Education Changes Organization Basis

The School of Education has recently been reorganized.

According to Dr. C. C. Scarborough, head of the Agricultural Education Department and new head of the Division of Teacher Education, all the departments in the school involved in teacher education have been regrouped into the Division of Teacher Education.

The departments concerned in the change are the Departments of Math Education, Science Education, Industrial Education, Industrial Arts, Agricultural Education, and Guidance. The new organization will be known as the Division of Teacher Education and will be headed by Dr. Scarborough.

Dr. Scarborough explained that the purpose of the new division is "to better coordinate the teacher education program, especially avoiding overlapping." He added that "the reorganization primarily involves the present department with few changes other than on an organizational basis."

The Division of Teacher Education was developed and recommended by the Council on Teacher Education which is composed of faculty members from many of the other schools on campus. It was originally proposed by the Long Range Plan Committee.

The two remaining departments in the School of Education, the Department of Psychology and the Department of Recreation and Parks Administration, will retain their present status outside the Division of Teacher Education.

Danforth Offers Graduate Grants To State Seniors

Danforth Graduate Fellowships worth up to $12,000 are open for seniors and recent graduates, Dr. Kingston Johns, Financial Aid Officer, announced today.

Students preparing for a career of teaching, counseling, or administrative work on the college level are eligible for nomination for a fellowship. Inquiries may be made at the Financial Aid Office at Holladay Hall. Nominations close October 28.

Nearly 100 fellowships will be awarded by the Danforth Foundation this year. Dr. Johns explained that the winners will be eligible for up to four years of financial assistance, with an annual maximum of $1,500 for single men and $2,000 (as well as $500 per child) for married men, plus tuition and fees.

New Program Enrolls Twenty This Semester

The new degree program in General Studies is underway with twenty students enrolled, according to Dean Fred V. Cahill of the School of General Studies.

The program offers a Bachelor of Science degree in several general studies courses. It differs from a regular liberal arts degree in that there is a strong emphasis on math and science.

Dean Cahill said that the program should have a special appeal to students interested in both science and the humanities. He added that he felt that because of the program, interest had been created in State College as a general college.

The first students in the program will graduate this year. It is the first time a general studies degree has been awarded at State College in more than twenty-five years.

'Rip 'em up, Tear 'em ...' Cheerleading Squad Says

Rip 'em up, tear 'em up, give 'em hell, State!

This old familiar yell will be heard once more this weekend as the new cheerleading squad goes into operation at the State-Carolina game in Chapel Hill Saturday.

Seven of the old members of the squad have returned. They are Tony Padgett, Martha McLaughlin, Preston Cornelius, Kaaren Schmidt, Chan Prince, Rick Ray, and Don Rufty.

Newcomers to the squad are Ed Broadhurst, Johnny Johnston, George Hayes, Tommy Clark, and Chalk Tyree.

One of these newcomers will be named later as an alternate to the varsity squad and will cheer with the freshman cheerleaders.

The other members of the freshman cheerleading squad are Bob Vaughn, Danny Duffy, Gordon Shepard, Becky Shankle, Kathy Cannady and Theda Bundy.

Chief Tony Padgett of the varsity squad commented that the cheerleaders were looking forward to a good season. "We hope the student body will back us at the games. We've put in a lot of time getting some good yells together," he said.

Profs' Salaries May Be Raised

Approximately half of the Consolidated University's 1963-65 enrichment budget of $10,762,000 will be used to increase faculty salaries at the three branches according to Consolidated University President William C. Friday.

Number one priority of all the "B" budget requests is that of increasing faculty salaries. Friday told the Advisory Budget Commission in hearings held last week. The commission must review all state budgetary requests before they are referred to the General Assembly for passage.

Of the total enrichment budget, salary increases would claim $4,989,000; improvement of existing programs—$5,313,000 and new programs—$459,000.

Friday emphasized particularly the need for improving faculty salaries. He said that there are at least three other universities in the South with higher faculty salaries than the University of North Carolina. These are Texas, Virginia, and Duke with Louisiana State close on the heels of the Consolidated University. Needs for improving existing programs, chiefly libraries, were outlined by the chancellors from the three branches of the University.

Under the current "B" budget requests, State College would receive a total of $4,797,000. Of this $2,338,000 would be used for faculty salary increases, $2,084,000 for improvements in existing programs, and $373,000 for new programs.

The 1963-65 capital outlay budget for the Consolidated University was presented earlier. Under this section of the proposed budget, State College will receive $14,905,000 for new buildings and improvements of existing facilities.

Cheerleaders Slate Rally Tomorrow

A pep rally for the Carolina game will be held tomorrow night in Riddick Stadium at 9:30 p.m.

According to Student Government Secretary John Carr, this rally will be held to familiarize students with the yells for the Saturday game.

The cheerleaders, Student Government officials, and members of the 1962 Wolfpack football team are expected to be on hand.

Commenting on the pep rally, Student Government President Floyd McCall stated, "The one factor which can enable our Wolfpack to revenge last year's Tar Heel win is strong student support. Everyone's attending the pep rally and chanting the cheers we learn can well be the straw which breaks the Ram's back. I urge every State Man to turn out Friday night and cheer our team to victory on the Chapel Hill slaughter grounds Saturday."

A member of the cheerleading squad stated that "The game with Carolina is the biggest of the year, and we urge all students to attend this pep rally so that they may learn the cheers and be ready to support the team. Freshmen, especially are invited because they are least familiar with cheering procedures."

Take Me Out To The Ball Game

The innocent student gathering of several years ago shown in this picture is indicative of the fun which is expected at 9:30 Friday night in Riddick Stadium as the student body will send the Wolfpack off to victory at Chapel Hill on Saturday.

By McCall

An Open Letter

To The Student Body:

Saturday marks the beginning of our 1962 football season. Thousands of us will be following our Wolfpack as they journey to Chapel Hill to play the Tarheels of Carolina. With our enthusiastic support from the stands, our team will have a better chance of revenging last year's Tarheel win.

It is important that we not forget that we are State men and women, and that any poor sportsmanship will reflect upon the entire student body and bring discredit to the entire school. The reputation of good sportsmanship, which now exists on our campus, must not be marred this weekend or at any other time during the year. For the benefit of our student prestige, each of us must act like a gentleman and good sportsman, whether we defeat or are defeated by the Chapel Hill boys. I remind you that it is a standard agreement that only the students from the winning school have any claim to the goal posts and other decor of the game.

Therefore, I am asking you to demonstrate the mature behavior, good sportsmanship, and strong school spirit which now prevails on our campus.

Floyd E. McCall
President of the Student body

M & O Runs Amuck

"That pile of trash in front was thrown off the roof of Watauga by the M & O as part of the remodeling job the dorm is undergoing. The door in the background is the Office of Information Services—whose employees are wearing steel safety helmets. The invisible hand sticking out from under the beams belongs to a student who blundered past the nonexistent guard rails and the imaginary warning signs.

Triangle and Salaries

The budget requests for the Consolidated University place as top priority the raising of faculty salaries. This is as it should be.

We natives of North Carolina consider our State the most progressive in the South, yet in the field of higher education we are not. Both Virginia and Texas pay better salaries to their state college professors, and Louisiana pays comparable salaries. On the surface, this looks pretty encouraging for North Carolina. After all, this places a lot of States below us; but there is one unique facet of North Carolina education demanding that even more be done in this field.

This unique facet is the Research Triangle. In the words of the new Dean of the Faculty, Dr. Harry Kelly, "this facility can be made into the outstanding center of research in the nation." And it can be if the outstanding research men throughout the nation would leave the more traditional research centers in this country. It has the resources, the space, and the location between three of the better Universities in the nation. In fact, it has everything except sufficient scholars to staff it and to attract even more research facilities and top-notch men.

The requested raise in faculty salaries (which would be over two and a half million dollars for State College alone) would mean added stature to the Research Triangle, and might in the long run make North Carolina the leading state in the nation in fields of research.

The students of State College, especially those of us who plan to live in North Carolina, have a stake in this budget, and we should assert our influence to see that it is approved.

One way we might do this is for the student Government to set up a group to lobby this year's General Assembly on the issue.

Rip 'em Up...

Five years ago there was a near-riot at Carolina after State had won the ball game and State supporters swarmed out on the field to tear down the Carolina goalposts. It was stopped by the Chapel Hill police, and much ill will was felt on both sides.

In the hopes that this would never be repeated, the Student Governments of State and Carolina made a gentleman's agreement that the winning team each year would tear down the goalposts, and that the other side would sit quietly while the victorious school celebrated. Since then there have been two victories by State and two by Carolina, and both sides have carried out the gentleman's agreement very well.

So, if we win-rip them (the goalposts) up, tear them up, and give them hell. But, if the unmentionable happens, please restrain yourself to sitting quietly and cursing under your breath.

Call Cards Also

Library Loan Time Changed

The D. H. Hill Library has replaced three cards with one in its new call card system.

The library has also changed its loan period for books.

The new system, the McBee KeySort marginal punched card system, eliminates the use of three different call cards to check material out of the library. Instead of using separate cards for checking out books, periodicals, and documents, borrowers now use the same card for all items. Book cards will remain in the books now in the library but will no longer be used.

"The new call card is basically the same as the old call slip, and its completion requires no more effort on the part of the borrower than in the past. The primary advantage of the new system does not stem from the fact that it is a time and labor saving system for the borrower, but from the fact that it is a time and labor saving system for the library," according to Donald S. Keener, head of the circulation department at the library.

Keener explained that the Publication Policy

All unsigned editorials are by the Editor and all others will be signed with the initials of the writer.

We invite letters to the editor, but reserve the right to edit or not to print any letter received. All letters to the editor must be signed, and names will only be withheld in cases in which the writer's grades may be affected.

loan period for books now extends from 14 to 20 days for undergraduates and from 21 to 27 days for graduates. Previously, the undergraduate loan period was two weeks, and the graduate loan period was five weeks. All books will be due on Wednesday regardless of the day they are checked out of the library.

Since Keener joined the library staff in February of this year, he has made several other changes in the library system.

Overdue notices will be sent to the borrower one week instead of two weeks after the book is overdue. Two weeks after the books is overdue, a delinquent notice will be sent to the student. Bills will no longer be sent out.

Fines will remain five cents per day on regular loans. The maximum fine will be $3. Previously, the maximum fine was the cost of the book plus a processing fee of fifty cents. For books restricted to use in the library and for bound periodicals loaned to graduate students, a fine of ten cents per hour will be charged for the first time, up to a maximum of $5.

In the case of lost books, borrowers will be charged a processing and cataloging fee of $1.50 plus the cost of the book. If the book is returned later, a refund of the charges will be made and the book will be considered as an overdue book. The standard fine will then be charged. All fines and charges for lost books must be paid at the circulation desk in the library before the end of the semester, or the Business Office will withhold clearance necessary for registration.

The microfilm readers have been moved from the reference room to the reserve room where the film is stored, so that the complete unit is now in one location.

No books can be charged out of the library after 10 p.m. Monday through Friday. The stacks close at 10:45 p.m.

Interviewing Bowers Takes Trackman

By Grant Blair

Following in the footsteps of College Union director Henry Bowers can be a tiring job.

This was an interview on the run, and Mr. Bowers set a fast pace.

I ran into him on the stairs of the College Union and agreed to accompany him to the Textile Auditorium in order to find out about one of the College Union's many programs—it's film festival.

On the way, and at a fast walk, I asked him about New Arts, Inc., another program co-sponsored by the College Union. "I'm very optimistic about

Galileo's Works

The complete works of Galileo Galilei—complete with a price tag nearing $1,000—is now in the D. H. Hill Library.

The 20-volume collection, Edizione Nazionale, was presented to the library by the college's Alumni Association this summer.

The Edizione Nazionale is the only complete edition of Galileo's works, according to Harlan C. Brown, director of the library. The collection is printed in the original Latin and Italian texts. Except for his major works, Galileo's writings have never been translated into English, Brown explained.

New Arts, Incorporated," stated Bowers. "We are trying to let the students know about it." He went on to say that circulars were being distributed around the dormitories to let the students know about the new offering.

Upon arriving at the Textile Building, we spent about fifteen minutes waiting for keys to the auditorium. We entered and instructed the engineer about the new sound system, admitted him into the control room, and then checked the ventilating system. During the whole time, Mr. Bowers kept up a running patter about the theater. We left in the usual fast pace, discussing the new drama theater which has been proposed for the old Frank Thompson Gymnasium. "We're hoping to schedule a number of programs for the new theater," said Mr. Bowers.

Upon entering the CU, we talked some more and went into the Snack Bar for a coke. Mr. Bowers spotted someone he knew and was off again.

Elapsed time for the interview—less than forty-five minutes.

Edwards Hopes For Answer

By Eddie Bradford
 "We're an unknown quality," says Coach Earle Edwards. For the past two years the Wolfpack has been figured in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship race. Last year it was co-favored in the preseason polls, but failed to come through. However, this year the Wolfpack is a question mark.
 "We coaches feel just as curious about this team as anybody who follows it. We had some ideas the last two years, but right now we can hardly wait for the Carolina game to find out something about this team ourselves," Coach Edwards admitted. Except for ends, the Wolfpack has better than average experience in the line. They also have 75% of the backfield back from last year's team; however, because of the quarterbacks, the backfield still holds the key to this year's team. The experience in the line comes from the fact that there are three lettermen each at center, guard, and tackle. This should mean good blocking up front, which is always very important; however, it is at the flanks where Edwards is hurting. Don Montgomery of Albe-marle is the only letterman end on the squad, but, he played only four games as a soph before suffering a broken leg catching a pass at Alabama. Edwards has said that he isn't sure who is going to start at quarterback. According to him Rossi is the better passer, but since Kriger is the senior he might get to start.

 "It is likely that they will divide most of the offensive quarterbacking," says Edwards. "We are going to change our offense a bit to adjust to their style. Both are good runners and throw the roll-out pass, where Gabe was a drop-back passer.
 "Their running and option-plays, we hope, will keep some defenses on their toes," he adds optimistically. Kriger is from Pennsylvania; Rossi from Asheville. With a bigger, more aggressive lineup front, these lads may get some good results.
 The 75% of the backfield that is back consists of halfbacks Tony Koszarsky, Joe Scarpati, and fullback Dave Houtz. Scarpati, the top pass receiver, stars on defense and Koszarsky is the "best runner on the squad."
 There is an experienced first eleven, except for the quarter-backs. And they are the big key to the success of the Wolfpack this season.

Captain Skip Matthews, and Coach Earle Edwards.
