'63 Drop-out Rate Down From 1962

Forty-nine drop-outs on December 2 and 3 who swelled the total for fall semester to 251 failed to provide an increase over last year at this time.

Poster Dimensions Now Determined By Each Dorm Head

Poster sizes in all dormitories are now left up to the respective dormitory counselors.

According to James Poteat, Interdormitory Council president, the council decided in its last meeting to leave the maximum size of posters, campaign or otherwise, up to the dorm counselors.

There has been controversy in the past as to where it was permissible to place posters. Poteat added that essential material on bulletin boards has been covered up with posters of little importance. The proposal was brought before the council by N. B. Watts, director of Student Housing.

Poteat said he has been working with John Bynum, SG President, to get the Student Government Elections Committee to pass a ruling similar to the IDC's.

Poteat also reminded future candidates that there is ample space on the outside walls of dormitories for their campaign material.

According to Lyle B. Rogers, director of counseling, 314 students had withdrawn by the third of last year. Rogers said it was "difficult to give any explanation for the considerably lower number of this year as compared to last."

Rogers said the procedure for withdrawal begins officially with the student's coming to the Counseling Center to discuss his situation with a counselor. The counselor makes sure that the student is aware of the various aspects of his situation and the alternatives to withdrawal, such as dropping a course or courses in the case of extended illness. On occasion it is possible to direct him to assistance to avoid the necessity of withdrawal. Students dissatisfied with their present programs discuss alternatives and frequently pursue vocational testing and guidance either before or after completing withdrawal.

Each withdrawer is given a sheet of pertinent information: details involved in the withdrawal procedure; the procedures for re-enrollment or transfer; and the results of withdrawal in such cases as provisional status.

Social Fraternities Host Santa And Kids

Santa Claus is coming tonight. Social fraternities are hosting IFC-sponsored Christmas parties for Raleigh orphans tonight. Each house will entertain 10 to 12 children between the ages of seven and 12 from the Methodist and Catholic Orphanages. An IFC Santa Claus will distribute gifts purchased by the Council for the parties. On each gift will be a child's name, to add a personal touch to the affair.

Owen Bird

The swallows may not have come back from Capistrano, but the pigeons are driving the residents of Owen dorm mad.

For the past few days it has not been unusual for Owen residents to see pigeons walking up halls. Several students have complained of evidence left by pigeons during their absence from the room.

The pigeons are obviously not very friendly. One boy complained of being pecked while trying to feed one which was sitting on his roommate's desk. One student reported throwing two pigeons that happened to be walking in the hall out of the window.

"We're getting tired of this," stated one student, "we're going to wring their necks from now on."

Mike Phillips, third-floor assistant floor counselor, was in agreement. "They didn't pay their rent so throw them out."

N. B. Watts, director of Student Housing, said he knew nothing about pigeons in Owen but pointed out that no pets are allowed in the dormitories.

Prexy Proud

Consolidated University President Bill Friday, probably the only university president in the nation to have two teams going to bowl games, stated Monday that he was "very proud of both of these teams of boys."

He added that Coaches Edwards and Hickey have his "complete and full support at any time."

Only About Twenty People Made Their Reservations On Liberty Bowl Train

Only about 20 people had made reservations by last night on the Liberty Bowl special train to Philadelphia, according to Warren Carroll, field director of the Wolfpack Club. The round trip, plus a night's lodging, costs $39 per person under the Wolfpack Club-sponsored project.

At least 450 seats must be filled in order for the fans to have the entire train to themselves. Carroll said special arrangements would probably be made to attach a special car to the regularly scheduled train if the special train remains unfilled.

The Club hopes to wind up its plans for the train by Friday, December 17, Carroll said. Reservations may be made by contacting Carroll at the Coliseum.

Groups of 50 may rent a train car at reduced rates.

Thieves Raid Faculty Club

Thieves have stolen $6,700 in cash and checks from the State Faculty Club.

The thieves, evidently wearing gloves, ripped open the back of a six-foot safe, located in the storage room, with a wrecking bar and meat cleaver last Sunday night, according to Wake County deputies. About $1,400 of the confiscated property was cash. Irredeemable papers and other items worthless to the crooks were strewn over the floor.

As of yet, few clues have appeared to uncover the criminals, deputies said. The State Bureau of Investigation is assisting the local Sheriff's Department in the pursuit of the stolen property and looters.

William Jones, a club employee, discovered the theft about 8 a.m. Monday.

Campus Light Now Shine In The East

By Jim Rea

Street lights on the eastern end of campus were lit last night for the first time in several weeks.

This accomplishment was the result of PP electricians replacing most of the wires to these lights.

The street lights installed on campus six or eight years ago have never been reliable, according to J. McCree Smith, head of the PP. Smith said rotten insulation resulting from moisture in the ground has caused shorts in the lines and put the lights out.

As each section of the light system goes bad, the old wires are replaced by new ones resistant to moisture.

This renewing of the street light system is not part of the plan to rebuild the entire electrical system on campus. Smith remarked that the money for the rebuilding will be requested in the 1965 session of the State Legislature.

Meanwhile, the parts of the light system will be replaced as they need to be. Eventually the moisture-proof wires will connect all the street lights on campus and no more trouble will be expected, Smith said.

Million-Dollar Building Ready For Classes

The new Civil Engineering building has been completed.

"The million-dollar building, though completed, can not become functional until it has been officially approved by the State Property Control Office, which approves all new state buildings," stated C. R. Bramer, head of the Civil Engineering Department.

The new building has been named Mann Hall in memory of the late Prof. C. L. Mann Sr., who headed the department for many years.

The building's four stories provide 76,400 square feet of space, 65 per cent increase over all present facilities. The modernistic building includes laboratory, classroom, and lecture areas, offices for the faculty, student organization and conference rooms. To the rear on the ground level, the building has some heavy equipment and testing laboratories.

An estimate of the latest time for classes to begin in the building is spring semester. The new Mann Hall, as designed, allows for future expansion. An additional 78,100 square feet can be added both horizontally and vertically.

If needed, it will be possible to add an additional two stories vertically. Bramer said the modern Civil Engineering building may some day have floor space facilities totaling 154,500 square feet.

Speaker Requests Military Fund Cut

By Allen Lennon

Dr. Seymour Melman of Columbia University delivered the final lecture in the Apollo Club series last night, and called for drastic reductions in America's military budget and subsequent redistribution of funds toward "improving the civilian economy."

Dr. Melman pointed out that an all-out war can no longer be won by either side in view of the consequences of victory and stated further that military expenditures have "reached a point of zero return" because no one has yet been able to "figure out how to kill a man more than once."

Dr. Melman developed his "overkill" example by explaining that if 90 percent losses of striking bombers is assumed along with 75 percent losses of missile carriers, the United States still could deliver enough destructive power to the Soviet Union to kill everyone engaged in the Soviet industrial complex 231 times. Assuming a defensive efficiency of 99 percent, the population could be killed about 2.3 times, he said.

Dr. Melman stressed the need for reassigning top priorities in our government expenditures. He indicated that the country's resources and talents have been so concentrated in military pursuits that American civilian industries are hurting technologically. In this light he spoke in favor of an Economic Conversion Commission, now proposed in the Congress, to study ways and means of converting the country's military industries into more civilian areas without the drastic drop in employment opportunities which might accompany a cut in military budgets.

A Matter Of Loyalty

Distressing news from the Wolfpack Club came last night in the form of a report on the progress of the special alumni and student train which has been planned for the Liberty Bowl trip. (See story on Page One.)

Such a nominal response from students and alumni is doubly disappointing in light of the announcement made Saturday night at the State-Wake Forest game to the effect that more than 400 students at Mississippi State, the Wolfpack's opponent in the Liberty Bowl, have signed up for a similar venture.

It is hoped that many more State fans are planning to go to Philadelphia by means other than the Wolfpack Special. If such is not the case, December 21 may be a disappointing day for North Carolina State in more ways than one.

The coaches and players are making a considerable effort and sacrifice in preparing for and playing in the bowl game. They deserve the personal support of every student, faculty member and alumnus who can possibly make the Philadelphia trip. Surely there are more than a handful of us who can qualify.

SNAFU

The "small matter" of the placement of posters on campus has grown into a rather large foul-up.

Already, a director of the Campus Chest drive has been chastized by Student Government for the improper placement of posters.

Earlier this year, the administration enforced a ruling governing the placement of posters on academic buildings. Now there is some question about the definition of "academic buildings." Is the Erdahl-Cloyd Union an academic building? Certainly, the dormitories should not be considered "academic buildings."

The IDC has decided on the complicated policy of letting each dormitory counselor decide the size of individual posters. This ruling has been misinterpreted by the Union so that it is now under the impression that all posters are limited to the size of a sheet of paper.

Besides showing how complicated University policies are becoming, this situation points out the need for a single set of rules about posters.

It follows that if the Union, one of the largest organizations on campus, is incapable of understanding the rules, then a small club wanting to put up posters can't possibly do any better.

Earlier in the year, Student Government considered, then defeated, a resolution concerning the placement of posters. It is time now for SG to unravel the rules already being enforced by the administration and the IDC, and create a consolidated policy which can be easily understood by anyone on campus.

These guidelines should not be simply rules to govern the application of existing rules, either.

Included in these should be recommendations to IDC that this "individual responsibility" rule be discontinued. This can only result in posters that are acceptable for one dormitory being refused in another. There should be recommendations to the administration concerning the interpretation of its rules. Minor though the situation may be compared to some challenges, SG should act as the leader of the student body that it ought to be. . .

Hmm... I see great military triumphs... much booty... many captive slaves.

Later, I see you reaching the pinnacle of your political aspirations. I see...

Last Chance To See Chekhov Plays Nears

By Ernie McCrary

"It is very unusual for a college to run plays for so long. The students here haven't been taking advantage of it because they don't know the theater, but we are hoping they will become more familiar with it through our efforts in presenting these plays."

Erdahl-Cloyd Union Theater Director Ira Allen was talking about the almost unprecedented series of 34 nights of performances by the theater group.

Thirteen people, all but two of whom are State students, make up the cast for four one-act plays by Anton Chekhov which have been running since November 8. This weekend marks the end of the performances.

Tonight and Thursday night two of the plays, Summer in the Country and The Swan, will be given in the Union theater at 9:30. Admission is 25 cents for students. On December 13, 14, 15, and 18 these two, along with The Boor and The Marriage Proposal, will be presented at 8 p.m. Admission is 50 cents for these performances.

Attendance at the plays has been rather disappointing, Allen said, but has been increasing a little recently. The largest number at a single performance so far has been 60, he stated. The average is about 30.

"After almost 30 shows these people are not amateur actors any longer. These plays are really funny and offer a very enjoyable night's entertainment."

Allen added that the theater program is open to all State students, faculty, staff, and Raleigh townspeople.

A Review Folklore Within Ballet Concert

By Marshall Wills

The Ballet Folklorico de Mexico presented the most successful Friends of the College program to date last night.

Strange at first, the folklore-ballet concentrated on the old legends, present-day customs, and stories of tradition from various provinces of Mexico.

The mythological quetzal bird is one of the oldest legends of Mexico and is an excellent opening selection. The formality of the quetzal symbolism is changed abruptly by the excitement and freedom of the Dances of Old Michoacan which portray the blend of the native Indian and Spanish cultures.

A wild machete fight ensues (above) in the midst of wedding festivities as the bridegroom challenges a rival suitor in the folk tale of a Wedding in the Huasteca.

The highlight of the second half was the spirited Deer Dance of the Yaqui Indians. The dancer who portrays the deer displays magnificent control and coordination; he is unsurpassed in skill by any of the troupe, drawing more applause than any other performer.

Mexico can be very proud of her tale in the Ballet Folklorico.

Another Stone, About Bill

A speaker ban bill, influenced by North Carolina's gag law, may be adopted in the 1964 General Assembly in Virginia.

The bill would ban Nazis, Communists, and other persons affiliated with anti-American policies from speaking at Virginia schools receiving financial aid from the state.

Virginia State Senator William F. Stone of Martinsville said, "I think it will be introduced. I don't know if I will introduce the bill or if someone else will."

Stone is the brother of North Carolina Senator Clarence Stone, who is president of the N. C. Senate. Stone is credited with helping push the gag bill through the legislature last spring.

The Old Gold and Black, Wake Forest's student newspaper, has elected 25 seniors to their first "Who Ain't" list.

The students were selected on the basis of contributions to the College deserving of recognition, according to Editor Charles Osolin.

He added that The Old Gold's list of selections could be interpreted as a protest against the College's list for "Who's Who among American Colleges and Universities."

When the "Who's Who" list was announced earlier, the paper ran an editorial questioning the criteria for some of the selections.

183 Clean House

By Jim Rea

House keeping at State is a job requiring 183 men to work seven hours a day for five days a week.

The organization of these 183 janitors is quite complex, according to Charles C. Braswell, director of the Buildings Department. The janitors are divided into groups according to the jobs to be done such as dorms, academic buildings, windows, and floors. Fifty-four janitors and seven foremen are assigned to the dorms. There are 93 janitors and 12 foremen to clean the academic buildings. In addition to these, there is a six-man window cleaning crew and a seven-man floor cleaning crew. There are also four men designated to deliver campus mail.

The dorm janitors report to work at 7:30 in the morning and work until 3:30 in the afternoon. To take advantage of the absence of students, the janitors for the academic buildings report to work at 5:00 in the morning and work until 1:00 in the afternoon. The janitors average about 1000 square feet of floor space each.

The job of the foremen is to check on the work of the janitors and to keep security. The method of keeping security is accomplished by having the janitors turn their keys into their foremen everyday after work. The foremen then turn the keys into the central office. The next day the janitors have to pick up their keys from their foremen before they start work.

The only requirement a prospective janitor needs is a grammar school education and an application. The pay of State's janitors ranges from $2352 to $2964 a year. Most janitors getting a job here stay only a short time before moving to a higher paying job in other businesses.

Each year the job of janitor-ing becomes more complicated as new devices are developed to speed up the cleaning processes. In the gym an automatic floor scrubber is used which does the entire floor in two hours. A special plastic is used on the wooden floors which requires less waxing. Such developments require skill to use correctly.

These men are part of State's crew of 183 janitors. The day's work for dorm janitors begins each morning at 7:30 while custodians of academic buildings start their day at 5:00 so they will not be bothered by traffic in the buildings.

Young Folk Song Book

By Herb Allred

For those who play some musical instrument and for those who don't, the Young Folk Song Book will provide some honest entertainment and interesting folk information.

Edited by Earl Robinson and forwarded by the "big daddy" of the present folk movement, Pete Seeger, the book contains thirty songs as sung by folkists Joan Baez, Bob Dylan, Jack Elliott, The Greenbriar Boys, The New Lost City Ramblers, and Peggy Seegar.

The arrangements include parts for piano, guitar, voice, and banjo. Several of the songs also are accompanied by a guitar and/or a banjo tablature, a method used to indicate the strings and plucking device to be used in playing the song.

A sketch of each performer or group precedes the five songs sung by them.

Some of the songs are well-known . . . some are not. So whether you play or not, it's a fun book if you like to sing.

The Young Folk Song Book is available at the Student Supply Store.

Alexander took its finals berth by downing Kappa Alpha 56-48. Parrish led the winners with 19 points on nine field goals and one free throw. Lewis and Culp-terson followed with 13 points each. Thompson paced the KA team with 14 points.

Dormitories Begin Basketball Season With Seven Games

The 1963-64 Dormitory intramural basketball season got under way Monday night with 14 teams playing seven games.

Bragaw North #2 scored more points than any other team and also won by the largest margin as they downed Tucker #2 by a 58-34 score. Four Bragaw players hit in double figures, led by Nick White with 16. Wayne Funderburke hit 14 while Stewart and Taylor had 12 each for the winners. Sassaman had 13 markers for the losers.

Lowe was the only bowler over 500 with a 176-515 series for Bragaw.

In Section #2, Bragaw North #1 increased its lead in first place by splitting 2-2 with a tough Owen #2 team while second place Bragaw South #1 lost three of four to Watauga.

Southerland had a 172-509 for Bragaw North #1, and was the only bowler in this match to reach the magic 500 mark. In the Watauga Bragaw South contest, Cox led the Watauga team with a 178-507 series, but Bailey was high for both teams with a 206-202-566 series.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: BEN COOK

Because of Ben Cook (B.I.E., 1958, M.B.A., 1961), businessmen in five southern states now benefit from new Dial Teletypewriter Service. Ben, a Traffic Supervisor with Southern Bell in Atlanta, supervised the mechanizing of the Operating Center that serves Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Ben qualified for his latest position by skillfully handling a variety of other assignments given him by the company. On one, he supervised three groups of instructors who train customers in the use of new telephone services. On another, he was responsible for personnel administration and planning involving a $250,000 yearly payroll. On all, he showed ability that will take him far with Southern Bell.

Ben Cook, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

NEW CHEVELLE!

BY CHEVROLET

The kind of go-6 or V8—you'd expect from one of Chevy's great highway performers. Come on down and drive it.

The kind of comfort you'd expect in a large interior. Come on down and sit in it.

The kind of fresh styling—inside and out—that makes it the year's smartest surprise. Come down and stare at it.

New Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

Now—Chevy spirit in a new kind of car!

We built this one to do more than just stand around looking beautiful. Held its weight down in the 3,000-pound range. Then built four lusty engines—two sixes and two V8's—with output all the way up to 220 horses*!

And if that makes you think this is one frisky car, you've got the right idea.

You've also got a roomy car here. Yet its 115-inch wheelbase keeps it highly maneuverable in traffic and very easy to park.

With its Full Coil suspension, it's got a ride that reminds you of the Jet-smooth kind the way it muffles noise and cushions bumps.

And the fine hand of Body by Fisher craftsmen shows up beneath this one's suave good looks, too.

Sound good? There's more. Like the fact that Chevelle comes in three series with eleven models—convertibles, sport coupes, sedans, wagons, even Super Sport models with front bucket seats. Like the fact that (and see if this isn't one of the nicest surprises of all) the new Chevelle comes at an easy-to-take price!

Like to hear more? The listening's wonderful at your Chevrolet dealer's—and so's the driving.

Biltmore Room Houses Relies Of Forestry Father

A memorial to the man who began the science of Forestry is buried in the D. H. Hill Library.

There is a room on the third floor of the library, a locked room, which is known to a few people as the Biltmore Room. According to O. H. Orr, a professor of history and political science, who has been involved in a study of the records and subject matter of the Biltmore room for several years, the Biltmore Room contains the personal records, papers, books, and some belongings of Carl Alwin Schenck, the founder of the first forestry school in the United States and the father of the modern study of forestry.

Included in the material donated by the family and friends of Schenck, who died in 1955, is the collection of the American Forest History Foundation, donated to State as a result of Schenck's respect for the School of Forestry at State.

The founder of Biltmore Forestry School near Asheville in 1898, Schenck was the first teacher of the principle of conservation through wise use. His school, situated on the Vanderbilt Estate, was an intensive year-long seminar on the most modern techniques of forest use and conservation at that time.

Classes were informally held in the most fitting environment, the forests of the estate and what is now the Pisgah National Forest. Students would venture out early in the morning on horseback to the site of that days lecture or practicum. The area offered examples of many types of lands and activities of timber usage, and Schenck made full use of these in his classes.

Orr describes Schenck from his reading of letters and notes written by students of the school as a man dedicated to the love of forests. Although Schenck was known for his changes of mood and constant vitality, he was strangely beloved by his students. The school's graduates became a sort of fraternity that even published a magazine for alumni years after the closing of the school. These same men are now the leaders of forest industries in this area and they still band together to prolong the memory of the Biltmore days.

Schenck was disappointed in the Biltmore School which never really thrived, and returned to his native Germany in 1913. His only return to this country was in 1952 at the age of 84. At that time he traveled from coast to coast speaking and being honored by those who had come to realize the importance of his rough beginnings in America. During his visit to State, Schenck was awarded an honorary doctorate by the School of Forestry and he said at that time that he looked upon State as being a continuation of his pioneering school.

In 1957, two years after Schenck's death, a 250-acre pine forest just west of Raleigh was dedicated to his memory. Schenck Forest is the annual site of the first orientation meeting for freshmen in the school. Two years earlier a Carl Alwin Schenck Distinguished Professorship was begun in his honor.

'TIS THE SEASON TO BE JOLLY

If you have been reading this column—and I hope you have; I mean I genuinely hope so; I mean it does not profit me one penny whether you read this column or not; I mean I am paid every week by the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes and my emolument is not affected in any way by the number of people who read or fail to read this column—an act of generosity perfectly characteristic of the makers of Marlboro, you would say if you knew them as I do; I mean here are tobaccoists gray at the temples and full of honors who approach their art as eagerly, as dewy-eyed as the youngest of practitioners; I mean the purpose of the Marlboro makers is simply to put the best of all possible filters behind the best of all possible tobaccos and then go, heads high, into the market place with their wares, confident that the inborn sense of right and wrong, of good and bad, of worthy and unworthy, which is the natural instinct of every American, will result in a modest return to themselves for their long hours and dedicated labors—not, let me hasten to add, that money is of first importance to the makers of Marlboro; all these simple men require is plain, wholesome food, plenty of Marlboros, and the knowledge that they have scattered a bit of sunshine into the lives of smokers everywhere; if, I say, you have been reading this column, you may remember that last week we started to discuss Christmas gifts.

Do you know someone who is interested in American history?

We agreed, of course, to give cartons of Marlboro to all our friends and also to as many total strangers as possible. Today let us look into some other welcome gifts.

Do you know someone who is interested in American history? If so, he will surely appreciate a statuette of Millard Fillmore with a clock in the stomach. (Mr. Fillmore, incidentally, was the only American president with a clock in the stomach. James K. Polk had a stem-winder in his head, and William Henry Harrison chimed the quarter-hour, but only Mr. Fillmore, of all our chief executives, had a clock in the stomach. Franklin Pierce had a sweep second hand and Zachary Taylor had seventeen jewels, but, I repeat, Mr. Fillmore and Mr. Fillmore alone had a clock in the stomach. Some say that Mr. Fillmore was also the first president with power steering, but most historians assign this distinction to Chester A. Arthur. However, it has been established beyond doubt that Mr. Fillmore was the first president with a thermostat. Small wonder they called him Old Hickory!)

But I digress. To get back to welcome and unusual Christmas gifts, here's one that's sure to please—a gift certificate from the American Chiropractic Society. Accompanying each certificate is this winsome little poem:

*Merry Christmas, Happy New Year,
Joyous sacro-iliac!
May your spine forever shine,
Blessings on your aching back.
May your lumbar ne'er grow number,
May your backbone ne'er dislodge,
May your caudal never dawdle, Joyeux Noel! Heureux massage!*

© 1963 Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro, who take pleasure in bringing you this column throughout the school year, would like to join with Old Max in extending greetings of the season.
