State Plans Big Weekend

There will be plenty of floats for Homecoming this year, but the floats will stay put.

Because the Homecoming game has been scheduled too early there will not be a parade. The fraternities will try to make up for it, however, with decorations at each individual house.

Rather than decorate the moveable floats, thirteen fraternities will be busy this week preparing their various houses for the homecoming displays. Thirty and Three is sponsoring a contest to see who makes the best display. Judges will visit the different displays between 8 and 10 a.m. Saturday morning. First, second, and third place trophies will be awarded to the winners during the halftime ceremonies.

The entries will be judged on the basis of originality, correlation with the homecoming theme, overall appearance, and amount of effort required. One to ten points will be awarded in each of the categories, and the largest total will name the three winners. The trophies will be furnished by Norman's Men's Shop. Two judges will be furnished by the Raleigh Merchant's Association; the third will represent Saint Mary's.

The entering fraternities are Farm House, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Kappa Tau, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Nu, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Tau Kappa Epsilon, and Theta Chi.

Other halftime ceremonies include performances by the North Carolina State College Marching Band and the Marching Cadets from the North Carolina State ROTC Units. Highlight of the halftime festivities will be the presentation of the 1961 Homecoming Queen.

The Alumni also have planned several activities for the weekend. The Wake County Chapter of North Carolina State Alumni will hold a luncheon in the college cafeteria immediately after the ball game. Ralph H. Scott, President of Alumni and North Carolina State Senator, and Roy Park, from Ithaca, N. Y., Chairman of the Board and Manager of Duncan Hines Institute, will speak to the State alumni.

The activities will continue Saturday afternoon and Saturday night. The new general studies building, Harrelson Hall, will be open to the public. The open house will be held Saturday afternoon. Night time activities include the Homecoming dance at the College Union Ballroom. Leroy Gordon and his band will play, and the Homecoming Queen will be crowned. The dance will last from 8:00 until 12:00 and refreshments will be served during the evening. Large "mum corsages" may be obtained from Monogram Club Members and Joe Bushofsky in 211-A Bragaw.

Forestry Club

The Forestry Club will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in 159 Kilgore Hall.

Homecoming Queen To Be Named Saturday

Miss Wolfpack of 1961 will be named this Saturday. N. B. Watts, Director of Student Housing, and one other judge who is yet to be named.

One of the ten lovely finalists in the annual Homecoming Queen Contest will be chosen to be State College's official hostess in ceremonies immediately before the gridiron clash between the Wolfpack and the Gamecocks of the University of South Carolina. The finalists were chosen late last night by the secret ballots of members of Blue Key, the sponsors of the Homecoming Queen program.

Three judges will interview the entries in the North Parlor of the State YMCA Saturday morning at 8 a.m., according to John Kanipe, Vice-President of Blue Key and Chairman of the Homecoming Queen event. The big decision will be made by Tom Covington, Assistant Director of Student Activities and chairman of the committee,

The winner of the event will be announced during the halftime activities at the Homecoming Football Game, which begins Saturday morning at 10:15. The new Miss Wolfpack will be crowned by Miss Wolfpack of 1960, Amy Lu Bell Hatley. Mrs. Hatley, who was married during her reign, is still a student at Meredith College, Kanipe said.

"We have ten most charming entries," stated Chairman Kanipe. "I am sure that the judges will have an arduous task in selecting Miss Wolfpack of 1961."

The new Homecoming Queen, who will have been chosen from twenty-two original entries, will later be presented at the Monogram Club dance to be held in the College Union Saturday evening.

College To Host Model U. N.

Over 600 college students from five states will descend on State College in February.

Students from Virginia, South Carolina, Kentucky, West Virginia, and North Carolina colleges and universities will be here from February 14 to 17, 1962, to participate in the United Nations Model Assembly, the largest of its kind east of the Mississippi. These students will come from over 80 schools and will represent many different races and nationalities. According to Dora Ann Clark, Secretary-General, approximately 600 students are expected to be present this year.

The Model Assembly will consist primarily of a mock General Assembly. The five committees of the U. N.—Legal, Social, Economic, Political, and Ad Hoc—will also be represented. Each of the participating schools will send five delegates representing some particular country.

The Model Assembly will discuss many of the topics now being debated by the United Nations. Among these expected are Red China admission, the Berlin issue, world disarmament, and the Secretary-Generalship of Three.

The highlight of the occasion will be an address by Dr. Frank Graham, past President of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and a former U. S. Senator. He now serves as Mediator for the United Nations.

Dieter Mahncke, from the University of N. C., heads the group as president this year. Eddie Elkins and Dora Ann Clark, both from N. C. State, serve as Regional Director and Secretary-General respectively.

The Model Assembly is sponsored by the Adult Association for the United Nations, the College Union, and the Collegiate Council for the United Nations.

Pack To Meet Gamecocks In Final Home Game

By Benny Pearce
Saturday will be a big day in ACC football when it will have a "battle between the unpredictable". This battle will feature our own Wolfpack and the Gamecocks of South Carolina. South Carolina has been unpredictable in that it has stunned Clemson 21-14 and mowed down mighty Maryland 20-10. These two victories are somewhat offset when you consider the Gamecocks' loss to lowly Virginia, 28-21.

The Wolfpack has been unpredictable in that it has been unable to win any of the "big" games and live up to its preseason expectations.

South Carolina is led by six foot, 180 lb., senior quarterback, Jim Costen. Gamecock coach Marvin Bass had this to say about Costen after Spring drills, "Costen can do more things than Gabriel. He is an excellent passer, runner and defensive player." Although not in the class with Gabriel, Costen is proving a valuable member to the Gamecock squad.

Letter from Editor-R.O.T.C.

The running argument about R.O.T.C. in our "Letter to the Editor" section points out the high feelings on compulsory training. We have heard teeth gnashed in opposition to and heartstrings plucked in defense of military training. Now we will add our word.

We feel that military training in colleges fills a great need of our country. Traditionally, the United States has relied on a small standing army and a large ready reserve that can be rapidly mobilized in time of war, and a large part of the leaders of our reserve forces are R.O.T.C. trained officers.

We also feel that R.O.T.C. programs on this campus could be greatly improved. This is evidenced by the many comments we have received recently against military training and by the high dropout incidence of students after two years. Considering the advantages offered to commissioned officers, it is almost foolish for anyone to drop out of R.O.T.C. after spending two years in it, but many students do. If the course were offered differently, we know that there would not be so many students leaving the courses after two years.

The letters to the editor we have received suggest that the Student Government should make a complete study of the question. This is one instance in which this body would be listened to with more respect than is usually the case—for it is an issue directly associated with student welfare.

Public opinion should never be overlooked.

Number of Voters, Proportional To Quality of Platforms

Every year at about this time, we hear pleas for all freshmen to vote in the elections and later we hear moans because more people did not vote.

It is out of character, but we will not blast the freshmen for having no "civic responsibility, etc." because only fifty per cent voted. In fact, we are surprised that this great a percentage, having nothing but posters to guide their vote by, made the effort to cast a ballot. We will anticipate the question, "What else is there to go by this early in the year" by another question. What about the spring elections?

There is much that is needed on this campus, but to hear campaign promises in the spring, one would never believe it. All the students hear are vagaries and promises to support the status quo. There are many facets of campus welfare that need support, but it is evident that the status quo is not one of them.

In 1957, there was a campaign between three candidates for Student Government president. All of the men were supporting positive platforms offering new ideas. Over sixty per cent of the student body voted.

Last spring approximately thirty per cent voted, and we would predict that a greater number will vote this year if similar campaigns are held.

Statistics speak louder than words. The fault does not lie with the voters, but with the candidates themselves.

"I'LL CARRY THE BASKET— YOU'LL RAKE"

I.B.M. No. 907302
Watkins, Gerald J.

Last week we quoted a few statements from the new book Say Uncle. Several people have told us that they enjoyed the quotes. Therefore, we want to quote just two more episodes which go to support the subtitle A Completely Unealed for History of the U. S.

A Charming Tale, if True
"At this time a rather charming episode occurred between Captain John Smith and a dusky Indian maiden named Pocahontas. In love with Pocahontas, a bashful friend of Captain Smith's begged Smith to ask Pocahontas if she would marry him (the friend). When Captain Smith did so, Pocahontas blushed prettily and said, "Speak for yourself, John." John did, and this was how he lost a friend but gained a squaw.

This romantic interlude is so famous in American history that, to this day, when loving couples register at a hotel, the gentleman signs them in as "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith." It is one of America's most honored traditions.

With regard to the Civil War . . .

"The moment Lincoln was elected the Southern states knew that they were in trouble. Lincoln could not wait and had no experience with Gracious Living or any of the things people did who didn't have warts on their face."

We might mention the fact that this book is on sale at the Student's Supply Store. (God forgive us for giving the SSS any business.)

APO Pledges Help Blind

The Alpha Phi Omega pledge class will build a nature board for the scout troop at the State School for the Blind as part of its pledge training.

The board will consist of bark and foliage samples mounted on a plywood board, according to Joe Ridgill of APO. "It will be helpful in bringing nature to boys who cannot get out in the woods often." Ridgill stated.

Alpha Phi Omega has been closely associated with this scout troop; several years ago the fraternity made a knot board similar to the nature board, and this year three of the pledges are serving as assistant scoutmasters.

State Room Rent Facing Inflation?

State College housing officials are facing the problem of increased housing costs.

President Friday was recently quoted to the effect that a rise in room rent for all State supported institutions may be considered in the near future.

According to James J. Stewart, Dean of Student Affairs, the State College faculty is presently, "considering different ways and means to provide the funds needed for additional dormitory space for students.— We are going to have to find some way to provide space for students who deserve to have a college education."

Crit
"Some guys live on Freshman money. Hey, that's a cool slogan. I'm gonna vote for that guy. How about you, Webb?"
"Well, I dunno. I think I'm only gonna vote for two of the candidates. They're these sharp guys I know."
"Sure, but you gotta make up your mind on the rest of them by the posters they put up."
Ray chirped up from the corner of the room. Y'know, he's the beatnik sorta guy. I room with. "I don't think so. You know what? I think this whole bit of Freshman elections is a farce."
"A what?"
"Well, its like this, see—the whole thing is a popularity contest where no one really knows anybody else."
"Hell, y'gotta realize this is a big place."
"So what? So you vote for the guy with the most posters up? or maybe for somebody because they're a good guy?"
"Hell, no. You vote for the guy who shows the most originality in his campaign."
"Originality. That means who can put up the most posters with the biggest names on them or hand out cards with the sexiest girls pictures on them."
"Ah, you know what I mean."
"Sure I know what you mean. You and some two thousand others who wouldn't have the sense to know a real leader with good ideas."
"Oh, really? And who do you think are the real leaders?"
"Well, there was one guy that came up with some real good ideas in last Thursday's Technician. He won't get elected, though. He doesn't have enough big posters up with his name in big letters on them."
"Go to Hell."

"Well, Jim slammed the door going out, and another piece of the broken glass in our transom fell out. "Damit Ray, you didn't have to be such a fool."

"You, too, huh? People like that make me sick. They come up here and put a slide rule on their belts, and that really makes them something."

"You've got room to talk, what with being in Design and dressing like a hobo and all."

"At least I've got more sense than to decide something really important on something superficial like a bunch of damn posters. Hell, Webb, do you realize that only one—get that—one candidate really stood up and said something? And he won't get elected and I'll tell you why—people like your friend Jim won't vote for anybody unless he has BIG posters up or some great sex gag."

I was sorta depressed all that day, and Ray didn't help it any; finally it started raining outside and I got sorta sick with it all and stayed in my room and studied, and didn't vote.

Neither did half the rest of my class.

Airmen Aid Orphans

It has been announced that the fall pledge class of the George V. Hollman squadron of the Arnold Air Society has taken as a project the responsibility of taking twenty-five orphans from the Methodist Orphanage to the Homecoming Game.

The pledges have secured a block of seats for the game. The children will be escorted to the game by the pledges in uniform.

Letter to Editor
Freshman Candidate

To the Freshmen:

I do not wish to bore you with a long drawn out platform and an extensive list of qualifications as Freshmen have done in previous years. I only wish to give you a brief, but concise, outline of my platform and qualifications.

I feel that N. C. State is lacking, through no fault of the Freshmen, in the following ways: (1) not enough academic achievement, (2) not enough Freshmen social activities, (3) a poor student-to-student relationship, and (4) not enough school spirit.

The Freshmen Vice-President works with and forms many committees during the year. In the past I have served on various committees and have had a very active social life. I strongly feel that I can successfully fulfill the goals of my platform through the formation of committees to solve the above mentioned problems.

I sincerely appreciate the support given to me in the preliminary elections.

Profile . . .
Roger Wagner

Roger Wagner will lead his chorale group here at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Coliseum as the second attraction of the "Friends of the College."

Music lovers from all over the world know the name Roger Wagner. Wagner is the son of a French organist. The Wagners moved to the United States when Roger was only seven years old. The elder Wagner became organist at St. Brendan's Church in Los Angeles.

Roger showed his interest in music at an early age. When he was only twelve years old, he became organist and choral director at St. Ambrose Church. Later he returned to France to study music. He did research in church music later in his college career.
In 1937 Wagner returned to

Los Angeles, where his first job was with an MGM chorus. At St. Joseph's Church he instituted a series of choral concerts. These concerts were held all over Southern California. These concerts and a twelve voice madrigal became known as the Roger Wagner Chorale. The Chorale has performed in Europe, South America, and all over the United States. The group is recognized as one of the best choral groups in the world.

Besides directing the group, Wagner is a family man. His interest in basketball, golf, and sailing show that his hours are, always active ones.
Father, composer, musician, and director of the Roger Wagner Chorale, this is Roger Wagner.

State College English Prof Is Noted Literary Figure

By Jack Watson

North Carolina Literature has a favorite son on the State College Campus.

His name is Richard Gaither Walser, and most students know him by his position in the classroom. What most of us do not know is that this English professor has been making outstanding contributions to the literature of this state since 1941. At that time, while teaching high school English, he published his first book, North Carolina Poetry. It was an anthology of two centuries of this state's best poems. A success, it was the beginning of a career which has since brought many readers interest, knowledge, and pleasure.

Prof. Walser is quick to warn, however, "My primary job is teaching, and I like to think that my reading, research and writing contribute to my work in the classroom." It is a significant contribution, indeed, for in the past twenty years he has consistently turned out literary works with the astuteness and regularity of a full time author. He calls his writing sporadic, but the results are anything but irregular. Among his more notable volumes are North Carolina Drama, again an anthology, Short Stories of the Old North State, Nematodes in My Garden of Verse, and Thomas Wolfe—An Introduction and Interpretation. The latter, a text and biography, has been received very well, selling several thousand copies. Aside from turning out works of this sort, he is a regular contributor to the national magazine American Speech, and is much in demand as a lecturer for educational and literary groups all over North Carolina and in many of the surrounding states. For example, Professor Walser spoke in Atlanta on November 11. His subject was "Hamilton Jones: Folk Humorist of North Carolina."

"I've always had the desire to write," he says. The desire was strong. Born and raised in Lexington, N. C., Prof. Walser attended the University of North Carolina, where he received his Master's Degree in English. This was his subject and teaching it was only natural. For twelve years he taught on the high school level until an event called Pearl Harbor altered his life, as well as that of many others. During the Second World War, Richard Walser distinguished himself in service to the Navy, seeing duty in the New Guinea and Panama regions. The war did end, and he came home to a new position at North Carolina State College, where he has been ever since, with one exception. When, in 1957, he was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship, he took leave of absence to do extensive research on his field of study. "I used this opportunity to fill in my background. I read all over the country researching North Carolina Literature."

The interior of Professor Walser's office reflects the extent of his research. His references are so comprehensive that there is a complete filing section on Thomas Wolfe. Unfinished articles on a hundred and one different subjects are also evident here. "I'll get to them someday. I work on whatever interests me at the moment." He continued, "One day I hope to write a history of the state's literature. At present I'm working on a collection of odd bits of writing indigenous to North Carolina. Things like folklore and curious and strange information such as may be found in some old newspaper clippings. I'm going to call it North Carolina Miscellany."

It's sure to be every bit as interesting and well written as everything else Professor Walser has done. He's good at that sort of thing.

Alien Attack Attempt Repulsed By Student

There was some misunderstanding when the alien invader landed on top of Harrelson Hall.

Hundreds of students, mistaking him for The Great Pumpkin, surrounded the flying saucer where they knelt in silent reverence and presented offerings of candy, popcorn, and one unfortunate professor.

It was not until the invader said "Take me to the College Union" that the students realized he was from outer space. He was immediately disintegrated by an EE major with a modified slide rule.

Gabe To Play Last Game In Riddick Stadium

By Benny Pearce
State students will have their last opportunity to see Roman Gabriel in a Wolfpack football uniform this coming Saturday when the Wolfpack will meet the Gamecocks of South Carolina.

Gabriel, who has gained almost every honor that can be awarded to a collegiate football player, is currently leading the conference in total offense and in passing offense.

Among the many distinctions that "Gabe" has achieved are: Look Magazine All-American; second team All-American on Football Coaches Association, UPI and NEA polls; unanimous All-American on Football News poll; "Athlete of the Year" in the ACC; "Football Player of the Year" in ACC; four times named ACC "Back of the Week"; one of four major college football players to provide over 50% of team's total offense, and he was voted the Governor's Trophy by his teammates. Gabriel attained all these honors after or during the 1960 season.

"Gabe" led the NCAA in passing percentage (60.4%) during 1959. Gabriel has not received any conference or national honors during the 1961 season, but, no doubt, he will receive many after the season is over.

He is captain of the 1961 Wolfpack team. Every time Gabriel gains a yard he writes a new record into the Wolfpack record book. He has the individual career records for total offense and passing offense. He holds many other records for the Wolfpack.

Gabriel needs only one more touchdown to tie Norman Snead for the ACC record for touchdown responsibility. "Gabe" now has 30 while Snead garnered 31 in his career with Wake Forest.

Gabriel, who played his high school football for New Hanover High School of Wilmington, is probably one of the most versatile athletes to ever come to State. He is almost equally at home on a football field, basketball court or baseball diamond.

He plays first base and outfield for Coach Vic Sorrell's baseball team. He batted clean-up in most of the games and when he connects, the ball is given a ride similar to one that Mickey Mantle or Roger Maris might give it. "Gabe" plays baseball well enough to have several scouts interested in signing him up to play professional ball.

Although Gabriel has not appeared in a Wolfpack basketball uniform, he did play a few games for the Wolflets his freshman year at State. In these few games, he resembled George Stepanovich under the backboards. No doubt, "Gabe" could provide Coach Everett Case with much needed backboard strength if he could find time to play basketball, also. Gabriel does play a little basketball for a strong intramural outfit and for one of the local semi-pro outfits during the fall.

The Wolfpack will play one more game this season, that being with the Clemson Tigers at Clemson.

'Pack Players Probably To Play Pro Ball

The Wolfpack is having a dismal season as far as percentage goes, but this has not kept the pro scouts from "courting" the 'Pack.

Roman Gabriel is having a very good year even though he does not have the team backing that he did last year. Most of the pro scouts agree that he will be the number one draft choice, especially if the Los Angeles Rams get the choice because they are in dire need of a quarterback.

Nick Maravich and Fran Palandrani have already been drafted by the pro teams. Both men, huge tackles, are considering playing pro ball. Palandrani 6'1", 224 lbs., has been drafted by the Cleveland Browns while Maravich 6'4", 225 lbs., has been drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles.

Tom Dellinger, defensive backfield specialist, has also been watched with an eager eye by the pro scouts. Professional football emphasizes the passing game much more than does college football; so, it is no wonder that the scouts have shown an interest in Dellinger who so capably defends against passes.

Other players given a look by the pro scouts are Jake Shaffer and Joe Bushofsky. Shaffer, 6', 230 lbs., is an excellent kicker in addition to being a very fine offensive tackle. Bushofsky, 5'10", 210 lbs., is not as heavy as some of the pro giants, but makes up for his size in desire.

Several former State players are now playing in the pros. Among these are Alex Webster, Darrel Dess and Dick Christy.

Varsity-Fresh Game

The Wolfpack Varsity and Freshman basketball teams will play their annual game Nov. 23 with game time being 8:15 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum.

The Varsity lineup should have Russ Marvel, John Pungler, Pete Auksel, Jon Speaks and either Dan Wherry or Denny Lutz in the starting lineup.

Admission to any students remaining in the area will be granted upon presentation of their athletic card.

Homecoming Set For Sat.

Clemson game, Costen scooped up a teammate's fumble and galloped 28 yards for a touchdown in what later proved to be the deciding factor in the game. Costen has connected on 45 of 109 passing attempts for 612 yards. He also has 137 yards rushing to put him in fourth place in the conference in total offense (Roman Gabriel leads the ACC in total offense with 843 yards). Costen has passed for three touchdowns.

Other Gamecock players who are liable to prove troublesome for the Wolfpack are fullback Dick Day and halfback Billy Gambrell. Both men are excellent runners, Day relying on power and Gambrell relying on maneuverability and deception.

For the Wolfpack, it will be the final home game for 16 seniors. These players by position are: four ends, three tackles, three guards, one center, two quarterbacks, one fullback and two halfbacks. Those bowing out are ends, John Gill, Johnny Morris, Dennis Kroll and Bill Harden; tackles, Jake Shaffer, Nick Maravich and Fran Palandrani; guards, Joe Bushofsky, Kent Morton and Graham Singleton; center Sam Raneri; quarterbacks Roman Gabriel and Tom Dellinger; fullback Jim D'Antonio and halfbacks, Al Taylor and Bob Welfer.

Fourteen of these men were lettermen prior to the 1961 season and it is expected that Coach Earle Edwards will play them as much as possible.

Bill Harden, senior end, was not a letterman prior to this season, but in recent games he has proved to be one of the mainstays in the 'Pack line, especially on defense.

Coach Edwards is expected to start the same lineup that he has used in recent games. Edwards has what he calls a "starting 22" which he uses throughout the game. Expected starters on offense are ends, Morris and Gill; tackles, Shaffer and Maravich; guards, Bushofsky and Bill Sullivan; center Walt Kudryan; quarterback Roman Gabriel; fullback Jim D'Antonio and halfbacks, Al Taylor and Carson Boshier.

Each team has a 3-5 record for the year. The series between the two, which started in 1900, shows State has nine wins, 12 losses and three ties with the South Carolina team.

Probably the most memorable game between the two teams was Nov. 23, 1957, when Wolfpack halfback Dick Christy scored all the State points in leading his team to a 29-26 win over the Gamecocks. Christy's 29 points still stand as a single game record in the ACC.

All in all it should provide an interesting morning of football. Game time is 10:15 a.m.

16 Seniors Playing Last Home Game Sat.

Pictured below are four of the 16 seniors who will be playing their last game in Riddick Stadium Saturday.

Bill Harden, senior end, did not letter prior to the 1961 season, but he has been a standout performer in the last four games also.

Guard Kent Morton lettered the first time last year and is again proving a valuable performer for Coach Earle Edwards.

Joe Bushofsky, probably the best all-around lineman on the squad, should be in the running for a berth on the all-ACC team. Joe has been a mainstay in the Wolfpack line in the last four games which has held the opponents to four touchdowns.

Tom Dellinger, who is listed as a quarterback, rarely sees action from that position. Dellinger is what is known as a defensive specialist. He is one of the main reasons that the State team is number one in the conference in pass defense.

WHAT DOES AN OLD GRAD LIKE BEST ABOUT HOMECOMING? Next to shaking hands, he likes reminiscing. About fraternity parties, girls, sorority parties, girls, off-campus parties, girls—and, of course, about how great cigarettes used to taste. Fortunately for you, Luckies still do taste great. (So great that college students smoke more of them than any other regular cigarette.) Which shows that the important things in college life stay the same. Parties. Girls. Luckies.
