Student Legislature Backs Civil Rights

By Mike Lea
The State Student Legislature showed again that some college students are anything but conservative.

Civil rights legislation and the dropping of foreign tariffs were the two most widely discussed topics of the body, which met in the State Capitol Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Of the twelve bills that came before the body, four dealt with civil rights and two with the dropping of tariffs as is now done in the Common Market in Europe.

Civil rights legislation included bills that asked for the inclusion in high school social study curricula of minority group history, the abolition of advertising on radio and television which invites the public but excludes certain segments of the population, fair employment acts, and the dropping of tax exemptions for public institutions that discriminate against minority groups.

The body also passed a bill that urged the United States to join the European Common Market and "pool" its military forces with the other North Atlantic nations and another asking for the dropping of tariff barriers with Canada.

The State College resolution which provided for the punishment of "ghost writers" for college students and a University of North Carolina resolution which asked for compulsory inspection of motor vehicles and the compulsory installation of seat belts on all new cars passed both houses unanimously.

Bills asking for the abolishment of capital punishment and improved working conditions and educational facilities for migratory workers also were adopted by the legislature. The resolution on migratory workers called for the setting up of an "Education Corps" which would be similar to the Peace Corps and would travel with migratory workers so that their children could have uninterrupted school time.

Resolutions asking for the stopping of federal funds for the construction of fallout shelters and the checking of people of welfare to see that it is still applicable to them were defeated by the bodies.

Duke Marsden of Duke was president of the Legislature this year. Floyd McCall of State College was

Wednesday

Senior Class To Meet

The senior class will meet to discuss the class gift and other financial matters at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, March 14, in the College Union Ballroom.

"This meeting is very important," said Jim Futtrell, senior class president. "We urge all seniors to attend and bring ideas for the class gift."

Seniors were polled before the Christmas holidays to get suggestions for improvements in the Outstanding Teacher Awards, and concrete work is now being done on this project. Committees for the various schools have been chosen, and the results will be announced at graduation.

A dance will be given for the seniors in the College Union ballroom the Friday night before graduation. This will be the last chance for some of the seniors to get together with their classmates.

Further information may be obtained from one of the class officers: Jim Futtrell, Jim Caldwell, Art Latimer, or Ron Boger.

'Miss Photogenic'

Meredith Girl Wins Competition

"I was more surprised than anything else," commented Miss Louise Furr, a freshman at Meredith, upon winning the Miss Photogenic of 1962 title Saturday.

Miss Furr won the fourth annual Miss Photogenic Contest over seven other entrants. She was presented a silver Paul Revere bowl by Gail Newton, last year's winner. Miss Laura Grady, a secretary for State Capitol Life Insurance, was first runnerup, and Miss Betty Lawhon, a freshman at Meredith, was second runnerup.

Miss Furr is majoring in Home Economics at Meredith; she is originally from Albemarle. The Mu Beta Psi Fraternity sponsored her in the contest.

Miss Furr has hazel eyes, black hair, and stands five feet seven inches tall. Her hobbies include "everything," she said. She wore a red chiffon cocktail dress for the contest.

A preliminary contest was held February 22. Photographs of the contestants were made by members of the Photography Committee and submitted to the judges.

At noon Saturday, a luncheon was held at the College Union for the contestants, their escorts, and the judges. Mrs. Carolyn Patrick, a student wife and chairman of the Photography Committee, presided.

Following the luncheon, a fashion show was staged by the contestants in the ballroom. Each contestant modeled a cocktail dress of her choice. Dave Phillips, director of the Union, presided.

The judges were Mrs. Billie Cook, modeling instructor at Harbarger's Business College; Ken Cooke, News and Observer and Raleigh Times photographer; and Tom Linderink, executive vice-president of the Union, who stood in for John Mattox, photographer for the Visual Aids Center at State College. The contestants were judged on poise, personality, beauty, and their photogenic qualities.

Each contestant will receive three pictures of herself. The winner and runnerups will be models for the Photography Committee during the coming year.

The remaining contestants were Miss Sarah Bryan and Miss Peggy Pruitt, both of Meredith; Miss Peggy Hollingsworth and Miss Donna Pecht, both of State College; and Miss Brenda Kerman, a receptionist at the Branch Banking and Trust Company.

The contest is sponsored each year by the Photography Committee at the College Union. Mrs. Patrick, whose husband is an Electrical Engineering major at State College, was in charge of the contest. Mrs. Patrick, and avid photographer herself, is employed in the photography department at the News and Observer office here in Raleigh.

Grad Students Support Senior Exemption Rule

The Graduate Student's Association has passed a resolution supporting senior exemptions.

According to Henry E. Schaffer, president of the association, the resolution endorses the present policy of exempting students from final examinations for the semester in which they will graduate provided the students meet the prescribed standards of excellence in regular semester course work.

The resolution was passed at a regular meeting on February 28.

The Plaster Fell

Students representing a number of North Carolina colleges and universities spent an active weekend in Raleigh.

The North Carolina State Student Legislature met in the House and Senate chambers in the Capitol, and in the words of one of the delegates, "For some of the things that are being passed here, the plaster should fall off the walls."

The nature of the student assembly can be seen in the nature of the legislation considered. Of the twelve major bills, four dealt with civil rights, two with government aid, two with foreign policy, two with criminal offenses, and one with labor-management relations.

It was evident to some of the State College legislators that the "representatives" might not have been too representative of North Carolina college students. In the first place, the number of schools involved in the legislative meeting is only a fraction of the total number of institutions of higher learning in the state.

The delegates themselves can hardly be a true cross section of North Carolina young men and women in college. The proportion of students representing minority groups far exceeded the actual ratios in the state-wide student population. A good number of the delegates were from neighboring states; although their opinions are no doubt of interest, they cannot be truly representative of North Carolina.

The idea of true representation is, from a theoretical standpoint, rather hard to obtain. When representatives are elected, as in Student Government or the Faculty Senate, the men chosen are already outstanding. Their opinions, consequently, do not always coincide with those of their constituents.

When the delegates volunteer, however, as with the State Student Legislature, the deviation from the students bodies as a whole is likely to get out of hand.

No comment will be made about the actual content of the legislation which will be broadcast all over the state as "the opinions of our college students." Each individual is capable of deciding these issues for himself.

Something should be done, however, about the nature of the people who are voicing "our" opinions. Until the day that the number of delegates is proportioned more closely to the size of the college populations and the delegates are carefully chosen, the opinions of the young legislators will have to be considered the opinions of a group of college students—nothing more.

Many of the delegates to the conference were outstanding student leaders who spoke well—the organization should be established so that these representatives can be accorded the attention they deserve.

For Better Or Worse

Delay and it can only be delay—in permitting State College to give a degree in general studies, which it now has the faculty and facilities to give, threatens the quality of general education given all the students at that institution.

In recent years all the best technical colleges have given new emphasis to the broad education of their graduates in the various scientific fields. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which almost sets the standard in the field of higher technical education in America, has a notable faculty in the humanities. So have other leading scientific and technical institutions.

State College now has a good faculty in general studies but the hope of maintaining such a faculty diminishes as officials of the Consolidated University delay in permitting State to grant a degree in this field. Good professors in history, English, foreign languages etc. just do not want to come to a college where they are in general permitted to teach only freshmen and sophomores and so deal with men in no courses above that level. Increasingly the best men will not come, where that is the case. And that will mean that engineers, architects, industrial managers produced at State will get their general education courses from a faculty of declining competence.

With the right to give a degree in general studies, State could increasingly serve as a community college for Raleigh as Carolina does for Chapel Hill. Without the right to give a degree in general studies, State will become less and less competent to produce technical graduates with the good general education which it is now understood the best engineers, architects, industrialists and agricultural experts require. ## Coed On Campus

Coeds, I have some choice information on a boy named Ernie who has been known to associate with Clark and his Anti-Coed Gang.

Ernie dated a coed at the Military Ball last Saturday night. Now I don't object to this practice. I'm all for it myself. But I later found out why he did it.

It seems that some of his dear friends were trying to tear him away from his books and 3.7 average. They decided that he wasn't getting enough fame that way so they adopted some new policies for him.

Clark told him that the first step was to get his name in The Technician, preferably in some obscene column. But being that there is no such thing in this paper, Ernie settled for Coed On Campus.

He was positive that if an anti-coed dated a coed, I'd have something to say about it, and sure enough I do: "Watch out for Ernie, coeds! Just watch out!"

There is one particular coed on this lovely campus who has a habit of accosting me with ideas for this column every-time she sees me.

I keep telling her that I appreciate her advice, but Bill Jackson just doesn't allow such things to be published in his paper. I think I'll try to talk her into writing a book under the title of I Was a State College Coed or The Secret Life of a State College Coed, (paperback, of course).

I finally succumbed, however, and agreed to at least print her name to make her happy. I feel that anybody who has a friend (girl) who finds it necessary to buy a pair of sun glasses on a night like last Friday deserves to have her name somewhere. So, Barbara Coed Proveaux, get busy with that book and quit bugging me.

Construction To Begin Shortly On Civil Engineering Building

Bids were taken on the new $936,072 Civil Engineering building last Thursday afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

The contracts for the building have not been awarded yet. Architects for the building were Sloan and Wheatley.

The building will be located between Riddick and Broughton, according to Dr. R. E. Fadum, Head of the Department of Civil Engineering.

Plans for the building call for a ground floor with 23,000 square feet of floor space, and three additional floors with 17,800 square feet of space each. This gives a total of 76,400 square feet of floor space, compared with 46,200 square feet in Mann Hall, which the department now occupies.

The building is designed to permit the future addition of two more floors of 17,800 square feet each and five additional floors of 8,500 square feet each. This addition, of a total of 78,100 square feet, would give the building a total of 154,500 square feet of space, compared with Riddick, which has a total of 106,900 square feet.

According to Dr. Fadum, the new building will provide much needed office and laboratory space for the Civil Engineering Department.

"You're in a good position. A package containing a woman's undergarment has been stolen from Ricks Hall. Drive around that area and see if you can find anyone carrying it. Its wrapped in brown paper and is about 20 inches long."

This command, given on the afternoon of March 8, started Officer R. D. Bunn of the College

Police Force on a search for the culprit who had committed this crime.

A few minutes later, Officer Bunn stopped a student in front of Mann Hall and asked to see the brown paper package which he was carrying. The startled student doubtfully surrendered his weekly linen issue.

This incident shows the pains taking care with which the College Police perform their job. During the same afternoon, he made similar searches for a car which had hit a student's motor scooter and a rusty bicycle which had been stolen from the front of the YMCA.

During the same afternoon, he gave thirteen tickets for various parking violations throughout the campus. At one time he wrote two tickets for cars parked illegally behind Williams Hall. When he got out to put the tickets on the cars, he found that S. L. Penny, the other of the two

Terps Win Indoor Track Title Again

The Maryland track team rolled to their seventh straight indoor track title Saturday afternoon in the annual conference championships held at North Carolina. The Terps scored 61 points to outclass runner-up Carolina's 44 2/5 points. Six conference records fell in the course of the afternoon.

Maryland also retained its title in the freshman meet held at the same time.

State finished seventh in the point standings with 4 points in the varsity meet and finished fifth in the freshman meet with 9 points.

The Wolfpack gained fourth places in two of the thirteen events in the varsity meet to account for the points. Jim Hamrick got a fourth in the 600 yard run.

State Rifle Team Outshoots Carolina

The N. C. State Varsity Rifle Team picked up its fifth win of the season in a close victory over North Carolina in a shoulder to shoulder match this past week.

The State marksmen fired a 1129 out of a possible 1200 to win the meet. Carolina fired an 1109 in their losing cause.

The State four man team that fired in the meet were James Simpson 287, Tom Buchanan 285, Jay Gwaltney 284, and George Scott 273.

The State 2-mile relay team, which recently set a new school record, finished fourth in that event. The team was composed of Jerry Fincher, Harold Blanchard, Frank Green, and Richard Edwards.

A couple of promising freshmen did well in their events in the frosh part of the program. Steward Corn placed second in the high jump, Melvin Woodcock was second in the 880-yard run, and Reginald Loy heaved the shot put far enough to grab a fifth place.

Maryland only won two events but placed heavily in all events to win the meet. The sparkling performance of the day for the Terps was by John Belitza, who became the first man in the ACC to pole vault 15 feet indoors.

The only double winner of the meet was Jerry Nourse, a distance runner from Duke. Nourse won the mile and two-mile events, setting a new record in the latter. Duke's Dick Gesswein set a new record in the shot put to help the Blue Devils to their third place finish in the standings.

Carolina sophomore Tommy Clark cleared the bar in the high jump at 6 feet 7 3/4 inches to eclipse the old mark by nearly three inches. The Tar Heels also broke a record in the two-mile relay. The other new record was set by Wesley King of Clemson in the 70-yard low hurdles. King was also second in high hurdles.

Grid Slate Released

The 1962 football schedule for State has been released and reveals that the Wolfpack will play only three home games again this season. The ten game slate is slated to open on Sept. 22 against Carolina and finish on Thanksgiving Day with Wake Forest.

Two new teams have been added to the Pack schedule. These new opponents are the University of Georgia and the University of Nebraska, both games being played away from home. The other non-conference game is a familiar rival, Mississippi Southern. The other seven contests will be against members of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The three home games will be with Clemson, Maryland, and the homecoming game with Virginia. However, three of the away from home tilts will be in the neighborhood in contests with Carolina, Duke, and Wake Forest.

The two opponents not appearing on the schedule that were played last year are Wyoming and Alabama. The game with Nebraska will be the first time that the two schools have ever met. The Georgia game will be the fifth meeting between the two school, the last time being in 1952.

Wolfpack Schedule

Sep. 22—North Carolina at Chapel Hill; 29—Clemson, home.

Oct. 6—Maryland, home; 13—Nebraska at Lincoln, Neb.; 20—Mississippi Southern at Jackson, Miss. (night); 27—Duke at Durham.

Nov. 3—Georgia at Athens, Ga.; 10—South Carolina at Columbia, S. C.; 17—Virginia, homecoming; 22 (Thanksgiving)—Wake Forest at Winston-Salem.

Wolfpack Bowlers Beat Carolina, Lose To Wake In Three Way Match

The State bowling team came in second place in a triangular meet with Wake Forest and Carolina yesterday at the Star Lanes in Chapel Hill. Wake Forest edged the Wolfpack by 13 pins while Carolina finished third.

The meet was based on two five men teams from each school with total pinfall from all ten school members counting for the final total. The Deacons first team rolled a 2612, to take team honors and combined with the second team score of 2421 to total 5033 pins for the ten men.

State's first unit was second in team total with a 2540 set while the second five fired a 2480 to give a school total of 5020. High man for State was Scott Anvil with a 225-585 pinfall. Don Wechsler added a 538, Bill Grant 536, and Clint Ashburn 517 for the other high men.

Carolina was further behind with 2487 and 2324 scores for a team total of 4811. The individual high man for the three way match was Stig-Nissen of Wake Forest with a 594 set.

This meet was another in the series of intercollegiate bowling matches which are serving as the forerunner of a possible full scale conference bowling league. Plans are being formulated at all of the Big Four schools for sponsoring a collegiate travelling league to be recognized and sanctioned by the ACC. The first three matches in the series have been great successes and promises to develop into another competitive sport for these schools.

The action will continue next Sunday at the North-Salem Lanes in Winston-Salem when the same three schools will be joined by Duke for a four way match. The teams will return to Western Lanes in Raleigh on the following Sunday.

Research Open For NCS Students

Research programs in field crops will be open to State College students this summer.

According to P. H. Harvey, head of the Field Crops Department, fellowships are currently available to undergraduates having backgrounds in biology and chemistry and with an average of 3.0 or better.

The fellowships are to be awarded for the summers of '62 and '63 for research in plant physiology and biochemistry. Students will be paid a stipend of $600 for ten weeks work consisting primarily of laboratory research. The student would also be expected to attend seminars and submit a report at the end of the summer concerning the result of his research.

Any interested student should speak to Dr. Harvey in Williams Hall to obtain applications. The deadline for applications is March 15.
