Student Opinion

The Student Government Relations Committee will present student suggestions for official University policies at an open meeting on Monday, May 10, to the Executive Board, elective student representatives.

The meeting will be open to the public and will provide students with an opportunity to discuss their concerns with the student governance body. Students are encouraged to attend and voice their opinions on the proposed policies.

The meeting will cover topics such as drug provision, the Student Government budget, and the role of student organizations in the University community.

The Student Government Relations Committee is committed to ensuring that student voices are heard and that their concerns are addressed in a timely and effective manner. Students are encouraged to participate in the meeting and provide feedback on the policies being discussed.

I strongly believe that the University should have a more open and transparent policy on drug provision. Currently, the University's policy is too restrictive and does not adequately address the needs of students.

The University should consider providing a safe and controlled environment for students to access necessary medications. This would help to ensure the health and well-being of students, while also reducing the risks associated with illegal drug use.

The University should also ensure that students are aware of their rights and responsibilities under the policy, and that they are provided with the necessary supports to make informed decisions about their health.

The University should work collaboratively with students to develop a policy that meets the needs of all stakeholders. This will require ongoing dialogue and consultation, and a commitment to addressing the concerns of all parties involved.

I urge the University to consider these suggestions and to work towards a policy that is fair, effective, and meets the needs of all students.

The principles behind Ole Miss’s “Living and Learning” program — which has come to redefine campus life — are being removed or made irrelevant for that matter even now. It had been tried at Ole Miss for about 17 years, and it had served its purpose. Now it is being replaced.

I understand that as many as 400 students, including students who were not even seniors, have been called to the Admissions Office in the past week or so.

Many of these students were not even seniors, but they did not know that this would happen. They were not sure if they would be able to continue their education at Ole Miss.

But now the administration has decided to make a change. They have said that they want to do something different.

I think this is a good idea. It will allow Ole Miss to continue moving forward and to be more innovative in the way it operates.

I hope that the new program will work well and that it will help to improve the overall campus experience for students.

Symphony Orchestra Will Participate In Festival

The Raleigh Symphony Orchestra will again participate in a symphony orchestra festival, since it was first held in 1968, at the University of North Carolina in Raleigh. This year marks the fourth year of the festival, which is sponsored by the North Carolina Music Festival. The festival, expected to attract an annual attendance of 1,000, will be held for three days in April 1968.

Dr. Donald R. Rhodes, also president of the orchestra, said that the festival will be held in Raleigh. The festival will feature a major symphony orchestra in collaboration with a local symphony orchestra. The symphony orchestra will be under the direction of Dr. Robert L. Meredith, who is also the president of the orchestra.

Rugby Team Defeats USC In First Match

The State Rugby Club began the season on a high note with a convincing 35-0 victory over the University of South Carolina. The match was played on the field in front of a enthusiastic crowd, with players displaying exceptional skill and teamwork throughout the game. The victory marks the first time the State Rugby Club has defeated USC in a competitive match, adding to its growing reputation as a formidable team in the region.

Steve Bunch and John Culvert, two key players for the team, led the charge with their dynamic performances. Bunch scored two try's in the game, showcasing his speed and agility on the field. Culvert, known for his strong tackles, contributed significantly to the team's defensive strategy. Their combined efforts helped secure the team's victory and solidify their position as leaders in the league.

The team's next match is scheduled for next Saturday, where they will face another challenging opponent. The players are already preparing themselves for the upcoming game, focusing on improving their teamwork and strategizing for the best possible outcome. The team's success so far is testament to their hard work and dedication, and they continue to look forward to the rest of the season with anticipation.

I wanted to work for a small company. It may sound crazy, but that's why I went with IBM.

"When I was in school, I dreaded the thought of working for some huge company where I'd be just another number," says IBM's Jim Hamilton. "Jim, who has a B.S. in Electrical Engineering, is a Systems Engineering Manager in Marketing.) At the same time, I knew there were definite advantages in working for a large firm. So as I interviewed each company, I checked into the degree of individuality I could expect there. "One of the main reasons I picked IBM was their decentralization. They've got over 300 locations throughout the country. Which to me means a big company with a small-company atmosphere."

IBM's small team concept
"Actually, there's plenty of decentralization even within each location. For instance, in science and engineering, they use a small team concept. It means, no matter how large the project, you work individually or as part of a small team—about four or five people. "In marketing, I was pretty much my own boss even before I became a manager. As a systems engineer, it's up to you to find the solution to a customer's problem, and then see it carried out in the optimum way. You work with the customer every step of the way."

There's a lot more to the IBM story than Jim has mentioned. For more information, visit your campus placement office or send an outline of your interests and educational background to F. C. Cammack, IBM Corp., Dept. C, 1447 Peachtree St., N.E., Rm. 810, Atlanta, Ga. 30309. We're an equal opportunity employer.
