Grade Reports Opinion Divided

By Grant Blair

State College's new grading system underwent its first test last semester.

The question of whether it passed or not depends on whose view you accept—the administration's or the faculty's.

The new method of reporting grades consisted of a packet of IBM cards, pencils, and an instruction booklet, which the professor received in the mail. The instructor marked the student's card with one of eight possible choices.

The cards were sent to Holladay Hall where duplicates of them were made. According to Hugh Fordyce, assistant director of admissions, the duplicates are necessary to run on the IBM 650 located in the basement of Patterson Hall. After the initial sorting operation, the grades are tabulated and sorted.

Fordyce stated that the new system has worked out "exceptionally well." Errors were reduced to "almost zero" he stated. "All errors so far have been due to the professor marking the wrong grade."

On the other hand, the professors had mixed sentiments about the new system. "There's no way to post grades for the student," one professor stated. "We have to make out our own rosters in order to let the student know what he made in the course, which involves a lot of extra work." Many students have reported that a large number of professors solved the problem by simply not posting grades.

Another problem which many students faced was the relatively late mailing of grades. "I have no idea what I made in the course," one student complained. "My parents have my grades and the prof didn't post any, so I don't know what I made. I hope I passed, because I'm taking the next course in the series."

Fraternity rush which began last night saw fraternities searching for new members to move into their new houses next fall. To the left, Pete McDonald, Sigma Chi president speaks to rushee Steve Bordeaux, and to the right Pika Brother Charles Tomkins tells Marvin Adkins about fraternity life. According to fraternity spokesmen, one of the largest spring rushes in history is planned because rush next year may be delayed until fraternities are completely moved into their new houses. The rush period will be over at 10 p.m. Sunday night. (Photos by Andrews)

Fraternities Begin Spring Rush

Rushee View Of Rush

By Herb Allred

Everybody around the dorm had been talking quite a bit about fraternities lately, so I decided to go see what it was all about.

I walked into the door and about five thousand hands were thrust into my face. I shook each one, repeating the name of the person to which each belonged, and immediately forgot it. At the end of the line a fellow seated at a desk demanded of me my name and soon thereafter pinned a small white card to my chest. I sustained minor lacerations.

I stood in a corner for a few seconds until another fellow who displayed every one of his gleaming, white teeth introduced himself and offered to show me the fraternity house. Before I could even nod my head, he had grabbed me by the arm, and was whisking me from cubbyhole to cubbyhole, relating to me the various names assigned to each room (the Gold

Varied Programs Planned By BSU

Dr. Arthur Waltner, physics professor here, will lead off a series of lectures on "Crucial Concern" at the Baptist Student Union Friday night.

Waltner's topic will be thermodynamic survival. Following a brief lecture, Waltner will hold a question and answer session. He will conclude the discussion next Friday night, February 15.

The BSU sponsors three different forums each Friday night. "Christian Thought" will be led this semester by LeRoy Ricaha Richardson, BSU chaplain. A third forum entitled "Protestant, Catholic, and Jew" will feature a number of different speakers during the semester. Les Larson, a Danforth intern at the King Religious Center, will begin this series with a lecture on the Protestant Friday night.

Speaking February 22 in the "Crucial Concern" forum will

Coeds Organizing Women's Association

A small representative group of coeds decided last night to begin laying plans to organize a women's association.

Thirteen coeds, seven from the Women's Campus Code Board and six from the CU

Hospitality Committee, met to discuss the possibility of affiliating such an organization with the CU. By unanimous vote, the group declared its intentions to make the association separate from the Hospitality Committee and the CU.

The WCCB will be in charge of preliminary plans for the association.

According to Kaye Perryman, chairman of the WCCB, the association will be organized for the prime purpose of functioning as a social body, allowing the coeds to meet for lunch once a week. They will be under no obligation to sponsor dances, coffee hours, and events held at the CU, she said.

Picketing Makes National Mag

The name change controversy has made a national newsmagazine.

The February 4, issue of Newsweek in its education section reported on the opposition with which the student body met the proposed name, The University of North Carolina at Raleigh.

The story stated that Chancellor Caldwell had asked the students who were picketing his house to spell correctly and quoted the "Quantity vs. Quality" sign with which FarmHouse Fraternity picketed.

Library 'Friends' To Be Revived

The Friends of the Library, an organization defunct since the mid-fifties, will be revived Friday night.

Friends of the library from all over the state will attend a dinner meeting at the CU Friday night. Chancellor Caldwell and Dr. Benjamin E. Powell, librarian at Duke and past president of the American Library Association, will address the friends on the functions of the organization.

The meeting will focus attention on the needs of the development phase of the library. According to Dr. Lodwick Hartley, chairman of the organization and head of the English Department here, "We want to offer an opportunity for contributions in the form of money and books to our library collection. The Friends of the Library should function for this purpose."

Dr. Hartley stated that most of the support for the library comes from state appropriations. "We receive a few fine individual gifts, but a very small proportion of our budget relies on gifts," he said.

Notice

The Board of Directors of New Arts, Inc. has urged all students attending the remaining concerts not to smoke within the auditorium. It is very difficult to properly ventilate that part of the Coliseum used for concerts. The smoke in the past has been disturbing to both performers and the audience. The Board further requests that the audience not move around during the performance and not bring vending machine cups into the auditorium. New Arts, Inc. attempts to bring the very best popular artists to the campus at the lowest possible cost. The cooperation of the audience is necessary to make these concerts a continuing success.

Edward Albee To Speak Monday

By John Theys

Creator of a current smash on Broadway and Author of several sell-outs off-Broadway—Edward Albee—will appear at the College Union Ballroom Monday evening at 8:00 in the second of the Contemporary Scene lectures.

Tennessee Williams, according to the Feb. 4 issue of Newsweek Magazine, is Albee's most ardent admirer. "Edward Albee," says Williams, unblushingly, "is the only great playwright we've ever had in America." With a four page article and a cover picture, Albee was praised by the Feb. 4 issue of Newsweek as being "the first to sustain the new brand of serious comedy for a full three acts on Broadway."

Edward Albee's off-Broadway plays, The Zoo Story, The American Dream, The Death of Bessie Smith, and The Sandbox received wide critical acclaim and his current full-length Broadway play, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, is a sell-out.

Adopted into the theatrical family of Edward Franklin Albee, the vaudevillian entrepreneur, Albee held several other jobs before becoming a playwright.

His plays are tense, savage, and satiric. In Zoo Story, which uses only two characters, one man impales himself on a knife held—unwillingly—by another. In The Death of Bessie Smith a Negro singer bleeds to death while a white hospital delays admitting her. In Who's Afraid

Sigma Kappas Initiate Nine Into Soror Bonds

Nine new members have been initiated into the Gamma Phi chapter of the Sigma Kappa sorority.

The initiation ceremony was held Saturday at the campus YMCA. A banquet followed at Ballentine's Restaurant.

New members are Connie Bumgarner of Morganton; Gail Fitchett of Pittsboro; Karen Schmitt of Indianapolis, Indiana; Nancy Barbour, Joan Carter, Phyllis Ham, Pat Saunders, Sylvia Williams—all of Raleigh; and Adele Jones of Wilkesboro, who was voted the outstanding pledge.

The spring rush will begin Saturday afternoon with a Western party to be held at Alumni Hall.

Liberal Arts Library Shelf To Grow Soon

By Billie Darden

Liberal arts professors are having a ball.

The basis for their frolics is the library's expansion in buying books pertaining to liberal arts.

The most extensive buying has been in the fields of English, economics, political science, and history in the liberal arts field according to Mr. Issac T. Littleton, assistant library director.

While the library committee is expanding especially in these new areas, they are not neglecting the sciences and math departments. There has also been much buying in chemistry as well as in all other areas, Littleton said.

Hypocritical, and Foolish

There have been many times since we enrolled at State that we have been proud of our school, but the time which we remember with the most pride is a basketball game a few years ago in which the great Villanova Negro basketball player Hubie White received a standing ovation from the stands as he left the floor at the end of the game. It was a stirring sight to see the predominantly Southern stands applaud the ability of a remarkable ballplayer without regard to the color of his skin and it pointed out that here in North Carolina many people have outgrown the attitudes which have been largely predominant in the South.

Clemson recently became the seventh ACC school to become at least nominally integrated, and it is evident that the University of South Carolina will soon admit colored students also.

The Wake Forest Coach, Billy Hildebrand, recently announced his intentions of recruiting Negro ballplayers for Wake Forest Teams.

A Shelby native, Bobby Bell, enrolled at the University of Minnesota and went on to become a consensus All-American selection.

State College has had Negroes participate on athletic teams in minor sports, but has never given scholarships to deserving Negroes. It has also had consistently poor teams in major sports in recent years, and is restricted in its recruiting in areas of the country in which ACC teams are not located.

All of these statements point to one conclusion. State College, if it is to continue to participate in athletics on a big-time basis, is being hypocritical, short-sighted, and slightly foolish in not approaching and offering scholarships to Negro athletes.

It is being hypocritical because it professes to have complete integration yet denies one of its main forms of financial aid to Negroes. It is being short-sighted because total integration will come in the future and in the meantime it is neglecting a source of athletic talent which could improve its teams. And it is being foolish in thinking that it might hamper its relations with unsegregated schools or might receive undue criticism from its own athletic fans. Clemson with a Negro student and the University of South Carolina which will soon have Negro students could hardly refuse to play unsegregated athletic teams, and a crowd which will give a standing ovation for a player on an opposing team would hardly do less for one on its own.

Segregation is a problem which will only be solved by the responsible and intelligent members of the Southern society, and higher education should be both responsible and intelligent. Athletics has been one of the main areas in which the colored race has found that it can compete on equal terms with the white, and many of the Negro athletes have gone on from athletics to other prestigious areas of endeavor.

It is wrong for a state-supported institution of higher learning to refuse the colored citizens of its state one of the major ways they have to better their lot.

Profile . . . Ferrante And Teicher

Ferrante and Teicher will appear on Sunday evening at 8 p.m. in William Neal Reynolds Coliseum, under the auspices of the New Arts, Incorporated.

The piano duo of Ferrante and Teicher have traveled across the United States and Canada, frequently playing before sell-out audiences. Two and one half million long playing albums and six million single records have been sold in two years.

"The Many Moods of Ferrante and Teicher" will include such Ferrante and Teicher piano favorites as "Tonight," "Theme from the Apartment," and "Exodus."

The duo first met at the age of six, when they both enrolled in New York's Juilliard School of Music. Ferrante was born in New York City, the son of a Violinist. Teicher was born in Wilkes Barre, Pennsylvania, and moved to New York at the age of five.

Following their graduation from Juilliard, they conducted a brief tour of concerts before returning to Juilliard as faculty members, teaching theory and composition. In order to devote full time to their concert work, Ferrante and Teicher resigned from teaching in 1947.

Hobbies of the pair include weight lifting and amateur photography; Teicher includes stamp collecting and Ferrante boats.

New Arts, Incorporated has made a limited number of tickets available to the public through the College Union and the Coliseum box office prior to the concert because of increased public interest.

Ferrante & Teicher

By Grant Blair

The meeting was in the House of Representatives Chamber in the Capitol and you could watch it from the visitors gallery.

The gallery was old and faded, and the visitors had carved their names and initials on the backs of the benches. The Trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina weren't all old and faded, but a lot of them were.

They all loved to talk. The president of Student Government, the treasurer, and the Dean of Student Affairs were in the gallery, also. Everyone seemed pretty interested.

After the motion was presented by Mr. Pearsall, Friday commented on the proposal, and Mrs. Gwynn, a Woman's College alumna, added a postscript. The compromise was reviewed, and Chancellor Caldwell received the credit he was due. He smiled.

The motion was open for discussion. Everyone talked, and they all said that this was "the most far-reaching proposal in the history of state education since 1931". Except for one fellow, an alumnus of State, very old. "I don't like to be subordinated to nobody." But he voted for the proposal.

When they voted, everyone stood up, and it passed unanimously—and it was all over with, the arguing, and the writing, and the discussing in class, and learning the history of consolidation, and knowing that alumnus is singular, male.

It probably was a pretty important action as far as state education was concerned.

That's why they talked so much, I guess.

Students Cut Rush Week

By Pete Warner

Rush week officially began last night.

But for a number of dormitory residents determined to go on being dormitory residents, rush week was "like nowhere."

Two Technician reporters last night scouted the dorms to find out why students were not pleasing. Answers:

"I raise as much hell as you all do."

"I go home on weekends. I've got plenty to keep me busy on weekends."

"I've got to study."

"I live in Raleigh."

"I rushed (last fall) for free meals."

"Want to get a good first year." (This student was busy playing cards.)

"I'm in the Ag Institute."

"I rushed last fall but I don't have my average."

"I'd thought about it."

"No, I hadn't really thought about it."

"No."

Meredith Guarded By P R Pledges

By Arthur Dumont

If someone in the library is wondering why a young man came in and asked for the plans to make a chastity belt he can stop.

This is just a small part of the Pershing Rifle Help Week.

This young man's action was a part of the Pershing Rifle Help Week which was officially opened at 9:15 a.m. last Saturday when a two and one fourth mile obstacle course was in operation for four hours. Every two minutes a pledge started on his way to run the difficult course.

One young pledge was very cold, so cold in fact that he drank some kerosene in order to keep warm. No harm however, his hands were too cold to strike the match to light his cigarette.

This week, the PR pledges will begin each day at 6 a.m. with a formation and in inspection. From there they will go to breakfast at the cafeteria. They will enjoy the privilege of eating a "square" meal. When eating a square meal the pledge must sit at attention on the first six inches of his chair and bring his eating utensil straight up from his plate and straight to his mouth. He must return his utensil to his plate in the same manner.

Pledges are not allowed to talk to anyone except PR brothers while changing classes. They are to "square" all corners and keep good military bearing.

Today the pledges had the privilege of guarding Meredith College.

Help Night, which will be this Friday, will be very eventful for the pledges. A mock battle using flour for ammunition will highlight the evenings' festivities. This battle will be umpired by Major Craig, PR advisor, and his assistants.

Subscriptions

Students, Faculty, and the college staff may now receive The Technician at their home address. There will be an extra charge of $1.00 to help defray the cost of postage and handling.

This charge must be paid in advance. Checks can be made out and mailed to The Technician at Box 5698, State College Station, Raleigh, or they can be delivered to Mrs. Carol Kenfield at the Publication Office in the WMCA basement.

Art Exhibition To Open Sunday In CU Gallery

North Carolina is gifted with artistic talent.

"Contemporary North Carolina Artists: An Exhibition from the Owen Lewis Galleries," containing the work of thirty artists, most of whom have lived or are now living in North Carolina, will open Sunday, February 10, in the College Union.

Seventy-five works, including paintings, sculpture, prints, and drawings, will be exhibited. The CU Gallery Committee will present the exhibit, beginning with a coffee hour from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. honoring the artists and guests.

The participating artists include the State College talents of Design School students Joe Cox and Roy Gussow, in addition to Claude Howell, all of whom have presented works in the College Union previously.

The exhibit will be open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Sundays through March 6.

The military bearing which always highlights the Pershing Rifles Help Week was shown as the PRs stood guard at Meredith College last year. Note the angle of the rifle; the stern face, the firm, erect body. This scene will be repeated tonight.

Freshmen Bow To Wilmington

By Robbie Davis

The State freshmen basketball team lost to Wilmington College Tuesday night by a score of 80-73. Ace center, Gene Bogash, led the Seahawks to their fifth win against eight losses by scoring 33 points and pulling down 15 rebounds. This is the sixth time this season that Bogash has scored over 30 points.

Wilmington led the entire game and had a 48-36 advantage at the half. The Wolflets managed to pull within four points at 73-69 with three minutes remaining but were unable to over-take the improved Seahawk team. The victory avenged an earlier 70-61 loss to the Wolflets.

The State freshmen were led by guard Bill Moffitt of Fayetteville with 24 points. Forward Ray Hodgdon and guard Jim Sellers added 11 points in the losing cause. The Wolflets are now 5-6 for the season.

AGR, KA Go Undeclared

By Vello Kuuskraa

The sound of basketballs on hardwood and the shrill shrieks of whistles announced the return of action in the fraternity league after the exam break.

League #1 produced easy victories for its top two teams Kappa Sigma and Pika.

The Kappa Sigs downed Sigma Chi 67-46. A well distributed scoring punch topped by Seawright's 17 tallies highlighted the victory, while Turpin and Smith paced the losing cause. Pika defeated a stubborn LCA team 48-38. May and Morrison were high scorers for PKA and Wachtel took the honors for LCA.

League #2 presented the battle of the undefeated as SPE and KA met for the crucial game of the season. KA jumped into a quick lead by virtue of their fast break and held on to defeat the Sig Eps 35-29. Cato, the fast break leader, topped all scorers with 14 points for KA and Faelten was high for SPE. In a real defensive struggle, SAM topped TKE 27-20.

Dwore of SAM and Scesney of TKE were the leading scorers.

Sigma Nu used a strong second half to down SAE 45-36. Williams with 18 sparked Sigma Nu while Smith of SAE had 14 tallies.

Theta Chi rolled over a cold-shooting Sigma Pi team 45-17. Kirkman, Rhodes, and Swain paced Theta Chi to their victory.

AGR continued to spotlight League #4 action by downing Delta Sig 45-37. The undefeated AGRs and a team effort overcame the height advantage of Delta Sig.

PKP edged Farm House in the concluding match of the night. The hair-raising scramble ended 33-32. Yelveton's 23 points were responsible for PKP's eventual victory.
