Extensive Curriculum Alteration Proposed

A proposal to change the curriculum of the entire Engineering School is now under study by the Executive Committee of that school, according to Dr. Robert G. Carson, Jr., Director of Instruction.

The proposal involves a number of changes in the courses required, as well as an overall reduction of hours. This is in accordance with the college's wish to lighten the number of hours required.

Dr. Carson said that the proposal was essentially an effort to make the first year's requirements the same for all branches of the school, with the exception of special sections of the same course. This is a long range plan and even if optimum conditions were seen, no change would be made at least until the fall of 1963.

The proposal calls for the deletion of Math 101, and a series of math courses beginning with Math 102, Analytic Geometry and Calculus I, II, III, going to Math 301, Differential Equations I, to be completed in the sophomore year.

NCS Diamond Jubilee Draws Noted Guests

Wednesday, March 7, will mark the 75th anniversary of North Carolina State College.

Principal speakers at the three major events scheduled on the college's Diamond Jubilee will be former Governor Colgate Darden, Jr., of Virginia; Adlai E. Stevenson, United States Ambassador to the United Nations; and former Chancellor Robert B. House of the University of North Carolina.

Dr. House, whose career as Chancellor of the University of North Carolina paralleled the administration of the late Chancellor J. W. Harrelson, will deliver the address at the dedicatory services of Harrelson Hall at 2:15 Wednesday afternoon in Room 100.

The dedication of Harrelson Hall will be followed at 3:30 p.m. by the Diamond Jubilee Convocation in the college's 12,400-seat Reynolds Coliseum. Governor Darden, speaker at the Convocation, will be introduced by President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina. Governor Darden is a former president of the University of Virginia.

Chancellor Caldwell will speak on the college's future role in teaching, research, and public service. Governor Terry Sanford, who is also chairman of the Consolidated University's Board of Trustees, will extend his greetings to the assembly.

"Of Earth and Atom," a composition in tribute to the college on its Diamond Jubilee, will be performed by the North Carolina State College Symphonic Band and Men's Glee Club.

Rounding out the celebration will be a lecture by Ambassador Stevenson, who will speak in the Coliseum at 8 p.m. Stevenson's speech, "The Perils of Peacemaking," will inaugurate the Harrelson Lectures, a series of lectures provided by a bequest from the late Colonel Harrelson, chancellor of State College from 1934 until 1953.

Chancellor Issues Statement

I wish to call to your attention a personal responsibility you have to yourself and to the College to attend the Diamond Jubilee Convocation of your College on Wednesday afternoon, March 7.

I assure you that your being present will result in your greater pride in this College. Furthermore, the College asks little of you for itself and seldom has required attendance at College functions. Since classes will be suspended beginning at 2:00 o'clock and the faculty is required to be present, you should by all means attend the College's 75th birthday convocation. I beg you to do so.

A formal academic occasion is impressive. This one will not be long. Your voluntary and enthusiastic attendance is desired. You will gain a memory for the years ahead.

John T. Caldwell, Chancellor

Noted Poet To Speak Here

The most notable figure of the current College Union "Contemporary Scene" series will speak here tomorrow night.

He is Stephen Spender, British Poet, critic, and editor.

Spender will speak in the College Union Ballroom at 8:15 p.m. Students will be admitted free.

Spender will also speak informally to a smaller group at 1:00 p.m. Wednesday.

Spender is presently a writer-in-residence at the University of Virginia.

He first became known as a poet and a critic in the early 1930's when he became a member of the Oxford Group of Writers, which included some of the most famous names in contemporary English literature.

According to a State College authority on Spender, he is known for developing his own distinct brand of lyricism which he exhibited in a wide variety of themes, including social problems, war, love, and death.

The State authority also went on to say that it is generally felt that Spender sums up in his work and life the major problems facing the writers since the 1930's—the need to be socially aware during a depression period and the problems of writing serious poetry during a world war and during the lull following the war.

Along with his career as a poet, Spender is known for his literary criticism. He has published a volume of literary criticism called The Destructive Element and has been an editor on the Horizon magazine which was published in the 1940's. He is presently editor of Encounter.

NCS YMCA Leader Selected For Tour Of Russia, Europe

75 Candles

This is a big week for State College. On campus next Wednesday will be a number of distinguished guests accompanied by scores of interested visitors.

Wednesday, which is March 7, is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of North Carolina State. This probably doesn't mean much to students who are more interested in the grades they are getting than the particular school they are attending. To those interested in experiencing a meaningful college existence, however, a rare opportunity in presenting itself Wednesday.

Three of the nation's most scholarly gentlemen will speak on this campus Wednesday; all State students, who will be released from classes for the occasion, may hear a message concerning public education from men who have devoted much of their lives to its challenges.

Adlai E. Stevenson, one of the nation's most highly respected statesmen; Virginia's Governor Colgate Darden, Jr., a former president of UVA; and former UNC chancellor Robert B. House, one of the state's most distinguished educators—all will be on campus for the occasion.

It will be a birthday party celebration that will be hard to equal.

Waste of Time?

Planning on college? Dreaming of a career in teaching, science, nursing, the arts? Wait! Before you invest four years and maybe $10,000 in further education you should study the terms of the new contract won by New York Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

From now on members of Local 3 will work a basic five-hour day at $4.96 per hour—plus a sixth hour at time and a half. This adds up to $161.20 for a 30-hour week.

Then comes the cherry on top. Union members are limited to fifteen hours of overtime which, in labor-short New York, they are almost sure to get. The overtime brings the work week to a tedious 40 hours and the total wage to $235.60.

But remember! Your country needs teachers (and pays them a national average of about $106 weekly in public schools).

Your country needs nurses (and pays them $82.50 for 40 hours on general duty in New York City).

Your country needs scientists. (A survey by the Federal Government disclosed that chemists able to handle the "more complex, exacting" assignments earned an average of $9504 annually—about $183 per week.)

Your country is dedicated to the arts. (A musician playing with the orchestra of the Metropolitan Opera Association earns $180 per week.)

No matter. Go ahead and get that college education. As the President put it in his inaugural address: "Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country." Apparently Local 3 didn't get the word.

Raleigh Collegiate Conference Scheduled

Race, creed, and color will make no difference as students from the Raleigh area meet to discuss a topic of mutual interest.

At the fifth annual Raleigh Intercollegiate Conference, students from all seven of the colleges in Raleigh will discuss "The Adventure of the Christian Life." There will be no restrictions concerning the race, creed, or color of those participating in the conference.

The conference will take place on March 10 and 11 in the King Religious Center at State's YMCA. Meredith, Peace, Rex School of Nursing, Shaw, St. Mary's, St. Augustine's, and State will be represented.

The conference schedule will include an opening session, two addresses followed by open questions, discussion groups, Bible study, and a worship service.

The cost of the conference will be $1 plus the cost of meals at the cafeteria.

The conference leader will be Mr. William Stringfellow, a nationally prominent attorney and Christian layman.

Mr. Stringfellow graduated from Bates College, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He did his graduate work at the London School of Economics and Harvard Law School.

He has lived and practiced law in the East Harlem neighborhood of New York City. The law firm of Ellis, Stringfellow, and Patton, which he helped to found, still devotes much of its practice to the people of East Harlem. He has travelled in Europe, Africa, Asia, and the Caribbean, lectured in twenty-three seminaries of ten denominations, and contributed to eleven theological and legal journals.

Campus Crier

There will be another fitting for N. C. State College Blazers on Monday, March 12. All students who wish to purchase blazers at this time may have them fitted in room 230 of the College Union from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

A meeting of the Math and Science Education Club will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 7, in the CU. All members are asked to be present.

Any student who has lost a bicycle should go to the M & O Division and determine if his bicycle is among the several unidentified bicycles, that do not have college stickers, that M & O has in storage. Bicycles not claimed on or before March 30 will be auctioned off during the College Union Auction on April 7. Funds derived from the sale of these bicycles will be given to the Student Government Loan Fund.

ATTENTION ALL FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORES! You will not be able to obtain bids for the Freshman-Sophomore Ball unless your dues are paid.

Library Still Among Lowest In South

The D. H. Hill Library retains its present position of 36th among the southern college and university libraries.

According to statistics compiled for the fiscal year 1960-1961, which were compiled by the Library of Louisiana State University, the D. H. Hill Library is placed above only four colleges in the total number of volumes in the library: the colleges are Mississippi State University, Woman's College, Clemson College, and Washington & Lee.

This status is identical to the 1959-60 survey of southern colleges and universities.

Assistant Director of the Library H. T. Littleton pointed out that the story for the fiscal year 1961-62 will be considerably different. Last year, the legislature appropriated over $160,000 for book and binding costs. Even though this was $78,000 less than requested, it will still represent an increase of $60,000 in the budget for next year.

How will this affect the library's standing? According to reliable sources, it may increase the library's standing from 36th to 35th among the college libraries of the south.

Election Dates

May 3 and 10 were set as dates for the general spring elections at the Thursday Student Government meeting.

The body also heard the latest report of the senior exemption issue from President Norris Tolson and debated amendments to the Student Government Constitution.

According to Rev. O. B. Woodridge, Coordinator of Religious Affairs at State College, the conference was started five years ago when religious leaders of the various colleges in the Raleigh area decided that students would benefit from an opportunity to have a conference of this type.

Deacs, Terps Repeat ACC Titles

Pack Victim Of Vicious Tigers

The shouting is over at Reynolds Coliseum, and another ACC basketball tourney has been entered in the record books. But it will long be remembered as one of the most exciting tournaments which featured everything from Cinderella teams to record breakers. The winner was Wake Forest with a 77-66 win over Clemson to send the Deacons to the Eastern Regional Playoffs for the second straight year.

The Deacons will be a strong and experienced representative in the playoffs. Their first round game from the Palestra in Philadelphia will be against the winners of the Ivy League Conference. This game will be televised over WTVB in Durham on Monday night, March 12, at 9:30.

However, the team that stole the show and became the underdog favorite was the Clemson Tiger outfit. It was a team that pulled out of the conference cellar in the last week of play into sixth spot in the standings. It was a team that relied on eight men to do the playing with seven of these men being sophomores.

Furthermore, the Tigers had never won a game in the previous eight years of the ACC tournament. In fact, going back through the old Southern Conference, the Tigers last win in a tourney was in 1939. But these determined sops decided it was time to win and did it in a big way.

The opening game was a shocker for the partisan home crowd as the Tigers dumped the Wolfpack hard with a 67-46 win. The next night saw a fired up bunch jolt the nationally ranked Duke team 77-72 behind a sparking 34 point performance of Jim Brennan. The Tigers just were not hot enough to handle the Deacons on the final night.

The honors of being the tourney great went to Len Chappell of Wake Forest, recently named to the AP All-America first team. Len pumped in 87 points for the three games and got about 40 rebounds to show that he ranks as one of the greatest in the history of the conference. Besides leading his team to its second straight title, Chappell added a couple of personal merits to his already numerous accomplishments.

When he fouled out with five minutes to play in the final game, after scoring 31 points, the 12,500 fans showed their acknowledgement with a one minute standing ovation. In the Friday night win over South Carolina, Lennie sank two free throws with about a minute and a half to play to become the 13th player in college ball to score 2,000 points in a three year career. He is in fourth place in all-time scorers in the conference (which includes players who played four years) and needs only 15 points to pass up Lennie Rosenbluth of Carolina for third place.

For the hometown team the tourney was a nightmare. State could do nothing right in the 67-46 loss. Only one other team ever scored fewer points in the nine years of ACC tourney play. The Wolfpack had only one man in double figures as Russ Marvel scored 12. State had only a 26.8 per cent shooting accuracy.

Bill Sullivan Wins Heavyweight Title

As expected, Maryland made a shambles out of the conference wrestling tournament to win their ninth straight title. The Terps won eight of the ten individual titles while State and Virginia each earned one title. The team scores were Maryland 105, UNC 62, Virginia 42, State 31, and Duke 14.

The bright spot of the meet for State was the victory by Bill Sullivan in the heavyweight division. Sullivan, a soph and also a guard on the football team, decisioned Gordon Appell of Carolina 8-6 to become the second State wrestler in the history of the ACC to win a title.

The outstanding wrestler of the tourney was Pat Varre of Maryland who won his third straight title in the 147 pound class with a decision of 9-0 over Tom Grant of Carolina. Gene Kerin of the Terps also won his third straight in the 157 class by pinning Dick Blackman of Carolina in 7:26.

The Terps Bill Rishell, twice winner in the 177 pound event, missed his try for a third title when he moved up to the 191 pound class and lost a close 2-0 decision to Harry Lake of Virginia. The Terps also had three repeat winners in Dick Maynard, Ron Maunder, and Sam Bossert.

State's Owen Simmons was the only other Wolfpack to make it to the finals. He was pinned by the Terps Dick Guidi in 49 seconds of the first period in the 167 pound class.

PIONEERING

Somewhere out there, beyond the realm of man's present understanding, lies an idea. A concept. A truth.

Gradually, as it comes under the concentration of disciplined minds, it will become clear, refined, mastered. This is the lonely art of pioneering.

In the Bell System, pioneering often results in major breakthroughs. Planning the use of satellites as vehicles for world-wide communications is one. Another is the Optical Gas Maser, an invention which may allow a controlled beam of light to carry vast numbers of telephone calls, TV shows, and data messages.

Breakthroughs like these will one day bring exciting new telephone and communications service to you. The responsibility of providing these services will be in the hands of the people who work for your local telephone company. Among them are the engineering, administrative and operations personnel who make your telephone service the finest in the world.

After a week's orientation in New York in late June, Franklin will begin his tour which includes two weeks in a Soviet youth camp. A primary focus of the trip will be meeting with students and youth workers. Group members will view Russia's cultural and historical aspects as well.

Franklin said that he was quite excited at the prospect of a summer touring Eastern Europe and Russia and added that group members were going through an extensive program of study and preparation. They will be visiting prisons, hospitals, and television and radio stations in preparation for answering the Russians' questions.

A member of the Forestry Honors Program, Franklin is also editor of The Agromeck, and chairman of the YMCA Freshman Commission.

General Physics 201 would be moved to the second semester of the freshman year, and one semester of English would be dropped from the curriculum.

"There is no point to consider the physics change until we can have students with the proper math background," said Dr. Carson. "I see no need for credit to be given to physical education, although I suspect there are a lot of advantages for requiring that it be taken."

"We would like to see a more generalized undergraduate curriculum. The specialization would occur in the senior and graduate years," said Dr. Carson. "The student would have twelve hours free electives and about two-thirds the same required courses for any engineering department."

It was pointed out by Dr. Carson that this change is merely a recommendation and has not been officially approved by the college's Course and Curriculum Committee.

An analytical mind can carry you a long way in the fast-moving field of electronic data processing. If you have a flair for business... and enjoy solving tough problems... you can discover unique satisfaction in this new career.

Openings are available throughout the country in either Systems Engineering or Direct Sales. IBM is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

The marketing and application of data processing systems is challenging and fascinating. After comprehensive training you help management executives solve problems which include automation of: process control and manufacturing operations, inventory control, document preparation, highway planning, weather forecasting; and complete business control systems for utilities, transportation, banking, and insurance, to name but a few. New techniques of automatic data processing are making headline news almost daily.

We have a critical need for those who have majored in science, mathematics, and engineering. And we have equal opportunities for majors in business administration, economics, finance and liberal arts with an aptitude and interest in electronic data processing.

It's a new professional field for both men and women in which earnings are high and promotions come quickly. For more information describing the opportunities at IBM, see your College Placement Director or, if you desire, write or call—
