Literary Mag Almost Ready For Release

State College's literary magazine is almost ready for publication.

The only things needed are a capable illustrator and a title. Rom Linney, director of the College Union Writing Workshop, announced last night that a sufficient amount of material is available to publish the first edition of NCS's first literary magazine.

The work now ready consists of poems, short stories, perhaps longer pieces, and one-act plays which have been criticized in workshop sessions, as well as some that have not been "raked over by workshop members."

However, Linney asserted that the lists are far from closed. He called for additional material from writers—both students and non-students—to appear in the magazine. Poems, plays, stories, and even novels may be submitted to Rom Linney, care of the College Union.

Linney also called for artists who would be interested in illustrating the magazine. He pointed out that, since the magazine is unnamed, suggestions for a title will be welcomed.

The Writer's Workshop has been meeting each Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. in the College Union. Conducted by Linney with the help of Professor Guy Owen of the English Department, the workshop has read and commented on short stories, has held poetry sessions, rec-

On WUNC-TV

Workshop To Appear

The College Union Theater Workshop will move to WUNC-TV next week.

The change will be announced tomorrow night by Rom Linney, director of the Workshop.

According to Linney, Workshop plays and criticism will be taped and presented over WUNC-TV in a special hour production. All meetings after this week will take place at WUNC-TV, Linney announced.

The Theater workshop will meet in Pullen Hall tomorrow night at 8 p.m. to discuss the move. Linney invited all interested persons to attend.

Linney stated that the move is being made with the co-operation of George Hall, manager of the television station. He expects the casting call for the first production "to be forthcoming."

Linney announced that the new format will be "an extension of the theater workshop." He invited "students and townspeople who are interested in theatrical and television production to attend the first meeting."

Parade To Feature Bands, Floats, Girls

By Billie Darden

State College will hold a homecoming parade for the first time in two years this Saturday at 10 a.m.

There will be fifty-three units in the parade. Included in the procession will be seven visiting bands, the State College Band, ten contestants for homecoming queen, and marching units from State, as well as floats.

Floats will be awarded trophies in fraternity, dormitory, and open divisions by the Raleigh Merchants Bureau. The three judges for the competition are Charles Craven, News and Observer staff writer, A. C. Snow, city editor of the Raleigh Times, and Norman Suttles of radio station WNOH. Their decisions will be based on originality, appearance, and presentation of theme.

The ten finalists in the homecoming queen contest chosen by Blue Key will ride in the parade. The winner of this contest will be chosen from 8:30 to 9:30 in the CU by Harriett Pressley from WPTF, Dr. Lodwick Hartly, head of the English department, and Ann Lesane, secretary at the guidance center.

Freshman Council Being Formed

A Freshman Council designed to assist the class officers is being formed at the present time.

This group, according to Chip Andrews, vice president of the Freshman Class, will consist of representatives of every housing area in which freshmen live, including off-campus groups. This group, according to Andrews, will be made up of twenty students who will meet monthly.

The primary purpose of the group will be to keep the class officers informed of the views of the members of the class.

Several ROTC units will march in the parade. Among them are three units from the Pershing Rifle Club, the Drum and Bugle Corps, the color guard, and two units of the Marching Cadets.

Highlights from the parade, which is sponsored by the Order of Thirty and Three, will be carried by WKNC which will also carry the game at 1:15 p.m. A $75 limit has been placed on expenditures for all floats. The IDC has set a $30 limit on dorm floats.

Many parents are likely to see the parade since they have been invited to a New Students Day for the first time this year. Other homecoming events will include a dance Saturday night at 8 p.m., and an open house for alumni.

Poster-Makers Protest Change Of State Name

Some State College students obviously don't like the idea of changing the name to UNC at Raleigh. Posters placed around the campus since the article appeared in The Technician about the proposed change in the name, show that some students like the name State University.

"State U. or fight, (write your congressman);" "State U. that's for you;" and other such slogans displayed the feelings of many State students.

These signs were a result of Consolidated University President William Friday's statement about the proposed change in the name of State College that he made before the Consolidated University Board of Trustees in Raleigh Monday.

A Study Of The National Student Association

The National Student Association has received much criticism on campuses in the South. For this reason, we are running a series of editorials on the organization. This editorial explores national aspects of the association, and later ones will comment on N. S. A. on the campus and comment on methods of improving its programs at State College.

Provincialism—exclusive interest in one's own section—is more prevalent in the South than any other part of the country with the possible exception of a few New England states.

Our country, in its ideological fight with Communism, is finding itself more and more concerned with foreign affairs and our image abroad. It has found that isolationism will not work in the modern world and that its people must have a national instead of a sectional outlook if it is to win in its conflict with Communism.

For these reasons, we view with alarm the moves on Southern campuses to disaffiliate from the National Student Association.

If the South is ever to assume a place in the mainstream of modern America it must forget its sectional heritage and become truly national in its outlook.

The National Student Association is a confederation of colleges in the United States which was formed in 1947 to represent student opinion on a national basis. In recent years, it has become identified with Civil Rights movements and most of the legislation which it passes represents the viewpoints of American liberals. For these reasons, many Southern schools have decided that their points of view are not being expressed and have dropped out of the association. In fact, State College nearly dropped out of the organization last year.

Objections to N.S.A. on the national level stem mostly from its very liberal stands on national and international issues, but after attending a national convention, we would have to disagree with any school's dropping out of the organization on this basis.

One characteristic of the convention which impressed us was the extreme democracy which it displayed. The national leaders and almost everyone in the organization went out of their way to insure complete freedom of action and expression for all delegates. An example of this occurred when a bill on nuclear testing came before the body. This bill was debated all night, and all viewpoints were expressed. Admittedly, it was passed in a form which was repugnant to the conservatives, and we voted against it; however, this takes nothing away from the convention's democratic nature. We will not say that college students are overwhelmingly liberal, but we will have to say that viewpoints of the N.S.A. delegates are.

The democratic nature was not what we found most impressive, however. The meeting of students from throughout the nation, and the seminars which were held, were found to be the most beneficial aspect of the convention.

It brought us into contact with people with widely varying views; and it taught us much about campus government and campus newspapers. We talked with and heard students from throughout the world. In short, it was probably the most educational ten days we ever spent. We had a more realistic outlook on campus, national, and international affairs; and in short, were less provincial in our own outlook. If everyone in the South had had our opportunity to attend such a convention, we would venture to say that both the South and our country would be greatly strengthened.

The Southern schools which withdraw from the organization are hurting themselves in two ways. First, they no longer have the opportunity to make their viewpoints known. Forty more votes on the convention floor would have defeated the bill on nuclear testing which conservatives fought so bitterly, and these forty votes could have been provided by ten major Southern schools which are no longer members of N.S.A. Secondly, when the schools withdraw from the organization, they no longer receive the stimulation and education one receives by meeting students from other parts of the nation in an intellectual atmosphere and are drawing themselves into a shell of sectionalism which is hurting both themselves and the nation.

NCS German Grad Student Planning Student Exchange

By Joe Cox

"I first met an American on the battlefield," began Hans Langlitz, a German graduate student studying entomology here at State.

The occasion was a meeting of the Graduate Students Association last night. At this meeting, Hans spoke of his idea to make arrangements for 140 interested students from UNC, WC, and State to study in Germany, and for German students to study in this country during the summer months.

Since April, when the idea first came to Hans, he has viewed the proposal from every angle, including cost, international relationships, and the benefits of studying abroad.

The total cost for studying in a German university would be $460, including a round trip flight to Germany via Air France, which will give special rates to the students. The expense can be met with 10% down and two years to pay the balance.

"I personally believe that a lot of international conflict could be avoided if we got to know one another," stated Hans.

He also said he was positive that even the highest German officials would be in favor of his plan.

"I believe that academic freedom is a wonderful thing. We can learn from the rest of the world, just as the rest of the world can learn from us." The benefits of studying abroad and coming into contact with foreign professors and foreign ideas would be invaluable to (See GERMAN, page 4)

Profile . . . Trio Italiano D'Archi

The Trio Italiano D'Archi will perform in the College Union Friday night as the second concert in the new Triad series.

The three musicians who form the Trio are internationally famous soloists. The violinist, Franco Gulli, is known to American audiences as the result of appearances as a soloist with the Virtuoso di Roma. Gulli has performed with leading orchestras in Europe under the direction of Kubelik, Rossi, Desormieres and Scherchen.

Bruno Giuranna, the violinist, is equally well known in this country as the featured soloist with I. Musici. He is also a virtuoso with the difficult viola d'amore; having built an international reputation with this instrument.

Amedeo Baldovino, the cellist, has appeared with many orchestras in Europe. His recitals of unaccompanied works with the cello caused a sensation in England.

A Review

Dial 'M' For Murder

By Jim Massfeller

"Dial M for Murder" is a typical Alfred Hitchcock movie. It stars Grace Kelly, Ray Milland, and Bob Cummings.

The movie will be shown at the Textile Auditorium this weekend at all of the times listed on the C.U. Calendar.

Hitchcock directed this movie himself and, as usual, he was in it for a short time.

The movie was originally produced in 3-D. It is still, however, one of Hitchcock's all time greats. The movie is in color and this will probably be the last opportunity to see it. The film is in almost perfect condition and the color, photography, and the sound are excellent.

The plot of the movie is based on the usual "eternal triangle." The husband plans the perfect murder for his wife. One thing after another seems to go wrong, but each time he turns it to his advantage. In order to follow the plot, the viewer must pay attention to the smallest items.

The movie was filmed on location in London, and several good scenes of London are in the movie. The acting is very good, and Bob Cummings played one of his best parts in this movie.

Letter To The Editor:

Let's Have Voting Machines

To the Editor:

If the controversy concerning the freshman elections has subsided, I would like to revive it with a positive proposal. From talks with upper-classmen, I have learned that mistakes similar to the misprint and miscount of ballots have occurred in the past. It is regrettable that the people on the elections committee cannot count. This may be forgiven, however, because they are human and liable to make mistakes.

The school elections in which I have participated in the past have always been conducted with the aid of voting machines owned by the county and state. An obvious objection to this plan might be the small number of voters. I can only answer that the school I attended had an enrollment of 1350 pupils. State College has about 7000 students.

I would like to suggest that the elections committee take the time to investigate the possibility of using machines which do not have the high rate of error that some humans have.

Tucker, PKA New Champs

By Carlos Williams

Yesterday saw the end of intramural football for this season and the crowning of two new champions as Tucker #1 defeated Alexander for the top dormitory honor and PKA edged the Sig Eps for the fraternity title.

Tucker's victory came after quarterback Leonard completed to Doughton for the first TD. Leonard then threw to Stokes for the bonus point. Tucker secured their lead in the second quarter as Marsh scored on a pass interception good for 48 yards. Alexander scored only once on an eight yard pass from quarterback Kale to Buffalo. The two combined again for the extra point. The final score stood at Tucker #1 13, Alexander 7.

After a hard fought defensive contest PKA slipped by SPE,

6-0, in the last seconds of the game to win the fraternity championship. In the first half, neither team was able to break through for a touchdown and, at half-time, the game stood in favor of the Sig Eps on a yardage basis, 79-14.

The second half proved more than a battle of defenses as both teams made their last effort to break the scoreless tie. With less than a minute left in the game, as night drew near, PKA quarterback May threw to Morrison for thirty yards, leaving SPE only a three yard lead in yardage. May then ended the yardage contest as he completed to Morrison again, this time in the end zone. The extra point try was unsuccessful against the pressing SPE line. SPE made an attempt at a comeback with mere seconds left to play. After a Morton to Wagoner pass was knocked down near the end zone, the game ended leaving PKA with a six point lead and the football trophy.

In commenting on the close of football season, Art Hoch, Intramural Director, had this to say. "We have had a very satisfying season this year. I feel that the participation, sportmanship, and playing skill this year have been the best ever. To my knowledge there were no serious injuries at all this year."
