Observatory To Adorn New Physics Building

Want to look at the stars? If you'd like to do so without your girl, and learn about the stars, then there may soon be a telescope on campus for you to use.

The Science Council of the School of Physical Sciences and Applied Mathematics has proposed that the students and faculty of the school construct an observatory with a 12-inch telescope which may be located on top of the new physics building. A larger site in the country, utilizing a 24-inch telescope would follow.

The first proposal, according to the committee's report, describes an observatory site on the roof of the new physics building now under construction. It would utilize a 12-inch reflecting lens now in storage, with students and faculty from the School of PSAM mounting the lens and assisting in the construction which will also include a motor-driven mount for the telescope and a dome, and other accessories.

"In the past, there were very few jobs available for astronomers," Dean Menius explained. "Now NASA and other agencies are looking for astronomers as a result of our increasing space age emphasis." Menius went on to explain that the observatory would implement a further expansion of the single astronomy course now being offered at State. He anticipated that "if there is sufficient interest, then we can ask the legislature, the federal agencies, and other sources for funds to complete our second project."

The second observatory would include a 24 to 36-inch reflector, according to the proposal, and would be located in the country. It would include a number of more advanced accessories, including photographic equipment. The second proposal calls for the use of a 5-inch refractor telescope now available on campus.

According to Stephens, the feasibility of placing an observatory on top of the Physics building is being discussed at a meeting tonight.

ROTC To Offer Unique Training

Could one dozen individuals successfully take over the administration and governmental activities at N. C. State College?

"Absolutely!" says Army ROTC Cadet Lt. Col. Donald Coon, commanding officer of a newly-formed counter-insurgency unit.

A unit of 99 students begins counter-insurgency training next fall. The unit, composed of 16 operating teams, will learn judo, hand-to-hand combat, anti-guerrilla warfare, escape and evasion techniques, language and people-to-people programs among other pastimes, according to Cadet Major Wendell Murray, executive officer of the unit.

Insurgency movements, the taking over of legally constituted government, are successful because the public is not aware of what is happening until it's all too late, according to Murray. Thus, counter-insurgency movements are measures taken to suppress insurgency and to develop conditions which are undesirable for its existence.

A group of students has been training in counter-insurgency since May 3. These students, trained in judo and hand-to-hand combat, will be the instructors for the course next fall, Murray said. According to Coon, on and off campus insurgency and counter-insurgency operations will be conducted as a part of the 1963-64 school year. Major W. O. Wilson, assistant professor of Military Science, assisted by Sgt. James Buck, are advisors for the counter-insurgency unit.

Photo Officers

Other officers elected for the 1963-1964 year are Dave Lumpkin as vice-president and Ray Frauenholz as secretary-treasurer.

College Credits For Summer Work Offered by YMCA

Students can earn college credits while waiting tables and making beds.

There are twelve job vacancies for male students at the Blue Ridge Assembly this summer which can be done while earning credits in philosophy, sociology, or religion.

The program has been sponsored by the YMCA who made arrangements with the extension division of UNC.

Interested persons can get additional information from the campus YMCA office.

Student Government Banquet

Chancellor Caldwell spoke to the Student Government Banquet last night on the subject of "Responsibility and Authority." At the banquet SG President McCall administered the oath of office to next year's officers: John Bynum, president; Lynn Spruill, vice-president; Brian Little, secretary; and Herb Goldston, treasurer.

Chancellor Caldwell said that one of the big problems on our campus is that of lateral communications among the schools, faculty, and most of all, the students themselves. He also pointed out that at no time was the student body assembled as a whole. To help offset this problem he charged the Student Government to continue to use a good sense of responsibility and therefore allow the administration to delegate more authority.

In commenting on relations between the administration and SG, Chancellor Caldwell said, "In discussing all issues we must both look at both sides of the question and seek to understand each other, this is the beauty of our democratic form of government."

Those receiving awards at the banquet were John Atkins, best speaker; John Carr, best parliamentarian; and Jim Braddock, biggest rebel rouser. (Photos by Andrews)

SG Budget Sent To Legislature For OK

Only three student government-sponsored organizations failed to get the amount that they requested recommended for the upcoming school year.

Student government branches and organizations request the amount of money that they think will be needed for operating expenses for the coming year. Their request is considered and from it is made their recommended expenses. Sometimes these two figures vary widely. This year, however, the two figures vary only in three cases.

The student government organization requested budget corresponds exactly with the recommended budget, according to Bynum. The recommended budget for the executive branch is $2,155.00. The legislative branch has for its expenses $1,677.00. The judicial branch requests $530.00. Miscellaneous expenses will total $55.00.

The student government-sponsored organizations requested expenses and recommended expenses were the same except for the Amateur Radio Club, The Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Pershing Rifles.

According to John Bynum, SG President, the entire budget will total $11,055.00, or about $1.65 per student.

The estimated expenses for 1963-64 will be $10,083.20. This will leave a balance in reserve of $971.80, Bynum said.

A Legislature meeting to be held Thursday will determine whether or not this budget will be approved.

Agromecks Here; Distribution to Begin Thursday

Distribution of Agromecks will begin this Thursday and Friday, according to Editor Frank Smith.

A distribution center in Bragaw, for Bragaw residents only, will be open from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. They will also be given out at the loading dock on the east side of the College Union from 12 to 7, at the Student Supply Store basement from 12 to 5, and at the Agromeck office from 12 to 7, according to Smith.

Each student must present his blue ID card at one of these places to receive his yearbook.

A Good Idea

The proposal to build an observatory on top of the yet-to-be completed physics building is, to us, a far-reaching idea.

The Science Council of the School of Physical Sciences and Applied Mathematics is to be congratulated on its proposal, which will presently add to the scope and quality of "space age" teaching that our college is rapidly increasing and adding to as a part of its growth.

The immediate result of the new observatory will be to augment and increase our admittedly small astronomy department (one course) so that astronomy students and other students would have practical "lab" knowledge of astronomy. As Dean Menius pointed out, this experience will be valuable in future job opportunities with scientific agencies as the demand increases for scientists with a background in astronomy.

This increase in job demands, coupled with an expression of interest on the part of students of the college, would be justification of the second proposed site in the country. This site would be a real observatory, with facilities for a telescopic camera and all the other equipment, such as a coronagraph, a spectrograph, and so forth which an observatory demands for research and instruction. Certainly the possibility is not being openly mentioned, but the road would be paved for a department and degrees in astronomy.

Can castles be built out of dreams, as we have done in this case? It's been done before on this campus. The essential factor determining the success of this "dream" will be the interest and work offered by the Science Council, the students, and faculty of the school of Physical Sciences and Applied Mathematics.

A Defeatable Purpose

By now, the Appropriations Committee has come out of secret session as it was scheduled to do today. Hopefully, by now the committee has also acted on State College's share of the Consolidated University's biennium budget. Our main concern with the budget is whether or not the legislature will agree to finance half of the construction costs of two proposed dormitories.

If the college has to finance the dormitories on a completely self-liquidating basis, then we might as well count on dormitory fees rising, and rising by a large amount.

This, to us, defeats the primary purpose of a state-supported institution—its obligation to provide a low-cost education to the scholar.

Looking Back

Concerning the new name, the people we interviewed last night don't seem to really care.

Probably the best quote from any person was that, "It just doesn't make any sense."

What difference will the new name make? Generally, it will be something to look back at in fond memory as an alumnus. We have checked through our past issues, and, in retrospect, we wonder how we could have possibly have devoted that much space to a name.

Did it really "make any sense?" Probably Not.

Integration Urged

To The Co-Editors:

This letter is in direct rebuttal to the "asinine" (his word, not mine) letter written by W. G. Preussel, Jr., and published in your May sixth edition. And when he cools off and gets off his self-righteous high horse, I would welcome his comments again, on a more rational level.

First of all, let me say that I am a Caucasian, a citizen of the United States, and a senior at State College. I have lived in both the "North" and the "South," as well as in neutral territory, and draw my beliefs from my own observations, experiences, and Christian faith.

Mr. Preussel refers to picketing as an "undesirable activity." I heartily agree. It is unfortunate indeed when the need to picket occurs. It would be a better world if human rights were never violated. But we all condone picketing by labor unions for causes much less worthy than the one now in our midst. Labor unions rarely have more than their own indolent luxuries at stake when they picket, and I challenge anyone to call human rights such.

As for the "civil rights" (his quotation marks—and very appropriate to his statements) of the businessmen and Caucasian citizens who do not wish to associate with Negro people, the only course for them is to open private clubs, which are what their so-called public businesses actually are now, and retreat into their own narrowmindedness. When they manage to outgrow their bitterness over an unfortunate but necessary historical event of a century ago,

I am sure at least the Christian minority of our pagan society will welcome them back with open arms. Until then, I can only plead with these people to let the majority of the people (yes, the "people," not the "whites") lead the lives which God and their government have decreed for them.

This brings to my mind the curious double standard under which Southern Caucasians live. They have directed their governments, Federal, state, and local, through their votes, to abolish racial discrimination. State College could not be closed again to non-Caucasians even if the student body, faculty, and administration so wished. Yet, in non-governmental areas of public life, they insist on maintaining their outdated prejudices. If the people of these United States, this State, and this City are so absolutely set against integration, why in the name of rationality did they not cast their ballots that way?

As for the case of Dr. Angie Brooks, I pose but one question.

"Where is an Ambassador to the United Nations, no different in any significant way except in sex from Adlai Stevenson, to eat in the City of Raleigh?" In the bus terminal? Or in some greasy spoon? Nonsense. Even if the incident was pre-planned, and it probably was to some extent, my question still remains unanswered. Furthermore, the fact that she is a Negro gives the managers of the two restaurants involved, who were completely aware of her position and, consequently, her diplomatic immunity, absolutely no right to make the situation and themselves more ridiculous by asking her if she were seeking employment and threatening to have her arrested.

Mr. Preussel, please wake up. I doubt that I should like you as much as I do some of my Negro acquaintances, but would it not be completely foolish of me to boycott Leazar Hall just because you eat there? The South is practically a depressed area in comparison with other areas of this country, despite its abundance of resources. I lay this plight squarely in the laps of those Southerners who cannot overcome the disgrace of the Civil War and get on with things. People, you're making fools of both yourselves and your country. Please, wake up!

Name Change Effect Null

By Ernie McCrary

The results of a small survey of about a dozen State students conducted by The Technician indicate that they disapprove of the new name, North Carolina State of the University of North Carolina at Raleigh.

The students interviewed were asked what name for the school they would use in the return address of their letters.

The answers in every case were "N. C. State" or "State College." An unclassified student in general studies, however, said, "The last two letters I wrote I tried the new name and it went all the way across the envelope. I consider it ultimately impractical and will use N. C. State from now on." Everybody seemed to agree with him.

A sophomore in textiles said if someone from out of the state asked him where he went to school, he would try to quote the entire name to him, but would probably not get it right. "It just doesn't make any sense," he said.

Outstanding Senior

When asked the question about his return address, a junior in crop science said, "I'd put State College. I don't give a damn what they call it, it's State College to me."

No one questioned objected to this attitude.

Grad Finances Studied

How do the nation's graduate students pay for their education?

The National Science foundation has awarded a contract to the National Opinion Research Center of the University of Chicago to answer just that question.

The nationwide survey will attempt to find out how future engineers, scientists, and other professional people are supported during graduate training.

State has been selected as one of the major participating institutions. Dr. John Tomlin of the department of sociology and anthropology is the field representative on our campus.

Students will be asked to report their academic and non-academic expenditures for the year, savings, and debts. Other questions will concern course loads, outside employment, and relevance of job activities to academic pursuits. The research is expected to shed light on how wives are contributing to their husbands' education.

Dr. Tomlin said that it would be greatly appreciated if those graduate students included in the sample will cooperate in filling out and returning their questionnaires as soon as possible.

Campus Crier

Couples may appear at the dance festivity next Saturday from 8 p.m. to 12, in the CU ballroom. All couples are summoned to this last of the "Starlight Club" events, featuring "The Mystics."

The student teachers for next fall will muster tonight at 7:30 in Tompkins 112. Assignments will be made.

Tomorrow night the Christian Science Youth Group will rendezvous for a testimonial meeting at 8.30 in the Y.M.C.A. conference room. All are welcome.

Riotous Registration Seems Doomed

Editor's note: Save this article until next fall, when you will probably have your last chance to slip into registration ahead of time.

By Doug Lients
Half the fun of starting a new semester may leave the campus if the preregistration plans now pending go through. What will we have to gripe about before the first quiz?

And what will replace the innumerable hours spent struggling to get the schedule we all want; eighteen semester hours with no eight a.m., afternoon, or Saturday classes?

In the past, one of the major sports here at State has been finding ways to get into the Coliseum before one's appointed hour.

One way to get in ahead of time, according to a student who claims to have used it, is through the windows on the upper level. The student said that these windows are left unlocked, and that by climbing from the steps leading to the doors on this level out along the narrow, brick ledge and past the first drain pipe, one can reach the window. Then, he said, climbing in and hiding until registration starts is the only problem.

We have not tested this method yet, so we will not swear that it works.

Another student claimed that hiding before the building closed the night before also works.

The more common method, however, seems to be to sneak in early in the morning. According to one source, the APO boys watching the front door stop worrying after ten a.m. He said that walking in this way is easier than waiting in line with the three p.m. group.

Until this year, almost anyone with access to blank IBM cards and an IBM typewriter could slip in with a phony name on a card. The IBM tickets to get in, however, seem to have stopped this.

Now, according to one source, students just give someone who does get in early their permit to register, and have them schedule the most critical courses.

Needless to say many of these methods are frowned upon by the administration. Chasing early permits was permitted, however. Some of our fellow students would do almost anything to get an early permit. One has admitted to almost selling his soul to the College Union to get in with the eight a.m. group. Others in the past have collected class dues, sold "New Arts" tickets, and made surveys for this paper.

We stand to lose all of this fun, however, if the plans for preregistration go through. We may not be completely out of the registration picture yet, however. Several students are already working on systems to beat the IBM machines which will give the student the classes he wants at the hours the machine picks.

The Military Science Department with its one, two, three, four registration procedure. One, wait in line; two, pick up cards; three, wait in line; four, surrender cards.

Now that you're almost done, think back; have you scheduled more than one course for any given time. You might be able to cut a few classes, but two quizzes on the same day could hurt.

Owen No. 2 Wins Twice In Horseshoe Tournament

Owen #2 won two successive horseshoe matches Monday afternoon to win the winner's bracket championship in the dormitory division.

The Owen #2 team defeated Becton and then Bragaw North by 2-1 scores. Bragaw North had just defeated Watauga for the finalist position in the winner's bracket.

In loser's bracket action, Alexander defeated Tucker #1 by forfeit and then defeated Becton, who had just lost to Watauga, by a 2-1 score. The double victory put Alexander in the semi-final round of the loser's bracket. The other semifinalist, Watauga, reached its berth by downing Welch-Gold-Fourth 2-1. Welch-Gold-Fourth had just beaten Owen #2.

The winner of the Watauga-Alexander match will meet Bragaw North for the loser's bracket championship and the right to play Owen #2 for the overall crown.

The champion in the loser's bracket will have to defeat the winner's bracket champion, Owen #2, in two separate matches to win the overall championship in the double elimination tournament. All remaining matches will be played today.

Four Finalist Meet Today In Intramural Softball Play-Offs

Four games were played Monday afternoon in the semi-final round of intramural softball; two were played in the fraternity division and two in the dormitory division.

In the fraternity division, Phi Kappa Tau advanced to the finals with a 16-6 victory over Theta Chi. The PKT's scored at least two runs in every inning except the fourth on the way to their seventh victory of the season. Morrow had the only four base hit of the game for PKT.

Pi Kappa Phi won their eighth contest of the season without a loss by downing Sigma Nu 13-6. The PKP's rallied for seven runs in the fifth frame to ice the game. Long and Scarborough hit home runs for the winners while Brisson hit Sigma Nu's only homer.

Phi Kappa Tau will meet undefeated Phi Kappa Phi in the final round of action Wednesday to decide the fraternity championship.

Turlington and Watauga are the two finalist in the dormitory softball play-offs. Turlington scored nine runs in the final two innings of their game with Bragaw North to take a 18-9 victory. Ashby collected the only home runs of the contest, hitting two for Bragaw North.

Watauga won their semi-final game over Bagwell by a 14-10 score. Griffin and Anderson hit homers for Watauga while James hit one for Bagwell.

Assignment: put more pep per pound into Ford-built engines

Result: New family of lightweight powerplants . . . including a new V-8 that weighs 110 pounds less than the comparable V-8 it replaces

In our search to provide good performance with lighter powerplants, Ford Motor Company engineers and foundrymen have pioneered new techniques that now let us cast our engine blocks with such precision that much lighter engines are made possible.

New materials used to make cores and molds and new casting methods enable us to make engine parts with walls as thick as necessary—but no thicker. This eliminates weight of extra material which must be used to provide adequate strength with less precise casting methods.

Reducing engine weight through precision casting means more performance per pound—and since lighter engines mean overall car weight can be reduced, better fuel economy results.

Another assignment completed—another Ford First—and one more example of how Ford Motor Company continues to provide engineering leadership for the American Road.
