Floats, Parents, Game Highlight Homecoming

By Billie Darden
Saturday was a busy day at State.
The Homecoming Parade beat the showers, Carmichael Gym was dedicated, 1700 parents attended Freshman Parents' Day, Virginia was licked 24-12, and hundreds of Alumni returned to the scene of their crime(s).
The homecoming parade featured fifty-three units of bands, floats, contestants for Homecoming Queen, and military groups.
Float prizes in three divisions were awarded to Sigma Nu Fraternity's "I dreamed I beat Vir-

Bomb Scares Cancel Chem, Physics Exams

Harrelson, Riddick and Daniels are still standing in spite of the bombs which were supposed to obliterate them.

By some strange coincidence the bomb hoax came at the same time quizzes were to be held in these buildings. The students who missed these quizzes will be given another opportunity to take them in the near future.

The scare started at 4:45 p.m. Thursday when Miss Nancy Johnson, a secretary in the chancellor's office, received a phone call from an unidentified male who said, "Take this message down if you want to save thousands of lives. Three bombs will go off in Harrelson, Riddick and Daniels Halls, between the hours of nine and twelve."

The buildings were cleared by 5 p.m. by SBI agents, Raleigh police and campus police. All three buildings were searched and Harrelson was reopened after it was decided that there was no bomb there. Because of the high concentration of electrical devices in Riddick and Daniels, the police kept them locked until 1 a.m. Friday morning, according to local police.

Mrs. Helen T. Ohmer, another of the chancellor's secretaries, received a phone call at 8:15 Friday morning from a male who said, "Time is growing short. Please, I beg of you, have those buildings cleared by 9 o'clock. This is no joke." The SBI was called in. The buildings were searched by SBI agents, faculty members and student volunteers. Classes in two of the buildings were dis-

One Third Receive From One To Five Flunk Slips

Over one-third of the student body—2,463 students to be exact—received from one to five failure slips last week.
J. J. Stewart, dean of student affairs, said, "I hope that this will be a warning to those students who are failing and that the grades will be pulled up by the end of the semester."

Alexander, AGR, PR's Take Chest Awards

Alpha Gamma Rho, Alexander Dormitory, and the Pershing Rifles will receive awards for making the largest contributions per man to Campus Chest.
According to Tom Crates, co-chairman of the Campus Chest Drive, a total of $1,719 has been collected thus far. The report on results from off-campus canvassing has not yet come in.
Alpha Gamma Rho is receiving a loving cup for collecting thirty-three dollars—$1.45 per member. Alexander Dormitory is receiving a plaque for collecting one hundred forty-five dollars—seventy-four cents per man. The Pershing Rifles collected one hundred twenty-nine dollars—three dollars a man, and will receive a gavel.

Commenting on the drive Crates said, "Those who gave, gave a healthy contribution, but there were many who did not give at all. This was disappointing because of the worthwhile nature of the drive."

ginia in my Maidenform Bra," Alexander Dorm's "Let's get the losing streak out of our system," which featured an authentic out-house, and Alpha Phi Omega's "Let's roast Virginia" in the open division.
A tribute was paid to the late William D. Carmichael, Jr., Saturday morning when Governor Terry Sanford dedicated the new $2.8 million gymnasium named in honor of Carmichael. President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University also spoke at the dedication.
More than 1,700 parents, freshmen, and staff members attended the first Freshman-Parents Day program at State.

All freshman candidates who did not turn in expense sheets within forty-eight hours of the run-off, and Jim Currin, Jon Starin, Rex Kelly, and Chip Andrews must attend the joint meeting of the Rules Committee and Elections Committee in room 230 of the College Union at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Attendance is compulsory for all of these candidates.

States Cahill Geared For BA Degree

By Grant Blair
The School of General Studies is geared to offer a Liberal Arts degree, according to Fred V. Cahill, dean of the school.
In an interview with The Technician, Cahill outlined what the School of General Studies was prepared to do if the General Assembly approves the educational package plan recommended by the Consolidated University President William Friday. The plan includes university status for NCS and Woman's College, and the establishment of a Liberal Arts School at NCS.

Cahill stated that the General Studies degree—a B.S., not a B.A. degree—adopted by NCS last year, has strengthened the School of General Studies in five areas. "History, Political Science, Sociology, Economics, and English are our strongest areas," said Cahill. "But," he noted, "we will have to add courses in various areas to make a rich offering."
The school already has a sat-

Abdominal Snowman

This is not a homecoming shot, but it's interesting just the same. An unidentified Phi Psi pledge is shown emerging from the initiation festivities last Thursday night. The budding textileist was covered with good ole Grandma's Blue Ribbon molasses and introduced to a blender-feeder (that's textile for hell-ho) filled with staple Dacron fiber. Phi Psi is a national professional textile fraternity.

McCall Sends Protest On UNCR To Sanford

By Allen Lennon

Student Government President Floyd McCall sent a letter to Governor Terry Sanford today protesting a name change for State College.
The letter requests that Sanford reconsider his position on the proposed changing of the names of State College and Woman's College.
Sanford last week issued a statement supporting the proposal to change State College's name to "The University of North Carolina at Raleigh."
In the letter McCall recommended that the name "North Carolina State University" be adopted. He further stated that the name of the institution does matter to the students, alumni, and friends of State College.
McCall warned that public opposition to the name-changing section of the higher education bill, which will be sent to the next session of the General Assembly, may endanger acceptance of the overall plan to improve the North Carolina university system.

McCall indicated to The Technician last night that he plans to send copies of the letter to the chancellors of the three institutions of the Consolidated University, the Board of Trustees, Consolidated University President Friday, and the major newspapers of the state, as well as the wire services.
Another group protesting the change is already active on the State College campus, and its leaders have indicated that they plan a vigorous campaign in favor of the "North Carolina State University" name. (See story on page four.)
The full text of McCall's letter to Governor Sanford appears on page four of this issue.

A Different Problem

It is not a policy of this paper to answer letters to the editor in that column, but we will not hesitate to answer in the editorial section.

We were recently accused of not having a "respect for the problems which exist" in the field of civil rights with respect to White Southern Protestants. As a Caucasian, a nominal Methodist, and a lifetime resident of North Carolina, we would like to disagree. To us, the main problem that exists is not the low economic level of the Southern Negro or the various effects this level has on crime rates, etc. It is the White Southerner (who in most cases is a Protestant) who is keeping the Negro at his present economic level because of personal prejudices.

In the last two weeks, we have heard three Southerners say that they had changed their views after attending college. In fact, one of these people was a fiery segregationist who had given public speeches on the subject and only changed his views after attending graduate school.

The editorial was written in the hopes that someone else might face the facts instead of prejudices. It was straight criticism and offered no direct solution to the race problem, but the answer was implied.

Don't hate or hold down a man because of superficial differences. White Southern Protestants have always done this—not to just the Negro, but also to the Jew and other minorities.

A Reminder For Short Memories

Some State students, alumni, and officials have a short memory, but possibly it will be refreshed this week. The basketball "fix ring" is being tried in Raleigh this week and four ex-State basketball players who were bribed to shave points are witnesses. It is almost ironical that at the same time there is a move on campus to remove the restrictions which were placed on athletics when the basketball fixes were disclosed.

The college might wait at least until the present unpleasantness is over before it tries to make a move which, judging from its past record, could easily lead to more unpleasantness.

A Safe Bet

It was interesting to see "A Communist" written beside our name on a campus bulletin board.

We would be willing to wager that this is the first time in history that a person who has appeared on Jessie Helms' television show at Mr. Helms' invitation has been termed even the slightest bit left of center on the political spectrum.

A Review

Trio Italiano D'Archi

By Halit Zafer Dokuzoguz

The Trio Italiano D'Archi gave a chamber music recital on Friday night in the College Union Ballroom to an enthusiastic audience.

The recital began with "Trio Sonata in C minor" by J. S. Bach. This number consisted of vivace, largo, and allegro and was performed in an artistic style. Due to the poor acoustics in the College Union Ballroom, the trio had to adjust itself to the conditions during the performance of the sonata. Their presentation, however, was very adequate in reflecting Bach's style.

The second number, "Trio, Opus 141 B" by Max Reger, was delivered brilliantly by the trio. The coordination among the instruments was tremendously accurate and the somewhat "new" harmony of system in Reger's composition was well-interpreted.

The second half of the recital consisted of Mozart's "Divertimento in E flat major, K. 563".

By Cora Kemp

Three snooping Technician reporters were on the scene to get a first-hand account of the bomb scare Thursday night even though the local police didn't seem to like it.

Upon hearing about the bomb scare, the reporters rushed to Daniels Hall, but the police refused to comment on the situation. Locking the doors to the front of the building, the police and several plainclothesmen left the reporters and a number of spectators wondering what was going on.

Letter To The Editor

Editor's Stand Hit

To the Editor:

While I realize that there are more pressing problems facing us at N. C. State than a name change, I feel compelled to write and criticize the Technician for sitting back and letting the Board of Trustees take "State" away from the thousands of students and alumni who are affected by this change. What President Friday says ("If we are to be one university, it will be essential that we have a common name for the three units") is hogwash. After all, the purpose of a name is to distinguish this unit of the Consolidated University from the other two. This institution could easily be named "Unit 1 of the Consolidated University", or "UNCR", or "N. C. State". Anyone connected with the school in any way prefers "State" in the

Students Express Regret Because Of Bomb Problem

By Doug Lientz

"I'd like to kick the person who called the warning in in the . . ."

Although the specific portion of the anatomy to be kicked varied, student opinion seemed to run generally against whoever phoned in the warnings of a bomb in one of the buildings on campus Thursday afternoon and Friday morning.

One student who had his physics quiz postponed said, "I studied all night Thursday for that thing. If I do that again tonight, I won't be able to stay awake long enough to take the quiz."

A student who did take the quiz at 8 a.m. said, "I'd like to catch whoever caused ten minutes to be knocked off the time I had to finish the quiz. It was a hell of a dirty trick to pull."

When asked about how they felt about the warning, students who had their Thursday night chemistry quizzes cancelled expressed much the same opinion.

I'm sure you, the Technician, wants "State" left in, so why don't you fight for your conviction. You, as a representative of the students, should take the initiative and protest the removal of "State" from our name. Of course, though, the students have come to realize that our newspaper will not do anything that takes more than a little guts. You've shown to be Mickey Mouse on integration, and now you are backing down on another issue. Congratulations, Mickey.

Students Form Group To Protest UNCR

A group of students are protesting the suggested name change of this college to the University of North Carolina at Raleigh.

John Theys, Dick Payne, and Ed Stevens started the movement in a bull session last Wednesday night. Other associates are Michael W. Wall, Jim Martin, and Dwight Minkler, according to John Theys.

Jim Martin expressed the purpose of this movement with these words: "We have to make people realize that the general sentiment of the student body is that the name of our school should not be changed to the University of North Carolina at Raleigh, but that they are not against a variation in the name as long as it contains 'State.'"

John Theys said that the group plans to circulate petitions, write letters to all newspapers of the state, solicit the help of radio stations, and write letters to state legislators.

So far this group has put up posters on campus. A letter has been prepared for circulation to all faculty members.

Theys requested, "If there is any organization on campus that would like to take over this movement, we would appreciate it because we neither have the time nor the money for a large campaign." He also said that the group will also welcome any helpers.

Mike Wall expressed another need of the campaign when he said, "We are in dire need of a ditto machine."

Game Fixers' Trial Begins; Bribed Player To Testify

By Ernie McCrary

Four former State College basketball players were scheduled to be witnesses for the State in a game "fixing" trial starting today.

A 99-count bill of indictment charges ten men with being involved in basketball "fix" scandals in North Carolina. Dave Goldberg and Steve Lekometros, both of St. Louis, Missouri; Joseph Hacken, Aaron Wagman, Joseph Greene, Charles Tucker, Dave Budin, Paul Walker, Lou Barshak, and Michael Seigal, all of New York City, are being tried on the bribery charges in Wake County Superior Court.

The indictment charges that the men are members of a nationwide ring of gamblers who fixed a 1959 Dixie Classic basketball game. It also charges that an attempt was made to fix one of the Atlantic Coast Conference games here the same year.

According to Solicitor Lester V. Chalmers, Walker has already pleaded guilty to seven counts of bribery. He says that he expects several more guilty pleas will also be entered.

Lekometros and Goldberg have retained Raleigh Attorney William Hatch and Durham Attorney Ralph Strayhorn to represent them. Strayhorn was captain of the 1946 University of North Carolina football team.

The former State men who are witnesses are Stan Niewierowski, Terry Litchfield, Anton Muehlbauer, and Don Gallagher.

A former UNC player, Lou Brown, is also a State's witness.

Niewierowski, Muehlbauer, and Brown are from New York City. Litchfield is from Kentucky and Gallagher has recently been stationed in Germany with the army.

Two Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, men have also been charged with bribery but will not be tried at this time because the governor of Pennsylvania has not yet granted a request for their extradition. They are Frank Cardone and Morris Heyison.

Chalmers said that Ralph Gigante, of New York, is also named in the indictment, but will not appear because he has appealed his extradition to New York courts. He added that another man charged, Pete Martino, will not appear since he is being tried in New Orleans, Louisiana Federal Court next week on other gambling charges.

The indictment states that the bribery of the players involved "point shaving." It lists ten games in which State College participated between December 5, 1959, and January 7, 1961 as being fixed.

Another defendant, Frank, "Lefty" Rosenthal, of Miami, Florida, has also appealed extradition, Chalmers said. Jack Molinas, also named, is being tried in New York City on similar charges.

Rosenthal is charged with the attempted bribery of Ray Paprocky, a player from New York University in a NCAA Regionals game played in Charlotte on March 1, 1960, between NYU and the University of West Virginia.

BA Degree

isfactory number of highly-trained people, said Cahill. If a liberal arts degree is achieved, he added, "We are prepared to add instructors, although we intend to be selective in adding people to our staff."

If the liberal arts program is approved, "We must come to an understanding with ourselves and the rest of the campus as to what goes into a Bachelor of Arts degree," pointed out Cahill. "This is a different approach from what the school has been doing. Up until now, the school has been a service school."

"In any degree there are required courses and non-required courses but in a Bachelor of Arts degree there is more freedom of choice," declared Cahill. "This is one of the great things it can do."

"A technical degree is rigid in that it offers very little choice—this is to be expected. We are trying to decide just what the essential elements of a Bachelor of Arts degree are," said Cahill. "In many cases, Liberal Arts curriculums have become as specialized and technical as those of a technical school. We will aim at a liberal education."

What Would You Do If We're Attacked?

By Dwight Minkler

"Russia is attacking the United States. Soviet missiles will reach the coast in 15 minutes."

If this official broadcast reached you at eight o'clock tomorrow morning, what would you do?

"I'd run down to St. Mary's. I'd have to run like hell though." John Piaski was perhaps only kidding, but he certainly hinted at the urgency of the matter.

Wei-min Chang, a student from Formosa, gave this as a possible reaction: "I think I'll go to a shelter. If I have time, I'll wait for an order from my government."

"I'd do what they said in that green sheet: grab a blanket and go to the Carmichael Gymnasium." This was Ken McAdams' idea.

Bob Self probably expressed the desires of most young men: "I'd go to my girl's house. She lives 130 miles away."

"I'd get up and dress; then I'd head for the shelter. I'm just trying to think where it is," said Bob Cooper.

Former State Basketball players (left to right) Don Gallagher, Stan Niewierowski, and Anton (Dutch) Muehlbauer will testify before Raleigh Superior Court in a trial of basketball fixers which begins today. Gallagher and Niewierowski were both captains of Wolfpack teams in 1960 and 1961 and Muehlbauer was an outstanding guard for two seasons. Sub Terry Litchfield was also implicated in the basketball scandals and will testify in court.

Chancellor Caldwell spoke to the students in front of the buildings shortly after the call was received Friday morning. Caldwell said that the evacuation was a "measure of prudence" and that it was necessary "to insure everyone's safety," according to an official release.

Dean of Students J. J. Stewart said, "In cases where class or laboratory work is interrupted by an anonymous phone threat of this kind, students will be required to make up the work missed. Quizzes and examinations cancelled because of the disruption will be rescheduled and given at a later date."

Dean Stewart also said, "It won't pay any student to pull a stunt like this. It'll just have to be made up."

The chemistry quizzes have been rescheduled for 7 p.m., November 28, according to Dr. R. C. White, associate professor of chemistry. Physics quizzes were scheduled for today, according to J. S. Meares, professor of physics. (See stories page two.)

Bomb Scare—Reporters

The reporters, anxious to get the facts, entered Mann Hall, the "back door" of Daniels, which had not been locked.

As they approached the investigators in Daniels, the threesome heard a low, snarling, "How the hell did they get here?" murmur pass through the hall. A plain-clothes man, who appeared to be head of the group, quickly informed the reporters that he was "a stranger just passing through town" and added that "you can leave now" as he motioned toward the front door.

A uniformed cop politely opened the door for the reporters.

They decided they were not welcome.

McCall's Letter To Sanford

The following is the text of the letter sent to Governor Terry Sanford by Student Government President Floyd McCall concerning the proposed renaming of North Carolina State College:

November 17, 1962
The Honorable Terry Sanford
Governor of North Carolina
State Capitol
Raleigh, North Carolina

Dear Governor Sanford:

In view of your recent remarks about the proposed changes in the overall structure of the State-supported educational system, I am asking your consideration of the opinions of State students, alumni, and thousands of voting friends throughout North Carolina. It appears that you have heard only one side of the story and have failed to consider the thousands of citizens who do not agree with your position in regard to the proposed name change.

I hasten to qualify the above paragraph by iterating our willingness to accept the majority of the plan. The part we will never willingly accept is the name "The University of North Carolina at Raleigh." We have heard the argument in full, and are positively convinced that the entire program is more highly feasible without the changing of State's name to U. N. C. at Raleigh. North Carolina citizens take pride in the outstanding reputation and tradition which has evolved under the name of N. C. State. A change in name would destroy this as it would take time for America to realize what happened to N. C. State—the N. C. State known by the world as a leader in engineering, design, agriculture, textiles, etc. To kill the world-wide reputation and respect associated with the name N. C. State would be taking a valuable asset away from the citizens of North Carolina.

It is likely that many of the Chapel Hill students, alumni, and friends do not approve of this name change either. U. N. C. (The Chapel Hill campus of the Consolidated University of North Carolina) has 160 years of proud "Carolina" tradition. This tradition and the prestige associated with it will suffer greatly if all three campuses are given a common name. This blow against U. N. C.'s identity can only weaken the Carolina tradition as it would eventually give way to a lukewarm tradition of the great "Three-in-One University."

No, Mr. Governor, you are incorrect when you say the name does not matter. It is obvious that a change of State's name is a sacrifice of quality for quantity education, which is contradictory to your administration's theme. I would hope that you can alter your stand in time to save your administration from having to bear the responsibility for actions against the wishes of the people you represent.

We realize that the California system, which North Carolina would be copying, is a great mass educational program, but the nomenclature has had little, if anything, to do with the success of the drive for quality and greatness. When the California system was initiated, there was no great destruction of identity, tradition, and world-wide reputation. The same great educational program would have evolved even if every campus had had a completely different name. California's system of higher education has attained greatness because it is directed by sound-minded, well-trained educators and administrators—not by people who would believe that what has worked 3,000 miles away under quite different circumstances will replace hard work, good training and a willingness to listen to a dedicated people who must support the program.

The threat of the name of The University of North Carolina at Raleigh stands as a great blockade to public acceptance of the rest of your committee's recommendation. This one element could easily halt progress for education in North Carolina as it is a change for the sake of change only. There is little to be gained and much to be lost by changing the names of all three campuses to a name common to all.

The logical solution to this problem is to leave the name U. N. C. as it is, change the name of North Carolina State College to North Carolina State University, and permit Woman's College to have University status under a name of its choosing. When combined with the general recommendations of your committee and President Friday, the future of higher education in North Carolina will be bright and happy. Otherwise, North Carolina voters and other citizens will have due reservation about the purpose and outcome of the existing proposal and will rightly demonstrate their concern by the more effective and productive means available to voting citizens.

Sincerely yours
Floyd E. McCall, President
N. C. State Student Body

State Survives Final Quarter Scoring

By Carlos Williams

Last Saturday the Wolfpack made no fumbles, had no interceptions, and, in general, made very few mistakes. Then, of course, there was the fourth quarter.

However, for a team apparently suffering from the fourth-quarter-plague, State managed to hold their lead over Virginia while losing two TD's in the last twelve minutes. In the last quarter the Cavaliers broke State's 24-0 lead down to 24-6. With a few minutes left in the game, Virginia scored again after Dave Houtz attempted to run a bad punt snap out of the end zone on the fourth down giving the Cavaliers the ball on the State one-yard line. When the game ended, the score stood at 24-12.

In the words of Earle Edwards, "We have been playing State all year. We finally beat them today." Jim Rossi had a field day at quarterback completing five out of nine passes

Four Teams Complete For Volleyball Title

In fraternity volleyball action last week, PKT, last year's champion, easily defeated over-matched Sigma Chi 15-0 and 15-1 in an awesome display of power spiking. Theta Chi was extended to three games before downing previously unbeaten PKA in a well-played match. DSP entered the play-offs by beating AGR, with whom they were tied, but to no avail as TKE swept by the Delta Sigs 15-11 and 15-8.

SPE continued its undefeated streak by downing SAM 15-7 and 15-2. The Sig Eps will prove to present the tourney favorite PKT with the stiffest competition.

This week's play will see competition between PKT (7-0) and T.Chi (5-2), and between TKE (5-2) and SPE (7-0), as the play-offs near completion.

Four teams advanced in the play-offs in dormitory volleyball last week and will meet tonight in the semi-final round. Bagwell showed a strong offense in defeating McOC 2-0 with Cole and Sides leading a well-balanced squad. Owen #2 edged previously unbeaten Watauga 2-1 in a thrilling series. Laird and Sullivan paced the Owen #2 win.

Underdog Becton romped defending champion Bragaw North 2-0 as Grey and Alford led a tremendous defensive effort. Once-beaten Alexander spotted WGAS the opening game and then came back with a strong team effort to win 2-1. Standouts for the victors were Cartwright, Martin, and Buffalo. Tonight Becton meets Alexander and Owen #2 takes on Bagwell with Alexander and Bagwell favored to meet in the finals.

Last week also marked the beginning of dormitory bowling league play. Bragaw North looks like the team to beat. Lead by Hager, who had a 684 series, North defeated Becton 4-0. Joe Seagle led Tucker #2 to a 3-1 win over Bagwell. A strong Berry team came back in the second and third games to down a well-balanced Watauga team 3-1. Clark and Willingham were high men for Berry. Defending champion Syme came back strong after a slow first game to stop Owen #1 3-1 with Auvil and Liplius rolling top scores for the winners.

Owen #2, led by Wilhelm and Applegard edged Turlington 3-1 in a very close series. Bragaw South got standout performance from Bailey and Hansen in a 3-1 victory over Tucker #1. Alexander used two strong games to defeat McOC 3-1. In the lone dormitory match this week Bragaw North meets McOC at 9:00 on Tuesday night.

State halfback Mike Clark (number 22) turns around to receive an aerial from quarterback Rossi Saturday afternoon. To the dismay of the Cavaliers Mike turned around again and preambulated the remaining 70 yards for the touchdown. (Photo by Jackson)

Plasma Heat Transfer Studied By ME Prof

By Joe Clocker

What is plasma? The type of plasma in question is quite different from the life-sustaining kind which flows through our blood vessels. This type is any fluid which is electrically conducting and electrostatically neutral.

Dr. J. T. Yen, assistant professor of Mechanical Engineering, is conducting an Air Force sponsored research project in plasma heat transfer. According to Dr. Yen, the project is concerned with heat transfer and fluid flow involving ionized gases with electric and magnetic fields. This is both theoretical and experimental. The project is interested primarily in basic research and establishing first principles instead of devising applications of the findings.

Dr. Yen gave several practical applications, however. One of these, the conversion of hydrogen bomb energy into electrical energy, seems almost like science fiction. It involves controlled thermonuclear fusion by using electromagnetic fields to confine hot plasma to sustain the fusion reaction. This device would operate at a temperature of 500,000,000 degrees.

Another practical application on which Dr. Yen is doing research, is a magnetohydrodynamic generator. This device involves no moving parts and is used to convert heat energy directly into electrical energy.

The research project was started in January, 1962 and is to be renewed each year until its completion.
