IFC Newsletter To Be Published On Trial Basis

This year the I.F.C. will publish a newsletter, according to Mike Perry, publicity director for the I.F.C.

Perry announced today that for the first time this year his group will produce a news bulletin. He explained that the paper is to be a review of the activities of the I.F.C. and the individual fraternities for the past year.

"The newsletter," said Perry, "is being put out this year on an experimental basis. However, if our attempts are successful, we hope to publish it as often as twice a semester next year."

The newsletter is to be sent to fraternity men here at State as well as other schools in the Southeast.

Graduating Seniors Given Instructions On Caps, Gowns

Graduating seniors will not stand in long, hot lines for graduation caps and gowns this spring.

To obtain graduation uniforms, according to Bill Tant, director of purchasing for the college's stores, seniors may drop by the Student Supply Store during the week before the commencement, get fitted for a cap, and leave with both cap and gown. No payment will be necessary there.

Tant also mentioned that a large supply of graduation invitations have been received. Student orders may now be picked up, and all of the surplus will be on sale at the store.

According to Tant, there will be a sufficient number of gowns available to complement all sizes and shapes of students. No advance measuring and fitting will be required. The cap and gown fee of $9 will be withdrawn from the senior's general deposit.

Ag Council Sponsors Awards Supper

A free barbeque supper drew more than 500 agricultural students to Pullen Park.

The free supper, which was held for the first time, was sponsored by the Ag Council. All ag students were invited.

Presentation of special awards followed the barbeque meal.

Director of the College Union, Henry Bowers, presents to Miss Dora Ann Clark a life membership for the College Union.

Little Theater Play Available Free To State Students

The College Union Theater Committee will make it possible for State students to again attend a Raleigh Little Theater play.

The play, "A Majority of One," needs little introduction to most theater-goers. This laugh-provoking comedy, which had a successful Broadway run, and was made into an equally successful movie, will be presented by the Raleigh Little Theater May 10-19.

Mary Lyman, Hugh Overturf, Bill Morgan, Carol Cohen, John Fox, and Doris Dworsky will appear in the portrayal of a meeting of Jewish and Japanese cultures.

State College students may see the play free of charge on Sunday, May 13, or on Tuesday, May 15, by reserving tickets for themselves.

From Highway Commission College Gets Grant

Seventy-five thousand dollars a year has been added to the State College highway research program.

This additional grant, which was approved April 12, brings the amount which this program receives from the State Highway Commission to $175,000 per year. Additional funds and materials are given to the program by businesses interested in highway research.

This program started in 1958 with four projects. At the present time, fifteen projects are in progress. Two of its projects have been completed, and four more are scheduled for completion this June.

Among the program's accomplishments to date is the construction of two full sized bridges for experimental purposes. One of these is a thirty foot prestressed concrete bridge nolds Cole, Wildlife; and Robert Matthews, Pre-Veterinarian.

Ag Council pins were presented to the senior council members by Dr. Homer C. Folks, head of the Ag Institute. Those receiving pins were Cleo Robertson, David McCall, David Mustian, Ivan Rash, Ervin Lineberger, Wilbur Webb, Hugh Bowles, Bobby Lancaster, and Harold Jones.

Union Rededicated At Awards Banquet

Chancellor Caldwell dedicated the Erdahl-Cloyd Union last night at the Union's Annual Awards Banquet.

Relatives of the late Gerald O. T. Erdahl, as well as former Dean of Students Edward Lamar Cloyd, were on hand to witness the dedication.

Thirty-one awards were presented to outstanding faculty and committee members at the banquet, which was attended by over 300 students and faculty members.

In his keynote speech, Chancellor Caldwell rededicated the College Union as the Erdahl-Cloyd Union in honor of the late director, Gerald O. T. Erdahl, and the former Dean of Student Edward Lamar Cloyd. Dr. Caldwell called the Union, "a balance wheel for students and faculty," and praised it for its many services to the college community.

Following the Chancellor's speech, Bill Guion, the outgoing president of the College Union, and Willard

Barbee, next year's Erdahl-Cloyd Union president, presented life memberships and other special awards to faculty and student members. Among the recipients were Henry Bowers, the present CU Director, and Richard Heaton, Business Manager, who received life memberships. Among the special award recipients were Dr. A. Bernard Shelley, who received the Outstanding College Union Advisor Award, Bill Guion, who received a special award for his services as president, and Gene Messik, who received two awards, the Bringle-Phillips Award and the Alfred E. Neuman Award. The Neuman award is awarded for the student who creates the most chaos in the College Union.

Other awards included the presentation of keys to the outgoing committee chairmen. Recipients were: Henry Davis, Wayne Adams, Bill Carroll, Eddie Elkins, Francis Buckley, Gene Messik, Mac Lattam, Art Geasland, Dwight Polk, Grace Elrod, Angelo Mitchell, and Ray Bradey.

Other recipients of life memberships were Dora Ann Clark, Dr. Abraham

UN Ambassador From Panama To Talk At CU

How does the United States stand with Panama?

An attempt to answer this question will be made by the United Nations ambassador from Panama Sunday night. He will be at the College Union.

Dr. Cesar Quintero, who is the permanent representative from Panama to the UN, will speak on the relations between Panama and the U. S. with particular reference to the status and future of the Panama Canal. His lecture will explain the present tension that exists between the two countries.

Dr. Quintero is also the chairman of the Legal Committee, one of the six main Committees of the UN General Assembly.

The lecture, which is sponsored by the CU Forum Committee, will be held in the CU Ballroom Sunday night at 8:15.

Chi Epsilon Initiates Nine, Elects Officers

Bill Cox has been elected president of Chi Epsilon, the national honorary civil engineering fraternity.

At the same meeting John Steele was elected vice president; Doug Taylor, treasurer; Smedes York, secretary; and Rod Andrew, associate editor of Transit, the State College civil engineering magazine.

Also, nine new members have been initiated into Chi Epsilon. They are Marvin Beasley, George Reed, Rod Andrew, Charles Sigmon, Edd Hauser, James Lynch, Lew Clontz, Tom Coffey, and Doug Taylor.

Lambda Chi Celebrates Founders Day

Campus Crier

The Symphonic Band will present the second in its series of Outdoor "Pops" Concerts on Friday night at 7 p.m. on the C.U. terrace.

Ambassador Cesar Quintero, U.N. representative from Panama, will speak in the C.U. Ballroom on Sunday, May 13, at 8:15 p.m. on the subject of the relations between Panama and

Surprise Ending

We're still looking to find some segment of the State College administration which has not received caustic criticism from this editorial column.

Student Affairs, Business Office, Registrar, Maintenance and Operations, Chancellor's Office . . . you name it—we've blamed it.

And you can bet your boots that as long as ideas and suggestions and comments exist in this office, they will be expressed with sincerity and frankness. The editorial writer, as well acquainted with the campus situation as he may be, is after all just a man with an opinion and a desire to voice it.

Words can be directed for or against individuals, organizations, legislative and administrative bodies, and general concepts—that is the way things are in a newspaper, and the situation can easily be taken for granted.

It is seldom that a note is made of who actually is responsible for The Technician. Our newspaper exists through student support and effort; publication is maintained through the good graces and cooperation of the college administration and staff as well.

This is certainly a student newspaper; the views expressed do not always correspond to overall student opinion, and that might be a good thing. Holladay Hall, however, has no control and influence over editorial comments and news content, so long as rules of responsibility and decency are observed.

This places The Technician in a peculiar spot; at times we attack either the group which supports us financially (excluding advertisers, to whom we are most kind) or the element which allows us to live. Our views are not always "con", of course; in any event, the ideas expressed here are written for beneficial purposes.

The administration does bear the brunt of editorial blasts; many Holladay officials keep right on cooperating with us and speaking to us despite frequent blows on the chin. Realize, of course, that editorial comments might just be like the yips of a puppy at their heels. Reactions from the administration have shown us, however, that State College is blessed with many devoted staff and faculty personnel, who are trying their best to do a good job. It is hoped that student ideas from this and other sources are worth the consideration they frequently receive.

The people who think the most of The Technician are the crazy, hard-working guys and gals who have headaches three times a week putting it out. We hope that our efforts result in a worthwhile contribution to the State College community. A note of thanks for the respect, support, and cooperation extended to the staff from all sides is certainly in order.

But watch out, brother!

Who knows where the axe will fall next!

Design School Culprit Remains Uncaptured

By Eddie Bradford

No progress has been made in the investigation of the recent theft from the design school.

Detective R. L. Bunn of the Raleigh police force is in charge of the investigation. Bunn made the following comments late last night:

"We believe that the person who took the object from the design building did not know its value at the time that it was taken. We also think that when he later learned that the piece of sculpture is very valuable, he became afraid to return it."

The police department has issued a statement to the Raleigh Times calling for the person who took the sculpture to return it to the design school. According to Detective Bunn, no charges will be pressed if the person will do this.

For Designing Building

Student Wins Scholarship

The design of a multi-story apartment building has earned a student in the School of Design a $1,000 scholarship.

Charles L. McMurray, a fourth year student in architecture, won the scholarship in the fifth annual national Student Design Competition. He was awarded the scholarship by the Tar Products Division of Koppers Company, Inc., of Pittsburgh.

McMurray, whose hometown is Spruce Pine, N. C., said that he considered his accomplishments "a great honor." He also said, "I think my fellow classmates did a wonderful job in the competition. I was lucky to win."

McMurray's competition consisted of the entire fourth year design class at State College. Six other schools were competing in the national contest. A $1,000 scholarship was awarded to the winner from each individual school to pay his fifth year tuition.

The contest has been held annually since 1957. The participating schools were selected on a geographical rotation basis from among the 67 member colleges and universities of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture.

Judging for the 1961-62 awards was held in Pittsburgh. Judges were Philip Johnson of Philip Johnson Associates, New York City; Douglas Haskell, editor of "Architectural Forum"; and Paul Schweikher, professor and head of the architecture department of Carnegie Institute of Technology.
