Syme Snack Shoppe Now Serving

Revamping Cost $15,000; Floor, Doors Replaced

State College students living in Syme Dormitory now have a spanking new snack bar to patronize.

The new bar, which was opened Monday night, is really an old shop which has been renovated at a cost of $15,000. According to L. L. Ivey, general manager of the college stores, the new shop will easily accommodate all of the traffic from the Syme area. Also according to Ivey, the renovation included installation of new lights, floors, partitions, and doors. The installation of the floor involved raising it 30 inches to the same level as the hall.

Space And Money Yield Cap Change

By Doug Lientz

A savings in money and space are the Army's goals in switching from service caps to garrison caps for basic ROTC students.

Aid To Textiles: AATCC Moves To Triangle

National headquarters for the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists will soon be in the Research Triangle—partly because of the Department of Textile Chemistry.

"We are well-equipped and will make our facilities available to them," explained Dr. Malcolm Campbell, dean of the School of Textiles.

According to officials of AATCC, the move was prompted by the major shift of the textile industry to the South. The headquarters have been in Lowell, Massachusetts for the past forty years.

Construction of a $250,000 building for the association will be completed in about a year. The new building will house administrative offices and a laboratory.

Dean Campbell stated that both the association and the college will benefit from their close geographical relationship. They will be approximately twenty minutes apart.

"Everybody speaks of the AATCC as A'TC," the dean commented. "We're very happy that they're coming here."

According to Mr. H. C. Thomas, custodian of military property for the college, the old type service caps cost about $3.50 each, while the garrison caps cost $1.35.

In addition he said that the garrison caps last six or seven years, but the service caps last only three or four years. The cost of cleaning garrison caps is also less: five cents compared with thirty-five cents for the service caps.

Also, the storage space needed for the garrison caps is also much less than is required for an equal number of service caps—less than two cubic yards compared with more than nineteen cubic yards.

The students taking basic Army ROTC are not as completely in favor of the change as the Army. However, most of the students agree that the garrison caps are easier to get out of the way in class.

"The garrison caps," said one student, "make Army ROTC cadets look like overgrown, two-tone Boy Scouts. This," he added, "is undesirable."

Some of the students have said that they think the garrison caps look better than the service cap, but this group seems to be in the minority.

There is also disagreement concerning which type of cap leaves the worse after effect. Some of the cadets have said that the headache resulting from wearing a service cap is worse than the red ring around the head resulting from wearing a garrison cap, but as in the case of which cap is better looking, there are some who disagree.

State College Begins Writing Workshop

By Doug Lientz

State College's first creative writing workshop held its first session last night in the College Union.

About thirty people attended the workshop, which was under the direction of Rom Linney, College Union fine arts director.

Linney began the session by explaining the method to be used in it and finished by confessing that he had written one of the stories used in the session.

During the session two short stories were discussed by the group; one by a student and one

"by a professional writer." As the discussion of the professionally written story proceeded, one of the men attending the session noticed that Linney seemed to know just what the author was trying to say in the story, although he had said that it was submitted anonymously.

The man asked Linney if he had written the story, and Linney confessed that he had.

At the start of the session, Linney explained how he hoped to run the workshop. He said that he would not try to tell anyone how to write as far as the mechanics of writing are concerned, as is done in English composition classes; but that he would try to keep the discussion in the workshop concerned with what the author was trying to put into the story and how well he had succeeded.

Then he explained the steps that would be taken with each particular story. First, he said, he would obtain a manuscript of some kind for consideration by the group. Then, he or the author would read the manuscript to the group. After that, the author would explain what he was trying to do in the story.

This will be followed by a discussion of the story by the rest of the group. This discussion, he said, would be concerned mainly with how well the author had accomplished what he had started out to do.

After this description of the way in which the workshop would work, Linney read the two stories to the group and a lively discussion followed.

The workshop will be held every Tuesday night in the College Union.

Caldwell Fetes Campus Heads

Gather round, gather round, and hear ye the story of . . . That seems to be what everybody is doing, including Dr. Caldwell (left). All of this took place last night as campus leaders attended a dinner in their honor at the Chancellor's house.

Chancellor Has Dinner For Campus Leaders

A dinner for campus leaders was held by Chancellor Caldwell in his home last night.

Members of the faculty at the dinner included Dr. Harry Kelly, dean of faculty, J. J. Stewart, dean of students, and Dr. W. H. Bennet, Burlington Professor of physics.

After dinner, the students and faculty discussed topics of mutual interest such as the Honor Code and activities of the Student Government. Dr.

Kelly and Chancellor Caldwell also told of their experiences in Japan after the war. Dr. Caldwell served with the Occupation Government, and Dr. Kelly served as head of a scientific study group.

Fraternity Row: Here's How It Will Look

Excavation has already begun on the State College Fraternity Row. The individual fraternity houses are slated to be finished in September 1963. Twelve of State's eighteen fraternities will move into this area. While the houses will be different in design, they will all have approximately the same facilities and will cost around $150,000 apiece.

Know Your Senator

On this page appears a list of the members of the State College Student Government Legislature. The list includes full names, campus addresses, and telephone numbers of all those senators who are presently serving in the legislature.

The number of State students who do not know who their senators are and who do not care enough to find out who they are is appalling. The printing of this list is intended to help these students.

If any student government is ineffective on any campus, it is usually because the student body has little interest in its activities. Such a climate of student apathy breeds incompetence in student affairs. When students don't particularly care who gets elected or, worse yet, don't care what they do after they are elected, any student government falters and becomes a farce.

Our student government is founded on proper grounds and the administrative atmosphere at State College is healthier for student self-government than at many other schools. Holladay Hall has realized in the past few years that the student government organization is a responsible campus institution and has placed increasingly greater trust in it through the years.

The top SG offices are presently occupied by four men who are capable, enthusiastic, and persevering. They have proved their ability in past years of service and in their organizational efforts this fall.

However, four men can not run SG effectively. It rests with the senators listed on this page to insure a successful year. These senators will be expected to attend all SG meetings and discharge their respective responsibilities conscientiously.

It remains with the student body to see that these senators do their respective jobs as they should. The fellow who runs for the legislature just because it may look good on his record has no place in a responsible student government. If there are any of these men in the present legislature, the student body should smoke them out and see that they are not re-elected.

The only way a student can determine the caliber of representation he is getting from his senators is to find his senator, express his ideas and displeasures if any, and find out how that senator votes on issues of interest.

The Technician is interested in an active student government. We pledge to keep students informed of SG activities and issues. It will then be up to the student body to voice opinions and see that its best interests are protected by student government.

Frat Intramural Football Begins; State, UNC Frosh Meet Friday

Greek Gridders

The Fraternity Intramural program literally "kicked-off" Monday afternoon as sixteen fraternity teams met in the initial games of the football season.

In League #1, the defending champions, Sigma Nu, were rudely shocked by an aggressive Kappa Sig squad. Strong line play by the Kappa Sigs, especially by Seawright, sparked the game leading to the 14 to 7 victory. Also in League #1 PKP, led by Ken Huggins, defeated SAM 18 to 0. Huggins passed for two TD's, one to Horner and the other to Billings.

In League #2, last year's second place team, SPE, proved to be in strong contention for championship honors as they trounced the TKE squad 24-6. The passing combination of Morton and Wagner accounted for the first three touchdowns for the Sig Eps. The last TD was scored by Steifel. PKA's grid squad was bothered by a surprisingly strong Sigma Pi team before breaking loose for their 20 to 0 victory.

League #3 held true to form, though barely, as Sigma Chi squeezed by the AGR's 7-0. Mike Thompson scored the game's lone TD. In the day's biggest rout, SAE thoroughly trounced Theta Chi by 32-0. Doug Shotton and Walt Brown were responsible for all of SAE's points as they displayed fine running and passing.

League #4 had the day's other major upset as PKT dealt the Delta Sigs a 20-6 set-back. The PKT's, a hot-cold team of last year, seem to be a major contender with the return of Jim Skidmore. In the final game of the afternoon, Kappa Alpha pushed aside LCA by the score of 19-6.

Wolflets vs. Tarbabies

The Freshman football teams of State and Carolina will meet in Riddick Stadium Friday night for the third consecutive year in the Sudan Temple Bowl Game.

The Shrine-sponsored game, the slogan of which is: "Strong legs run that weak legs may walk," is played annually for the benefit of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

Friday's game will be the first of the Wolflet's five-game schedule. In commenting on the game, Coach Johnny Clements had this to say. "We really don't know what to expect yet. The boys are still freshmen and we just don't know enough about them." Clements went on to say, "The team has very good spirit and a lot of hustle."

Clements expressed some uncertainty about UNC's 6' 5" quarterback. Said Clements, "We are anxious to see if he is as good as they (UNC) think he is."

New YMCA Man From Penn State

"The primary function of the YMCA is to stimulate thinking." This is the sentiment of Rev. Robert W. Hare, who has this past July 1 taken over Rev. Thomas Johnston's post as assistant coordinator of religious affairs at King Religious Center.

Rev. Hare graduated from Penn State in 1957 and continued at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. He completed his work there in May, 1962, just before coming to State College.

This is his first experience with a college YMCA. During the summer of 1958 he served as interim pastor to the Presbyterian Church in Virginia, Illinois. He served as assistant pastor to the Palos Park Presbyterian Church in Palos Park, Illinois, during 1959-60.

Rev. Hare added that in addition to trying to stimulate thinking on campus, his job would include "being of what assistant I can as a chaplain to the college community."

Two State Students In Peace Corps

By Doug Lientz

Two State College graduates are now working in the field with the Peace Corps.

The first of these to go out, Gene Hunter, is working on agricultural development projects in St. Lucia. He has been serving there for the last thirteen months.

Hunter has been working primarily on a project to determine what vegetables can be grown best in St. Lucia, in the hope that this work will bring about an increase in the income of farmers in this area.

He is also working on another crop production program in which D-6 catpillars are being used to break up hardpan soil.

A third project on which Hunter is working is the introduction of pigs into the area agricultural economy. He and five other Peace Corps volunteers are distributing 125 pigs which were shipped down there, and helping farmers prepare proper housing for them.

In addition Hunter helped set up a sprinkler irrigation system for use in the island during the dry season.

The second State College Peace Corps volunteer, David Peterson, received his Master's

WRITE? YOU'RE WRONG

In the recent furor over the assassination of President McKinley, it may have escaped your notice that a nationwide study of the writing ability of American college students has just been published.

The survey reveals an astonishing fact: that when students have completed their freshman year and are no longer required to take English, their writing skill progressively declines until we come to the fantastic situation where graduating seniors actually are poorer writers of English than incoming freshmen!

Many theories have been offered to account for this incredible fact. Some say that seniors know less English than freshmen because all seniors major in French. This is not true. No more than 94 percent of seniors major in French. How about the other six percent?

Well sir, of the other six percent, half—or three percent—take physics, and it is not hard to understand how these poor souls grow rusty in English when all they ever say is "E equals MC squared."

Of the remaining three percent, two-thirds—or two percent—major in whaling, and their English too grows feeble with disuse. Whalers, as we all know, do not speak at all except to shout, "Thar she blows!" maybe twice a year.

Of the one percent remaining, it cannot be fairly said that they are poor writers. The fact is, we don't know what kind of writers they are. Why not? Because they never write. And why don't they ever write? Because this remaining one percent of American college students are enrolled at the University of Alaska, and never take their mittens off.

(Incidentally, I received quite a surprise upon first visiting Alaska two years ago when I was invited to Juneau to crown the Queen of the Annual Date Palm Festival. Frankly I expected to find a surly and morose populace. After all, going through life with your mittens on all the time is hardly calculated to make you merry as a cricket. Not only can't you write, but you miss out on all kinds of other fun things—like three card monte, making shadow pictures on the wall, and lint picking. However, to my astonishment, I discovered Alaskans to be a hale and gregarious group, mittens notwithstanding, and I soon found out why: because mittens notwithstanding, they could still smoke Marlboro Cigarettes, still enjoy that rich mellow flavor, that fine, clean Selectrate filter, that truly soft soft pack, that truly flip-top flip-top box—and that, friends, will make anybody happy, mittens notwithstanding. In fact, Alaskans are the happiest people I have ever met in the whole United States—except, of course, for the Alaskan vendors of Marlboro Cigarettes, who have not been paid in many years—indeed, never—because how can anybody dig out coins to pay for cigarettes when he is wearing mittens?)

But I digress. What are we going to do about this deplorable condition where college students, having completed Freshman English, become steadily less proficient in the use of the language? The answer is simple. We will make them take Freshman English all through college. In fact, we won't let them take anything else! This solution, besides producing a nation of graceful writers, will also solve another harrowing problem: where to park on campus. If everybody takes nothing but Freshman English, we can tear down all the schools of law, medicine, engineering, and whaling, and turn them into parking lots. Can't we?

The makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, plead guilty to being among those Americans whose writing skill is not all it might be. However, we like to think that as tobaccoists we know a thing or two. Won't you try us and see if you agree?
