Students Form Early Queue In Dorm Quest Frats Given Free Choice On Row Plan

Early Line Formed By Students Seeking New Bragaw Rooms

By Doug Lientz
One hundred and seventy-one students were waiting in line in front of the Student Housing Office to get rooms in Bragaw for next year at 12:30 last night. They were planning to stay the night.

Although there were well over 100 spaces available, these students were sure that they would lose their place in Bragaw if they failed to remain the entire time until the Student Housing Office opened at 8 a.m. this morning.

The line started forming about 12:30 and continued to grow slowly throughout the afternoon. At one point someone came up with the idea of making a roll and checking it once an hour rather than stand in a static line. This made it possible to sit around, playing cards or studying.

At 5:30, Slater Foods opened the training room over the Dairy Processing Center for those waiting in line and agreed to come around and sell coffee at 10 p.m. Everyone waiting in line was grateful for this promise.

This is Bragaw, a $2,000,000, ultramodern dormitory also known as the Waldorf-Astoria at State College. It is the largest dorm on campus, housing 816 students. Last night more than 150 ambitious students stood in line at the Student Housing Office to request rooms for next year.

Definite rules for answering the roll were set up as time passed. It was decided that until 4 a.m. any person could answer for any four people. After that time, everyone on the list was required to be present. Also, a tentative list of room assignments was made up listing the room preferences of those at the top of the list.

During the evening, the hotfoot was attempted as a means of entertainment. Ronald Bowers, one of the waiting students, slept through two efforts to disturb him in this way.

Throughout the night, several students who did not want rooms in Bragaw were making money by answering for their lazier friends.

Several students brought in their musical instruments during the evening and began disturbing the few who were trying to study. The number of successful hot-foot also increased.

Some of the students running for campus offices tried campaigning on and off all night. They were not very successful; whenever they almost talked someone into voting for them, someone else would start a roll call and put an end to that effort.

As time passed, coffee boiling outfits and bed rolls were set up and card games grew in number. The students waiting seemed determined to hold their places in line and gain rooms in Bragaw in the morning.

By Carlos Williams
The college will exert no pressure on fraternities to move on to the projected Fraternity Row, according to James J. Stewart, dean of Student Affairs. Thus some fraternities may elect to remain off-campus indefinitely. These fraternities will, however, be required to meet the same standards as the fraternities on campus.

These conditions will include compliance with certain fire and sanitary regulations, as well as the employment of a resident housemother.

Dean Stewart said yesterday,

"I don't think we will try to force any fraternity to move on to the campus. We would hope that all the fraternities would want to move after they see what we have to offer them on Fraternity Row."

This statement was made as the result of a recent petition to the City of Raleigh by the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity to obtain permission to enlarge their house. Their efforts were disapproved by the college administration through Dean Stewart.

Fences Defended

M & O feels that the students responsible for tearing down the board fences on campus are acting irresponsibly.

"The fences are placed in crucial spots to prevent students from killing the grass and shrubs which are being used to beautify the campus," said J. McCree Smith, M & O director.

WOW!

Smith's complaints were brought about by a rash of destructive episodes recently in which whole sections of fence have been destroyed. Fences around the library and the College Union were hardest hit in recent raids.

Smith went on to say that five years ago this campus was almost completely covered with eroded red clay, and that if students continued to wear down the grass, it will be that way again.

Mr. Smith admitted that in some areas the available walks are inadequate but that M and O is trying to correct this situation as fast as possible with its limited resources.

State Student Picked For Cross Roads Project

By Cora Kemp
Operation Cross Roads may have many connotations, but to one State College student, it means a summer in Africa.

Myron Williams, a junior in electrical engineering and a native of Dunbar, West Virginia, will be one of 300 students from the United States and Canada making the trip to Africa to participate in Operation Cross Roads Africa.

Operation Cross Roads Africa is a nationally private group organized in 1958 by James H. Robinson, a member of the Board of Directors for the Peace Corps. Its purpose is to communicate with the Africans culturally, educationally, and religiously.

On June 17, the 300 students participating in the program will go to Washington, D. C., for five days of orientation. They will then go to New York City and fly by jet to Africa.

The students have been assigned to various places in Africa. In each town, a group of approximately 12 students will work side by side with a group of Africans on a special project during the summer. They will live with the local citizens.

Myron will be in Nyasaland. His group will construct an athletic field. Myron explained that he did not yet know any other details about his particular project.

Three other students from North Carolina will also be participating in Operations Cross Roads: a Meredith student, Sally Graham; a Bowman Gray medical student, Carolyn Virden; and Barren Lee, of Appalachian State Teachers College. More than 4,000 applications were submitted from students throughout the U. S. and Canada.

The North Carolina BSU is paying $500 of the estimated cost of $900 per student to each of the four N. C. participants.

The State College BSU is raising the additional $400 for Myron through solicitations from Baptist students, churches, and other interested persons. At the present time, they lack $150.

No Sleep Again

Has everyone studied his examination schedule?

A friend of ours did, and the blood drained from his face. He noticed that out of the first nine examination periods, he had to go to eight. If he were just an isolated case, there would be no argument; but after speaking to many students, we have found that nearly everyone at this school has examinations crammed together the first few days of exam week, and relatively few at the last.

Of course, there are going to be hours when more people attend classes than others. Morning classes carry the brunt of student participation, and it is interesting to notice that all morning classes have examinations scheduled before Tuesday, and that there are only two afternoon classes in the same period. The last three days are filled completely with examinations for afternoon classes.

Although the administration added an extra day to the examination schedule, we question how much this really helps the student body. How many people have classes Monday at 3 p.m. and Tuesday at 4 p.m.? These are scheduled for the last day.

We will admit that having the major part of the examinations at the first of the week may make it possible for people to leave school earlier, but we would be happy to trade two days for a few quality points.

Campaign Policy

Since we will be deluged with campaign material in the next few weeks, we would like to state our policy on publication.

We will carry as much of the campaign news as possible, but we will edit it and cut out portions we feel to be unimportant. Pertinent subjects, such as platforms and brief statements from candidates, will be accepted.

Originality Needed

Although posters have not yet been plastered on the campus, anyone present at the meeting for all candidates is aware that campaigning for the spring elections is well underway.

When students arrive on campus, after Easter, they will be greeted by hand-outs, the posters, and the usual display of no originality. Don't blame us if we don't get too excited.

Letter Writer Blasts Administration

To the Editor

The unprecedented action arbitrarily taken by the office of Student Affairs earlier this week concerning AGR's petition for a change in zone status in the vicinity of their fraternity house is but another straw added to the aching back of the camel (student body) in recent months. How long are the students of this institution going to tolerate such crass interference in their affairs?

Let me state here and now that I am not a social frat man, nor do I hold with all of their views, but such action, along with the statement released to the press stating that "Establishment of further social fraternities is not encouraged..." is entirely too much to sit back and swallow quietly. If a group of college men wish to bond together to further the aims of brotherhood, friendship, and scholarship, just who are these sacrosanct tin gods of Holladay Hall to say them nay.

Little by little we are losing all measures of freedom that students are entitled to and should be entitled to under a proper academic atmosphere. In the four years that I have been here, I have seen our freedoms shrink to smaller proportions each year. The educational process should take place in a free, uninhibited atmosphere, not in one of ironclad dogma and attitudes toward the students of a nature resembling "They're just students, it doesn't matter what they think."

The whole problem with this current "mess" is probably the fact that someone in Holladay Hall resents AGR's pulling out of the long-fabled fraternity row project. Let's face it, there is a money grabbing, irritable little man somewhere in the administration who just hates to see a penny slip by without making a grab at it.

If some of the social frats want to stay off campus, they should be allowed to. Let them stay in their antiquated hovels and not enjoy the privileges of paying outrageous prices for accommodation in one of the modern, fireproof, cracking, crumbling, sinking, poorly designed, poorly built ratholes which Holladay Hall wants to force them into. For an example of the quality of construction that the college has purchased in the past few years, look at our fine college union, with its crumbling foundation, cracking walls, buckling floors, and outward leaning supporting columns; or, perchance you remember the floating of Harrelson Hall's supporting members in that fine structural material, red North Carolina mud; a little work with a plumb line and transit or level will show that this million dollar nightmare is already out of plumb, due to improper foundation material, no doubt.

Holladay Hall's course is clear: extract all that you can get from the students, giving them in exchange a mediocre education and "Big Brother" tactics. Why should they listen to student opinion on any matter? The students' parents are only taxpayers, and the students, tomorrow's leaders, are only "punk kids".

If the unthinking invasion of student rights by the old-fashioned, reactionary, pedagogues of Holladay Hall does not cease, something must happen. Fellow students, I submit to you that if something does not happen to clear up this thoughtless intrusion into student rights, we must take as our rallying cry

"Students, arise! You have nothing to lose but your chains!"

To the "gentlemen" in Holladay Hall I respectfully submit that this is 1962, not 1862. Times have changed. If you want to keep a quiescent student body, you must change too.

Academic freedom and freedom from oppression apply to students too.

"If this be treason, make the most of it"

"Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité."

Respectfully submitted, in the hopes that "this vile oppression may be lifted from us"

At BSU Capital Punishment Debated

By Cora Kemp

Capital punishment was debated at the Baptist Student Union Center Friday night.

The Reverend Ed Christman, a chaplain at Wake Forest College, stimulated the State College and Meredith students at the weekly World View Forum into a rousing debate when he bluntly stated his desire for the abolition of capital punishment.

Capital punishment should be abolished, according to Christman, because no man has the right to "play God" and take the life of another man.

The subject of capital punishment is now being brought up by abolitionists to arouse the public, said Christman. "The lack of action in the legislature obviously illustrates that the people have not been made aware of the intensity of this situation."

No final decision on the matter was reached by the students as a group. However, Christman remained steadfast in his belief despite the swaying controversy.

S. Chi Wins Badminton; S P E Leads In Points

Sigma Chi came out of the loser's bracket to win the badminton championship from Phi Kappa Tau.

However, Sigma Phi Epsilon captured third place in the sport to remain on top in the overall point standings.

Wilbur Mozingo and Jim Hart provided the big wins for the Sigs in winning two matches from the Phi Taus in the badminton finals. Both men were victorious in singles against PKT's Bob Pindell and Lloyd Bost.

The Sig's doubles team of Bob Griffith and Carlos Escallon split their two matches with Bill McCleny and Terry Phillips.

Third place went to the Sig Eps while Delta Sigma Phi captured fourth place.

The Sig Eps have amassed 877 points through the eight fall and winter sports to hold a comfortable first place lead in the point standings. Sigma Nu is the closest competition with a total of 742½ points, well off the pace.

Phi Kappa Tau moved into third place through their high finish in badminton with 729 points. Sigma Chi also advanced on the strength of badminton to fourth with 718 points.

Matthews Is Grid Capt.

The State football team has elected Skip Matthews of Hartford to be the captain of the Wolfpack squad for next fall.

The 6'1", 210-pound guard has been a regular for the past two seasons. He will be starting at the right guard spot when the Pack takes the field this fall.

Matthews succeeds quarterback Roman Gabriel as team captain. He was selected in a ballot by the veteran members of the team.

Skip is a zoology major. He has recently been elected president of the newly formed Fellowship of Christian Athletes club and serves as vice president of the Monogram Club.

Coach Earle Edwards was well pleased in the selection of the new captain. He feels that Skip will be a fine field leader for the 1962 team.

Boughan Stops Blue Devils

John Boughan tossed a three-hitter at Duke to win his third straight game of the season as State defeated the Blue Devils 5-2.

Jimmy Kirkman supplied the batting power with a single, double, and game winning homer as the Wolfpack revenged an earlier loss to Duke.

The win was the first conference win in two games for State. They will be going after their second victory on Tuesday afternoon when the squad travels to Chapel Hill for a game with the Tar Heels.

Kirkman, a sophomore from Charlotte, broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning with a line drive over the right field fence. He had earlier driven in the first run of the game with a single in the third.

Boughan was in top form as he kept the Blue Devil bats silent. The sixth inning provided the only trouble when Duke scored twice on a single, a walk, and a throwing error that let both runners tally.

The loss went to Dick Densmore, his first in six games. He gave up eight

Career Cues

"Cure for job boredom: I made my favorite pastime my career!"

Richard Bertram, President
Bertram Yacht Co., Division of Nautec Corp.

"When you stop to think what percent of our total waking hours is spent bread-winning, you realize how tragic it is for any man to work at an occupation he doesn't enjoy. Besides frittering away life, it reduces chances of success to just about zero. I know... because it almost happened to me!

After college, I did what I thought was expected of me and joined a solid, Manhattan-based insurance firm. I soon found office routine wasn't for me. I lived only for lunch hour when I could walk to the Battery and mentally sail with the ships that stood out in the Narrows... and for the summer weekends when I could go sailing. Fortunately, the company I worked for is one of the leading insurers of yachts and after two years I was transferred to their Yacht Underwriting Department. Enjoyment and interest in my work improved immediately 100%.

After World War II, I started my own yacht brokerage firm and yacht insurance agency in Miami, combining my marine insurance background with an even closer relationship with boats.

My only problem ever since has been a feeling of guilt that my work was too easy. I love boats and boating people. That affection has paid me rewards way beyond the financial security it has also provided.

The moral's obvious. You have an odds-on chance for success and happiness working at what you enjoy most—what comes naturally! And if it's not just frivolous, your life's work could well be what you now consider just a pastime. It's certainly worth thinking about, anyway!"

Richard Bertram, while still in his early thirties, became one of the country's leading yacht brokers. Today he heads up eight companies covering yacht manufacturing, insurance, repair, storage, finance and brokerage. A resident of Coconut Grove, Florida, Dick became a Camel fan while still in college.

And to make any time pass more enjoyably...

lost and Pete McDonald of Sigma Chi for treasurer.

It was also decided at the meeting that three men from each fraternity will help the American Cancer Society with its fund raising drive next Tuesday.

Plans for the IFC banquet to be held after Easter and the IFC field day scheduled for April 27 were discussed.

Row Choice

Stewart had this to say: "We cannot advocate the enlargement or construction of any fraternity house in a residential neighborhood. The proposed movement of all the fraternities out of residential areas was one of the main reasons that the college received the authority to build the new project."

He pointed out that many of the present fraternity houses are undesirable because of crowded living conditions and unsafe fire provisions. He also added that the location of fraternity houses in areas where older couples and families live "just doesn't work out for the best."

Several of the six fraternities which presently have no plans to move on campus cited financial difficulty as the primary reason for their decision to retain their present locations. Dean Stewart, however, explained that it will cost fraternity men about $25 a month to live on Fraternity Row in comparison to about $20 to live in a dormitory. He added that the association with other fraternity men and the conveniences of the modern houses should be "well worth" the money.

In regard to the attitude of the administration toward fraternities, Dean Stewart remarked, "We maintain that fraternity can do a lot both for the boys and for the college. We are not anti-fraternity. I think that we have proved that. We are out to help the fraternities. We want to establish some positive plans for those fraternities that are not included in the present project."

According to the present schedule, bids should be let for Fraternity Row by the first of summer and construction started by fall. The occupation date is set for September, 1963.

He went on to say that the students who are tearing down the fences are non-thinking and irresponsible. He said that they probably thought that they were rendering a service to the college by wrecking the fences.

Continuing, he said that he knows the fences are ugly and that he would like to see them removed. He stated, however, that the exposed clay in the areas protected by the fences is worse looking than the fences and that the fences would remain until students stopped using these areas as walkways.

THE TRUE AND TRAGICAL TALE OF HAPPY JACK SIGAFOOS

Who would have thought that Happy Jack Sigafoos, the boy the sky never rained on, would teeter on the edge of a life of crime?

Certainly there was no sign of it in his boyhood. His home life was tranquil and uplifting. His mother was a nice fat lady who hummed a lot and gave baskets to the poor. His father was a respected citizen who could imitate more than 400 bird calls and once saved an elderly widow from drowning in his good suit. (That is, Mr. Sigafoos was in his good suit; the elderly widow was in swimming trunks.) Happy Jack's life was nothing short of idyllic—till he went off to college.

Here Happy Jack quickly became a typical freshman—tweedy, seedy, and needy. He learned the joys of rounding out his personality, and he learned the cost. His allowance vanished like dew before the morning sun. There were times, it grieves me to report, when he didn't even have enough money for a pack of Marlboro Cigarettes—and you know how miserable that can be! To be deprived of Marlboro's matchless flavor, its easy-drawing filter, its subtly blended tastiness, its refreshing mildness, its ineffable excellence, its soft pack or flip-top box—why, it is a prospect to break the heart in twain!

Marlboro-less and miserable, Happy Jack tried to get more money from home. He wrote long, impassioned letters, pointing out that the modern, large-capacity girl simply could not be courted on his meager allowance. But all Jack got back from home were tiresome homilies about thrift and prudence.

Then one dark day a sinister sophomore came up to Jack and said, "For one dollar I will sell you a list of fiendishly clever lies to tell your father when you need some extra money."

He gave Jack the list of fiendishly clever lies. Jack read:

1. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy a new house for the Dean of Men.
2. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy a headstone for Rover, our late beloved dormitory watchdog.
3. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to endow a chair of Etruscan Art.
4. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to build our own particle accelerator.

For a moment poor Jack was tempted; surely his father could not but support all these laudable causes. Then Jack's good upbringing came to the fore. He turned to the sinister sophomore and said, "No, thank you. I could not deceive my aged parent so. And as for you, sir, I can only say—fie!"

Upon hearing this the sinister sophomore broke into a huge grin. He whipped off his black hat and pasty face—and who do you think it was? None other than Mr. Sigafoos, Happy Jack's father, that's who!

"Good lad!" cried Mr. Sigafoos. "You have passed your test brilliantly." With that he gave Happy Jack a half million dollars in small bills and a red convertible containing power steering and four nubile maidens.
