may be negotiated.

"Because acceptable standards are often difficult to define, particularly for those who have not before been involved in contract negotiations, the following standards are set forth for your guidance, and it is expected that all students concerned with contract negotiations will conduct themselves in accordance with them:

1. All bids must be made in writing and must be opened at a specified time after due notification has been made to all interested in presenting a bid.
2. No gifts, payments, dinners, trips or any other remuneration can be accepted which is not explicitly stated in the bid and subsequent contract.
3. Contracts between those negotiating contracts and potential suppliers of goods or services shall be limited to formally arranged presentations of bids and information. Specific information should be requested alike from all companies, preferably in writing.

4. Any improper offers made by a potential supplier of goods or services should be reported to the Office of Student Activities."
