Design Art Auction Scheduled Monday

The annual art auction in the College Union will be held Monday.

The auction, sponsored by the Student Publication of the School of Design, will be used to obtain money for the School of Design.

According to Gene Brown, a Design senior and chairman and master of ceremonies for the auction, most of the art objects to be auctioned are submitted by local artists.

There will be from 75 to 100 pieces involved, Brown explained. They will be oil paintings, drawings, lithographs, wood cuts, silk screen prints, and sculptures.

Guest auctioneer will be Owen Lewis of the Owen-Lewis Gal-eries in Winston-Salem. Auctioneer will be Morris E. Parker, a junior in the School of Design, Brown stated.

A special preview of the objects to be auctioned will be held in the College Union galleries on December 16 at 8 p.m. The auction will be held the next day at 7 p.m.

Also, Gene Brown received a special scholarship award from the North Carolina Museum of Art last week for one of his paintings which was accepted for the annual North Carolina Artist's Exhibition.

According to Brown, the award was for $100 and was won by his oil painting entitled "Docking Forms." D. Grant Joslin, instructor in Design also won a similar award.

YMCA To Offer Trip During Semester Break

The YMCA has an offer for those people who have nothing to do over the semester break.

A United Nations seminar trip sponsored by the Y will be held January 25-29. The trip will cost $37.50, including train fare and hotel accommodations but not meals, according to Y Secretary Tom Bentley.

The seminar will emphasize Latin American countries and their delegates to the UN.

Participants will leave Raleigh by train on Friday, January 25, at 8:15 p.m. and arrive in New York at 7:55 a.m. Saturday. Bentley said that each student will have an opportunity to visit particular places of interest. The group will leave New York on Tuesday, January 29, at 7:30 p.m. and arrive in Raleigh at 6:15 a.m. the following morning.

Interested persons may all Bob Hare at TE 2-7184 or come by the Y office, according to Bentley.

PR's Sponsor Party

The Coliseum will be ringing with laughter next Friday night.

According to Ed Poncavage, PR cadet, the pledges of the Pershing Rifles have been assigned the project of treating Catholic orphans with a party. Refreshments—cookies, candies, cold drinks—will be served to about thirty orphans in room 129 of the Coliseum between 7:30 and 9 p.m. next Friday night. Gifts will also be distributed during this time.

Caldwell Explains Position; But Students Still Unswayed

By Curtiss Moore

Chancellor Caldwell appealed to "sweet reasonableness" as he addressed some 400 students on the name change issue Monday night.

Sweet reasonableness he got, but not agreement.

In the public meeting between Caldwell and the students held at seven o'clock Monday evening in Nelson auditorium for the express purpose of discussing the UNCR situation, Caldwell stated that there was no magic that could be worked to bring about sudden mutual agreement.

In his introduction of Chancellor Caldwell, Floyd McCall stated that any rumors going about that President Friday—or any other person connected with the name change—had made these proposals because of personal political ambitions were untrue. "I think that he was proposing what he thought was best for the campus," said McCall.

Following this statement, McCall introduced Chancellor Caldwell as "a true friend of the student," a comment which evoked a standing ovation for the Chancellor as he strode down the aisle accompanied by two students.

In explaining the reasoning behind the name change proposal, Caldwell stated that the entire purpose of the program was to "solidify and unify, strengthen and buttress," the Consolidated University so that it can function as the "capstone of higher education in our state."

He further stated that the strengthening of the Consolidated University would be brought about by defining the roles of the CU and its units in a public statute, and, by expansion of the functions of the units. This expansion includes the addition of community colleges to the state university system; the extension of a liberal arts degree to State; and, the conversion of all three units to coeducational institutions from freshman year on.

Tree Climbing Cop Grabs Campus Thief

By Rick Whitfield

Birds are not the only ones who take to the trees around the campus.

Chief State Security Officer W. T. Blackwood remained perched in a tree located near the School of Design from late Monday night until about 7:30 Tuesday morning with the hopes of surprising the burglar who has been pillaging various college buildings for the last two months.

At approximately 7:30, Blackwood said, he saw a man go into Brooks Hall and enter the offices where he took something from one of the desk drawers. After climbing down and apprehending the man, Officer Blackwood said that the suspect was identified as James Otis Williams, a janitor at the college for quite some time. Williams was charged with nine counts of larceny from various buildings around the campus said Blackwood.

The School of Design reported $5.73 missing; however, Blackwood stated that more than $100 has been stolen during the past two months from other buildings.

Protest Rally

By Sid Rice

State College students tonight are expected to brave freezing weather for a pep rally at 7:30 p.m. in the Coliseum parking lot to protest the proposed college name change.

The time and place of the rally was publicized by posters which were mysteriously posted about the campus.

No one could be found last night who would accept responsibility for the proposed rally. John Atkins of the Student Government said that SG was not sponsoring the rally.

Student Body Approves Bill Backing NCSU

The State College Student Body has approved a resolution opposing the proposed name UNCR and asking for designation as North Carolina State University.

The resolution, presented by SG President Floyd McCall at the Monday evening student body meeting, was unanimously accepted by the students in attendance.

The measure, directed to the General Assembly, is three pages long and includes fifteen whereas clauses stating reasons for a liberal arts degree and university status as NCSU. The resolution also asks for a Board of Inquiry to investigate the Consolidated University.

Continuing, Caldwell stated that there were two basic reasons for the name changes to "The University of North Carolina at . . ." The first is one of "immediate appeal to symmetry." The second is that the name changes are "symbolic of unity more than any other name could be." In answering a question after his talk as to why the name change should not be North Carolina State University at . . . Caldwell answered that he had heard the two proposals described the other night as similar to a coin. That is, on one side was "UNC at . . ." and on the other was "NCS at . . ." You flip the coin and . . .

In closing his address, the Chancellor said, "You fellows have at it (go to it), but let's have no bitterness on either side. . ."

NCS Filipino To Go To Student Meet

A Philippine student will be the first State student to attend the Annual Adventure in World Understanding at Michigan State University during the Christmas holidays.

He has also won a seventy-five dollar scholarship to help defray his expenses.

Vincente Tan Lin, a sophomore in textile chemistry, was awarded the scholarship and selected to attend the informal conference on the basis of outstanding character.

Each year, a hundred foreign students are selected from all over the United States to attend the conference. The conference is sponsored by the Kellogg Center for Continuing Education. It will be held from December 21 to January 2.

According to Mrs. Margaret

Woodhouse, director of the International Center, Vincente became interested in the meeting through a brochure received from the Kellogg Center. He then sent in his application and was one of a limited number to receive a scholarship she said.

'Breathless' Presented

The latest movie in the Triad series will be shown in the Textile auditorium tonight at 6:00 and 8:00 p.m.

"Breathless" describes a few days in the lives of erratic young lovers. It is directed by Jean-Luc Godard and stars Jean Seberg and Jean-Paul Belmondo.

Yellow Journalism

There has been enough in the way of bitterness and confusion on this campus in the past few weeks with out a supposedly professional newspaper sticking its biased finger into the pie.

We don't argue the right of The Raleigh Times to voice its opinion in the editorial column; every newspaper has that right and obligation, but we do greatly resent their warping and twisting the NEWS.

We are, of course, referring to their coverage of the meeting held Monday night in which the Chancellor addressed the student body. The meeting was, in truth, a very peaceful, orderly, and friendly one in which the students were well-behaved and asked sensible questions. To read the report of The Times, one would think that it was a meeting at which the Chancellor was in dire danger of being swamped by a mob of angry and outraged students.

We're not saying that The Times changed one large, important fact. They didn't. What they did do, however, was quote incorrectly, mis-state facts, insert personal comments, and print selected statements so as to change the entire picture of what the meeting was really like.

"State College Chancellor John Caldwell was outnumbered . . . as he met to try to defend the proposed name change for the college," stated The Times. We were under the impression that the meeting was in the order of a discussion or explanation, not a defense.

"With a grin, he said that he did 'request a body-guard down the center aisle,'" is the way it ran in The Times. The Chancellor simply jokingly said that he appreciated the "bodyguard" of two SG members who accompanied him.

And while we're at it, lets mention a few of the facts that The Times left out:

Chancellor Caldwell received a standing ovation as he entered the auditorium.

Student Government President Floyd McCall introduced Chancellor Caldwell as "a true friend of the student."

SG President Floyd McCall urged the students to "Fight squarely with punches above the belt."

Chancellor Caldwell praised the students for fighting for what they believed in.

All in all, the mistakes The Times made were small and seemingly trivial, but when found in an article dealing with what is an extremely sensitive topic among some seven thousand people, they add up to irresponsibility.

It is very well that The Times favor the proposed name change in their editorial column, but when they lap over into what is supposedly unbiased reporting they become a fine example of unprofessionalism and yellow journalism.

Sergeant Questions Pershing Rifles' Care Of Weapons

By Doug Lientz

The Brigade's rifles are generally in better condition than those of the Pershing Rifles.

Or at least that is what O. L. Hegwood, arms room maintenance sergeant, was trying to tell several PR's in the arms room last Friday afternoon.

As the argument progressed the PR's began picking Brigade rifles at random and matching them against PR weapons scratch for scratch and dent for dent.

When the argument ended Hegwood was still saying Brigade weapons are in better condition and the PR's were saying their rifles are just as good.

The difference in the condition of the weapons, according to Hegwood, is due to the way the PR's treat their rifles.

Letters To The Editor:

Jabs At Paper, Name Change

To the Editor:

I am deeply disappointed in Chancellor Caldwell for his support of renaming State College with the same name as the university on Whisky Hill. I can see no way in which the Consolidated University or the proposals to strengthen its educational program can be helped by the destruction of the name "State".

State College would be benefited by its elevation to a university status, which it would have if its name were changed to North Carolina State University. A number of states already have institutions named . . . State University. These states include Colorado, Florida, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, and Washington.

States which support a system of educational institutions of the same name, distinguishable only by location tacked onto the name, are California, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Texas, Vermont, and Wisconsin. These ambiguous names serve to confuse. The changing of the names of all members of the Consolidated University to a single name would cause more unnecessary confusion, to people both in and out of this state, than anything since daylight-saving time.

Upperclassmen remember a couple of years ago when the administration in Holladay Hall decided that efficiency and convenience would be greatly improved for everyone if all students paid their fees on registration day to eight or ten cashiers. Many students, especially those in engineering who are trained to think in quantitative terms, immediately realized that this plan would not work as claimed. After a vigorous protest by the students, the plan was repealed. At that time Chancellor Caldwell stated with disappointment, "In my opinion the prospects of objectivity and favor in experiencing and evaluating the new procedure are dim indeed in the present climate."

We students of STATE can again help bring about reconsideration of a proposal which promises to be, not an improvement, but a mistake. According to Charles Reynolds, president of the State College Alumni Association, only 12 of the 100 trustees of the Consolidated University are State College alumni, while 65 are Carolina alumni. I for one would like to know why this is. However, since this is the case, we must fight for STATE that much harder.

W. Tom Buchanan

To the Editor:

I get the strangest feeling that The Technician is confused. I can't imagine where I get this feeling but lately the editorial column seems to be trying to sit on both sides of the fence at once, and trying not to straddle the middle of the fence in the process. I realize that I shouldn't try to tell others how to run their business and I greatly appreciate having both sides of an argument but I would question whether the editorial column is the place to do it. Maybe The Technician staff should join the track team and take all the prizes and trophies in the high jump and hurdles events. Or maybe The Technician should just have fewer editors. I also question the amount of advertising space in The Technician. In the December 5, 1962 edition on page 3 there were 42 inches of news as opposed to 48 inches of advertisement. On page 4 there were 17 inches of news and 73 inches of advertising. Page 5, 20 inches of news and 70 inches of advertising, and on page 6 there were 21 inches of news and 69 inches of advertising. (I question the use of the term "news"). This might lead one to think that maybe The Technician should seriously consider placing a limit on the amount of advertising space. Actually the advertising content is usually of a higher calibre than the news content. (Maybe The Technician should place a limit on the amount of news).

Lastly, on the part of our station manager, Kent Watson and myself, I would like to thank you for the generous amount of space granted us (as per agreement) for the Sanford interview. Yes, it was an interview and not a special broadcast. An interview which the Governor made a special trip to our studios to participate in. I think considering the amount of space the stories took up in the paper as opposed to the amount of time it took to get the information the whole idea of having The Technician run the story was a gross waste of our time and yours.

Tonight I managed to set a new record, it took me 4 minutes and 30 seconds to read tonight's Technician. I spent 4 minutes measuring pages 3, 4, 5, and 6.)

Kiddies' Party Planned

The annual Christmas party for the children of married students will be held Saturday, December 15, from 10 to 11:30 a.m., at the College Union.

Games and prizes, a cartoon film, and refreshments are planned; Santa Claus, with his bag of gifts, will be present.

A Review

The Maltese Falcon

By Paul Kivett

Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Peter Lorre, and Sydney Greenstreet star in this film to be presented in the Textile Auditorium, December 15, 16.

Steven H. Scheuer, noted reviewer, says "The Maltese Falcon" is probably the finest private eye motion picture ever made." In this adaptation from the Dashiell Hammett yarn about Sam Spade, the late Humphrey Bogart creates a character you will never forget.

Bogart puts more character in the simple act of smoking a cigarette—he rolls his own—than any other actor ever has. If you do not get the plot, you can just sit there and watch him smoke.

The plot is developed in a haphazard style characteristic of this type picture. It is different from other "private eye" pictures because everything is completely lucid at the climax. Other pictures tend to leave the plot scrambled and just tell "who-done-it."

The film was an initial effort of John Huston, one of the best directors Hollywood has produced.

Because the film has been spliced so many times, some of Bogart's last remarks are missing. To the Bogart fan the heart of the picture is missing. The complete photoplay is there, however. The only mystery that will remain will be what happened to the falcon.

Spencer Awarded Fisher Trophy

Last week State's all-American swimmer, Ed Spencer, was awarded the Louis Fisher trophy. The trophy, in honor of the present president of the American Athletic Union, is awarded annually to the top amateur athlete in North Carolina as voted by sportswriters.

Spencer is the 1962 NCAA 100-yard butterfly champion, establishing a new NCAA mark of 52.5 seconds at the intercollegiate at Ohio State last March. He also won the men's outdoor AAU title in the 100-yard butterfly last August.

Ed is a senior this year in Industrial Engineering. He began swimming "as a kid." Said Spencer, "I was real sickly, and doctors advised me to take up swimming to try to build up my body and health."

He is a firm believer of a controlled weight-lifting program and is an Eastern Intercollegiate record-holder. In addition, he holds five ACC swimming records. State swimming coach Willis Casey has called Ed "the greatest all-around swimmer in ACC history."

Pack Downs Terps 76-74 In Overtime

By Carlos Williams

State's center John Key saved his one and only goal of last night's game against Maryland until the final second to win the game for State by a narrow score of 76-74.

Maryland's fourth loss of the season came after the Wolfpack was unable to hold their nine point lead over the Terps. With less than ten minutes left in the second half, Maryland began to cut away at the State margin. The Maryland effort continued until the game was tied 66-66 with fifty seconds left.

The Wolfpack took possession of the ball and, with the aid of Ken Rohloff's dribbling skill, held the ball for one final shot. Jim Whitfield took the shot with seven seconds to go giving State the lead at 68-66. Maryland, in turn, had their last chance at the ball as Eicher tied the game once again in the last second of regular play. The score, 68-68. The game then went into an overtime which, to the end, seemed to lead to another deadlock. After baskets by Rohloff, Whitfield, and Lakin for State, the overtime was tied with 1:04 minutes at 74-74.

State had possession of the ball and took time out. When play resumed only fifty seconds remained on the clock and the Wolfpack again switched to their freeze tactics. With one second on the clock, Key went for the jump shot and his only goal of the game. The basket was good giving State its first conference victory of the season for an over all 8-1 record.

Campus Crier

There will be a meeting of the Jewish students and faculty in the North Parlor of the King Religious Center Friday, December 14, at 8 p.m. The worship service and program will be on Jewish art, including slides on Marc Chagall's "Jerusalem Windows".

The Electrical Engineering Wives' Club will hold its Christmas Party and Dance on Saturday, December 15 at 8 p.m. in rooms 256-258 of the CU. All EE students and faculty couples are invited to attend.

The Christianity and Fine Arts Commission of the State College YMCA will present a dramatic reading of W. H. Auden's Christmas poem, in the Danforth Chapel at 8 p.m. Friday, December 14.

International Student Center Given Flags

The International Center is looking even more international.

A set of 104 United Nations' flags are now gracing the Center.

The flags were donated by L. L. Ivey, general manager of the Student Supply Store on behalf of the Supply Store. Each flag is eight inches by twelve inches.

The flags are being kept in the office of Mrs. Margaret Woodhouse, director of the Center.

"We haven't decided where to display them yet, but the students are already thoroughly enjoying them," Mrs. Woodhouse noted.

The International Center is located in the basement of the campus YMCA.

Laundry To Add Machines For Pull-Over Shirts

While the rest of us are enjoying the Christmas holidays, the State College Laundry will install new equipment.

According to Joseph R. Gower, superintendent of the laundry, the new equipment is being installed for the purpose of increasing the quality of the laundry's work, although the amount of clothing which can be taken in will also be increased.

The new equipment includes a three-girl cabinet-type shirt unit, a combination washer-extractor, two deodorizing tumblers; two drycleaning utility pressers, and one pants toppler. One of the special features of the three-girl cabinet-type shirt unit is that it will press a closed front shirt. With the old machines, only button down shirts could be handled satisfactorily, but with this new machine pull-over shirts will be easily pressed.

Gower added, "We hope that this will solve our closed front shirt problem."

The deodorizing tumbler will be used to vaporize the solvent left in the clothes immediately after they have been dry-cleaned. The new pants toppler will press the top of pants all at once using one lathe, while the old pants toppler required four lathes to do the job, according to Gower.

Santa (Textile Group) To Visit Underprivileged Raleigh Children

A group of underprivileged children will be visited by Santa next Tuesday night.

The party for the children is being sponsored by the entire Textile School under the direction of the Tompkins Textile Council.

The group will consist of children under ten years old who will be chosen by the Salvation Army.

Plans for the party include comic strips which will be shown upon the arrival of the children. Refreshments are to be served in the Shuttle Inn in Nelson Hall. Afterwards, Santa will arrive and present the children with presents.

DECK THE HALLS

When you think of Christmas gifts you naturally think of Marlboro cigarettes, leading seller in flip-top box in all fifty states—and if we annex Wales, in all fifty-one—and if we annex Lapland—in all fifty-two. This talk about annexing Wales and Lapland is, incidentally, not just idle speculation. Great Britain wants to trade Wales to the United States for a desert. Great Britain needs a desert desperately on account of the tourist trade. Tourists are always coming up to the Prime Minister or the Lord Privy Seal or like that and saying, "I'm not knocking your country, mind you. It's very quaint and picturesque, etc. what with Buckingham Palace and Bovril and Scotland Yard, etc., but where's your desert?" (Before I forget, let me point out that Scotland Yard, Britain's plain-clothes police branch, was named after Wally Scotland and Fred Yard who invented plain clothes. The American plain-clothes force is called the FBI after Frank B. Inchcliff, who invented fingerprints. Before Mr. Inchcliff's invention, everybody's fingers were absolutely glassy smooth. This, as you may imagine, played hob with the identification of newborn babies in hospitals. From 1791 until 1904 no American parent ever brought home the right baby from the hospital. This later became known as the Black Tom Explosion.)

But I digress. England, I was saying, wants to trade Wales for a desert. Sweden wants to trade Lapland for Frank B. Inchcliff. The reason is that Swedes to this day still don't have fingerprints. As a result, identification of babies in Swedish hospitals is so haphazard that Swedes flatly refuse to bring their babies home. There are, at present, nearly a half-billion unclaimed babies in Swedish hospitals—some of them well over eighty years old.

But I digress. We were speaking of Christmas gifts which, naturally put us in mind of Marlboro cigarettes. What could be more welcome at Christmas time than Marlboro's flavor, Marlboro's soft pack, Marlboro's flip-top box? What indeed would be more welcome at any time of year—winter or summer, rain or shine, night or day? Any time, any season, when you light a Marlboro you can always be certain that you will get the same mild, flavorful, completely comfortable smoke.

There are, of course, other things you can give for Christmas besides Marlboro cigarettes. If, for example, you are looking for something to give a music lover, let me call to your attention a revolutionary new development in phonographs—the Low-fi phonograph. The Low-fi, product of years of patient research, has so little fidelity to the record you put on it that if, for instance, you put "Stardust" on the turntable, "Melancholy Baby" will come out. This is an especially welcome gift for people who have grown tired of "Stardust".

Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night.

Beneath the sea, beyond the sky or anywhere in between—this is the domain of vehicles, weapons and systems produced by Ling-Temco-Vought. While LTV is a relatively new name to industry, the company is comprised of experienced organizations with far-reaching technical talents. Together these elements are meeting the advanced challenges of military electronics, communications, space, aircraft and missiles and have placed LTV in the enviable position of one of the nation's top ten defense contractors.

Today, LTV's activities include such programs as V-STOL, CRUSADER, SCOUT, SATURN, DYNA-SOAR and a supersonic, low-altitude missile. In addition, the company is supplying specialized military electronic equipment, super-power transmitters for the "Voice of Polaris" radio station, special purpose computers, actuators for MINUTEMAN and scores of other complex products and systems.

Because of this continuing expansion, LTV's divisions have ground-floor growth opportunities for graduates holding degrees in Aeronautical, Mechanical, Industrial, Electrical and Civil Engineering and Math, Physics or Metallurgy.

Before selecting your industrial home, consider engineering climate, on-the-job orientation, professional development and location... consider LTV and Dallas—the social, intellectual and cultural center of the Southwest. We invite you to plan your future with us. For further information on career positions, contact your Placement Office or write College Relations Office, Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., P. O.
