Polish Dance Group Performs Tonight

State College students who attend the Mazowsze performance tonight may expect to see scenes like the above when 100 young Polish dancers invade the Coliseum. This Friends of the College presentation, although not listed on the pink registration card, is free for all State students and their dates. The performance will begin at 8:00 p.m.

Sigma Kappa Plans Annual Formal Hop At Sir Walter Hotel

Sigma Kappa pledges will be honored at the annual Pledge Formal and Christmas Dance at Sir Walter Raleigh Hotel Saturday night.

The "Velvet Tones," a combo made up of State students and headed by Bobby Matthews, will provide music for the occasion. Members, alumnae, faculty, and friends will also be present.

The pledges will wear white formals and their dates will wear tuxedos. The sisters will wear cocktail dresses and their dates, suits. The dance will be held from 8:00 until 12:00.

One of the features of the dance will be the announcement of the "Most Outstanding Pledge." She will be chosen on the basis of scholastic ability, social character, and her attitude toward responsibility.

The following ten pledges and officers will be recognized: Alice Herter (president), Faye Fakler (vice - president), Karen Schmidt (secretary), Harriette Williams (treasurer), Edna Suggs, Anne Parker, Mary Belanga, Patsy Mitchum, Becky Shankle, and Mary Beth Key.

State Students Petition For Extra Holidays

By Grant Blair

A petition to extend State College's Christmas holidays by two extra days is now making the rounds.

It was estimated by a spokesman for the students circulating the petition that the petition had been signed by some 2660 students Monday night.

The Christmas holiday had been originally scheduled to begin December 19th, due to the adoption of a reading day before exams and the rescheduling of commencement exercises until after exams. The petition asks that the Christmas holidays begin December 16th, rather than the 19th.

If the document is signed by a majority of the student body, it will be presented to the Student Government and voted upon. If it is approved, the case will be argued with the administration.

Norris Tolson, President of the Student Body, has stated that "I realize the position of some of our student body concerning the beginning of Christmas Holidays on December 19th. Much careful consideration went into the construction of a 1961-62 college calendar, and I cannot foresee any changes in it at this late date.

"I am always concerned about the wishes of the North Carolina State College Student Body; therefore I will carefully consider the petition now being circulated in reference to beginning Christmas Holidays on December 16 rather than December 19th and will govern my actions with the administration by the wishes expressed to me by the duly elected representatives of Student Government. I can assure each and every student that the administration will be informed of student opinion on this situation." (See STUDENTS, page 4)

All co-eds who are interested in the organization of such a group are urged by Leonard Thompson to attend. Possibilities of the organization include uniformed meetings, drill teams and affiliation with the Military Ball Association.

Profs Named Reynolds Scholars

"William Neal Reynolds Scholar" appointments have been presented to two college faculty members.

Dr. Arthur Kelman, professor of plant pathology, and Dr. Gennard Matrone, professor of animal industry, received the highest professional rank in the college's agricultural faculty during ceremonies last Friday.

Announcement of the promotions was made at a luncheon in the College Union by Dr. John T. Caldwell and Dr. H. Brooks James. Attending the luncheon were other Reynolds professors, administrative officials in the School of Agriculture, and the college's top administrative officials.

The professional appointments, which will become effective January 1, 1962, are presented in recognition of top-level professional achievements and are among the most outstanding awards of their kind at any American college or university.

Currently, Dr. Kelman is a full-time professor and is a member of a large number of professional organizations. In 1956, he received the 'Outstanding Instructor Award' for the School of Agriculture and in 1960 the 'Distinguished Classroom Teacher of the Year Award' for the School. He is listed in American Men of Science, and is at present the recipient of three research grants.

Dr. Matrone came to State in 1953 and rose to the rank of professor that same year. He has served actively on several committees at State and is particularly active in many graduate student advisory committees. He is listed in American Men of Science also, and at present holds four research grants.

The endowment creating the distinguished professorships was established by the late William Neal Reynolds, widely-known tobacco manufacturer and philanthropist. (See REYNOLDS, page 4)

St. John Denounces African Mishaps

By Cora Kemp

Robert St. John, a distinguished lecturer and author, denounced the United States' attitude toward Africa in the speech he delivered at the College Union last night.

St. John first explained the African situation and then pointed out that the people (American and all others) should think in terms of helping the Africans rather than in terms of their own advancement or prestige. He stressed the importance of recognizing the country's progress rather than their ignorance.

"The United States has bungled badly in Africa," stated the lecturer. Several instances of American mishaps were emphasized. One of these was the fact that when a predominately French speaking area was to receive books from other countries, the other countries sent them books written in French but America sent English written books.

Adcock conducting, the Symphonic Band will perform Bach's Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring; A Christmas Festival by Anderson; an arrangement by Reed of What Child is This; Yon's Gesu Bambino; Sleigh Ride by Anderson; Berlin's White Christmas; and Hallelujah Chorus from The Messiah by Handel.

His request that post cards be sent to Congressmen has resulted in a flourish of mail to Washington, arousing considerable controversy.

Prior to the evening lecture, St. John was entertained by Ed Elkin, Dayne Brown, and Jerry Mangum of the C. U. Forum Committee. He also spoke at WKNC.

The Glee Club, under the direction of J. Perry Watson, will sing Ave Maria by Arcadelt; The Christmas Song by Torme and Wells, with Herb Little as tenor soloist; the Czech Carol, Carol of the Drum arranged by Davis; Heath's arrangement of Deck the Halls; The Twelve Days of Christmas arranged by Avalos; Bach's Hosanna to The Living Lord; and I Wonder as I Wander arranged by Horton and Niles, with the tenor solo being sung by Tom Covington, Assistant Director of Student Affairs.

"Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend," said Director Watson.

Freshman Honor Society To Name Prof of Year

By Jack Watson
Phi Eta Sigma will elect its "Freshman Instructor of the Year" this Thursday night.

Mike Graham, president of the freshman honor society, announced that all sophomore members will meet for the election Thursday evening at 7:30 in room 230 of the College Union. He also stated that, "The award is consistent with the purpose of Phi Eta Sigma; for through the recognition of an outstanding freshman instructor, better student-teacher relationships are established and therefore scholarship is encouraged."

Inaugurated in 1961, the award was given to Professor Jafar Hoomani, instructor in the Department of Mathematics, who had this to say: "I was very much honored by the action taken by the members of Phi Eta Sigma last year. I am quite certain that all teachers of the freshmen classes fully realize the importance of setting a firm scholastic foundation in the first and most important year in a student's college career and should be well aware of the fact that their tireless and sincere efforts will be rewarded."

The announcement of the recipient of the award will be made later on in the year prior to the initiation of the present freshman class candidates. The winner of the award is given an honorary membership in Phi Eta Sigma and will be inducted at that time.

Phi Eta Sigma is a national freshman honorary society. Its purpose is the promotion of scholarship through the recognition of achievement in this field. All freshmen who possess a composite grade-point average of 3.5 or better after the end of either their first or second semester are selected for membership in the organization. Initiations are held both semesters.

Space Lecture Series To Feature Missile Man

Nine of this country's foremost space experts will give lectures on campus beginning this week.

The first of the nine experts, Dr. Victor G. Szebehely, will give lectures on astrodynamics on Wednesday through Friday of this week. Dr. Szebehely, a missile expert and a native of Hungary, has received degrees in Mechanical Engineering and Applied Mechanics from the Technical University of Budapest, and has taken special courses at MIT and Yale.

The nine programs in the series will run from now till April, and will be open to the public free of charge.

Dr. Szebehely will speak at 4:10 in the Auditorium of Broughton Hall on Wednesday through Friday.

Christmas Vacation

December 19 is the focal point of a lot of student attention this week. Due to rearrangement of the schedule for the school year, done last July, December 18th and 19th were subtracted from the originally planned Christmas holidays.

The vacation job seekers among the student body—and the number appears to be considerable—are naturally upset at this turn of events. The chances of finding work for only the last four days before Santa Day are small, to say the least.

This is the major complaint of the students who have indicated their feelings to The Technician. It should be pointed out for clarity that State students will not have to suffer through any more school days this year than in the past, even if the holidays are not the same. Loss of mere vacation time, however, is not the main gripe; the loss of vacation-time earnings, though, is indeed a legitimate concern.

The whole calendar changing business came as a result of recommendations by both the Faculty Senate and Student Government. Both groups hit the administration with proposals dear to their hearts at about the same time, reading days and delay of commencement until after final exam week.

The officers of the administration tried to determine a schedule which could accept both the faculty and student proposals, which somewhere along the line had been approved by the chancellor. The week-before-Christmas faux pas was a result of these efforts. But what can be done now to alter the school calendar year?

According to the administration, the present schedule is the only one available which can comply with the requirements recently placed upon it. Perhaps this is so, but it doesn't seem that way to many of us.

The mid-semester break, originally scheduled from January 27 to February 2, was extended three days, now slated to begin on January 24. The alibi for this increase in rather useless holiday is a plea from the registration people for more time in which to compute grades, mail results, and plan for the spring semester.

An obvious suggestion for Student Affairs is to remove the last two scheduled class days in December and add them to the end of the semester. This would still give Registration an increase in between-holiday time; it would also prevent breaking up the full week units desired. Exams could begin on Monday and end on Saturday; a full week end could then follow reading day.

The question is, of course, will anything be done? Despite responsible student protest against the December Deadline, indications from Holladay Hall are that interest has arisen too late. After all, one can only cut so much red tape in a week and a half.

Letter to Editor

Students Advocate Earlier Christmas Recess

To the Editor:

Concerning the matter of the dismissal of classes on December 19, we, as students of North Carolina State College, feel that this is both unfair and unreasonable, due to the fact that the remainder of the Consolidated University, which includes Woman's College and the University of North Carolina, will be dismissed on the sixteenth of this month.

Also, those of us who have secured jobs for the holidays on the basis that we begin work on the 18th of December will not be able to maintain these jobs if we cannot begin work until the 20th.

We would appreciate it if you would consider and publish this letter for the benefit of those concerned, the students of North Carolina State College. Thank you very much.

Jerry Park

To the Editor:

Concerning the issue of the late dismissal of classes for the Christmas holidays, I do not approach the issue with a bellicose attitude. Neither do I intend to degrade the functions of State College. Instead, as a student paying for an education, I wish only to express my opinion.

Approximately 7500 students comprise the student body of State College, and these students possess creditable opinions.

The Consolidated University is composed of the University of North Carolina, Women's College, and North Carolina State College. Both UNC and WC will dismiss classes December 16th, whereas State dismisses December 19th, three days later. State, as a part of the Consolidated University, should adhere to the pattern employed by the other two schools.

Too, many students from distant states will have a very brief holiday, for some will need a day or more to arrive home. If we were to dismiss the 16th, these students would have a more enjoyable holiday.

For these reasons, I conclude that dismissal of classes December 16th will benefit everyone. My opinion is presented with judicial discrimination and not with malice or contempt.

Bob Wilkinson

To the Editor:

In the past few days a very important controversy has developed over what day we should get out of school—the sixteenth or the nineteenth of December. I believe the present schedule of having classes through Tuesday the nineteenth is ridiculous and for the good of the students should be changed to the more reasonable date, Saturday, December 16, as the General Catalog has it scheduled.

There are several reasons for such a change:

1. Many students have Christmas jobs which, if we are not out until the nineteenth, will give them only four days before Christmas to work or cut classes.
2. Also, many may not be able to obtain jobs of their choice because of the limited working time.
3. We are the only college in the Consolidated University that has to stay to the nineteenth—yet they come back the same day.
4. The two days, Dec. 18, 19, have a weekend separating them from the sixteenth; therefore, we would have four days added to our Christmas Holiday.
5. 6:00 p.m. is an inconvenient time to try to get home for many students living in North Carolina, besides the out-of-state students.
6. A great many students plan to cut the eighteenth and nineteenth anyway as well

Gabe Gets Honors

By Richie Williamson
Sports Editor

Although the football season ended two weeks ago for State, the name of Roman Gabriel continues to grab its share of the headlines across the nation as the Wilmington lad is in the spotlight for All-America selection, pro draft choices, and post-season all-star bowl bids.

For the second straight year, the 6-4, 220-pound quarterback has been selected the player of the year for the Atlantic Coast Conference to become the first man in the conference history to win the award twice. In addition, he was selected to the All-Conference team for the second straight year.

As for next season for Gabe, he will probably see his football action on the west coast. In the AFL draft held Saturday he was the first man selected as the Oakland Raiders felt the need for an excellent field general to pull them out of the cellar. The NFL held its draft selection in Chicago Monday, and the Los Angeles Rams, who had obtained the right to select second, picked Gabe as their choice.

Even though the All-

America selections are not finished in certain organizations that select such a team, Gabe has already gained first team recognition on three of them and a second team selection on a fourth. He has been featured on the Football Writers of America as featured in LOOK MAGAZINE, the pro scouts team as featured in TIME MAGAZINE, and the Football Coaches of America team, which included an appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show this past Sunday night. The NEA board selected him for their second unit.

The All-America selections will continue to be made for the other newspaper services, and Gabriel's name will be at the top. In the meanwhile, he is also widely sought after to play in the post season all-star games. He has been selected to play in the biggest of these, the East-West Shrine game in Kezar Stadium in San Francisco on December 30.

Frosh Open Season, Suffer 79-63 Loss

By Steve Denny
State Frosh lose opener to Wilmington Jr. College. The Wolflets, although they lost showed promise of what is to come. The State defense allowed outside shooting which proved to be their downfall. The defense was tight under the goal and few lay-ups were made.

On offense the Wolflets were a little slow in setting up, but once in position moved the ball smoothly and accurately. The scoring opportunities were about the same, but Wilmington capitalized on 41% while State got 34% of their chances in the hoop.

The Frosh roster of 15 has John Arganbright, Bob Arnold, Jim Goodnight, Mike Hendrix, Mike Johnson, John Kaveny, and Larry Worsley at the forward positions. Arganbright, a starter Saturday night, got 10 points, with Worsley having 15.

Rifle Team Wins

The Army ROTC Team kept an unbeaten record this past Saturday as they eked out a narrow 1364-1358 victory over Davidson College at the latter team's firing range. Winn was high man for State with 279 out of a possible 300 points. The team record is now 3-0 for the year in shoulder-to-shoulder matches.

"HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY"

I have asked the makers of Marlboro—an enterprising and aggressive group of men; yet at the same time warm and lovable; though not without acumen, perspicacity, and drive; which does not, however, mask their essential great-heartedness; a quality evident to all who have ever enjoyed the beneficence of their wares; I refer, of course, to Marlboro Cigarettes, a smoke fashioned with such loving care and tipped with such an easy-drawing filter that these old eyes grow misty when I think upon it—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro—that aggregate of shrewd but kindly tobaccoists, that cluster of hearty souls bound together by the profit motive and an unflagging determination to provide a cigarette forever flavorful and eternally pleasing—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro whether I might use today's column to take up the controversial question: Should a coed share expenses on a date?

"Yes," said the makers simply. We all shook hands then and squeezed each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if our eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame us?

To the topic then: Should a coed share expenses on a date? I think I can best answer the question by citing the following typical case:

Poseidon Nebenzal, a student at Oklahoma A and M, majoring in hides and tallow, fell wildly in love with Mary Ellen Flange, a flax weevil major at the same school. His love, he had reason to believe from Mary Ellen's sidelong glances and maidenly blushes, was not entirely unrequited, and by and by he mustered up enough courage to ask her the all-important question: "Will you wear my 4-H pin?"

"Oh, foolish reaper! Why have you not told me before?"

"Yes," she said simply. They shook hands then and squeezed each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if their eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame them?

For a time things went swimmingly. Then a cloud appeared. Mary Ellen, it seems, was a rich girl and accustomed to costly pleasures. Poseidon was bone-poor and he quickly ran out of money. Unable to take Mary Ellen to the posh places she fancied and too proud to tell her the reason, he turned surly and full of melancholy. Soon their romance, so promising at the beginning, was headed for a breakup. But at the last moment, Poseidon managed to blurt out the truth.

"Oh, beloved agrarian!" cried Mary Ellen, grappling him close. "Oh, proud husbandman! Oh, foolish reaper! Why have you not told me before? I have plenty of money, and I will contribute according to my ability."

Poseidon, of course, protested, but she finally persuaded him of the wisdom of her course. From then on they split all expenses according to their incomes. Rather than embarrass Poseidon by handing him money in public, a joint bank account was set up to allow him to write checks. Into this account each week they faithfully deposited their respective allowances—35 cents from Poseidon; $2300 from Mary Ellen.

And it worked fine! They were happy—truly happy! And what's more, when they graduated they had a nice little nest egg—eight million dollars—with which to furnish a lovely apartment in Lubbock, Texas, where today they operate the local laundromat.

So you see? You too can salvage your failing romance if you will only adopt a healthy, sensible attitude toward money.

Students Petition For Holidays

The students sponsoring the petition have a number of arguments supporting their position. They feel that an extended holiday would provide them with a longer working period for Christmas jobs. Also, 6 p.m. is considered to be an inconvenient time for students to leave college and go home. It was also pointed out by a student that the holiday time before Christmas has been drastically cut for out-of-state students who have to spend one or two days traveling. Another argument for the change is that N. C. State is the only college in the Consolidated Universities which does not get out on the 16th. A final reason is that the students who can afford to will cut, anyhow.

On the other hand, the administration takes this

Stewart, Director of Student Affairs has stated that the calendar was changed last year at the request of both the Faculty Senate and the Student Government to include both a reading day before exams and a change in the commencement date. He also pointed out that there are a required number of school days that must be offered by any accredited college, and that these could not be changed. Mr. Stewart said that: "I'm sure that the student body will realize that it is impossible to change one part of the calendar without changing another part."
