Military Groups Initiation Antics Are Criticized

N. B. Watts, director of Student Housing, last night warned military societies against unruly disturbances in the dormitories.

During the past two weeks, one student has been injured and one dormitory room damaged as members of ROTC cadet organizations attempted to take other members from the dormitories, Watts stated. He added that "these incidents have taken place late at night and have been disturbing to the dormitory residents."

According to Watts, these incidents are in violation of the dormitory "quiet hours," and are interpreted by the College and the Laws of the state of North Carolina as hazing.

James J. Stewart, dean of Student Affairs agreed with Watts. He commented that these violations "are not in keeping with the high standards of conduct which prevail in all of our ROTC cadet organizations."

Watts has appealed to the advisers and officers of the societies to take whatever steps are necessary to correct this situation. "It is the understanding of the Department of Student Housing that the advisers to the military societies have called a meeting of these student groups to discuss the matter and to take appropriate action to avoid further incidents," he said.

A Visit With Santa

The above scene will be repeated many times on the State College campus during the next few days as fraternities, honor and professional societies and other organizations will be giving parties for orphans and needy children in the Raleigh area.

Food Science Head Named 'Man of Year'

Dr. W. M. Roberts, who last year was named the first head of the Department of Food Science of the School of Agriculture, has been named "Man of the Year" in North Carolina agriculture by The Progressive Farmer magazine.

Cited for his "burning desire to better the lot of those who produce and process foods," Dr. Roberts has worked with meat and meat products, poultry products, fruits and vegetables, and seafoods as well as dairy products.

Dr. Roberts is a native of Tennessee. He came to State College as professor and head of the dairy manufacturing section in 1943.

In an interview with The Technician, Dr. Roberts thanked everyone concerned with helping him win this award. He said, "I'm thrilled to have been chosen for this outstanding award. At the same time, I want to recognize the contributions of Chancellor Caldwell, Dean H. B. James (School of Agriculture), the staff in the Food Science Department, Governor Sanford," (See PROF. HONORED, page 3)

Blue Key Taps Eleven Students To Membership

Eleven juniors and seniors were tapped into Blue Key Honor Fraternity yesterday.

Blue Key is the only national leadership honorary fraternity on the State campus.

An initiation banquet will be held for the new members after the beginning of the second semester, according to Blue Key President Frank Smith.

Students Brave Cold; Rally For Name

By Doug Lientz
Flaming tires and blazing spirits broke the 16 degree temperature last night as 250 students rallied against the proposed name change.

The rally began with a small group and a small fire at about 7:30 p.m. in the Coliseum parking lot. It continued to grow until it broke up about forty-five minutes later.

The rally began under the direction of Ed Broadhurst, a State College cheerleader. In his early comments he alluded to the statement made at the student body meeting Monday night that State's gain from the name change would be a reputation as a professional drinking school. He added that State now has drinkers equal to Carolina's.

Broadhurst then introduced Floyd McCall, Student Government president, who said that he wanted as many students as possible to see their representatives to the State Legislature while they are home at Christmas. He said that he felt that this would be one of the most effective ways students could help oppose the name change.

He then repeated the appeal he made at the Monday meeting that students stick to the issues and leave personalities out of the name change fight.

About this time someone added two old tires to the fire in hopes of beating the bitter cold. These tires rapidly caught fire, and when the wind hit the blaze sparks, smoke, and a mild odor hit the students on one side of the fire, driving them back.

With the fire and some State College spirit raging through the crowd, McCall thanked everyone present for coming.

Then Broadhurst asked the students to stay long enough to sing the State College Alma Mater before returning to their dorms. After this, and several

'Corps' Interested In State Skills

The Peace Corps is particularly interested in the skills of State College students, a representative of the Peace Corps said here yesterday.

Paul Daly, who is on loan to the Peace Corps from the agricultural division of the Government, said that electrical engineers are not presently called for as such but would be very helpful in the field of education and in surveying. He made the statement in an interview with Joe Hancammon of WKNC and Lee McDonald, Peace Corps liaison officer for State.

In television, Daly continued, electrical engineers would be beneficial since television and radio stations are built more quickly than roads. Daly said that a good man could become manager of a station and even run a country station.

Industrial engineering and agricultural engineering students would also be extremely useful as well as any other students since their need for help is based on the individual's skills and education, he pointed out. Concerning personal gain, the Peace Corps worker can pursue his master's or Ph.D. degree while in the Corps, Daly said. This provides an easy way of getting a language out of the way, he noted.

Pay is not given as such, but all expenses are paid, and an account for the workers is kept in the States into which seventy-five dollars a month is deposited, Daly explained.

Peace Corps work does not take the place of military time, but workers would probably be deferred except in emergency, Daly added.

To be eligible to join the Peace Corps, a person must be over 18 years old, possess above average intelligence, be physically fit and mentally stable, have an ability to learn a language, and have a fairly accurate knowledge of math and US history.

Students interested in the Peace Corps can contact Lee McDonald in the CU for information.

Graduate Students To Hear Anderson

Graduate students will hear Friday night how the university system will affect the graduate program in the near future.

Dr. Donald B. Anderson, vice-president of the Consolidated University, will lecture on the position of the university system on the graduate level in the contemporary world. Dr. Anderson was associate dean of the Graduate School here in 1950.

The lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Williams Hall Auditorium.

CU Changes Almost Complete

By Steve Johnston
Big plans for redecoration and rearrangement of facilities are well underway in the College Union.

"Our redecoration is almost complete," Dick Heaton, associate director of the College Union, noted. "Our reasons for redecoration include an attempt to give the Union a warmer and more comfortable atmosphere, hoping to make the students feel at home here, and an attempt to beautify certain areas."

Already completed is the laying of a blue wall-to-wall carpet in the south lounge and area carpets in the TV lounge, the hanging of white curtains, and the extensive reupholstering of all the lounge furniture.

Nearing completion is the tinting of the windows in order to reduce the glare produced by the white curtains. Two planter boxes are on order; one will be placed beside the TV and the other will decorate the entrance to the south lounge, according to Heaton.

Office space changes involve the moving of the Business Office from its present location above the front entrance into the rooms now occupied by the Activities Office; the Activities Office will be relocated in the area presently designated as the craft shop. The empty space created by the removal of the Business Office will be converted into a large lounge, Heaton explained.

"Last but not least, we will soon be able to provide space for another barber chair," Heaton concluded.

Students are already enjoying the comforts of the newly redecorated south gallery and lounge at the College Union as the picture indicates. The refurbishing of the main lounge is part of the over-all redecoration now under way.

Special State College Christmas cards are now on sale at the Student Supply Store.

These cards have a picture of the Bell Tower in the snow and "Season's Greetings" and N. C. State printed on the front. The cards are selling for $1.00 per dozen. The sale is being sponsored by the State College Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega. Nolan Coggins, the director of the card project for Alpha Phi Omega, said, "We think that these cards can sort of add a little to Christmas greetings for the State student."

No Need For Bullies

Mr. N. B. Watts, the director of Student Housing, recently issued a warning concerning the disturbances fraternities have caused in dormitories during their hazing periods. While this is a legitimate criticism of one facet of fraternal initiations, it is about time that someone looked into the initiations which are held by campus fraternities in a larger sense.

Consolidated University rules prohibit hazing of all kinds, but anyone who has been connected with State for any length of time is aware of the fact that this rule is largely ignored.

The chief offenders are not social fraternities as one might expect. While there are some fraternities that haze initiates to some extent, the greater majority have policies of initiation which are not degrading to either initiates or members. The story is different in some professional and military fraternities, however. We have seen and heard of some initiation practices which border on sadism.

Although it should give the administration grounds for action, the fact that hazing is against college policy is not what we find so objectionable.

When a person attends a college, he is supposed to conduct himself as a mature individual, and we do not see how hazing can be the act of a mature man.

It is simply the act of a bully who forces his will on a person over whom he has some control.

Unexpected Apathy

A general failing of human nature is that most people are apathetic. A small percentage of eligible voters vote, even fewer people work for political candidates, and as a rule most people do not even care about anything more than their next meal or their recreation.

We should not expect it to be any different on campus, but a group of State students whom one would not expect to have this failing have proven themselves to be apathetic also.

President Floyd McCall recently formed a body, The State College Executive Council, which is composed of the leaders of many of the campus organizations. He invited approximately forty supposed student leaders, to be members of the Council.

Approximately twelve were at the first meeting.

There is much that individuals, campus organizations, and the college can gain from this organization. Its aims are to make organizations more active and to coordinate the activities of campus groups. Joint programs by different organizations could be a great boon to the campus.

The student leaders who were invited to join the Council and did not bother to come should consider their actions very carefully.

If they are going to be apathetic, who is left to get something done?

Name Change, Technician Hit

To the Editor:

Having read your editorial of December 6, in the Technician, I have found for the first time something which I can agree with you upon since your turning away from State. Our fight to keep the recognition for State should be conducted in a sensible and rational manner. Maintaining this attitude will result in a beneficial acknowledgement of our campaign.

Our resistance to the present issue is being met with unfair criticism. For a person to use his position to belittle the efforts of others, is rather "juvenile".

We find it very disappointing to discover that our resistance is considered to be an attempt to just "raise hell", and that all demonstrations are either childish or unruly. Since Mr. Blair and you compare this present issue to World Wars, I suppose that you also believe that the demonstrations by our founding fathers against the English Government were childish too.

Does Mr. Blair really believe that our educational system is ancient or as "far behind" as he says? According to the article by Paul H. Davis in the Raleigh News and Observer, October 14, 1962, "... that by 1970 North Carolina State will be among the top ten universities and colleges in the nation." This is State's inadequate educational system? Mr. Blair refers to the Carlyle Report, but does this report mention the necessity of changing the name of each institution involved to one common name?

When a nationally and internationally known business concern re-organizes its administration offices and policies, does this same company change its name?

The Christmas Concert

By Steve Johnston

The sound of music came to Reynolds Coliseum last Tuesday night.

The sounds were the production of the combined efforts of the State College Symphonic Band and the Men's Glee Club. The production was the annual Christmas concert, attended by approximately 3,500 people.

Under the direction of Donald B. Adcock, the 85-piece Symphonic Band opened its half of the performance with selections including such all-time yuletide favorites as "Adeste Fidelis," "Chorale Prelude," "What Child is This?" "Antiphony for Winds," and "Sleighride."

Jim Reid, Raleigh mayor pro tempore, narrated "The Night Before Christmas" to the accompaniment of the band.

The second half of the concert featured the 100-voice Men's Glee Club, directed by J. Perry Watson, singing "Carol of the Bells," "Fanfare for a Christmas Day," "The Coventry Carol," "Low How a Rose E're Blooming," "Deck the Halls," and "Rocking," featuring Becton James as soloist.

Both groups combined to present the finale, "Legend of the Bells," with Fred Partin as soloist.

Only A Name Change?

What Do State Alumni Really Want?

Editor's note: The following article dealing with the proposal to change the name of State College is a reprint from The Raleigh Times. It was written by Jay Jenkins, Raleigh correspondent for The Charlotte Observer.

Many alumni of N. C. State College are openly fighting a proposal to change its name to the University of North Carolina at Raleigh.

There is evidence, however, that some of them are using the name-change dispute to cover up a drive to detach State College from the consolidated university system.

There is further evidence that the State College alumni are motivated more by sentiment than by logic in their endeavors.

That conclusion is inescapable after an examination of all of the facts.

Collision Likely

The sentiment is strong. The logic is persuasive. The two likely will collide during the 1963 session of the General Assembly.

What happens could exert a profound influence upon higher education in North Carolina and consequently upon the chances boys and girls would or would not have in that area.

Interestingly enough, the proposal to change the name of N. C. State flowed from a recommendation designed to broaden greatly curriculum of that school without diluting the excellence of its present technical courses.

additional cheers, someone started yelling about marching on the capitol.

McCall spent several minutes talking the group out of this on the grounds that such a small group would look ridiculous marching on the Capitol, and that it would only add to the idea that opposition to the name change is being conducted by a bunch of rowdies who do not care about the issues, but only want to raise some hell.

The rally then broke up. McCall stated to a reporter that the rally was backed by Student Government. Signs have been up for about a week advertising the rally.

School, headed by Irving Carlyle of Winston-Salem, proposed that the university function in North Carolina be given a statutory definition, as follows:

"The university shall provide instruction in the liberal arts, fine arts and sciences, and in the learned professions, including, these being defined as those professions which rest upon advanced knowledge in the liberal arts and sciences; and shall be the primary state-supported agency for research in the liberal arts and sciences, pure and applied. The university shall provide instruction in the branches of learning relating to agriculture and the mechanic arts, and to other scientific and classical studies. The university shall be the only institution in the state system of higher education authorized to award the doctor's degree."

The definition is intended to establish a single state university in concept. It would perform its duties for the state in areas determined by need. It would be the apex of an educational effort including community colleges.

Implicit in the definition is the change in name. There would be the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. N. C. State College would become the University of North Carolina at Raleigh, Woman's College in Greensboro would become the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Any additional branches of UNC would be similarly designated in order to make clear the concept of one state university performing assigned functions.

Broadening Curriculum

At the same time State College's curriculum was being broadened to include liberal arts degrees, Woman's College doors would be opened to male undergraduates. The W. C. alumnae's executive committee has approved the name change and new concept.

There is division even among the State College alumni (who, if they want to get technical about names, might ponder the true statutory name of the college now: "North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering of the University of North Carolina").

Two former presidents of the alumni association, Roy Park of New York and State Sen. Ralph Scott of Haw River, support the change. So does the faculty senate of the college, the president of the college's "Wolfpack Club," Walker Martin of Raleigh, and the state's top educators. So does Gov. Terry Sanford.

Lists Reasons

Leading the opposition is Charles Reynolds of Spindale, a textile official and present president of the alumni. Among the reasons he lists:

A change in name would rob of its identity a college that has achieved eminence in technical education. The same objectives may be achieved, he contends, by naming it N. C. State University.

—The change would make permanent, Reynolds alleges, the "secondary" role State College has played to UNC at Chapel Hill.

—The name and functions of the college should be left as they are if the only alternative is the change to UNC at Raleigh.

Supporters of the change answer:

—Eminence is based upon more than a name and is not so fragile that it can be destroyed by a change in title.

—State College has fared well since it, UNC at Chapel Hill and WC at Greensboro were consolidated in 1931.

—If the concept of a single university is to be attained and maintained, branches of it—including futures ones—should carry the designation.

Without this concept, they argue, the state could embark again on the expense, uncoordinated course of putting state appropriations up for grabs, with each school going its own way.

It should be noted here, also, that in any power play in the legislature UNC would enjoy all of the advantages over State College, especially if State College split off from the university.

With the university assigned a specific, statutory function, State College is assured of maintaining its technical excellence and the state funds necessary for that, because other state schools would be precluded from poaching upon its functions.

An excellent case may be made, from the record, that State College has grown great and strong as a direct result of its location under the tent of consolidation, achieved in 1931.

The statistics don't bear out State's contention — or rather, Reynolds' contention — that State has been forced to take a back seat.

Since consolidation, state appropriations for operation and maintenance expenses to State College have amounted to $109,325,343.

Appropriations for the same purposes to UNC at Chapel Hill have totaled $103,637,198, while Woman's College has received $26,854,785.

State Got Most

State College has received $6 million more during the period even though UNC at Chapel Hill has:

—Carried the costs of operating the consolidated office and administration for about one-third of the time.

—Chapel Hill has had a higher enrollment than State College.

For the 1961-62 school year, Chapel Hill's appropriation was $11.5 million and State College's $11.2 million, although Chapel Hill had roughly 2,000 more students enrolled than did State.

Despite the statements of emotional State alumni, it is highly unlikely that the college would risk deconsolidation rather than accept a common identity with the university.

Quite aside from the documented benefits State has received while a part of the three-fold university is the political angle, a very real one to any institution that gets its money from a state legislature.

Both UNC at Chapel Hill and Woman's College at Greensboro want the new concept. Certainly, the proposed new branches of UNC in Charlotte, Wilmington and, eventually, Asheville-Biltmore would covet the name as well as the status.

As is the nation, North Carolina is undergoing the transition to an urban society, with a consequent switch, however slow in places, of the power structure. Add to the historic strength of UNC at Chapel Hill the population centers of the state, and the implication is unmistakable.

Where the power resides the money lies—and the power to dispense it. State College would be exhibiting a foolish bravado to break its mooring and strike out on its own.

All of the talk about the name change should not obscure the central fact that the name, so far as the entire state of North Carolina is concerned, is a minor detail.

Single University

At the core of the proposal is the concept of a single state university, performing assigned functions when and where called upon and to do so, even to campuses beyond the three it now occupies.

Timing likewise is important. This state is in the midst of its greatest educational thrust forward. A divisive fight now over a relatively inconsequential detail could slow the momentum, perhaps halt it altogether.

The historical background of consolidation is pertinent. It was effected because in the depression-ridden 1930s, Gov. O. Max Gardner and the General Assembly decided that in that direction lay greater service at less cost.

The situation today makes continued consolidation even more of a necessity. Education was never more directly related to the bread-and-butter business of earning a living. Never have more students clamored for advanced education, never have more different hands clutched for the tax dollar.

All of the many vexing problems associated with the space age, this state's low standing in per capita income and the general unease about our relative standing in the world somehow combine to make nomenclature seem rather insignificant.

North Carolina can maintain a great university if it can maintain its perspective and thereby keep its balance.

Alex.-SPE Lead In Points

Sigma Phi Epsilon holds the lead in the point total leading to the fraternity intramural championship trophy after the completion of the fall program. By winning volleyball and coming in second place in football, the Sig Eps have compiled a total of 415 points and hold a slender 10 point lead over PKA, the winners of the football crown.

PKT, by virtue of a second place slot in volleyball and a tie for third in football, is presently in third place with 348 points, and KA rounds out the top four with 318 points due to their third place finish in football and by winning the golf title.

In the dormitory standings Alexander has a strong lead of forty points over second place Becton by virtue of a second place finish in football, a third place in golf, and a fourth place in volleyball. By winning the volleyball title Becton holds down second place with 355 points.

The third slot is shared by Watauga and Tucker #1 with 330 points each. Tucker #1 holds this position by virtue of a first place finish in football while Watauga kept pace with high finishes in volleyball and golf.

Kappa Alpha Wins Dixie Classic Cup

By Vello Kuuskraa
Kappa Alpha, defended its Dixie Classic crown with the style of real champions as they once again walked off with top honors.

The KA's defeated a strong PKA squad 64-47 to retain the title. Jim Spence of Kappa Alpha was selected as the tournament's "most valuable player" as he paced both teams in scoring with 23 points and also captured the greatest share of the rebounds.

The game was a see-saw battle during the first half with KA holding a, slim 23-22 edge at the buzzer and remained so until the last five minutes of play. KA then put on their big offensive spurt and outdistanced the PKA team for the victory. Monk with 14 points and B. Pressler with 12 points were also instrumental in the KA victory. Bert May led the PKA scorers with 15 points.

This past Dixie Classics brought together the finest in student participation basketball and ranks as one of the top intramural attractions in the South. Kappa Alpha deserves real congratulations for their fine showing.

Frat Intramural Basketball Begins

By Vello Kuuskraa
The winter season of intramural activity was initiated Tuesday night by the sound of whistles and bouncing basketballs.

In League #1, Sigma Chi defeated LCA 44-32. Cooke and Turpin led the Sigs attack while Wachtel was high for LCA. In League #2 play, SPE turned loose its offensive might to crush TKE 73-25. The Sigs Eps were gunning for the century mark after scoring 47 at half but a tightened TKE defense slowed the scoring in the second half. Faelten with 19, Kuuskraa with 16, and Wintzer with 13 paced the Sig Eps while Goodnight had 15 for TKE. Dixie Classic Champion Kappa Alpha disposed of SAM 55-29. The KA's were never threatened and emptied the bench toward the last of the game. Bowen and Powell were high scorers for KA and Prager and Youngman paced the SAM squad. Sigma Nu put on an offensive display to defeat Sigma Pi 68-36. Huntman and Williams with 17 tallies apiece sparked the Nu's while Cooper of Sigma Pi was high scorer for the game with 19 points. Theta Chi surprised the SAE team (with an early offensive spurt) and went on to win 58-37. Rhodes with 19 and Kirkman with 13 markers led the Theta Chi's and Shotton was high for SAE.

League #4 produced the real surprises of the night as both last year's contenders felt the sting of defeat. AGR lost a close game to PKP by a score of 44-41. Billings led the PKP attack with 18 points and Faircloth was tops for AGR with 16.

Delta Sig withstood a strong last gap rally by PKT and took the honors by a score of 55-53. Steele and Franklin with 18 and 14 points respectively insured the Delta Sig victory, while Thorn with 21 and Skidmore with 16 tallies paced the PKT's.

State Leads Big Four

N. C. State's two intercollegiate bowling teams travel to Northside Lanes in Winston-Salem on Saturday for the third in a series of eight Big Four meets scheduled this season.

Presently in first place, the State keglers hope to maintain their lead and expect to face their stiffest match this year. Wake Forest, always tough on their home lanes, and UNC, who showed plenty of scoring ability on their home lanes at Chapel Hill, should give State plenty of competition for the scoring honors Saturday.

In the meet at All-Star Lanes in Chapel Hill on December 1, State #1 again exploded in their first series with games of 940, 902, and 915 for a 2757 series to break their previous league high of 2728. However, UNC and Wake Forest pushed them with scores of 785, 887, and 941 for 2613; and 810, 904, and 881 for 2595 respectively. State #2 had 810, 845, and 888 for a 2542 series.

In the second three-game series, UNC showed their sometimes powerful scoring punch with a 902, 769, 921—2592 series. The other major scoring came from State #2 with a 909, 835, 808—2542 series.

UNC had three bowlers to average better than 180 pins per game while Wake Forest's Stig Nissen averaged an even 180. State, however, once again took top individual scoring honors as captain Long rolled 246, 170, 184 for a 600 series while averaging 188 for the six games. Team mate Baily, who also had a 600 series at the first meet at Western Lanes, followed closely behind with a 187 average for five games. Top scorer for State #2 was Lipsius who averaged 178 for six games.

Team Standings	Team Points	Total Points
State #1	113	213
State #2	100
UNC #1	59½	156
UNC #2	96½
Duke #1	67½	116½
Duke #2	49
Wake Forest #1	74½	90½

ANNOUNCING THE 1963-1964 AFFLERBACH FELLOWSHIPS*

BACKGROUND OF THE COMPETITION: No matter how much time our People in Naming spend thinking up just the right color names for our shirts (Maize, Stone Green, Peat Blue, etc.), the Eagle Secret Shoppers inevitably report that you choose your Eagle shirts with such statements as "Gimme six of them greenish ones" or "Could I bother you for two or three dozen of those stri-ped ones." Our problem is in selecting names which will capture the imagination of the shirt-buying public. ❖ NATURE OF THE COMPETITION: The 10 Afferbachs for 1963-64 will go to those persons suggesting the best names for our colors. Imagination-capturing names, like Well Red, Long Green, Charlie Brown, or Navel Orange. You may wish to inspect our shirts—for inspiration, if not purchase. Eagle shirts don't always have an Eagle label—some fine stores sew in their own—but if you write us, we'll suggest your nearest Eagle Shirt Color Inspection Station. ❖ STIPEND: The grand prize winner will have his (or her) choice of a Traveling Afferbach (a grand all-expense-paid weekend at the Bush House in Quakertown—an exciting chance to become acquainted with the natives—many of whom are us, including Miss Revera Afferbach, herself) or a Stationary Afferbach (a dozen Eagle Button-down shirts). The 9 other Afferbachs will consist of a grant of four Eagle Button-down shirts. Each, that is. ❖ RULES: The competition is open to all students and faculty members at schools, as well as to those who have filled in the coupon below.

*This, actually, is Eagle's second competition in as many years. Those of you who partook of the first, that is, what to do with the pocket on a Shirtkerchief, will doubtless be excited to learn that the book containing many of your letters to Miss Afferbach has now been published by the Macmillan Co. and is now available at your bookseller. We have called it Dear Miss Afferbach, or The Postman Hardly Ever Rings 11,342 Times, and the price is $4.95.
