State To Play Host To Foreign Student Day This Week

Two hundred foreign students attending colleges throughout North Carolina will participate in "International Student Day" this Saturday at State College.

The meeting, which is sponsored by the Governor's Commission on International Student Relations, will begin at 9:30 a.m. and end in late afternoon. Upon arriving at State Saturday morning, the students will tour points of interest on campus and in Raleigh. Following the tour, the students will attend a luncheon at which Governor Sanford will speak and then be led on a tour of the Governor's Mansion.

After the luncheon the students will attend one of the many seminars being held by prominent state leaders. Some of the speakers at the seminars are Thad Eure, Sec. of State of N. C.; L. Y. Ballentine, state commissioner of agriculture; and Justice William H. Bobbitt of the State Supreme Court.

IDC Plans Car Wash Area

State College students will have a car wash area.

This was disclosed yesterday by Ernie Freeland, president of the Interdormitory Council. The car wash will be located behind the Naval Reserve Building and will accommodate from 4 to 6 cars at a time. According to Freeland, it is hoped that the car wash will be ready by May at the latest.

The car wash area, although designed primarily for student use, will be also open to faculty members.

The idea for a student car wash originated about three months ago in the IDC.

All-Campus Sing

State College organizations will sing for a trophy April 8.

In this contest for choral groups, the winning group in each division (dormitory, social fraternity, and open) is decided on by a panel of three judges and is presented a trophy certifying its championship.

Each group, with a minimum number of twelve people, will sing the Alma Mater and one other number of its own choosing.

Rules and registration may be obtained at 206 Holaday Hall; advice and music may be obtained from J. Perry Watson at 104 Pullen Hall. The deadline for entering is March 30 and the performance will be in the College Union ballroom.

The All-Campus Sing is sponsored by Mu Beta Psi musical fraternity.

Math Prof Chosen Visiting Lecturer At U. of Chicago

Dr. Howard M. Nahikian, professor of mathematics at State College, will be a visiting lecturer at the University of Chicago during the spring quarter. The State College professor will present a series of seminars designed to further understanding in applying mathematics to the study of the biological sciences.

The seminars will be attended by graduate and undergraduate students as well as faculty members of the University of Chicago's Division of Biological Sciences. Dr. Nahikian was invited to give the seminars by the University's Committee on Mathematics Biology, which has pioneered in the application of mathematics in the study of biology.

Tarheel Authors Lecture At CU

By Mike Lea

A group of North Carolina writers expressed concern over the fact that the South is rapidly losing its individuality here last night.

The three native authors, Lucy Daniels Inman, Manley Wade Wellman, and Guy Owen, who spoke at the North Carolina Literary Forum which is an annual panel discussion differed in their views of "a changing South," but they all felt that North Carolina and North Carolinians are losing much of their past.

Wellman described the South as "becoming more and more like the North," and went on to say this was "frightening." Mrs. Inman differed in her views and said that this might be good because it will "make us compete on better terms with the rest of the nation." Owen said that the change might be for the worst but forswore a "new kind of regionalism" coming to the South. He said that although the South will become more and more like the rest of the nation, that it will still keep a distinctness.

"Capades" Planned For Coliseum Ice This Weekend

By Carlos Williams

It took four railroad cars, two pullmen, and thirteen trucks to bring the Ice Capades to State College. Even before their arrival, the maintenance crew of the Coliseum was busy activating the large floor freezing unit in order to make the necessary ice. By curtain time, the stage and technical crews had prepared an elaborate mechanical curtain system and numerous stage and scenery props.

In the last eleven months, the skaters have traveled over 35,000 miles, most of which were by train. One of the group, Pat Forbes, a young Philadelphian who joined the Capades just two months ago, remarked that she "liked it very much, except for those train trips, they're awful!"

Of June Wilkinson

NCS Visit Nixed

By J. W. Williams

June Wilkinson, allegedly 42-21-39 (?), lost the chance to appear on the State College campus Saturday to Governor Sanford (measurements unknown).

According to the sponsor of Miss Wilkinson's appearances in Raleigh, she was to appear here Saturday afternoon, March 24. "This was true," it was stated. "Unfortunately, it wasn't felt that we should allow her on campus. It seems that some people felt that she would create too much havoc."

According to an official of the College Union, the Union was not available for that afternoon because of a meeting scheduled at which Governor Sanford is to appear. The lounge of Bragaw Dorm is not available either. There just isn't any other place or lounge on campus that can accommodate the size of the group that she can be expected to attract.

Whether Miss Wilkinson "shouldn't be allowed on campus because of the havoc she would create," or whether "there just isn't room for her" doesn't really matter. Interested students can still catch a glimpse of the lady. She will be at the Western Lanes bowling alley Saturday at 2:30 p.m. with plenty of poses and autographs.

Something Of Value

Seniors are considering a gift to give to the school, and by their new "taxation" policy on graduation announcements will have enough money to present a very nice one.

Student Government President Norris Tolson recently announced that he had written a letter requesting the board and wire fences on campus be replaced with more attractive ones.

Why not consider these two unrelated items together?

The unsightly fences have been a source of student concern as long as we can remember, and we feel that the people in charge of this area of the campus have been very lax in considering student opinion. When there is continual dissatisfaction with a problem for more than six years, at least something should be accomplished, and as far as we can tell, there has been no improvement in the four years we have been viewing them.

We are certain that every senior has noticed the fences and remarked as we are that somebody should do something about them. Through their senior class gift, they can now do what they wanted others to.

It is reported that the class is considering a permanent structure near Hillsboro Street as its gift to the college, but this does not seem too practical to us. A permanent structure would be more impressive than our suggestion of fences, but it would not be as useful or as great a benefit to the college. In fact, a thousand gallons of paint with the stipulation it be used on the fences would do more for this college than a thousand permanent structures proclaiming the glory of the class that constructed it.

A CUBE Grassroot?

Last year a proposal to revamp State's semester system was announced and received plaudits from the administration, the faculty, and the student body.

This proposal which was called the CUBE (Compact Unit for Better Education) system calls for a splitting of the two semesters into four half-semesters and a subsequent cut in class load. To us and the faculty members who made this proposal, it seems to combat the two worst facets of the semester system—the scheduling of too many courses simultaneously and the extreme length of the learning period.

Although last year the faculty voted in favor of the proposal, it is rumored that its chances of passing the Faculty Senate are becoming slimmer.

We will admit that we have not made as comprehensive a study of the system as the Faculty Senate, but we do feel that we can state the student body's opinion much better than they. We urge the faculty to not just consider their viewpoint on this question, but also the students. If this proposal will improve learning conditions and student knowledge of course, this factor should be weighted more heavily than any other. After all, what is a school for if not to educate its students in the best possible manner. —ML

'South Depicted Unfairly'

These remarks were made after questioning from the floor.

The topic of the discussion was "North Carolina Material for North Carolina Writers."

All three felt that North Carolina was a very fruitful locale on which to write, but also made the statement that people are more important than places in any book. All three also agreed that the "Tobacco Road writers" who show the most sordid and bizarre aspects of Southern life depict an unfair picture of the South. Owen did say, however, that since it was present it should not be ignored.

The moderator for the discussion was Sam Regan, executive editor of 'The News and Observer.'

The discussion was sponsored by the College Union Library Committee, the Raleigh Woman's Club, and the Raleigh Junior Woman's Club.

Richard III Slated

For the students who missed the other two chances, the Players Inc. will offer the third presentation of Richard III this year tomorrow night.

If you missed seeing the movie, or the television production, then tomorrow will be your last chance.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. in the College Union Ballroom.

The players, a group of traveling performers who tour more than thirty-six states annually, is considered one of the foremost national classical repertory companies in the United States. They have more than twelve seasons of experience, as well as eight overseas tours.

Their presentation Friday night, Richard III, stars John Stears as Richard III, Carol Emshoff as mad Margaret, and Susan Walker as Lady Ann.

Tickets to the presentation may be picked up at the College Union main desk. They are free to any student or College Union member.

Gallery Shows Posters

By Curtiss Moore
"Art Noveau; Art and design at the turn of the century" is currently being displayed in the north gallery of the CU. The exhibition will be on display through Friday, April 6.

Noveau Art, which translated literally means new art, is being circulated throughout the United States by the Smithsonian Institution Travelling Exhibition Service. It consists of about 70 lithographed posters supplemented with a section of Art Noveau from local collections.

The posters are representatives of an international revolt which took place in the early 1900's against the traditional and commonplace in the arts. The movement, which often used free curving organic forms, grew out of the English Arts and Crafts movement.

Kappa Sig Beats Kappa Alpha To Win Title

Kappa Sigma won its first fraternity basketball title last night by stopping Kappa Alpha 41-34 in the finals of the fraternity playoffs. It was also a rubber game for the two teams as they had split regular season contests.

Thus, KA lost its bid to win two titles in the same season, having won the Dixie Classics crown earlier this year. It was a big victory for the Kappa Sig, after having a 3-3 record for the regular season and having to win a section playoff game to make the tournament.

The K. Sigs then won their first two games in the tournament to gain the finals against a team that had been the leader in their section. KA had to hustle hard to make the finals after being rated as the team to stop.

K. J. Krider and Steve Seawright paced the way in the low scoring contest with 11 and 10 points respectively. Kappa Alpha had a well balanced scoring attack with Monk being the only man to reach double figures with 10 points.

The contest was tight through the first period with KA holding a one point edge. However, a cold streak towards the end of the half cost KA the lead as Krider pumped in six quick markers for Kappa Sig to give them a 23-16 lead at intermission.

The play was slowed down considerably in the second half as Kappa Sig had trouble handling the ball, but KA could not cut down the lead due to a poor shooting percentage. Kappa Sig still led by six at the third quarter.

KA tried to press in the last period but could not close the gap. The Kappa Sig lead stayed the same down to the final total of 41-34.

Wolfpack Wins 5-0 In Rain - Shortened Contest

State's baseball team picked up their first win of the young season by stopping Dartmouth 5-0 in a game that was called in the sixth inning due to rain. The win gave State an even split in the two game series with the Indians.

The bright spot of the overcast day was the pitching performance of State's John Boughan. The right-hander, who pitched to only three men last season, was very effective in giving up only three hits. He looked as if he will be Coach Vic Sorrell's answer to a second pitcher to back up veteran Bobby Conner.

The Wolfpack got to Dartmouth starter Don French for a run in the first inning on walks to Vern Strickland and Don Montgomery and a run scoring single by Wayne Edwards. Another run was added in the third when Strickland doubled and scored when Montgomery's ground ball was error.

Les Young got the third run on a big 370 foot clout over the left field fence to lead off the fourth inning.

As the rain started falling in the Wolfpack half of the sixth, Wayne Edwards doubled.

Young followed with a single to drive in his second run of the day. Young moved all the way round to score on two throwing errors on attempted pickoff plays.

The contest was halted once in the sixth for a few minutes. When play resumed, Warren Lineberger walked to keep the rally going. Then the rain halted the play for good.

Boughan started the day off with slight trouble in both the first and second innings when a walk and a single gave the Indians two base runners with only one out. Good defensive play pulled him out of the jam both times.

From that point on, Boughan got stronger as he allowed only one man to reach third base the rest of the game.

Line Score:
Dartmouth 000 000-0 3 3
State 101 102-5 6 1
French & Murar; Boughan & Hayworth.

The Wolfpack will face another northern school for a two game series when Kent State invades on Friday and Saturday. Games will begin at 3 o'clock each afternoon. Kent State lost to Wake Forest yesterday by a 2-1 score.

has the equipment to furnish the ice for the show, in many locations this is not so. Therefore, the Ice Capades provides their own ice apparatus which has made it possible for them to perform in such places as ball parks and auditoriums.

The cast of the Ice Capades consists of approximately one-hundred skating dancers. According to Jack Balmer, the manager of the group, in the last ten years some two thousand people have been employed. However, he pointed out that many of the cast have been with the group for as many as eight to ten years.

Skaters from all parts of the world are performing with the Capades. A more recent addition is Laurie Wetherill. Laurie, who is from London, England, was active with the American show, "Holiday on Ice" while it toured England. In addition she has skated with a similar Canadian show in New Foundland.

Just last summer the Ice Capades spent ten weeks in Moscow, Russia. Here they performed for Nikita Khurshchev and Yuri Gagarin. During this trip alone they traveled over 15,000 miles.
