Seven Programs Slated

Friends Of The College Lists 1962-63 Performers

Next year, the Friends of the College will give the students over $63,000 worth of entertainment.

The cost to the students will be about $3,500. The remainder of the cost will be paid by private membership in the Friends of the College by the citizens of Raleigh.

The entertainment will consist of seven programs.

The first program will be the French National Orchestra, which performs frequently on the French radio and television networks. It will be conducted by Lorin Maazel, considered by many sources to be one of the leading musicians of Europe. The Orchestra is scheduled to appear October 16, 1962.

Next will be the Lenigrad Philharmonic, featuring David Oistrakh, the Soviet Union's leading violinist. He will appear on October 30.

On November 7th, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders will present their regimental bands, pipes, drums, and dancers.

The Obernkirchen Children's Choir, directed by Edith Moeller, will be presented on November 29.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will feature Byron

Janis, pianist, on February 14, 1963.

A collection of Leonard Bernstein's compositions will be presented by the American Ballet Theater April 1st and 2nd. These will include tunes from West Side Story, On The Town, and Peter Pan.

Under the patronage of Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, the Hague Philharmonic will be presented on April 22nd. The cost of these programs

Tau Beta Pi Frat. Elects Officers; Cox Named Prexy

New officers of Tau Beta Pi were elected last Thursday night.

Tau Beta Pi is a national engineering honorary fraternity based on scholarship and character.

Honor Code Board Suspends Three For Using Key

The Honor Code Board has convicted three students of cheating on their psychology final exam.

The students were found guilty of obtaining answers from the instructor's grading key. According to Merrill Leffler, Chairman of the Honor Code Board, a copy of the key had apparently been obtained illegally and circulated among the students. It is not known how the key was obtained.

The first of the students was convicted last Thursday night, and the other two Monday night.

All three were placed on suspension through June of 1962 and on probation through the summer school period of 1962. A notice of the trial will be sent to their parents, and another placed in their permanent records.

Student Poll Reveals Opposition To New IDC Traffic Proposal

By Allen Lennon

Students oppose permanent traffic gates behind Tucker dormitory, according to a Technician survey.

A poll of almost 300 students in the Tucker dorm area revealed that 67.3 per cent of the persons interviewed are against the erection of permanent gates, while 32.7 per cent favor such a move.

The poll was taken last Thursday and Friday nights and was centered mainly on students living in those parts of the dorms which are nearest the street in question.

The poll was taken in the aftermath of last week's proposal by the Interdormitory Council that "a dead-end street sign be placed at the north end of the gym, and a new heavy-duty gate be placed southeast of Tucker."

The recommendation, if adopted, would limit through traffic on the road running behind Owen and Tucker by detouring traffic along Dan Allen Loop in Vetsville.

The IDC proposal and the survey have risen from a lengthy battle between M & O and persons unknown. The gates have been alternately put up and torn down since they were first built in the fall semester. The gates were designed by the IDC to reduce study noise in the dormitory area, but they have met opposition since the first day of their existence.

Students in the dorms expressed their opinions in the poll in the following manner:

	For	Against
Tucker	15	35
Owen	47	76
Alexander	17	33
Bragaw	10	40
Total	89	184

Noted Performers To Appear Here In Gershwin Show

Rhonda Fleming, Earl Wrightson, Skitch Henderson, and the Ray Charles Singers will present "A Night With Gershwin" in the Reynolds Coliseum Monday, March 12, at 8:00 p.m.

Also featured on the program will be Savorie Sarris and the Skitch Henderson Orchestra.

The show, produced by Tim Gale, is on a tour of the U. S. and Canada. It commemorates the 25th anniversary of the death of George Gershwin.

The scheduling of the Gershwin salute at State College was announced by Coliseum Director Roy B. Clogston.

State Band Begins Spring Tour

By Carlos Williams
The State College Symphonic Band will begin its spring concert tour—an annual three-day itinerary which takes the band through many parts of the state—with a special concert in the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum.

The band will be joined by the glee club at this presentation on Friday, February 23, at 8:00 p.m. for the premiere performance of M. Thomas Cousins' "Of Earth and Atom." This composition was written especially for the observance of the State College Diamond Jubilee and the Land-Grant College Centennial.

In addition to several selections from the tour repertoire, the concert will feature two student soloists. Ben Sloan will play the cornet solo, "Dramatic Essay" by Williams. John Monroe will be piano soloist in the first movement of Grieg's "Concerto in A Minor."

Mr. Donald B. Adcock, conductor of the band, commented that the concert is being held in the Reynolds Coliseum this year in order to accommodate the large number of persons from the entire state who have been invited, as well as the students and faculty of State College and the parents of the student musicians.

The band will begin its three-day tour with a night performance in Statesville, N. C. They will then travel to Newton-Conover, Waynesville, Canton, and Asheville, returning to State on Wednesday night.

Grades Discussed By Frosh Diners

By Cynthia Johnson

It might be a good idea to give every student a degree the first day of school, so that grades cease to be important, and then see how many actually make an effort to learn.

On the other hand, at least one company discovered that employees who had good grades in college earned more, so that grades may not be unimportant.

These ideas were sprung on freshmen by three faculty members at a meeting of the Freshman Diner's Club at the YMCA last night.

O. B. Woodrige, Jr., coordinator of religious affairs, who served as moderator to the panel, asked Dr. Robert G. Carson, Jr., director of instruction of the School of Engineering, Professor Lewis J. Clarke, visiting associate professor of landscape architecture, and Professor Cleon Harrell, associate professor of economics, to express their views on the motivation of college students in coming to college and earning grades and degrees.

Mr. Clark expressed the opinion that grades are only one method of evaluation of a student's work, and defined education as a total thing; acquiring a degree is not the only important consideration; one must learn to think as well. He commented that it might be interesting to give degrees on the first day of school, so that grades would not be important, and see who would do any work.

Dr. Carson cited the example of the company which discovered that there was a definite correlation between grades and a person's earnings, and Mr. Harrell added that he felt there was just as great a correlation between extra-curricular activities and earnings as between grades and earnings.

In discussing the value of a college degree, Dr. Carson remarked that a degree has become a convenient landmark. Rather than stop with high school, the norm has become to go on to college. College is

Orders Are Orders

True dedication to duty is a rare thing these days; a couple of Maintenance and Operations men on this campus are excellent examples, however, of that infrequent phenomenon.

It all began in room C in a Bragaw dorm suite. A physically-minded student was using weight training as a body conditioner in room C. Either his straining muscles or his grip slipped, for the barbells concerned suddenly fell to the floor.

The student was lucky—no broken toes; the tile flooring, however, was seriously wounded. The student responsible, who actually lived in room B, made out a damage report for the tile in room C and honestly charged it to the occupants of room B.

M & O immediately came to room B looking for broken tiles. The student led them next door to room C where the mishap had occurred and pointed out the damaged flooring.

Nothing doing.

The work order, the men stated, said "fix the floor in room B," and that was what they were going to do, by gum.

Room C still has a floor with several mortally-injured tiles. The weight lifter paid, though—for several brand new tiles, with colors that don't match, placed conspicuously in room B.

A Marjority Opinion

It would seem that the Interdormitory Council was supposed to represent the students living in State College dormitories. Is this the case?

The whole idea of gates behind the Tucker-Alexander area of the campus was ostensibly created by the IDC last year to combat a serious problem faced by conscientious students in the dorms. If the majority of those residents were so anxious to study, and this is indeed hard to swallow, then the few students left who continually tore down the gates must have been real rowdies.

Student opinion must not have favored the gates strongly; if it had, then surely the gate posts would not have been left standing bare. Realizing that the useless gate poles were nothing more than a symbol of defeat and a traffic hazard to boot, IDC decided to modify its plans with the recent one-gate proposal.

It must not be very popular, either.

The almost three hundred students who registered their opinions to Technician staffers live right in the area concerned; in Tucker, for instance, the poll was taken right along the back of the dorm next to the road to be blocked.

In addition, a great number of the 89 yes's were in reality "we-e-l-l, I guess so" and of the 184 negative votes many were actually "HELL, NO!"

If road noise is bothering a few, why penalize the great majority of students who can concentrate if they want to.

No road blocks without representation, please.

Even A Short Tour Can Be Tiring

"I'm practicing for tomorrow night," said the man playing the xylophone in the deserted coliseum a scant four hours before curtain time at the Friends Of The College.

Jesse Kregal, who devotes only a part of his time to the maze of metal known as a xylophone, has been a member of the National Symphony Orchestra for three years. Termed a percussionist, he is responsible for everything from cowbells to cymbals in the nationally acclaimed musical organization.

The selection he was so diligently rehearsing will be performed Wednesday night at the next concert in the current tour series; the symphony has been away from its home base in Washington, D. C. for a week and a half. The tour will be completed this Friday, Kregal reported cheerfully.

the group had worked with featured soprano soloist Birgit Nilsson.

Kregal plays regularly with the symphony 37 weeks out of the year, as does his wife, a member of the violin section. During his summer leasures, he has toured South America with the orchestra, worked as a music camp counselor, and gone mountain climbing in Peru.

Mr. and Mrs. Kregal are both natives of Portland, Oregon; their home is now in Arlington, Virginia. Mrs. Kregal has worked in the orchestra with her husband for the past two years.

"They tell me there will be a right good crowd at the concert," Jesse concluded; "I hope they will enjoy it."

Students Show Need For Home Cage Games

To The Editor:

Mr. Roy Clogston, athletic director at State College, announced recently that the Wolf-pack cagers would no longer participate in the North-South doubleheaders in Charlotte because the students were not getting their fair share of basketball games. This announcement was a pleasant surprise to a great number of students—students who felt that their presence on this campus had been forgotten. It appears, however, that this decision has now been reversed. The student again has learned that he really was not so important after all. This very same sequence of announcements also occurred last year!

In both cases Chancellor Aycock of Carolina is believed to have been instrumental in reversing the decisions of this school. Admittedly, Carolina can make much more money in Charlotte than at Woolen Gymnasium in Chapel Hill. It is very doubtful if the same holds for State College. Just what do we owe Carolina, anyway? When we contemplate the answer to this question, we should consider many factors. It will be difficult for the State College student to forget the long line in which he had to wait at one of our "home" football games with Carolina at Kenan Stadium. Nor will he forget the sun shining directly in his eyes—and those seats on the one-yard line. The Carolina students, of course, sat in the shady middle seats. These are just a few thoughts we might consider before we conclude that State College owes Chapel Hill nothing! Let's not arrange our basketball schedule to suit Carolina.

Our football schedule contained only three home games for us last season. The students here are reasonable enough to realize that this cannot be helped when one considers the size of Riddick Stadium. But at the same time, we notice that the Coliseum is one of the best places in the nation for basketball. We should figure on getting our fair share of basketball on this campus. This year two of our "home" games were played in Greensboro and Charlotte. Two more games were played while we were away for the holiday break. Another was played in the middle of final examination week. Thus, the students effectively got four home basketball games; and coupled with three home football games, we finally realize that the intercollegiate athletic program designed for the students is not much to behold.

It was my understanding that the main reason for the abolition of the Dixie Classic was that this tournament was an entertainment not designed for the students. What, then, are those "home" games played in Charlotte and Greensboro? Let's stop thinking about money and start thinking about the students! If the school feels that it must halve the number of home games, the least she can do is to halve our athletic fees.

Theta Chi's Dream Girl To Be Picked This Week

The crowning of the Dream Girl of Theta Chi for 1962-1963 will climax the annual Dream Girl Ball and Weekend to be held this coming weekend by the State College fraternity.

The ball will be the climax of the weekend of parties, according to Joe Delostritto, social chairman, starting Friday night with a Shipwreck party at the fraternity house. Saturday afternoon, the brothers, pledges, and their dates will attend a cocktail party at the house, after which everyone will go to Raleigh's Plantation Inn for a banquet. The formal ball will be held in the ballroom of the Inn following the banquet. Music for the ball will be furnished by the Frank Jefferson Band. At the conclusion of the ball, there will be a Wee-Hours Party held at the house.

Miss Dorcas Ann Cox, resigning Dream Girl, will crown the Dream Girl of '62-'63 at the Ball. The new Dream Girl's identity has been a closely guarded secret for weeks.

The candidates for this year's Dream Girl are Miss Karen Swanson, sponsored by Charlie Hamilton; Mrs. Diane Oldham, sponsored by Bud Oldham; Miss Christine Whitehead, sponsored by Ken Gillis; Miss Bobbie Jean Lergen, sponsored by Ernie Sapp; Miss Kay Elder, sponsored by Jimmy Williams; Miss Sandy Anderson, sponsored by Jim Kelly; and Miss Mary Lib Wilson, sponsored by Jim Grogan.

State, Wake Battle Tonight

Conference And Chair at Stake

By Richie Williamson.

Two things will be at stake tonight in Reynolds Coliseum when State and Wake Forest take the floor. The important one is the lead in the ACC standings. And as far as rivalries go, the Wooden Chair will go to the winner.

A sellout crowd is expected to be in the Coliseum at game time to watch the leading teams battle for the top spot, which also means the top spot in the seedings for the conference tournament. However, Wake has one game remaining in the conference with South Carolina on Saturday, which, if they win, will give them the top spot in the tournament regardless of the outcome of tonight's contest. The reason is that they are the defending champions, and if the lead ends in a tie, then the consideration goes to the defender.

Also at stake is the symbol of rivalry, the Wooden Chair. This chair was initiated as the symbol the last time that the Deacons played in Raleigh. That time was in the last of the Dixie Classics, a little over a year ago. In the heat of the contest, Bones McKinney, the colorful Wake coach, smashed a wooden chair into about thirty pieces.

At a dinner meeting sev-

Notice

A meeting of all freshmen interested in playing on the freshman baseball team will be held in room 11 of the new gym on Thursday night. The time of the meeting has been changed to 8:15 instead of the previously announced time.

eral days later, Everett Case brought the pieces to McKinney for repair work. Well, Bones not only repaired the chair but also suggested that it become a trophy for the victor of each contest. The chair has been at Baptist Hollow since the initiation of the symbol, and Case would like to see it return to its rightful home.

Case has plenty to make him think that it will return, based mainly on a seven game win streak against conference opponents. The last time the two teams met this season, it was a 77-65 win for the Deacons. However, since that time, Ken Rohloff has been added to the State lineup and provided the spark to ignite a tremendous ill-around attack against all opposition.

On the other hand, McKinney will retaliate with the hottest pair of hands in the league in All-American Len Chappell. In his last eight games, Chappell has scored over 30 points for an average of 36.3 for these outings. His overall average is 30.7, which is good enough to be fourth best in the nation.

The old Grey Fox will throw up a tight defense around Chappell, a defense which has been effective against other high scores. The Wolfpack defense is currently the stingiest in the league, allowing only an average of 66 points per game.

To retaliate the scoring of Chappell, Case has a junior guard named Speaks who has been ripping the nets with his jump shot and drives. However, one man has not been the consistent top scorer for State in their well-balanced attack. Any-one of the five starters is capable of delivering the points on any given night.

We all make mistakes...

Diamond Drills Under Way

The dash of spring weather the past week has made ideal practice conditions for the 1962 edition of the Wolfpack baseball team. Coach Vic Sorrell, who begins his 17th season at the helm of the State team, has been holding drills each day in preparing for the opener with Dartmouth on March 20.

The Wolfpack has eight lettermen returning from last year's third place finishers in the ACC. Leading the list of returnees is infielder Vern Strickland, a .371 hitter and an all-ACC choice last season. Helping him out in the infield are Wayne Edwards, Ray Russell, and Jerry Cordell.

Coach Sorrell has two outfielders returning from the team which recorded a 13-5 mark last year in Don Montgomery, who batted a respectable .313 average, and Les Young.

The main problem on hand is with the pitching staff where only Bobby Connor has any experience. Connor recorded a 3-1 record last year in backing up Joel Gibson and Wilson Carruthers. Gibson was the work horse for the team and has signed with the Philadelphia Phillies for this season.

Two other strong players left shoes to be filled. They are Adger Ray Perry and Roman Gabriel. Gabriel lost his eligibility when he signed a pro football contract.

Of the practice sessions, Sorrell commented, "We are

The grant, announced jointly by Dean J. Harold Lampe and Director N. W. Conner, is to be used for a three year research project dealing with the composition of metals. Dr. H. H. He has for a number of years been making extensive investigations at the college, and his work has been cited in metallurgical circles throughout the world.

The project is to be a study of compounds of boron and nitrogen with transition and post-transition elements. This raises the number of sponsored engineering projects to more than fifty.
