The famous Bayanihan Philippine Dance Company will perform here Friday at 8 p.m. The dances will depict the music and costumes of the Muslim Filipinos of the Philippine Islands. The presentation will be the third of the Friends of the College series, and will be held in the Coliseum.

The dance group, composed of 30 young Filipino dancers and 15 musicians, is on a tour of 60 cities of the United States. State students and their dates will be admitted free with an ID card.

Eight Shakespearean Classics

TV Series To Present Plays

The television series which has been called the finest ever shown in this country will be broadcast in the Raleigh area.

"An Age of Kings," a series of eight of Shakespeare's finest plays, is scheduled to appear on WUNC-TV starting Friday, December 1, at 11 a.m. and 9:00 p.m. It will also be re-broadcast at 8:00 p.m. on Sunday. A TV set will be placed in the College Union Theater on December 1 and 15, January 5 and 19, February 2 and 23, March 16, and another will be placed in the YMCA's International Student Center for all Friday morning broadcasts, for all students who wish to watch the series.

The series will consist of Shakespeare's Richard II, Henry IV; parts 1 and 2, Henry V, Henry VI; parts 1, 2, and 3, and Richard III. These plays present a history of England from the usurpation of the throne of England by Henry Bolingbroke to the death of Richard III. It will give an extremely interesting picture of one of the most exciting portions of English history. Although the series has seldom appeared in chronological order, they blend together almost perfectly.

After the two opening shows in which Richard II is ousted by Henry IV, come four more shows in which the Earl of Northumberland, Henry's former ally, attempts to depose him. During these four, Jack Falstaff, one of the most humorous characters in English Literature, does his part to save the king. Next come two shows on

Modern Play Given By Little Theatre

"One of the best plays to come to the American stage." These were the words used by Dick Snively, Director of the Raleigh Little Theatre concerning its forthcoming production.

Five Finger Exercise, by Peter Shaffer, will be presented starting Sunday, December 3.

The play centers around five people, and is a family situation in which everyone can see himself as others see him. There is no one star, as all characters have equal roles. The body of the play concerns a young German tutor who comes to coach the children of a middle aged English family. The children, a young girl about 15 and a boy about 19, are both delighted with their new friend. This causes jealousy which in turn causes the final and climactic scene in a play that won the New York Directors' Critics' Circle Award in 1959.

State College students may pick up free tickets for themselves and their dates on Thursday, November 30 from 4:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. and on Sunday, December 3 from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the main floor lobby of the College Union.

Honor Code Board Suspends Student For Cheating

One student was suspended from school and another was placed on probation for the remainder of the semester in recent action by the Honor Code Board.

The suspension was given to a student that was charged with copying the test paper of a classmate during a History quiz. The Board found him guilty and suspended him from school for the remainder of the semester.

The probation stemmed from conviction of a graduate student for stealing. According to a member of the Board, the student had made four long-distance phone calls from campus pay phones, and upon completion of the calls, had refused to pay the remaining toll charges. He was apprehended by alert telephone officials in the act of making a call.

Noted Correspondent To Lecture At Union

One of America's most widely traveled newspaper correspondents is coming to State College.

Robert St. John, who has covered over two million miles and has visited more than sixty countries in his travels, will be here on December 5 at 8 p.m. for the C. U. Forum Committee.

St. John has also written thirteen books and a fourth which will be published in 1962. Most of his books have appeared high on the best seller's list.

St. John was stationed in Europe during World War II as a news correspondent for the Associated Press and NBC. He became the first American newsman to be wounded in the war.

The Forum Committee will meet in the ballroom of the College Union. All State College students and their dates will be admitted free of charge.

Design School To Hold Student Art Auction

On Monday night, at 8:00 p.m., the School of Design will hold its annual art auction. The auction, to be held in the College Union ballroom, will present the works of some of the promising student artists of State College as well as works of established artists on the faculty of the School of Design.

One hundred items will come under the auctioneer's gavel stated Eugene Brown, Auction

Chairman. There will be oil paintings, drawings, sketches, prints, lithographs, woodcuts, and possibly, some sculpture. Past years have seen student paintings go for as much as $170. The money derived from the auction will go to the Student Publications of the School of Design.

On Sunday night, Dec. 3, there will be a coffee hour for the public between the hours of 8:00 and 9:00 p.m. in the College Union to give people an opportunity to see the works which will go on the auction block Monday night.

Blue Key Nominations

Blue Key, junior leadership fraternity, is now accepting nominations for membership. Nominations will be accepted through the end of next week, December 5.

Anyone can make nominations, both students and faculty, regardless of whether they are members of Blue Key. A student may also nominate himself.

Students are picked for leadership ability demonstrated here on campus; the nomination blanks have space for submitting the candidate's activities.

The nomination blanks must be turned in by December 5.

Russian Attache To Speak Here

Mr. B. Davydov, special attache to the USSR Embassy in Washington, will arrive in Raleigh Sunday, December 10, to tour and speak on "Communism and World Peace." His speech, which is expected to stress disarmament and nuclear test bans, is to be held in the CU Ballroom at eight o'clock, and is open to the public. It will be followed by a coffee and question hour.

Junior Class To Vote On New Ring Design

The Junior Class Ring Committee met for the second time Tuesday night.

In continuing its policy of positive action, the committee drew up a new design in a conference with officials of Jostens, Inc.

Textile Dept. Head To Discuss Cobalt

Radioactive Cobalt is being used to change textile fibers and chemicals as a part of research by the School of Textiles.

Professor Henry A. Ruthenford, head of the Department of Textile Chemistry, will discuss some of these results in a meeting of the Sigma Xi Society, Tuesday, December 5, 1961 at 8 p.m. in Riddick Auditorium.

The lecture is titled, "Modification of Fibrous Polymers by High-Energy Radiation Techniques."

Traveling Poet To Speak Here

George Garrett, who has replaced circuit rider preaching with circuit rider poetry, will visit North Carolina State College Thursday, December 7.

Garrett is the first of two poets scheduled for appearance by the North Carolina Poetry Circuit. The newly formed Circuit plans to replace the hell-fire-and-damnation preaching of early circuit riders with the words of poets.

Garrett, 32, is the author of three books of poetry, one of which is Abraham's Knife, two books of short stories, and two novels. He is presently the poetry editor of the Transatlantic Review. A native of Florida and a graduate of Princeton, he now teaches at Rice Institute.

In 1959 he received the Grand Prix de Rome and the Sewanee River Fellowship, followed in 1960 by a Ford Foundation Fellowship.

Garrett's day here is to be divided into two periods. In the afternoon he will speak to small classes and seminars, while the evening hours will be devoted to the reading of his poetry before the general public. This reading is scheduled for eight o'clock in the College Union Theater. No admission will be charged and the public is invited to attend.

Being Different

College students are repeatedly accused of many things; one of the most often quoted epithets is that of conformity, a manifestation, no doubt, of the struggle for a warm and secure place in modern civilization.

This alleged identification-with-the-group trend among Americans is true in a lot of ways. Students from Maryland to Moscow, according to recent Russian visitors to this campus, all seem to be firm advocates of laziness, lack of interest, and our well-worn friend, apathy.

This of course corresponds well with the situation at State College. Student selfishness is easily as universal as belt-hung slide rules on freshmen. To combat this movement toward mass nothingness, a few sports in any academic atmosphere label themselves "non-conformists", "independent thinkers" or some other misnomer. These are the gentlemen with no socks, red shoes, or beards which are almost extremely scraggly. It's a blessing that such comics limit their initiative to such minor items as beards; what would happen if they messed with something important?

This effort to be different should follow the rules of rational thinking. For instance, gentlemen, London fogs are not generally considered proper wear for a concert, despite what you may have seen at the Friends of the College production last week. Of course we all are just learning to be citizens, you say, but good grief! Lack of common sense and courtesy are nothing to brag about.

"Non-conformists" and good, solid conformists alike might as well learn now that there is no challenge in being a clothes clown; anybody can do it. In fact, almost any clothing style one can imagine is sure to pass by a busy spot on this campus every day.

The real challenge of non-conformity lies in setting a standard. Be different in some important way. What could be more satisfying to the true individual than outdoing the crowd, rather than instead-of-doing the crowd. One can count quickly the number of State students who deep inside them recognize a driving force—an ambition to make the fullest use of their talents and abilities. These are the real non-conformists; they can easily be recognized in any group. They'll be way out in front.

The problems of self-centered citizens who are afraid to be different in a constructive way are not peculiar to our campus, as mentioned earlier. Our American society as a whole is right in there with us. Since college graduates are looked to for guidance, let's add to the leaders, not to the mob.

Stones And Bouquets

To the Editor:

Sticks and stones . . .

Obviously someone had training enough to realize the value of a flank attack. As one of the Mickey Mouses who doesn't realize the value of drill (other than to the military), let me say that the theatrical of marching to the fair and sitting like nice little boys all afternoon was entirely extra-curricular. And those "influential people" who lauded the show hold positions where their security depends upon the frequent dropping of such remarks.

No, Mr. Vanecek and Mr. Bock, I am not against the military. My sincere apologies for using terms which would offend. Supporting the military is the small price we pay for living in the United States. Many of us will even want to support the military as capable leaders. These men will probably attend a college where they can take ROTC. The number of leaders needed and the number who desire this leadership, however, is closely proportional.

Surely the men excluded from this group who are interested in higher education should not be forced into it, as another machine on the assembly line or any other way. Furthermore, doubt exists as to the value of a cadet private's training. Will this not be simply repeated only in a much more extensive and effective fashion following enlistment?

In conclusion, I stand firmly on my statement that required ROTC has no place in a non-military school. The right of disagreement exists and is open to anyone. It is refreshing to at last get some response on this matter and perhaps the administration will officially defend its reasons, or lack of them, for compulsory ROTC.

To the Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to express to the class of 1965 my deep appreciation for your support in the recent class elections.

I thank you for the trust you have reposed in me, for your sincere expressions of friendship, and for the advice and assistance which I may need in the future, and of which I shall feel free to avail myself.

It is my earnest desire to perform my duties efficiently and honorably, ever mindful of State College and its student body.

Bayanihan

The Bayanihan Philippine Dance Company will appear on Friday evening at 8 p.m. in the Coliseum, under the auspices of the Friends of the College, Inc.

Thirty young dancers and fifteen musicians comprise the group, which made dance history at the Brussels World's Fair in Belgium. The group was the official representative of the Philippine government. During the World's Fair the group was asked to appear on the Ed Sullivan Show.

In June of 1958, when the Philippine president was a guest of the United States government, the Bayanihan was invited to travel from Europe to America for several private performances. Upon returning home the group received a hero's welcome from the Philippine public and responded by giving several performances before audiences of 6,000 people.

The Bayanihan is composed entirely of college students who have taken time out from studying to travel to seventy American cities. Bayanihan is a Tagalog word meaning working together; hence no one person is billed as the star. Although the group is predominately Roman Catholic due to their Spanish tradition, religion is not necessarily a prerequisite for membership. Before each performance and rehearsal, the group unites in prayer; before a particularly important performance they sing their own rendition of The Lord's Prayer.

The Bayanihan program, consisting of thirty-six different numbers, is divided into five segments which reflect the varied history and cultural heritage of the young Philippine republic. The first part, called Dances of the Mountain Province, displays pagan and tribal dances. The second part is called Fiesta Filipina and presents a collection of dances with the Spanish influence.

The third part, Muslim Suite, shows the Indo-Arabic influence among the Filipinos converted to Mohammedanism. The fourth part is called Regional Variations and is a collection of diverse dances from various parts of the country. The last part, Rural Philippine State, presents the rice cycle of the lowland Christian Filipinos.

In its first tour of the United States, the Bayanihan decided to leave nothing to chance and bring everything they would need in the wilds of America. Therefore, props included a fifty pound sack of rice which is to be used in the final scene. They were not gambling that America would not have rice.

The gorgeous costumes, the fresh and original dances, and the physical attractiveness of each member of the company enhance the production, which vividly depicts the many facets of Philippine culture.

Wolfpack Opens Cage Season Against Tennessee Saturday

By Richie Williamson
Sports Editor

Reynolds Coliseum swings open its doors for another basketball season on Saturday night as State's cagers play host to the Volunteers of the University of Tennessee. Gametime will be 8:15, and will be preceded by State's freshmen team taking on Wilmington Junior College at 6:15.

The Wolfpack will be lacking in experience for the early part of the season due to the loss of two starters by graduation and two other men who were involved in the scandal last spring. However, the Pack will have five lettermen to form the nucleus of the team until the newcomers develop under game pressure.

Leading the team up front will be John Pungler who broke into the starting lineup in last year's Dixie Classic. Pungler averaged 10.5 points a game and pulled down 166 rebounds to be the bright spot in the second half of the season. Teaming with Pungler at the forward spot will be 6-6 Russ Marvel, a veteran of two seasons. Marvel was the leading rebounder last year although he was not a full-time starter.

The center spot will be handled by Pete Auksel, a standout on the freshman team two years ago, who was held out last year. Auksel uses a variety of shots from close in and is accurate from the corner. He fights hard under the boards for rebounds, much similar to the style of George Steponovich a couple of years ago.

Joni Speaks, an excellent shooter from the outside, will start at one of the guard positions while Dan Wherry will probably get the nod over Denny Lutz for the other starting berth. In practice sessions, Speaks' shooting has returned

State Swimmers Invade Maryland Saturday Night In Season Opener

North Carolina State's swimmers open a 13-meet schedule on Saturday night against the University of Maryland in College Park. Coach Willis Casey's men have been working regularly for the past six weeks in preparation for this opening meet which will in all probability will determine the conference winner.

Last year State, Maryland, and North Carolina tied for top honors in the conference with 5-1 marks. This year it appears to be strictly between State and Maryland as both teams have almost all of last year's forces returning. Therefore, the opening meet of the season will be the deciding meet for the championship.

The Wolfpack will be lead by two All-American swimmers in Ed Spencer and Pete Fogarasy. Also returning from last year's co-champion team are John Wilcox, Smoky Ellis, Jim Cutter, and diver Frank Coble. Coming up from the freshman team is Bill McGinty, an excellent freestyler who already has set a number of records.

The freestyle chores will be handled by McGinty, Cutter, Wilcox, Guy Griswold, and Jeff Prager. McGinty and Wilcox are a strong pair of sprinters while Prager is the number one distance man. Ellis will handle the 50-yard freestyle event.

Spencer, one of State's all-time greats, will be swimming his speciality in the butterfly event plus the two relay events. Last year Spencer set records in the freestyle events when he had to be used in this spot due to a lack in manpower. Wilcox, who was the butterfly man last year, will back up Spencer this year.

The breaststroke event will be handled by Fogarasy and Dan Derby. This should be one of State's strongest events with Fogarasy holding the record. The backstroke will be much stronger this year with Ellis being the top man and soph Ed Stephens expected to add a lot of points.

Although diving has not been one of the strong points in the past, the capable duo of Frank Coble and James Morrow should do well for the team this year. Coble improved greatly last year as the season progressed and should be a good threat.

The first home meet for the Wolfpack will be Thursday, Dec. 7, against Duke. This meet will also be the first for the new 3,000 seat swimming pool. The schedule:

Dec. 2, Maryland, away; 7, Duke, home; 11, Wake Forest, home; Jan. 6, Virginia, away; 9, East Carolina, home; 12, South Carolina, away; 13, Clemson, away; Feb. 1, Georgia, home; 2, VPI, away; 3, VMI, away; 9, Florida, home; 14, Carolina, home; 17, Pittsburgh, home; 22-24, ACC Championships, home.

what's pure
research?

Distinguished from that which has practical application, pure research is concerned with the discovery of fundamental knowledge to widen man's understanding of himself and the universe.

Ford Motor Company's Scientific Laboratory in Dearborn, Michigan is dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge in the physical sciences. On its staff are scientists of national and international reputation who conduct independent basic research programs of an extremely broad nature.

Why does Ford Motor Company support research which seemingly is unrelated to the manufacture of its products?

It is our view, and a pioneering concept in our industry, that entirely new approaches to automotive development can come only from unhampered scientific investigation. Deeper understanding of matter itself, and of the conversion and storage of energy—aside from widening man's primary knowledge—may have practical application in tomorrow's vehicle design.

Thus knowledge wrested from nature by scientists will be taken by technologists and applied to serve practical needs and desires. Another example of Ford's leadership through scientific research and engineering.

to form of his frosh year, and he is much more adept in ball handling. Wherry has seen limited action during the past two years and has shown great promise for the team. Although he is only 6-3, he is able to get up with the best of the big men for rebounds and has definite agility on driving layups.

Coach Everett Case, who begins his 16th year as the head man for State, feels that the team will win its share of the games at the beginning of the season and will be a definite contender when tournament time comes. It has been a legend that Case is a whiz in preparing his teams for the big tournament in March as he says "these are the only games that count in winning the conference championship."

The team will be considerably helped at the end of January when Ken Rohloff becomes eligible. Rohloff was the spark-plug of last year's team with his excellent floor play and timely baskets. He was a second team All-Conference selection as a soph last year.
